Still, thought Marcia, wouldn't that be exactly what a person would do who was secretly carrying on an affair with somebody else?

Marcia was very young, utterly unsophisticated and deeply in love with Bert. At the mere thought of anything between him and Betty or between him and some unknown B. R. bitter pangs of jealousy stabbed at her heart.

And because she was young and not very worldly-wise she made a wrong decision. Instead of confronting Bert with the note, she decided to say nothing at all about it but to let him give himself away and confirm her suspicions. But Bert failed to tumble into them.

But the days passed and she discovered nothing further to trouble her. The day of their wedding was nearing and already Marci wished she had mentioned the matter at the time. Otherwise, she feared that its shadow would some time cloud what promised to be perfect happiness.

There came an afternoon when an errand to the city for material for the dressmaker who was making her trousseau gave her a really good excuse for coming out with Bert. For some time she had been too busy to do this and the affair of the note was rapidly being forgotten under the stress of wedding preparations.

It came as a shock, therefore, when, as she approached the car preoccupied with her thoughts, she saw a glimmer of white between the body and the front door exactly as before.

Marcia seized it and read it without scruple.

"Darlingest,

May be late. If I'm not here when you come, better pick me up at corner of Greene and Howe.
B."

Well, this time she would certainly have it out with Bert. Unless he could explain satisfactorily—which, of course, she reminded herself with a little choke, he couldn't—she would break off everything then and there.

She couldn't believe, at that, that it was Betty Rackham. There were plenty of girls, probably some of them right in Bert's office, whose initials were B. R.

Then she saw Betty Rackham coming down the street, bundle-laden and looking anxiously at each car she passed.

Reaching Marcia, she heaved a sigh of relief. "Well, hello, there. Glad we're going to have a passenger. You know I never know where to find Tom's car. He simply will park it all over the lot. I didn't expect to get through so early and left a note—well, where is it? I have the worst luck with notes. Here's another one gone! Did you see—"

But Marcia grabbed Betty's arm as she dropped her packages in the back seat. "Is this your car, Betty?"

"Why, sure. Did you think—well, that's right. We both have these poor man's blessings, haven't we? Yes, this is our number."

Marcia hoped she did not look as foolish as she felt. "Yes, I did take it for Bert's. So I'll do a Sherlock Holmes and find the other one."

She saw the whole thing now. Just as she had this time mistaken Betty's car for Bert's, so Betty had on the occasion of the other note, mistaken Bert's for Tom's. Finding Bert's now, she got in and waited for him.

They were on their way home when Marcia, taking advantage of the semi-twilight to nestle her head on Bert's shoulder, said suddenly, "I will never have any secrets from you, darling."

"It's O.K. with me!" said Bert cheerfully.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

My neighbor, Mrs. Brown, is spending her leisure hours at present looking for a portrait of a nice old man. If you show any signs of interest she will explain that now that she has finally been able to realize her dreams of having her entire house furnished in Colonial style and now that she has at last discarded the last touch of anything not Colonial in her living room she finds that what she needs to hang over her fireplace is a rather shabby portrait of a nice old man. But her money is spent and she cannot go to a dealer in such things for her portrait, so she is scouring the country round about in search of some old farmer who will sell some old painting of a great grand uncle or someone else tucked off in a garret for a song.

Perhaps someone might even pay me for carrying it off," she said hopefully.

And after you have carried him off and hung him over your fireplace, I suppose he will be great grand uncle Ebenezer Brown," I suggested.

There is, I find, a growing interest in old portraits as part of the decorative schemes of rooms furnished in more or less authentic Colonial style, and old portraits carried off to the attic a generation ago are now reappearing to be given place of honor in newly decorated rooms. Quite often the wide gilt frames around these portraits are most unattractive. But it is a simple matter to get the right sort of "antique" frame substituted by the professional picture framer.

Old family photographs and daguerreotypes may be taken as the basis of attractive wall-sized painted portraits and in every good-sized city there are experts who do this work at more or less reasonable rates. And to most of us there is something very much more satisfactory about giving wall space to a real ancestor than to one adopted into the family at a later date

PALMOLIVE PRINCESS SOAP FLAKES Made in Canada

Edited by WILDA DORAN ROSS Home Economics Counsellor

Furnishing the Furniture

After your home is furnished, then comes the outfitting of the furniture itself. As the scene of so much pleasure hospitality and such gay sociability, the dining room, I think, offers special opportunities to the artistic hostess. Housewifely art is in its glory in the dining room. The dinner itself, china, silverware and linen all praise the skill of the hostess.

Even before the dinner is served your guests will have noticed your linen. Is it beautifully white or does it show streaks of yellow? The loveliness of linen depends on the care it receives in the laundry. I find that Princess Soap Flakes are particularly effective for washing table linen because the suds are so rich that greasy stains which are at times unavoidable can be removed with so little rubbing—and how much longer the delicate luncheon and dinner sets last when they don't have to go through the ordeal of rubbing! Besides this, Princess Soap Flakes do not contain any harmful ingredients.

Some Ideas for your Table

If you do not have to consider cost, you will be able to make your dining room table look lovely with exquisite doily sets in luxurious cut work, hand-made Venetian and Irish lace, or "antique" lace.

These sets of individual doilies with a runner down the centre of the table have many advantages. You can make up such attractive creations from inexpensive, homely materials—heavy linen and cotton—white or in colours, or even unbleached—simply embroidered or hemstitched—bordered with chintz or bound in a contrasting colour—or trimmed with gay applique designs. They are so easy to launder, too, and the separate pieces can be replaced independently in the case of an accident. But, while their size and shape lighten the work in connection with washing them, the colours and the fine handwork call for gentle care in washing. You must be very careful to use the best of soaps — harsh soaps are ruinous. I can tell you, from years of experience, that you will find Princess Soap Flakes the perfect soap for your finest things. For the coloured luncheon sets, test one piece in plain tepid water. If this does not hurt it, you can safely wash the whole set with Princess Soap Flakes. The colour should really be tested in this way before the luncheon set is made.

I have always found that full-size damask tablecloths are the most difficult to wash. They are so large that it is sometimes hard not to miss some little corner of such a big surface. But if you wash them with Princess Flakes suds you won't have to bother about hunting for the spots—mountains of suds wash the whole cloth at the same time. For tinted tablecloths, especially, I would also advise you to use Princess Soap Flakes.

Princess Soap Flakes are just as effective for other household washing tasks, too—try them for washing dishes, glassware or silverware; windows, floors, woodwork. And they will never give you red hands. I will be glad to see that you receive a free trial package if you will write me at 64 Natalie St., Toronto 8, Ont., enclosing 4c postage. Tell me about any of your washing problems and I will be happy to assist you in any way I can.

A TIP OR TWO FLOORS.

In March very few floors retain their spic-and-span, unspotted-from-the-world appearance. As the bright spring sunshine beams across them, thin and chipped paint and worn varnish become increasingly visible to the naked eye, and the mind of the housewife revolves on the question of how they are to be done over this year. A few general principles should be kept in mind in deciding.

In this, as in so many other matters, Dame Nature is a reliable guide. From a consideration of her methods of floor treatment we learn:

(1) The colour of the floor should be the darkest note in the room. If the wood is naturally lighter than the woodwork of the walls, it should be stained before being finished, as a light floor surrounded with dark walls produces a feeling of insecurity which almost makes one sympathize with the negro who, when urged to take an air trip said, "No. Terra firma for me—and the mo' firma the less terra." From a decorative standpoint, also, a light floor with darker walls is not sound.

(2) A dull finish for floors is more desirable than a gloss or mirror finish. The soft sheen of a dull finished floor is more beautiful and restful than the glossy finish which reflects your person as the ad. for a dyeworks firm used to say your clothes reflect your personality. Dark and dull may not seem very attractive words for the decorator-to-be to keep in mind, but she will do well not to deliberately disregard them in planning her floors.

Whether your floor is to be given a natural finish or painted will depend largely on the wood. Has it, in itself, enough beauty to justify the former or enough lack of beauty to demand the latter? Because a floor is of soft wood does not necessarily mean that it must be painted. If it is first stained a dark oak or walnut, it may then be varnished or waxed the same as hardwood.

The floor finishes in most general use are oil, varnish, wax, and paint.

Beyond the fact that it protects the wood, there is little to be said for oil as a floor finish. Oiled floors collect dust and are not attractive. The best treatment for them is to wash them with (1) benzine, (2) soap powder and water, (3) clear water. After that they may be waxed or varnished.

Floors done with a good grade of dull varnish are attractive and easily cleaned. Spar floor varnishes are waterproof and, though shiny, may be rubbed dull. Worn spots in varnish necessitate entire renewing of the floor as they cannot be successfully patched.

Wax forms an excellent protection for the wood and is a floor finish which becomes increasingly beautiful. Worn spots can be patched without doing over the whole floor. But if you wax your floors, do not put so much on that the lives and limbs of your family and friends are in hourly danger.

Paint as a floor finish seems to have lost favour with the modern chatelaine, but here is one who admits being Victorian enough to entertain a warm feeling for it. Indeed, I may say, "That's my weakness now," though I should be loath to see paint cover any wood of naturally beautiful grain. Paint is easily cleaned and there is practically no end to its range of colour so that many pleasing colour schemes can be evolved from its use. And, O reader, haven't you a fond memory of a large, old-fashioned kitchen fragrant with pumpkin pies and "twisters" and freshly churned butter, and didn't that kitchen have a yellow painted floor?

FAVORITE RECIPE.

CARAMEL CAKE

(Contributed by "Milly.")

1 tablespoon butter.
1 cup sugar.
3 eggs.
½ cup milk.
1½ cups flour.
2 teaspoons baking powder.
¼ teaspoon salt.

Cream butter and sugar add well beaten eggs; sift together flour baking powder, and salt, and add first mixture alternately with milk. Beat all together lightly. Put in a well-greased round pan and bake in moderate oven for twenty-five to thirty minutes. When cool split with a sharp knife and fill with the following: 1 cup sugar, ½ cup milk, 1½ tablespoons butter, and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Boil together sugar and milk for thirteen minutes, add butter and vanilla — when done stir till thick enough to spread. The cake may be covered with the same or a plain icing used if preferred.

WEDDING BELLS

GELINAS—TASCHEREAU

QUEBEC, Que., April 11.—(Canadian Press).—One of the most important social events of the year in Quebec took place at half past ten o'clock this morning at the Basilica when Julietta, daughter of Hon. L. A. Taschereau, Prime Minister of the province, and Mrs. Taschereau, was united in marriage to Louis P. Gelinas, son of Mrs. Hector Panneton, of Montreal.

The ceremony which was performed by his grace, Monseigneur Plante, auxiliary Bishop of Quebec, assisted by Rev. Abbe A. J. Panneton of Montreal, and Rev. Abbe Turcotte, of Three Rivers, uncles of the groom, took place in the chancel where the bride and groom knelt within an arch formed of palms and Easter lilies. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore white satin. As jewelry she wore the groom's gift, a necklace of pearls and carried a shower bouquet of white orchids and lily-of-the-valley. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Cortland Pages as matron of honor, and by Mrs. Ernest Savard and Miss Magdeleine Herbert, of Montreal, Miss Aline Garneau, of Quebec, her sisters-in-law, Mrs. Robert Taschereau, Miss Marcelle Paradis, Mrs. Francis T. Baldwin, of Boston, and by her little three year old niece, Miss Claire Taschereau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Taschereau.

The groomsman was Ernest Savard, of Montreal and the ushers Jean Perodeau, of Montreal, Paul Taschereau and Charles Taschereau brothers of the bride, Colonel Cortland Pages, her brother-in-law, G. H. Rainville, Claude Taschereau and Allen MacMartin, of Montreal. The groom's gift to each was a pair of platinum and gold cufflinks.

The altar decoration was beautifully carried out in spring flowers and the guests pews were marked with clusters of Iris.

A reception at the residence of the bridge's parents followed the wedding. Later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Gelinas left for Montreal and thence to New York to sail on an extended trip through Europe. Upon their return they will reside at Montreal.

MARION'S MAIL

"Dear Marion:

I have been an admirer of your page since the beginning and have been greatly helped in many ways through the Whatnots and the recipes, but being a mother of five my time is fully occupied. I have been in Peterborough five years and must say I like both the city and the people. I have made many friends in Canada, English and Scotch. I have read with interest the letters and different attitudes on bridge but personally it doesn't interest me either way. Being raised in a 'strickly Scotch' home where cards and dancing were like a red handkerchief to a wild bull, can you wonder that after thirteen years of married life there has never been a pack of cards in our home and none of our five children, the eldest of whom will soon be twelve, have never been inside or a tended a Cinema or theatre in their lives? Neither my husband (who, by the way, is Canadian born) or myself have attended same for over six years and neither of us can dance. We belong to an organization in which we find all the pleasure and recreation we need or have time for; I will leave you to guess its name.

You and the neighbors will think no doubt, we are a little odd, but nevertheless it's true. I do not criticize anyone's mode of living —I think we should be the best judge of that ourselves. I live my life quite happily and leave the other fellow to do the same.

Do you know the little poem of Ella Wheeler Wilcox? I don't know all the verses, only one, I would like to get it. I've enclosed the verse I know, I think it is a good motive. My sister in Aberdeen sent it to me written at the foot of a little picture. I hung it in the dining-room and often read it to myself.

Well, Marion, my letter is rather lengthy but I know you have a waste-paper basket up at the office. I enclose a few recipes out of an Old Country paper, they may come in useful sometime. Wishing the page continued success and wishing you the best of everything you wish yourself. I am,

Yours sincerely,
A Heilan Lassie."

Don't look for the flaws as you go through life,
And even if you find them,
'Tis wise and kind, to be somewhat blind,
And look for the virtues behind them."

Yours is a very tolerant attitude, "Heilan Lassie," in view of your personally strict life. I'm sure, though, I can't guess what the organization is to which you refer.

Thank you for your verse. The poem, however, isn't in the book of Wilcox poems I have; perhaps some neighbor may supply the rest.

Your letter is very interesting, and I hope you return often.

"Dear Marion:

I enjoyed your thoughts on ambition in Thursday's Whatnot, although I do think it is only human that we should desire to leave our own particular footprints on the sands of time so that it may be remembered that once upon a time we passed this way. We all appreciate a little praise if we feel that it is merited and is given in all sincerity. Even the humblest among us would not care to say of themselves that they had never done anything worthwhile in all their lives. I like that picture of the Creator surveying His work after He had finished and saying, "It is good." Don't hesitate to wear the laurels you have earned, Marion. The world has a habit of taking us at our own valuation, it has been said, and I firmly believe this—with reservations.

For instance, we all despise that pompous conceited type of person who cannot admit that to err would be possible for him or her. They live in a world of their own imagining, never seeing themselves as others see them and very well satisfied with themselves in consequence.

On the other hand it is deplorable to see a person without self-confidence, living with the fixed idea that he or she will never amount to much. Such people are their own worst enemies. If one decides early in life that the high places of the earth, the good things of this world are not for him, then he naturally will not make any special effort to attain them.

There is such a thing as being too contented with one's lot in life, don't you think, Marion? I've heard people say, "So long as I have a roof over my head and enough to eat I ought to be satisfied I suppose." I never did agree with that sentiment. I admit we ought to be thankful for these blessings but never that we ought to desire nothing else. There is so much more to life than that. I believe we were intended to have more. "Man does not live by bread alone." Why was man endowed with brain and powers of reasoning if he were never to use it to any better purpose than providing himself with what the dumb brutes have, food and a home of a sort? I often think of what the world owes to those who possessed that 'divine' discontent with things as they were, have had a vision to improve and create and have made the world a better place to live in long after they had written 'finis' to their life's work.

Most of us have a particular star that we've hitched our wagon to and that's something. Maybe we will be ridiculed or criticised because our star is so unlike other people's. But even if our dreams are never realized there's always the feeling to hold to that we fought a good fight and that truly the glory lies in the struggle, not the prize that we missed.

It is disheartening perhaps to come so far short of the goal we had in sight when we started out, to realize as the shadows lengthen along the way of life that we never will achieve our heart's desire on this earth. But still we're not sorry we started in the race, so to speak; and if we can do as you remarked, put our personal feelings out of the matter, we may look forward to seeing the same thing we wanted to do, done by another. So what matters as long as it has been done? I guess it's just selfishness that makes us want to be known as the one who did such and such a worthwhile thing, that, and the desire for applause that is inherent in most of us. You've got hold of the right idea, Marion. It's the thought of others that makes us of any lasting benefit. The same idea runs all through holy writ, "He that would be greatest among you let him be the servant of all," "He that loseth his life shall find it."

I guess that's what we all need, to realize that all worthy ambition includes others, think of others and benefit others. When we have learned this we can be satisfied with our small corner in the hall of fame, even though we never startle the world by our genius. You remember Abou Ben Adhem, may his tribe increase! Whose name led all the rest because he loved his fellow race! Not because of anything wonderful that he had done.

There are so many different kinds of ambition and yet we know the paths of glory lead where all other paths lead. There was the ambition of Napoleon which led him to an exile's death. It was Cromwell's friend who warned him "I charge you throw away ambition, by that sin fell the angels!"

But the ambition to be of use to others will never cause us to utter that heart broken lament of King Richard's, "Farewell, a long farewell to all my greatness."

It is worth thinking about, as you said anyway, Marion.

Yours truly,
Adastia."

Thank you for your clever letter, "Adastia." I am sure it makes a much better article than my Whatnot on the subject! I'm so glad you caught my idea!

"Dear Marion:

This is my second letter to you. I don't like writing letters very well, but I sure enjoy the neighbors' letters. They are so interesting and helpful. The Women's Page is certainly a wonderful addition to The Examiner. I read every little item in it. You have such a systematic way of conducting it that I feel it could not be improved upon. Marion, when you speak of places you have been and things you have seen lately, I wonder how you have time to go anywhere with all the work you do.

It is rather late to start talking about the bridge question. For my part I would like to see the bridge column inserted. It would be nice to know how to play it because we want some recreation in the long evenings. I like the Old Song Column very well. I am saving them all. I see where F.W.B. asked for, "A Handful of Maple Leaves." I am sending it along hoping it is the one she wants. I wonder if some one could send me the song containing the lines—"Just press me to your heart, and forget that we must part, Let us waltz as we say good-bye." I would also like to get the song entitled, "Just Break the News to Mother."

The column for the 'Teen Age girls has not started yet. I do wish it would hurry up and begin. Being of that age myself I am naturally interested in it.

I am enclosing a coupon for some helps. It seems as if I am asking for quite a lot this time. If you have not got them all just send the ones which you can easily spare. Here's hoping your page is always as good as it is now. Wishing you every success, I remain,

Cherry."

I'm glad to hear from you again, Cherry."

"Cherry," and to know that you still enjoy our pages. Think you for the old song, and I hope some neighbor will be able to supply those you seek.

"Dear Marion:

I will watch for Friday's Whatnot, to get more advice, to help make my place look more nice.

I cannot have a garden, to suit me, made, because of trees that give so much shade; though now they are all bare and brown, wind-bent, creaking and seem to frown—it will not be long before bursting buds will decorate them all over, like studs. For show, in my garden, I have no grand array, but can always find a bouquet to give away—though not very choice, or a variety of kind. Pleasure shared is pleasure doubled, I find. If I were wealthy and owned empty lots—I think Peterboro' would have some more beauty spots; letting those without grass, living in flat or room, the privilege of planting them, bringing some bloom.

A bed of wild flowers, I would, very much like, but to the country woods cannot hike. A jardiniere filled with dandelions alone—gives a picture, all one's own. I am sure all we neighbours will make a better show after reading Friday's Whatnot—learning some we did not know.

If I could write all I'd like to, about a garden, for taking so much space, I would have to beg your pardon.

Meta."

I hope that your garden is a real joy to you this year, "Meta." Thank you for your letter.

"Dear Marion:

I have been asked, by several women to write you a letter re a "Rest Room" for Peterborough. Now we understand that the city fathers are proposing to make the lower hall of the market building into a rest room, and build an outer staircase to lead to the upper hall?

Is this to be permanent? Because if it is, what will folks do in winter when the snow is tracked up those outer stairs? I'm afraid there will be many a suit for damages for broken limbs, etc., if people fall down, which is sure to happen. And then such a location, Marion, with men around all the time! I pride myself on not being mock-modest, but I do loathe and detest having to go to a rest room and a lot of men standing around. What Peterborough badly needs is a good big rest-room in a good location. I shall describe, if you will allow me, my experience in a small town with a population of about 5,000.

They were celebrating Old Home Week, and as we had resided there for about 2 years and loved the town and its associations I went there for one day. My children were aged 4 and 6 years, and tired easily. I had heard of our rest room but had never been there. Well, after I had shopped for 2 hours we went there, and it was lovely. As you went in there were tables and chairs with magazines and newspapers; mirrors (large ones) on the walls and a few good pictures. There was a bookcase also, and a few rugs on the floor. Downstairs in the basement the floors and walls were tiled. There were three or four washbasins and 8 toilets. Liquid soap and paper towels. After I had freshened the children and myself we went upstairs, intending to wait for the afternoon activities. We sat resting a little while, when the lady who looked after the place, came over and said "You look tired," and I admitted I was. She asked would I like a cup of tea, and I said I had already lunched but I could always drink one more cup of tea. So she made a dainty tea for us, and told me she kept the water always ready to boil for anyone who was tired and wanted it. Of course I paid her, although she did not ask for payment. Some other tired ladies came in and she did the same for them. If anyone was untidy downstairs, she made them pick things up and put them in the waste-basket. If you wanted to check your parcels you could do so, for 10 cts. and the rooms were open until 10 p.m.

Afterwards two boy scouts helped me with the children and we had a seat in the grandstand and saw everything.

Some one, will no doubt ask, why didn't I go to my friends. Well, I'll tell you. I knew my friends were busy, several of them on committees, and I did not want to give any bother. But I shall always remember Old Home Week in that town.

We had one glorious day and I do say the rest room contributed greatly to our comfort and satisfaction.

Surely when a town of 5,000 can't put up such a place, Peterborough can do so too. Surely we can find a better location than the market hall. Hoping something better can be found, and wishing you all the best, Marion. Thank you indeed for your lovely letter.

D give us a Whatnot on "Friendship."

Sincerely yours,
Quo Vadis?"

Your idea is good, "Quo Vadis." I understand the latest plan is to have the rest room face the Empress Hotel on Charlotte street—which is not much better than the first-proposed location. Why on earth don't the councillors consult those most affected when considering projects? The gas tanks in east city—the salary—and the rest room should all have been taken up with others. Certainly some of our women's organizations should be consulted on the rest room!

One washday I went on strike

Now I get whiter washes—without hard work
. . . let me tell you my secret

I WAS ready to scream! I had rubbed, rubbed, rubbed all morning. I just couldn't get the clothes white enough. The kitchen was unbearably hot. Any minute the children would be hurrying home from school for their lunch . . .

Oh, how I hated washday! I dumped the half-white clothes into a boiler of steaming suds. Still another tub of clothes to wash. Another tub of clothes to struggle with . . . suddenly I burst into tears. I just couldn't scrub another thing.

"I've gone on strike!" I told my husband that night. "I'm not going to kill myself scrubbing clothes—I've got enough to do taking care of the house and the children."

"You're right," he said. "Washday is wearing you out. We've got to do something about it."

The next day I was telling my troubles to my neighbour. "How do you get such a nice snowy wash?" I asked her. "You never seem worn out from scrubbing, the way I do."

"Scrubbing? Why, that's old-fashioned! Don't you know that nowadays the whitest washes are just soaked and rinsed?"

And then she told me about Rinso. How its thick suds soak out dirt and stains . . . and wash clothes whiter so easily, so safely. Next washday I tried it, and my, what a difference! No soap I ever used was even half so marvelous. My wash was out of the way even before the children came home from school. The snowiest wash I ever saw!

It makes no difference whether you use wash tub or washing machine—just follow the easy directions and Rinso will give you a whiter wash than you ever thought possible.

No. 11 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO April 11, 1929

OPERATIC SINGER NOW IN BROOKLYN

That he will make every effort to come home for the big reunion in July is the determination of Alfred B. Maker, 99 Kersdale avenue, Toronto, formerly of 219 Princess street. Mr. Maker helped by sending in names of others interested in Old Home Week here.

Remembers Old Friends.

Mrs. Heber Ward, 21 Seventh avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., operatic singer, who left here in 1910, was formerly Lavina Hallihan, of Downie street, and her mother, Mrs. M. E. Hallihan, still resides at 509 Bethune street. "I cannot compare my present home with Peterborough, as this is strictly a cosmopolitan city," says Mrs. Ward. "But upon my return after an absence of many years I scarcely knew the place, it had progressed so both in beauty and business. My present success I owe indirectly to opportunities received in Peterborough, and during my travels I have made hundreds of wonderful friends, but none have ever taken the place of my many dear old friends and admirers in Peterborough."

From Saskatoon.

"I expect to be down for the reunion," says Rev. W. Leslie Armitage, Rector and Canon Residentiary of St. John's Cathedral, Saskatoon, Sask., formerly of 300 Rubidge street. He married Miss M. B. Reynar of Cobourg, and left here in 1904.

Rev. Mr. Armitage remarks that his eldest daughter will graduate at the University on May 3; his second daughter will graduate from the Normal School with a first class certificate in June, and the youngest passes to the Collegiate in the same month.

A Norwood Girl.

Miss E. B. Fraser, registered nurse, Wainota, Sask., left her home in Norwood about 20 years ago, and Peterborough seven years ago. She resided at 678 Bethune street, now the home of a sister, Mrs. H. Bradshaw, and another sister, Mrs. Belleghem, lives on Monaghan Road. "I always considered dear old Peterborough one of Ontario's beauty spots," says Miss Fraser.

Get out to that Old Home Week meeting—it's at 7.30 to-night.

This may be YOUR part in helping Old Home Week!

A letter comes along by air mail from Roderick McKee Davidson, at Portland, Oregon. The letter flew to Peterborough in 4 days, being posted on April 4th at 11 a.m. It was possibly delayed by a washout or other prenatural occurence. He tells that while he left the old town when young, his recollections are tinged with the glamour of youth, which is quite natural.

He appears to be on speaking terms with Mt. Hood and the famous Columbia River highway, both of which he praises, the first for its natural majesty and the latter for its usefulness. Says he will motor to Peterborough and expects to have a good time.

CANADIAN LEGION PLANS TO ASSIST

At a meeting of the Canadian Legion Old Home Week Committee yesterday afternoon it was decided to recommend to the general meeting of the Legion on Monday that a decoration parade be held to St. Peter's Cemetery on Sunday, July 7, the last day of Old Home Week, with the decoration to take place in Little Lake Cemetery on the following Sunday. Because of extensive arrangements made by another organization to decorate Little Lake Cemetery on July 7, it would be impossible for the Legion to parade simultaneously, and, in any event, it is thought by the committee that it will be a nice thing to have decoration ceremonies in St. Peter's Cemetery on that day.

The committee also decided to recommend to the general meeting the holding of open house during Old Home Week for all war veterans among the visitors. The top floor of the Legion Hall would be used for serving refreshments; the dance hall and adjoining room would be available as rest rooms for women and children, and the old soldiers would gather in the club rooms on the ground floor to recall old times and renew old acquaintances. The idea seems to be a good one, and is susceptible of development into a splendid Old Home Week activity. It originated with the Legion treasurer, R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, M.C.

It is anticipated that the men who made the victory possible will be given a big share in the unveiling of the war memorial ceremony, and plans will shortly be made for this.

A Relic.

There has come to the editor's hands a copy of the souvenir program of the re-union in Peterborough in 1903. The spirit of home week is scarcely carried out in it, since it was printed in Toronto.

The event lasted from Saturday, July 25, until Monday, July 27, when the visitors left Peterborough at 7.30. Not much is told in the "program" about what took place, most of the space being given up to eulogies of the then civic and county officials, but it is gathered that the affair was more in the nature of a Toronto excursion to Peterborough. From 2 o'clock on Monday until 7.30, apparently, was taken up with speeches.

This year, Peterborough plans to fill a whole week with entertainment for the returning old boys and girls from all over the continent.

What about the proposal of the dance committee to have the dance in costume on the evening of the calithumpian parade? What do you think?

TORONTO, Ont., April 11. — (By the Canadian Press.)—Even though the National Hockey League title went over the border this year, Canada will retain one professional crown. Windsor Bulldogs last night threw off the threat of the United States to capture the Canadian Professional Hockey League championship by decisively whipping Detroit Olympics 3-1 at Fort Erie in the fifth and deciding game of their final series.

Scoring in the first period and retaining the lead thereafter, Windsor held a good margin of the play throughout and well earned the decision. Roach got the first counter on a pass from Sorrell and Carson notched the second after a three-man combination play in which Emms and Neville aided. Two Detroiters were in the penalty box when the latter score came and two Bulldogs and an Olympic player were off when Detroit's lone tally came in the third from Fimore's stick after Frazer had given him a pass.

Carson's second goal four minutes before play ended put the game on ice for Windsor. He slipped the puck past Stuart after Emms had passed to him inside the defence.

Windsor Superior Team.

From Abbie Cox, out to Neville at centre, Windsor was the superior team and showed itself one of the most powerful aggregations ever to win a minor league title. Cox is a resourceful net-guardian, while the defence of Arbour, Brown and Bellemer looked as good as any in the circuit. The Emms-Carson-Neville front line led in goal-getting, while the second string made a remarkable record since the play-offs started, not a goal being registered by Kitchener or Detroit while Creig, Sorrell and Rodden were in action.

Windsor officials announced after the game that the team would be disbanded immediately as it is not intended to meet Boston Tigers, Canadian-American League champions, for the minor league title.

Although Windsor won the title last night, the record of the 11 games in which the two teams have played this season, shows Detroit with an advantage. The Olympics won five games, Windsor three and three were tied.

After leading Windsor in the league standing most of the season, Detroit eliminated Toronto in the semi-finals and went on to win the first game of the final series from Windsor 2-1. The Bulldogs took the second game 2-0, but Detroit again went into the lead with a 2-0 decision in the third encounter. Fighting back again, Windsor evened up the series at two games by defeating Detroit 3-0 in Windsor last Saturday, necessitating the deciding game last night.

HAVE TO CLOSE RACE TRACK.

TORONTO, Ont., April 11 (Canadian Press). — Mayor S. McBride told a delegation from East York yesterday that if Toronto granted the request of the township for annexation, Thorncliffe race track would have to be closed. Reeve Leslie, of East York, had listed the track as among the possessions of the township when presenting the argument for annexation. The Mayor pointed out that "Toronto can only have so many tracks." An early decision by Toronto on the annexation plea is expected.

Ralph Holyman's Team Winners Of Trophy

On the desk of Ralph Holyman, ——— of The Examiner, reposed this morning a beautiful silver trophy, donated by the J. J. Duffus Recreation club and won by Mr. Holyman's five-pin bowling team in The Examiner Inter-Shop league.

The trophy, handsomely engraved has been put up for annual competition, and to this year's winners goes the honor of being first to have their names go on it as follows: A. K. Whyte, C. D. Butcher, R. N. Pearse, G. Wilde and R. A. Holyman, captain.

While not a member of this team, H. Dormer, bowling in the same league, attained the high three with a total of 845, while his high single was 348.

ADDRESSES HEARD

CAMPBELLFORD, April 11 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Something was wrong somewhere yesterday when only about half as many as were expected, sat down to the players' banquet of the Campbellford Hockey Club at the Clifton Tea Rooms at six-thirty. In spite of the fact that the team did not come out on top, they were supported on nearly every occasion by a record crowd of fans. Special trains and out of town games became synonymous toward the close of the season. One feature of the dinner last night was the presentation of the Speedie Cup to the most valuable player on the local team. Hector (Huck) McArthur, captain last year, was the one who received the majority in the vote which was cast by five critics after each game during the season.

As usual the meal served at the Clifton left nothing to be desired. That it was appreciated by the diners was easily seen. At the close of the program, Mrs. Smith was presented with a vote of appreciation for the excellent meal and also for the hospitality she had shown the team and officials at various times during the playing season. Dick Ramsden kept the piano busy during the meal, and did it to the complete satisfaction of everyone. His program was entirely by request. To hear your favorite number, it was only necessary to name it, and it was played.

S. A. Maguire complimented the players on their season's accomplishments and also won favor by reciting "The Old Stovepipe Hole," from Drummond. G. A. Ironside, president of the local association, occupied the chair as toastmaster, and from time to time explained the team's work during the season.

His Majesty the King having been duly honored, G. A. Kingston, ex-Mayor of Campbellford, was the first speaker. During his remarks a committee of three, elected for the purpose, left the table to open the ballot box and decide the player to whom the cup was to be presented. Mr. Kingston began by complimenting the players on their games. He had seen most of the home games, he said, and saw no reason why Campbellford should be downhearted because they did not win the cup. There was much enthusiasm in town he claimed, and thought there were higher honors in store for Campbellford next winter.

G. A. Ironside ventured the opinion that there were strong hopes for a winning team here next season. S. A. Maguire complimented the players and the association. He thought that Campbellford was a good sporting town and that the people would support the team another year just as they had last year.

Huck McArthur was surprised that he was the one to receive the Speedie Cup as the most valuable player on the team. "The cup," he said, "would remind him of the good times and the friendly battles that had taken place during the season." Huck has never been known as a flashy player. He has rather been considered as a steady going, hard working player, always on the job in a pinch, and capable of handling his team skilfully while on the ice.

Plenty of Material.

Mayor Davidson wanted the players to consider him as a boy among the boys. He had been a keen supporter of the game during the past and was still behind the team. If it was at all possible, he hoped that there would be individual cups for each player another year. He was also of the opinion that there was plenty of material in town to form a winning team without going outside for players. Provided he was alive, he concluded, he would support the team next season just as he had this year. When the Mayor sat down, the crowd sang "For he's a jolly good fellow."

Les Stover, last year's coach, was glad of the opportunity to show the players that their efforts had been appreciated. "They had played good hockey during the season," he said. Joe Pulton and Johnnie Sutherland also expressed their opinions. Charles Speedie, the donor of the cup, was satisfied with the team work last year, and thought it would be even better this year. It was with a view to improve this detail that the cup had been donated. Fred Ingram had nothing to say. As captain, Huck McArthur was called on for another speech. Bill Blue got his chance to say what he thought. Carl Irwin, the goaltender, had nothing to offer. Carl Johnston expressed regret that he had not been able to stay in the game all season on account of his injured knee. "Darkie" Runions preferred to remain seated, so B. H. Beatty, the secretary, was the next in line. When he had finished, Mayor Davidson ventured the opinion that Beatty was the best and most interested secretary in the league Then the players joined hands and sang "Auld Lang Syne" to end the evening.

Charlie Belanger Awarded Decision

MONTREAL, Que., April 11. — (Canadian Press).—Charlie Belanger of Winnipeg, light-heavyweight champion of Canada, was awarded a ten-round decision over Harold Mays, Bayonne, N.J., heavyweight, in the feature bout of a boxing card here last night.

The champion received the unanimous decision of the judges and Referee George Rivet. Belanger was awarded the honors in seven of the ten rounds, while the last three were carried by Mays. Belanger weighed 171½ and Mays 181¼.

GOLD AS WELL AS GLORY FOR RYDER GOLFERS

French and German Matches at Biarritz Guarantee More Than Prizes.

LONG SCHEDULE.

Team Will Enter Yorkshire Evening News $5,000 Match.

NEW YORK, April 11—Bob Harlow who is ever catching trains and boats so that Walter Hagen can get from place to place, has conceived an itinerary for the American Ryder Cup junketers that should pay large dividends not only in ballyhoo but in alien currency as well.

Having attempted for years the management of Hagen and realizing that some practical pennies are essential in the maintenance of reputations, the man who has been entrusted with the welfare of our expeditionary forces abroad, has guaranteed them food and lodging until they return.

The Ryder Cup team, however, each member fares in the various competitions they enter, will equally share the golden proceeds. In every tournament except the British open, the guaranteed profits will be divided by ten.

$5,000 Open Event.

Following the British open at Muirfield the team in a body will enter the Yorkshire Evening News $5,000 open, a match play event that is to run from May 13 to 18.

Airplanes will be near the junketers to St. Cloud, where, commencing the next day, they will take part in the French professional open, an event that is worth the equivalent of $5,000, besides the $2,000 that has been guaranteed for the American team's participation. This tournament is to end on the twenty-fourth and by the morning of the twenty-fifth the squad will be firing their guns on the Berlin front for the open title of Germany.

This is another excursion for the boys that has been fully guaranteed, which seems strange in face of the fact that someone of the visitors is almost certain to walk off with the Teuton's only big golf prize.

Then back to France for a foray against a picked team of professionals at Biarritz. It is expected that after this match, that will net the team at least the guarantee of $2,500 the party will split up. Hagen will return to England to engage Archie Compston, the Englishman, who whipped him 18 to 17 last year, in two or three matches. This is a personal matter in which the other boys will have no share.

Open Fisted.

The Haig has once again shown his fellow-craftsmen that he is big-hearted and open-handed. On his continental tour last year he accrued $10,000 in the coins of the different realms. He could have gone off on his own hook again had he been so minded, but it was he who suggested to Harlow that the team make the European tour as a unit and split the spoils.

Johnny Anderson threw a luncheon party for the Ryder Cup boys yesterday at Wanamaker's, where they were bedecked in the blue and white suitings they will affect during their traveling overseas. The boys will need some extra trunks to convey the snappy wardrobe that Dave Franke, man of modes, has created to parade before the British.

CARVETH SAYS CAPITAL CITY PRODUCTION CENTRE OF STARS

Speaks in Glowing Terms of Ottawa Boys Starring With Detroit Olympics.

McINENLY ALSO GOOD.

Jack Carveth, former sports editor of the Border Cities Star and Montreal Star, speaks in glowing terms of the four Ottawa boys starring with the Detroit Olympics. In a special story in the Detroit Free Press he writes the following:

Kingston, Ontario, may properly claim to be the "cradle of hockey," but it is a matter of record that Ottawa has been and still is the centre of production when professional puck chasers are the topic of conversation.

Ottawa helped to make the Detroit Olympics last year in supplying Harvey Rockburn and Stan McCabe and certainly the Canadian capital supplied the punch for Frank Foyston's club this year Ebbie Goodfellow, leading scorer of the Canadian league, and Berty McInenly drifted into the Motor City.

For the acquisition of this quartet of budding stars, Detroit must thank two additional and better known Ottawa citizens—Frank 'King' Clancy and Alex Connell, colorful stars of the Ottawa Senators. It was Clancy and Connell who first tipped off Jack Adams about the prowess of McCabe and Rockburn, when Adams was in Montreal for the Stanley Cup final a year ago the same pair of bosom friends endorsed a tip about a big, fast blonde fellow who was destined for stardom.

Goodfellow Going Up.

Adams lost no time jumping up to Ottawa and he did not go back to Napanee for hibernation purposes until he had interviewed Goodfellow and got his name on the dotted line. It is common knowledge around the Canadian circuit that Goodfellow has made good. He is the find of the season in his first year in professional company.

Goodfellow is going to wear the uniform of the Detroit Cougars next season. The youngster has everything—brawn, courage, speed, stick-handling ability and hockey intelligence. He is of an even temperament and penalizes his team very little though unnecessary infringements on the playing code. If ever an embryo star broke into professional hockey since Howie Morenz left Stratford, it is Goodfellow.

Finished Player.

Ebbie is only 21 years old and the way he has taken his bumps in his first year out of the amateur ranks has been even more impressive than his wealth of natural ability. He is hard to tip off his feet and seldom spoils a good mid-ice effort by shooting from outside. He can and does go in close and two of his goals scored when the Olympics were eliminating Toronto were the direct result of his persistent boring in style of play that took him right to the goal mouth to flag rebounds.

Goodfellow looks like a better hockey player than Dave Trottier and the Meandering Maroons paid a small fortune for the title to the former University of Toornto Grads star. If Goodfellow does not make good under the big tent, Jack Adams, Frank Foyston and several others dealers in hockey ivory are going to be disappointed.

Could Use Rockburn.

And when Goodfellow goes up he probably will have one of his fellow-citizens moving up with him. Rockburn lacks the finish and polish of Goodfellow, but the effectiveness with which he smears opposition puck-carriers commands recognition. Adams is sold on the chunky little fellow who has bumped his way to respect in Canadian League circles. There have been several occasions during the past season when one or two Rockburn bumps might have have saved games for the Cougars. He will get his chance next season.

Ottawa gave Detroit four high-class hockey players during the past two years, but hockey's hotbed has been doing the same thing for its own and other clubs for many years. "King" Clancy, Alex Connell, Hec Kilrea, Frank Finnigan, Lionel Hitchman, Joe Miller, Harold Darragh, Hib Milks, George Boucher, Frank Boucher and Jerry Lowrey are the better known present-day players, with National League clubs who were reared in Ottawa.

Detroit should get a couple more from Bytown next season, but the odds are all against the Cougars or Olympics picking up another Goodfelow.

EDWARD F. SEAGRAM

owner of the Seagram stable, has 50 horses in training for this year's racing, by long odds the largest string in Canada. He is the chief owner of the stable, with his brothers, Norman and Thomas, as his associates.

FORMER MOUNTIE DEAD.

STRATFORD, Ont., April 10. (C. P.)—Surviving his sister by only two days, Samuel Horner, aged 84, for many years staff sergeant of the Northwest Mounted Police, died at his home here to-day. Mr. Horner served in the Fenian raid in 1866 and the Red River expedition in 1870.

It is expected a double funeral will be held to-morrow.

"SIMBA"

Read what the New York critics have to say, about "Simba" Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson's wonderful production which will be the feature screen attraction at the Capitol to-night.

New York is where every presentation on the silver screen or legitimate stage meets its most severe test. All eyes are on New York productions, including those of the most critical writers employed by New York's metropolitan dailies. Without a doubt it is the world's greatest city where "thumbs down" is more often the rule than the exception and where anything not worthy lasts only a few nights.

"Simba" played three monhts at the Earl Carroll Theatre, at $2 top, made big profits and in addition won the plaudits of many critics as evidenced from the following extracts:

"'Simba' is doubtless the greatest big game hunt picture ever made."—New York World.

"The close-ups of wounded lions lashing out against a ring of their native enemies are fraught with a certain chill excitement the like of which is unique in any cinema house. Even more remarkable are the shots of the unsuspecting lions engaged in the more quiescent occupations of domestic life. * * * You have no business missing their record of the dusty veldt. * * * The photography is more than excellent; it is phenomenal, and obviously attained only with impressive patience and courage."—John K. Hutchens, in the New York Evening Post.

"As a movie show 'Simba' offers some moments as thrilling as you are likely to see on the screen."—New York Telegram.

"'Simba' is the task of four years of wild animal life shown on the screen."—Standard Union.

"'SIMBA' is a film of extraordinary vividness and contains a larger number of actual views of camera proximity among the animals of the African wilderness than any other travel picture yet seen here. Rises as its finale to a remarkable series of scenes."—Morning World.

"Held us spellbound, 'SIMBA' is the best picture Mr. and Mrs. Johnson have produced * * * intensely interesting and not to be missed."—Harriette Underhill in the New York Herald Tribune.

IRVIN BAILEY IS GUEST AT LOCAL BANQUET

A POPULAR PLAYER.

Irvin Bailey, championship sharpshooter of the National Hockey League and erstwhile captain of the only Peterborough team that ever won the Senior O.H.A. championship, was the guest of a few of his local friends and admirers at an informal but enjoyable banquet in Hooper's Palm Parlors last night.

The hastily-arranged affair afforded an opportunity for offering double congratulations to the 'Ace"; first, upon his great record in the National Hockey League race during the season just closed, and secondly, upon the fact that he is shortly to take unto himself a life partner.

IRVIN BAILEY

Bailey was presented with a handsome gold cigarette case, the presentation being made by R. M. Glover, past president of the O.H.A.

In doing so, Mr Glover congratulated the guest of the evening upon his fine record in the National Hockey League and emphasized the interest taken in his playing by Peterborough fans. His services to Peterborough would always be remembered and Peterborough would like to claim him as a local boy, although Bracebridge would have to be given the credit of producing the clever player. Mr. Glover pointed out the fact that the development of professional hockey had opened out a new profession for young men. In making the presentation he wished Mr. Bailey every success, both in his his hockey career and in the new responsibilities he would shortly assume.

The guest of the evening, in a very modest little speech, expressed his thanks for the gift and the expressions of good will. As to the goal scoring record, the "Ace" said there was nothing to that. It was made eration of his team mates who had eration of his team maets who had been wonderful in the unselfish way in which they had fed him.

With Charles E. Cummer acting as master of ceremonies, the gathering then resolved itself into what might be described as a fanning bee, in which famous games in which Mr. Bailey had participated were recalled and many nice things were said of the guest of the evening, both as to his hockey playing ability and as to his gentlemanly qualities.

Among those who paid tribute to the "Ace" and contributed reminiscenses of gone seasons were the chairman himself, Art Costello, "Larry" Maguire, Tommy Holyman, Dr. Dick Sheehy, Norm. Hamley, Frank Jobbitt, "Snap" Parker, Ed. Riley, Alan Sharpe, Roy Taylor, Edgar LeBarr, I. P. Lillico, Robt. Hall and F. D. Craig

Mr. Bailey left this morning for Bracebridge where, on May 1st, he will be one of the central figures in an interesting ceremony. He will have the active support of his teammate "Happy" Day, and other members of the Maple Leafs will be guests on this auspicious occasion.

Nervous and Run Down The Least Noise Would Bother Her

Mrs. R. Burton, Oshawa, Ont., writes:—"Three years ago I was so nervous and run down I could hardly bear to have the children make a noise it would bother me so.

"A friend advised me to take and after taking two boxes I began to feel stronger, looked better and the color came back into my cheeks, and now I am feeling fine again."

Price 50c. a box at all druggists and dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Ltd., Toronto, Ont.

LEAFS BATTING STRENGTH

The most pronounced weakness of the Toronto Maple Leafs baseball club is in its batting department. Not one member of the team has yet shown any particular strength along this line.

Pitching alone won't win the International League pennant and manager Steve O'Neill is reported to be on the lookout for some sluggers to strengthen his line-up, and every effort is being made to get Detroit to release Ruble to the Leafs.

Among those making a good showing on the team are Cote, Burke, Bedore and Sweeny. The Leafs have been depending on Sweeny and Burke for their hitting strength but in exhibition games so far they have not startled anyone with a spectacular batting performance.

VIEWS ON SPORTS

The snappy card of boxing being presented at the 'Y' tourney this evening should attract a large following of fans.

PRINDIBLE MAY ENTER TEAM IN E.P.L.

The rumor that Bill Prindible is arranging a new entry for the East Peterborough League, is gaining in strength. It is said that Bill has been talking baseball to many young players, and he has a strong liking for the following players: Hollingsworth, Beavis, Crary, Starr, Dormer, L. Hollingsworth, Walton, Kenneally, Howden and Kitchen. If all those players could be lined up on one team it would be a strong outfit, since everyone has climbed up the ladder from the junior sections, and all are neat performers.

BAILEY FETED AT BANQUET.

Irvin "Ace" Bailey was in the city yesterday. The former Pete's right winger has filled out greatly, and is all around much huskier than when he was here. His standing among the fans in this city was soon proven, when a supper was arranged in his honor within a very short space of time. He was presented with a small memento and a lot of advice on the wisest course in matrimony.

* * * * * *

SOFTBALL MEETING CALLED.

The softball players are beginning to get ready for the game, and the re-organization meeting of the League has been called for next Tuesday night. It is declared that the league will have no difficulty in securing a large entry of clubs, since nine have already indicated their desire to join.

* * * * * *

NO HARDBALL SUPPORT IN LAKEFIELD.

Lakefield has been to the fore in hockey for the past several years and next year a junior entry as well as the intermediate one is being planned. It has often been wondered just why Lakefield, so active in winter pastimes, did not take a bigger interest in the summer sport, baseball. Perhaps the boys are too busy making the tourists comfortable to spend any time on the diamond. The village does take a keen delight in soft ball, and each fall there is a thriving league holding sessions in the rink.

* * * * * *

FOOTBALL IS MAJOR SPORT.

It costs the big universities across the border a small fortune to conduct their various sports each year, and football furnishes the capital with which to finance them. The financial statement just issued by the athletic directors of Yale, furnishes some rather startling information.

Baseball had a deficit of $19,824.71 in the preceding year; track athletics of $29,309.69; rowing $64,367.89, and hockey of $7,141.56, making a total deficit of about $120,000 for four sports listed as major at Yale. How can Yale continue these sports in the face of the deficit shown? The answer is football.

The total revenue from Yale athletics was $1,119,280.10. The revenue from football alone was $1,033,311.98. Football showed a profit of more than half a million, the exact figure being $543,084.76. Football was the only Yale sport that made any money, and football made enough to wipe out the losses encountered in other sports.

* * * * * *

SAME IN CANADIAN UNIVERSITIES.

The same conditions hold good at Canadian Universities, such as Varsity, McGill and Queen's. Here, too, the whole athletic bill is pooled and such sports as track and field, boxing and wrestling, swimming, and the other minor sports, are paid for from the gate receipts collected at rugby and hockey games.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH RETURNED.

PORT COLBORNE, Ont., April 11 (Canadian Press). — A verdict of accidental death was brought in yesterday by a coroner's jury at the inquest into the death of Fernley Bassett, 22, Welland, Ont.

Bassett was killed on April 6 when he was crushed between the revolving carriage and body of a huge crane engaged at work on the railroad bridge over the Welland Canal.

ANGLERS GIVE EXHIBITION IN BAIT CASTING

FLY CASTING EXPLAINED.

Presented Under Auspices of Local Fish and Game Association.

A feller isn't thinking mean—out fishin';
His thoughts are somehow mostly clean—out fishin';
He doesn't knock his fellow men
Or harbor any grudges then;
A feller's at his finest when—out fishin'.

—Burgess.

The art of bait and fly casting, being an art in the truest sense of the term, requires close adherence to certain fundamental principles, yet like all true arts, allows a certain scope for individuality. And as a sport, for both fish and fisherman, it is unexcelled because casting removes from fishing the monotony and sordidness of other "drag-'em-in" methods.

This much, and more was masterfully demonstrated in the armouries last night when, through the good offices of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association, three members of the Toronto Anglers' club staged a demonstration of bait and fly casting that held a wealth of instruction and yes, even inspiration for beginners and old timers alike. President T. Jull, of the Queen City club, and holder for the past two years of the dual bait and fly casting championship, E. F. Galbraith, whose specialty seemed to be bait casting, and A. F. Cooper who likes both but prefers fly casting, comprised the visiting party who were assisted by members of the Peterborough Association including Past President and President Chris. Graham and Claude Rogers. The armories well lighted and with high ceiling, proved an ideal range and there, during the evening, several hundred fishermen, would-be fishermen and all stages in between, watched with interest the work of the Toronto rod men.

Is Easy If—

Mr. Galbraith was the first of the trio to demonstrate his skill. With elbow held close to the body, fore-arm travelling in a brief arc and with wrist supplying the brief but violent whip that sent the casting plug travelling in an arc-like course to strike a target laid on the floor sixty, eighty and on up to one hundred and twenty feet or more, distant, he punctuated his verbal explanations, warning against faulty rewinding, or overpressure thumbing as chief causes of snarls and back-lashes, and against the tendency toward using strength rather than skill in making distance. To watch him, it seemed ever so simple, but the boys who had brought along their outfits afterward found it far from simple to emulate his range and accuracy. Mr. Galbraith spent the remainder of the evening coaching them at one end of the armouries while his associates gave their demonstrations.

Fly Casting Explained

While to many of those present bait casting was somewhat familiar, since it has gained considerable popularity in this section, the fly casting, as demonstrated by Mr. Cooper was, perhaps, the more mysterious. To see the line, without any carrying weight such as the plug used by Mr. Galbraith, whip through the air at each elliptic movement of the fly rod, and gracefully laid down, at the caster's will, was something not so familiar and therefore the more astonishing, although, of course, there were some men present who had tried their hand at this branch of sport.

President Jull's exhibition of both bait and fly casting revealed in no uncertain manner, the reason why he is rated the dual champion of his club, and for that matter, Canada. His method of baiting, casting, differing in stance and other points of delivery, from that of Mr. Galbraith, was equally as impressive in results attained while his explanation of both fly and bait casting sometimes corroborated, sometimes differed slightly from the opinions of his associates though all three were united in emphasizing the value of carefully chosen tackle, grace and skill over strength, and sportsmanship over plunder.

In concluding, Mr. Jull spoke briefly, stressing the absolute necessity for early and more extensive steps at propagation and preservation of game fish, drawing startling comparisons with conditions as they existed even a few years ago, and also introducing angling literature likely to be of interest to his audience.

Thus the formal demonstration closed but the visiting anglers remained for an half hour or more with the beginners, coaching them in the finer points of casting. The entire program made a distinct click with those present and the Peterborough Association was made recipient of much sincere commendation on bringing Messrs. Jull, Galbraith and Cooper to this city.

REV. C. V. McLEAN GIVES ADDRESS ON PALESTINE

Illustrated Lecture Presented in St. Andrew's Church Sunday School Hall.

HISTORIC VIEWS.

Entertaining Musical Program Is Provided By Assistant Artists.

Palestine, with its sacred and historic memories, its orange groves and camels and its storied ruins, formed the subject of an extremely entertaining illustrated lecture given by the pastor of St. Andrew's United Church, the Rev. C. V. McLean, in the Sunday School hall, last evening.

The lecture was under the auspices of the Women's Missionary Society and was attended by about two hundred people. The president, Mrs. A. Porteous, made the announcements, and two lovely vocal solos were given by Mrs. Ross Williamson, soprano, singing appropriate selections in "The Holy City," and "There is a Green Hill Far Away." Miss Alma Blanchard acted as accompanist.

The Boy Scout Troop of the church acted as attentive ushers, and the platform was decorated with tall Easter lilies.

Ramble Through Palestine

The Rev. Mr. McLean recorded his own impression of the Holy Land in "A Ramble Through Palestine," and made his discourse most entertaining by the little bits of humorous comment interjected from time to time.

Three Phases

Palestine, he said, has three phases of interest to the traveller. It has a human interest, a patriotic interest, and an intensely religious interest. It is the cradle of three great religions. The Jew considers Mount Zion as the most holy place in the world, while the Christian looks in the same way on Bethlehem, Jerusalem and Nazareth; and to the Moslem it is, after Mecca, the holiest spot on earth.

The port of Jaffa was first thrown on the screen. To get to this place, one crosses a mile of water, and the boatmen, many of whom, unable to read or write, are yet capable of speaking ten or twelve languages, size up the traveller to see whether he will pay four dollars or ten cents for the trip.

Historic Scenes.

Here are the compact buildings, the narrow, dark streets and the unhygienic living conditions of Oriental peoples, here is the house of Simon, where St. Peter conceived the idea of taking the religion of Christ to the despised Gentiles, and here are the fine orange groves growing on former arid plains, made possible by the funds sent by rich Jews interested in the Zionist movement.

Farther on is the ancient city of Arimathea and the tall minaret where the mirezzin calls the faithful to prayer, admonishing them in the morning that "Prayer is better than sleep." Here too is the house occupied by Napoleon during a brief visit to Palestine and the bed in which he slept.

"It is said that the bed remained unmade from the time that Napoleon slept in it, and it certainly looks like it," said the Rev. Mr. McLean.

City of Caves.

In the valley farther on is the Tomb of Sampson, and then comes the curious city of caves, where the "Son of the Star" in 135 B.C. assembled his followers to resist the Roman forces and where recent excavations discovered many bags of gold coin.

Here is the railway that runs from Jaffa to Jerusalem and the Plain of the Giants where David battled with the Philistines.

A favorite form of bootlegging in Palestine, it is said, is the theft and sale of olive trees which have a seventy-five per cent. tax placed upon them by the Turkish Government.

Jerusalem was well described from a way of the city which sits on four hills, ninety-three acres in extent, and surrounded by walls which are thirty-eight and one-half feet high.

Letters Preserved.

Here in 1400 B.C., lived a prince, who was vassal to the King of Egypt and his letters in the Babylonian language are still preserved in museums. Forty conquerors have passed through the gates of Jerusalem, the last, General Allenby, with his hat in his hand, in deference to the holy places of the land.

Owing to the conflicts between the different races dwelling in the city their quarters are entirely distinct, and separate. In 1898, the first carriage to enter its walls brought the German Kaiser.

The reverend speaker referred to a trip to the desert with a Turkish soldier, whose villainous face and reputation as an ex-brigand, formed sufficient protection against attacks, even though he was unable to fire off the antiquated French rifle which formed his shooting equipment. When he quar relled with the Mohammedan guide, the two fought with heavy stalks of maize and made up as quickly as they had fallen out.

The room where tradition places the scene of the Last Supper was shown, the reputed tomb of King David, the famous wailing wall of the Jews, and the site of the Temple of Solomon, where now stands the Mohammedan Mosque of Omar, considered, next to the Taj Mahal at Agua, India, as the most beautiful building in the world.

The Dome of the Chain

Outside the Masque, views of which, inside and out, were shown, is the "Dome of the Chain," where a chain, pendent from the dome above, is supposed to swing if one tells an untruth while standing beside it.

A picture of the former Church of St. Mary was also shown. This is now a mosque also, but has been changed very little from the structure erected in the sixth century by the Christian Emperor Justinian.

The wonderful pulpit of mother of pearl and ivory which was placed in the house of Allah by the Sultan Saladin, at the time of the Crusaders, was pictured; also the stables of Solomon, great underground cisterns used for stabling the mounts of the Crusaders.

One saw also the Pool of Bethesda and the Tower of Antonio, built by a former Syrian ruler of the city for the purpose of giving his soldiers a place to stand and mock at the religious worshipers below.

The Church of the Holy Sepulchre built by the Christian convert, Queen Helena, in 326 A.D. was a notable edifice, with its marble tombs and ornate ornamentation.

NO MORE PILES

Pile sufferers can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—bad blood circulation in the lower bowel. Cutting and salves can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid, a harmless tablet, succeeds because it relieves this blood congestion and strengthens the affected parts. Hem-Roid has a wonderful record for quick, safe and lasting relief to pile sufferers. It will do the same for you or money back. McDermid & Jury, Bond's Drug Store and druggists everywhere sell Hem-Roid with this guarantee.

OBITUARY

MRS. KATHRINE ROSS BRAND

Katharine Ross Brand passed away at the family residence, 427 Murray Street, at noon to-day, April 11. Mrs. Brand was a life long member of St. Andrew's Church, a life member of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society and for thirty-five years taught in the St. Andrew's Sunday School.

Her husband predeceased her sixteen years ago.

She leaves to mourn her loss three sons; Malcolm of Detroit, Roy of Toronto and Norman of this city, and one sister, Mrs. William Batten of this city.

The funeral service will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. to the Little Lake cemetery, the Rev. C. V. McLean, officiating.

MRS. HERMAN REYNOLDS.
(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORHAM, April 11. — The funeral of the late Mrs. Herman Reynolds, was held from the Morganston church on Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock.

Mrs. Reynolds was seriously injured in an automobile accident Thursday last, near Brighton, and passed away on Saturday evening.

The remains were brought from Brighton to Morganston church on Tuesday.

The members of the Morganston W.M.S. of which Mrs. Reynolds was president, and the members of the Baptist Woman's Missionary Society, attended in a body.

The church was draped in black and white for the occasion, and the large quantity of flowers on the casket was a slight token of the esteem in which Mrs. Reynolds was held.

The service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Gardiner of Castleton, assisted by the Rev. D. R. Clare of Norham, and Rev. A. S. Doggett of Frankford.

Mr. Gardiner based his remarks on Mark 14:8: "She hath done what she could."

He spoke first of the circumstances under which the words were first spoken: the anointing of Jesus' feet.

He said that everyone had a responsibility of service but if he did what he could it was all that was expected of him.

In referring the text to the life of the departed lady, he spoke of her regular attendance at church and her attentive worship, of her Sunday school class, and the high ideals she placed before them, of her position as president of the Morganston Woman's Missionary Society, and her missionary zeal and enthusiasm in promoting the work, and to her Christian life in the home, and in all she had done what she could.

He then spoke of her message breathed on her death bed, that the man who had caused the accident would not be punished, and compared it to Christ's message on the cross, "Father forgive them."

Mr. Gardiner closed with a message of sympathy to the sorrowing husband, son and daughter.

Interment was in the Christian burying ground, east of Morganston.

FLYERS OF SOUTHERN CROSS REPORTED ON FLAT 30 MILES SOUTH OF PORT GEORGE MISSION

Airplane Canberra Drops Food to the Four Stranded Aviators.

LOST FOR 12 DAYS

One of Search Planes Reported Missing for More Than 48 Hours.

SYDNEY N.S.W., April 12 (C.P.).—After being lost twelve days in one of the wildest and most inhospitable regions of the world, Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith and his three companions of the airplane Southern Cross were located to-day by the plane Canberra, the largest of several machines searching for them.

Brief messages from the Canberra to a radio receiving station at Darwin, Northern Territory, related the sighting of the missing plane, which once made the remarkable flight from California to Australia. The Canberra said the four fliers appeared safe and well. Food was dropped to them sufficient to satisfy a want which it was feared had become acute.

Captain Holden, piloting the Canberra, gave the plane's location as on a mud flat about thirty miles south from Port George Mission Station, which is located on the Prince Regent River about 130 miles east of Derby. This location would indicate that when Captain Kingsford-Smith sent the message just before he made his forced landing nearly two weeks ago that he was "about 100 miles east of Wyndham" he was instead hundreds of miles off the path from Sydney to Wyndham, a lap which was to be the first of an attempt to break the flight record between Australia and England.

No Landing Possible

While the Canberra did not say so it was assumed no landing was possible in the area in which the Southern Cross was down and pending definite word from those who have undertaken the search for the aviators it was not known here what form their rescue would take. It was presumed a combination of launch and foot parties, guided by airplanes, would be resorted to.

Lieutenant Keith Anderson, has been missing for more than 48 hours after flying into the wilds of Northwestern Australia in search of the Southern Cross.

The search for him may present a problem every bit as difficult as has been that of the plane just found. Anderson had a companion with him, Robert Hitchcock. They have not been heard from since they left Newcastle Waters, Northern Territory, about 400 miles from Syndham. They left here Sunday in a monoplane.

The first step of the Air Force machines was expected to be Alice Springs, in the southern part of Northern Territory.

The brief messages of the Canberra told a dramatic story of the culmination of the days of searching. The first message at 9.45 a.m. (local time) said: "After visiting the Port George Mission, we shall search all the bays and inlets as far as Cape Londonderry." (Cape Londonderry is the northernmost point of Western Australia).

At 11.31 a.m. came the message that the plane had been sighted and food dropped to the crew. That there might be no doubt as to the good news the message was repeated.

At 11.38 a.m., the Canberra radioed to the Southern Cross: "If you can hear us walk into open ground." Five minutes later the Canberra told the Darwin station: "They must be hearing but haven't seen them."

At 12.36, the Canberra radioed: "The Southern Cross is approximately 30 miles from the Port George Mission. Can see whole crew now." Even later came another message setting the direction as south from Port George, and describing its resting place as a mud flat.

EVERY AVAILABLE MAN AND TEAM BEING USED IN FIGHT TO PREVENT ERIEAU DYKES FROM BREAKING

Army Continues to Pile Sand Bags in Holes Made by Waves.

WIND CHANGES.

Men Worked Last Night Until Bad Rain Storm Forced Them to Quit.

CHATHAM, Ont., April 12 (C.P.)—Every available man, team and truck in the vicinity of Erieau were being pressed into service for the fourth day's fight to prevent Lake Erie from tearing down a dyke which protect 1,500 acre of valuable farm land. They will continue to pile sand bags in the holes in the dyke which have been perforated by the pounding of the waves.

Reports from the Erieau district were to the effect that the situation was a little easier as a result of a favorable shift in the wind, and, at the present, there seems no immediate danger of the dyke collapsing and allowing the lake to flood the district.

150 Feet Seriously Menaced

It was reported that there is one bad spot for a distance of 150 feet which is most seriously menaced, and it was there where farmers intended to concentrate to-day, erecting a sand bag barrier to hold back the waters.

The top of the big dyke formed a road extending between Erieau and Erie beach but at one spot, it was reported this morning that the top has crumbled away leaving just enough space for a man to walk.

Men worked last night until a bad rain storm forced them to quit. They resumed their efforts at dawn to-day in better spirits than yesterday owing to the favorable shift of the wind which effects the force of the waves rolling to shore. They realize, however, that the situation may become critical at any time the wind becomes adverse.

Group Funerals Will Be Held For Victims Of Tornado Which Swept Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK, Arkansas, April 12. — (C.P.) — Three group funerals of victims of the tornado which Wednesday swept sections of North Arkansas, taking a toll of life which stood at 50 to-day, were to be held this afternoon at Guion and Swifton, two villages which bore the brunt of the storm.

Two small rural cemeteries near Swifton each are to receive the bodies of 11 victims, while at Guion, six of those who lost their lives in the storm which razed the entire town, are to be buried.

Meanwhile the work of rehabilitation was going forward.

The first eye-witness accounts of the storm which demolished Guion were furnished early to-day by residents there. Not one building was left of more than a hundred and fifty.

Throughout yesterday those who were not injured searched among the ruins of their homes. Little will be salvaged from the wreckage, observers said, so complete was the damage wrought.

BODY OF MISSING LOCAL GIRL IS FEARED TO HAVE BEEN PINNED UNDER TEMPORARY BRIDGE

Searchers Are Despairing of Ever Finding Miss Wright Along Shore.

REMOVE BRIDGE.

Brother and Sister of Missing Girl Make Request to Deputy Minister.

Is Helen Wright's body held fast beneath some piece or pieces of tons of cement blocks, the broken piers of Harmony Creek bridge? And will the temporary wooden bridge built upon the ruins of the old bridge have to be removed before the body will be found?

Men who have been engaged in the search since last Sunday say "Yes." It is their firm opinion that the body is beneath the bridge and can only be retrieved after the temporary one has been removed.

The searchers are despairing of ever finding the body along the shores after tracing and retracing their weary steps from end to end of the creek.

With a view to having the bridge removed to allow a search among the ruins, Mrs. Bert McWilliams and Harry Wright, sister and brother of Helen Wright, waited on R. M. Smith, deputy-minister of Highways, in Toronto, yesterday. Mr. Smith conceded to their request, stating that the department was anxious to do all in their power to find the body.

It is expected that to-day operations will commence to remove parts of the temporary bridge to allow an unhampered search among the cement piers.

Seventh Day Since Tragedy.

To-day is the seventh day since the flood tragedy at Harmony Creek bridge, which cost the lives of two Peterborough citizens. And, although the search for Helen Wright's body, lost in the tidal sweep of the flood waters has never been relinquished, no results have rewarded the searchers.

Every yard of the muddy, muck-strewn banks of the creek has been thoroughly gone over many times by the hundreds of sympathetic searchers. The search has been carried on from the bridge down the full course of the twisting stream, that is now reaching its normal level, to the lake, a distance estimated at five or six miles. Along the morass of the muskrat swamp, stretching for hundreds of acres on both sides of the creek near Lake Ontario, the weary searchers have pushed hopefully, in spite of the sucking quick sands.

Still not the smallest clue that might lead to the finding of the body has been picked up. Practically every thing in the ill-fated car has been found strewn along the shore as the waters have receded. Even the small chin-rest of Stanley Northrop's violin has been recovered.

Body Under Bridge.

Having considered all these facts, H. Freeman feels himself forced to believe that the body is still beneath the bridge, he told The Examiner yesterday. "I believe her body is beneath the bridge—under those pieces of cement on which they have built the wooden structure."

Mr. Freeman has been constantly engaged in looking for the body of Miss Wright since Sunday morning, along with Charles Wright, the girl's father. These two men, with the aid of a diver from the Department of Highways, have searched every part of the creek.

British Engineer Designs Racer for Daytona in 1931

LONDON, April 12 (Canadian Press). — C. Amhurst Villiers, young British engineer, is reported to have completed the design of a motor car which he will take to Daytona in 1931 with a guaranteed speed of 300 miles an hour and a theoretical maximum speed of 400 miles.

The engines will have 3,000 horsepower and the car will be fitted with eight wheels. Prominent British financiers are providing the money.

FIRE DAMAGES THE ELITE CAFE

SMOKE DAMAGE.

Fire broke out in the supply cellar of the Elite Cafe last evening doing damage estimated at over $1,000 in the cafe and causing considerable smoke damage in Riley & Hickey's clothing and H. Routley's stores on each side. The cause of the fire is not definitely known.

The blaze was confined to the ceiling of the basement burning around the posts and partitions at the extreme back of the building. The supplies in the cellar were partly burned and the smouldering of the sugar, barrels, boxes, and other materials caused a pungent smoke that made it difficult for the firemen to breath.

Attention was first called to the fire by a waitress. She was eating her supper in the kitchen and remarked that the floor felt hot, and on opening the door leading to the basement she was enveloped in smoke. This was at 7.40 p.m., and the alarm was immediately sounded at the Fire Hall.

The firemen put two lines of hose on the blaze, one coming from the hydrant on Charlotte Street and in the back way to the cafe and the other from the hydrant in front of the store was carried down through the shoe shine parlor. By quick work on the part of the firemen the blaze was out by 8.15.

Overcome by Smoke.

In speaking of the fire, Louis Yeotes, the proprietor of the cafe, praised the efficient service of the Fire Brigade. He said that John Accons, the store manager, had been overcome by the smoke while trying to save the employees' clothes which hung on a rack next the supply cellar. He stated that every effort would be made to have the cafe re-opened in less than a week. It will be fully re-decorated throughout.

FIRE AT C.N.R. ROUNDHOUSE.

At 10.20 a call was received to attend a fire which had broken out in a small frame building attached to the C.N.R. roundhouse. This shack was badly scorched and also one corner of the roundhouse. The cause of the fire is not known.

Department's Policy Is Ably Defended By The Hon. Mr. McCrea

Minister of Mines, Game and Fisheries Addresses the Annual Meeting of Chamber of Commerce — Sincere Appeal Is Made to Sporting Organizations For Constructive Suggestion.

NEW EXECUTIVE INSTALLED BY MAYOR DENNE; PRESIDENT JAMES DUTTON OUTLINES YEAR'S WORK

Mr. McCrae Declares He Has the Utmost Faith in Deputy Minister McDonald, Who, He Said, Had the Conservation of Fish in the Province At Heart

(By W. J. E.)

A vigorous defense of his department's policy with regard to the propagation and conservation of game fish in Ontario waters, coupled with a sincere appeal for constructive suggestion and co-operation from sporting organizations sufficiently interested to be otherwise critical, was contained in the address of the Hon. Charles McCrea, Minister of Mines, Game and Fisheries, as delivered at the annual general banquet-meeting of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce, held in the Empress Hotel last night. Though not from point of numbers, the annual meeting was, in many other respects, an outstanding event in the history of this community organization and if taken as a criterion, promised well for Peterborough in the year 1929. Together with a formal installation of the new executive, conducted by His Worship Mayor Roland Denne, the Minister's address, strongly resembling that which he delivered in the House toward the close of the last session, shared the interest and attention of an encouragingly large attendance. Unavoidably absent during the earlier part of the meeting, Mayor Denne arrived in time to preside over the installation of President James Dutton for another term, as well as the other members of the 1929 executive.

The President Speaks

Presided over by the man who has been a strong force in the activities of the Chamber of Commerce during the past year, last night's meeting dwelt in a happy atmosphere of humor and sincere appreciation of the Chamber's accomplishments. Mr. Dutton proved, as usual, an ideal Master of Ceremonies, from the toast to His Majesty, the King, to the final chorus of "O, Canada". He welcomed all present and won instant favor by declining to report at length on the year's activities.

"It is not my intention at this time to present a report setting forth the activities of the Chamber of Commerce during the year that is past" said President Dutton.

"I have a feeling that it is not altogether fair to burden such a gathering as this with a lengthy account of what has been accomplished. This will be printed in due course in the columns of The Examiner, and will, I trust, be read by all of you in the quiet of your own homes. It will be sufficient for me to say at this time that the year has been crowded with activities, all of which have had for their object the promotion of the common weal in Peterborough.

"I have discovered that there is a tendency on the part of some to speak disparagingly and try to belittle the work of the Chamber of Commerce. Some have even gone further and questioned the need for such an organization within our midst. I should like to say that a well-organized and active Chamber of Commerce is, in my opinion, as much a nesessity as any other department of our civic life.

"To my mind the Chamber of Commerce is a unique organization in so far as its services are entirely utilitarian. It plays no favorites. It does not set itself out to serve any particular class in the community, but it embraces all and is inclusive rather than exclusive in all that it attempts to do. It seeks to concern itself in every phase of the city's life and whilst it has no definite powers, it can often make suggestions which may be valuable in promoting the highest welfare of the community.

"The Peterborough Chamber of Commerce has established a repu-

Seagrave Is Out of Racing as Long as Record Stands

CHERBOURG, France, April 12 (Canadian Press).—Major H. O. Segrave, noted British speed motorist, told the Canadian Press on his arrival here to-day that his announced retirement from racing was only on the condition that no one bettered his record of 231 miles an hour established at Daytona Beach in March.

He said that if Capt. Malcolm Campbell, who is now in Africa, should be able to establish a new speed record, he would attempt to regain his title.

KIWANIS HEAR DAIRY LEADER

Producers, Dealers and Health Authorities Must Co-operate for Safe Milk Supply.

CALL FOR VOLUNTEERS.

If any community would have a safe and sufficient milk supply, the producers, dealers and health authorities should function as one unit, emphasizing the necessity of production from clean animals, careful handling, and as a safe-guard, pasteurization. Thus, speaking quite generally, and without ambiguity, did F. E. M. Robinson, President of the National Dairy council, express himself before the members of the Peterborough Kiwanis club at their luncheon meeting to-day.

In the city for the purpose of addressing the Jersey breeders of this district at a meeting to-night, Mr. Robinson, himself a foremost dairyman, was prevailed upon and consented to speak briefly to the Kiwanians. He was introduced by Ernest Smith, and at the conclusion of his address, was thanked on behalf of the club by J. A. O'Brien, who included in his vote of appreciation, Master Orvil Walnman who had contributed the musical number of the day.

Andy Furman, director of "Kiwanis Kapers" which will make its debut to the Peterborough public this evening, threw out a challenge to every member to get behind the ticket sale both for this opening presentation and for the Saturday afternoon and evening performances; C. H. Huffman called for volunteers to go to Oshawa in company with District Governor Isaac McNabb next week, and John R. Marshall spoke briefly relative to a Peterborough contingent attending the reception to the International President, when that official pays a visit to the Toronto club in the near future—all of these matters were

Six Workmen Are Believed Killed When Large Coffer Dam Collapses

LANSING, Mich., April 12.—(Canadian Press).—Six men were believed to have been killed in a coffer dam collapse at the South Logan Street viaduct this morning.

Eight men were working about 30 feet under the level of the river on the footings of the viaduct on the south side of the river when without warning there was a crash and the workers were buried under an avalanche of crashing timbers and water.

An emergency call was broadcast by police who rushed to the scene. Shortly after they arrived ambulances were on scene.

Two of the eight men were rescued but the other six were believed almost certainly to have perished. Pressure of water on the dam caused the cave-in.

GRANTS ARE NOT TO BE RENEWED

Dominion Will Not Aid Technical Education in the Provinces.

RESEARCH SCHEME.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 12 (Canadian Press).—Senator Dandurand told Senator Willoughby in the Senate yesterday that the Federal Government had decided not to renew the grants to provinces for technical education, because the war had placed heavy burdens on the Dominion and not on the provinces, and the latter were therefore in a good financial position, comparatively, to carry on this work. Also, the Federal Government had embarked on a scheme of national research which would cost millions and be of benefit to every province.

MAIN MOTION IS CARRIED ON DIVISION IN THE HOUSE BY MAJORITY OF 24 VOTES

107 Votes Are Cast For the Budget and 83 Against.

FOLLOWED PARTY LINES.

Sub-Amendment Is Also Lost By Substantial Majority of 136 Votes.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 12.— (By the Canadian Press.) — The budget passed the House of Commons last night by a majority of 24 votes

The final division which resulted in the casting of 107 votes for the budget and 83 against followed closely along party lines All the Liberals, Liberal-Progressives, the two Independents, A. W. Neill, of Comox-Alberni and Henri Bourassa, of Labelle, H. B. Adshead, Labor member for East Calgary, and L. H. Jelliff, U.F.A. member for Lethbridge, supported the government's motion. In opposition were all the Conservatives, all members of the U. F. A. group with the exception of Mr. Jelliff, all the Progressive members and J. S. Woodsworth, Labor member for Winnipeg North Centre. A. A. Heaps, Labor member for Winnipeg North, was not in his seat when the final division took place.

Climaxed Colorful Day.

The vote on the main budget climaxed the most colorful day which the House of Commons has seen thus far this session. Two other divisions resulted in the defeat of the sub-amendment and amendment to the main motion which had come from U.F.A. and the Conservative ranks respectively. The U.F.A. sub-amendment, which, in brief, asked the government to consider increasing the British preference, was negatived by the substantial majority of 136. Its support came only from members of the U.F.A. and Progressive groups and the two Labor members, Messrs. Woodsworth and Heaps. Against it were lined up Liberals, Liberal-Progressives, Conservatives and two Independents, Messrs. Neill and Bourassa, and H. B. Adshead, Labor member for East Calgary.

The majority against the Conservative amendment was 62. This amendment received its entire support from the Conservative party. All other members in the House were opposed. The Conservative amendment, which was moved by Hon. Hugh Guthrie, expressed regret that the budget made no provision "for reasonably safeguarding and protecting the interests of those engaged in agricultural pursuits or in industrial employment in Canada.

The House took almost the entire day to dispose of the three proposals which were before it. The afternoon sitting commenced quietly enough with T. L. Church (Conservative, North-West Toronto) concluding the speech which he began Wednesday. Then the vote on the sub-amendment took place. Following its defeat, D. M. Kennedy (U.F.A., Peace River) made a brief speech.

Last Minute Fighting Speech.

It was when the Conservative amendment had been defeated and the members were sitting in expectations of a vote on the main budget motion, that the fun started. Hon. R. J. Manion (Conservative, Fort William) rose and aroused the members in a last minute fighting speech.

Dr. Manion referred to the Prime Minister's assertion that what Canada needed at present was "cool heads."

"The difficulty with the Prime Minister is that he has his extremities mixed," Dr. Manion declared, while Conservative members shouted with laughter. "It is not a cool-head that is troubling this Government; it is cold feet that are troubling them, and if the Prime Minister has studied physiology in his youth as I did, he would realize that in both matters, not only to warm up the feet, but to cool down the head, you need red blood anyhow."

Dr. Manion twitted Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, with

Belle Isle Harbormaster Is Suspended For His Activities With The Rum-Runners

DETROIT, Mich., April 12 (Canadian Press). — Accused of having utilized his position as harbor master and head of the police staff on Belle Isle to aid rum-runners in transportation of liquor from Canada to the United States, Captain Joseph A. Burkheiser was suspended yesterday. Police Commissioner William P. Rutledge, declaring "this will prove to be the worst scandal in the history of the department," added: "The liquor affair is only a small part of what has been going on" on Belle Isle and the river.

He would not amplify the statement, but gave out the specific charges against Burkheiser, all of which refer to incidents of two to four years ago.

ACTIVITIES OF TARIFF BOARD ARE CLOSELY QUESTIONED BY MEMBERS OF THE OPPOSITION

Conservatives Ask Minister What the Board Had Advised.

PROGRESSIVES CRITICIZE.

Slow Progress Is Made By House in Committee of Ways and Means.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 12 (Canadian Press).—Questions poured from the Conservative and Progressive members concerning the Tariff Board and the Consumers' League when the House of Commons in Committee of Ways and Means last night took up the tariff resolutions. After an exciting day in the budget debate, very little of the fire seemed to have died out when the House finally resolved itself into committee. The Minister of Finance was volleyed with questions from the Conservatives as to what the Tariff Board had advised regarding the various items and what was the status of the Consumers' League which was so often reported before the Board.

Members of the U.F.A. group complained that the tariff changes in too many instances, gave lower duties to goods manufacturers had to buy, but left the duties on what the manufacturers had to sell the same as heretofore. The Tariff Board, which was first criticized by the Protectionist Conservatives, was later being criticized by the low tariff members from the West.

As an outcome of so much questioning, the committee made slow progress. The change whereby sweetened cocoanut bars duty of five cents British preference and six cents in the other list, whereas unsweetened cocoanut will carry a tariff of two cents British preference and three cents in the other schedules, was left over when so much information was asked about it. The item to place certain directories for free reference libraries on the free list carried but the other items, borax, glass and stearic acid, had not made progress when the House rose.

EXPERT GEOLOGIST TO EXPLORE MINERAL DEPOSITS OF COUNTRY

Wealth of Hastings and Peterborough Counties Was Only Scratched 60 Years Ago.

DEPARTMENT TAKES ACTION.

Consideration Will Be Given To Copper and Lead Deposits.

TORONTO, Ont., April 12 (C.P.).—Eastern Ontario's insistent argument that the mineral resources of Hastings and Peterborough counties were merely "scratched" in the gold-rush period of approximately 60 years ago, and that extensive deposits of valuable ores can still be uncovered there through diamond drilling and large-scale exploratory methods that did not obtain in 1870, will be settled this year by the Provincial Department of Mines.

Hon. Charles McCrea, Minister of Mines, is now making arrangements, it is understood, to send an expert geologist into these counties in the early summer, whose task it will be to conduct a complete survey of the entire territory. While considerable atention will be paid to long idle gold properties, with a view to determining whether they can be given a new lease of life, still more consideration will be given to the copper and lead deposits that are reported available, and to the magnetite that is to be found in the territory around Bancroft.

C.N.R. ESTIMATES BEFORE HOUSE

Program For Construction nad Betterment of System Will Cost $35,750,000.

ENLARGE PACIFIC FLEET.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 12. — (C.P.) —Parliamentary sanction for the issuance of guaranteed securities amounting to $53,750,000 is sought in the 1929 estimates of the Canadian National Railways, tabled in the House of Commons last night by the Hon. James A. Robb, Minister of Finance. The estimates which cover the company's program of construction and betterment, provide for an outlay of $35,750,000 for general additions and improvements on the system, while equipment payments amount to $6,313,400. The amount requested would also provide for a sinking fund.

The general porgram will include laying of heavy rail, some double track and grade revision, to facilitate grain movements, extension of sidings and passing tracks, extension of the freight and passenger yard and terminal facilities, new bridges, new hotel structures, new ships for the pacific coastal service of the company and numerous other items.

Continuing the policy of increasing the standard and laying 100-pound rail on the main line between Halifax and Vancouver, this work, which has been under way during the past years, will proceed on the Atlantic, Central and Western Regions. In all 916 track miles of new heavy rail is to be provided.

IVANCHUK IS FOUND GUILTY

Jury, After Two Hours' Deliberation, Returns Verdict in Cochrane Case.

SENTENCE PASSED TO-DAY.

COCHRANE, Ont., April 12. — (Canadian Press) —John Ivanchuk, Austrian miner, was found guilty by a jury last night of the murder of License Inspector Harry Constable, who was shot to death near his home here October 15, 1926. The jury was out two hours. Sentence will be pronounced to-day. Ivanchuk was arrested last November.

Four crown witnesses swore Ivanchuk had told them he had killed Constable. Sophie Dincorn said Ivanchuk had threatened in her presence that he "would get even with Constable."

James Rogers, a butcher at Taschereau, said that three days after the officer had been shot Ivanchuk came to his shack and after drinking some gin declared he had shot Constable, but warned witness against repeating the story.

The prisoner denied ever having been at Taschereau and claimed he did not know the Dincorn girl.

Charged with the murder of Julius Niemi at South Porcupine on November 11 last, Pertelli Rinta-Konno, late last evening was placed on trial. The case will continue into to-day. The crown alleges that Niemi was the victim of a drunken brawl.

WHILE ONE CONSTABLE IS FREED SECOND WILL APPEAR FOR TRIAL IN LINDSAY, TUESDAY, APRIL 30

Crown Attorney Anderson Has Charge Against Constable Cooke of Orillia.

JUDGMENT IS GIVEN.

Judge Swayze Issues Warning to All Constable About Using Firearms.

LINDSAY, April 12.—(Special to The Examiner).—Although Judge W. D. Swayze dismissed the case against Provincial Constable Robert Purvis of Collingwood, charged with "shooting with intent to maim," Crown Attorney J. E. Anderson asked that a date for a new trial for Provincial Constable Cooke of Orillia under the same charge be set. The date of trial was set for one o'clock on April 30th. It came entirely as a surprise that the charge against Constable Cooke, would be pressed as the Crown Attorney previously said that if the court found Purvis justified in shooting at Bernnan, the charge against Cooke would be dropped, as practically the same evidence entered into both cases. When asked by a newspaperman why he had changed his mind and was going on with trial, Crown Attorney Anderson refused to make a statement to the press.

Acted In Good Faith.

Judge Swayze said in part: "I come to this conclusion with some hesitation owing to the fatal results which followed the shooting by the accused but believe he acted in good faith in the discharge of his duty and believing that shooting was last resort to enable him to place the deceased Brennan under arrest after all other efforts had failed. This is a matter of judgment on part of one taking this step. His act may have been hasty but I would not say that in the circumstances surrounding him at the moment of shooting, together with previous reports and warnings his judgment was so erroneous as to make him liable under the charge laid while the absence of any of these circumstances would have done so.

Warns Accused.

The accused should be warned how dangerous it is to make use of firearms in endeavouring to make an arrest. You have taken a human life which without justification is the most serious of all offenses. I am satisfied that there was no intention on your part that what you did should have the result which followed in this case. I am satisfied that you have already suffered and will suffer more in regret and remorse than any punishment I might be permitted to impose upon you. This should be a warning to all other constables of the danger of using firearms in making an arrest, which is only permitted as a last resort where all other efforts fail and should not be resorted to where the accused is charged of minor offences. "The accused will be discharged within a few days." His Honor Judge Swayze will give a written judgment to the counsel's setting out his views of the evidence and reasons for judgment.

GRAIN FLEET READY TO MOVE

CARRY 8,000,000 BUSHELS.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., April 12 (C.P.).—With steam up and their officers and men fretting impatiently, 35 grain boats in port here are awaiting the command that will send them ploughing through the broken ice of Thunder Bay, racing eastward with millions of bushels of Western Canada's grain.

Veteran Lake mariners watched the progress of a tiny speck away out in the bay, creeping along with irritating slowness. It was the ice-breaking tug James Whalen, which for several days has bucked the ice of Thunder Bay, loosening it so that when favorable winds blow off shore it will move out into the open lake.

Wait for the Wind

Immediately that the winds shift the big ice-fields wedged tight in the bay and conditions will be favorable for a start. Already, and so soon that the Lake-head navigators are surprised, word has been received that the St. Mary's River is open at Whitefish. It is considered that when Whitefish is clear of ice, navigation is declared open.

In view of the unexpected report from the East, however, navigators have made no announcement as to the actual start of navigation here.

All but one of the 40 boats wintering here are grain boats. Thirty-five of them carry winter storage grain and all of these will be ready when word comes that the lake is clear. Altogether they will carry approximately 8,000,000 bushels of grain and the long procession will be in progress in a few days.

This departure of the winter fleet each year is one of the sights of Canada. Chief engineers, captains and sailors have been arriving daily from their homes in the east, and the whole 15 miles of waterfront, speckled with giant elevators and hugh grain carriers, has for some days been a scene of great activity.

GATINEAU LINE 230 MILES LONG

1,200 TOWERS.

The details of the construction and the difficulties overcome in the construction of the Gatineau-Toronto transmission line, which crosses the provincial highway near Fraserville, was the subject of a paper read by A. D. Davidson, tranamission engineer of the Hydro Electric Power Commission, to the local branch of the Canadian Engineering Institute at a meeting in the Paragon Hall last evening.

The line is rated to carry 125,000 horsepower, but the speaker stated, that it has often carried over twice that amount. The total length of the line is 230 miles and in that distance there are nearly 1,200 towers bearing the high tension wires. The towers have a thousand foot span between them and there are about five towers to the mile.

Tremendous difficulties were encountered in its construction in the rough lake country north of Tweed. In this district the line passes over 20 miles from the railroad and all materials had to be transported by horses and tractors over the rocky hills.

Cost Was $2,750,000.

However the work went ahead at an amazing speed, it was said, the rate being one tower each day for ever seven men engaged on the big job. The total cost was in the neighborhood of $2,750,000.

Going into the details of the power construction the speaker proved that H.E.P.C. are pioneers in the electrical field, and other companies are benefitting by their scientific advances. Especially, it was shown, that this is true in the knowledge of transmitting power for great distances with slight wastage. This line has been constructed so well that it was declared there had been no trouble due to interference of the elements. This in itself was declared to be a great achievement, since the line is possibly the longest in the world.

The speaker showed moving pictures taken during construction which showed graphically the rough, rock nature of some sections of the country which the power line traverses.

The towers were built in sections ready to be clamped together on the spot, which aided materially in the rapid completion of the job.

The power is transmitted on a 25 cycle to Toronto where it is distributed from the Leaside station. Already plans are completed for a second line, to parallel the first, and work on this will begin almost at once.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 12. — Weakness developed at the close in yesterday's wheat market and lowered an advance of 1¼c scored in the early trading, the market closing ½c to ⅝c higher for the day. Little export business was reported, although seaboard houses entered the market for a while.

Cash wheat grades of Nos. 4, 5 and 6 were in good demand at prices ¼c better than the previous close. Other grades were neglected.

Oats and barley accounted for the majority of the trade on the coarse grain section. Prices were firm. Little demand was in evidence for rye and flax, and prices remained unchanged.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, April 12. — Large shipments of eggs reached the Toronto Wholesale Produce Market yesterday, and prices held steady following the one cent reduction of Wednesday. The heavy receipts are attributed to the fact that the flooded condition of the country kept eggs in the shippers' hands that should have reached the market earlier in the week. Reports from outside indicate that heavy shipments are billed for the market for the balance of the week.

Week-end trade is expected to hold prices steady, and dealers were quoting country shippers for ungraded eggs, delivered, cases returned, as follows: Fresh extras 26 cents per dozen, firsts 24 cents, and seconds 21 cents per dozen. Quotations to the retail trade were unchanged.

Butter Market Quiet.

The wholesale butter market was inactive and prices were steady at 45 cents per pound for No 1 finest creamery. A few small shipments were reported to have arrived on the local market, and supplies on spot are sufficient to take care of the demands of the retail trade.

Lacking any new interest, the cheese market remained dull, and dealers were quoting No. 1 large colored paraffined and Government graded at 21¾ cents per pound.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, April 12. — Evidence of rapid approach toward definite action on farm aid measures by Congress did much to tilt wheat values upward here yesterday. An unexpected rise in wheat quotations at Liverpool, together with North American wheat export business yesterday totalling 1,750,000 bushels, acted also as a strengthening influence. Unfavorable weather for field work contributed firmness to the corn market.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, ⅛c to ⅜c net higher. Corn finished at ⅛c decline to ⅜c advance; oats, ⅛c to ⅜c to ⅝c up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 5 cents to 7 cents.

Drought News.

Drought news from India and Canada added to the bullish effects of reports about progress of farm relief legislation and concerning sustained liberal demand for North American wheat shipments to Europe amounting to between 7,000,000 and 8,000,000 bushels in the last six days. It was noticed, however, that the great bulk of the export business was in wheat from Canada. Meanwhile, despatches from India stated flatly that rainfall has been insufficient for the filling of wheat, and that purchase of Australian wheat to be conveyed to India was being resumed. Advices were also at hand that rainfall in the Canadian Prairie Provinces since October 1 is the smallest on record for the last thirteen years.

Prices Lower Than Last Year.

On the other hand, traders friendly to higher prices for wheat put special stress on the fact that wheat future deliveries are about 20c a bushel lower than a year ago. It was asserted that this difference had discounted bearish features, that the United States winter crop is yet far from being made, that spring wheat seeding is still incomplete, and that weeks and months of crop danger possibilities remain to be encountered.

DEPARTMENT'S POLICY IS ABLY DEFENDED BY HON. MR. McCREA

tation for healthy, aggressiveness. If proof of this assertion is needed, one would only need to examine the correspondence files in order to see how far-reaching the influence of the Chamber is. In all its work, it has honestly tried to create a specific belief in the possibilities of our city to our own people and also to the large number of those with whom it is brought into contact from time to time through the various channels by which it strives to express itself.

"I should like at this time to plead for a larger recognition of the place and value of the Chamber of Commerce. As an organization, I feel that by the very nature of its work it merits the loyal backing and support of manufacturers, merchants, professional men and citizens generally.

"Like every other organization, it needs the sinews of war in order to do its work, and its work is of such a nature that in the final analysis all share in the benefits which accrue."

Believe In City

"I also want to plead for a greater belief in our city," he continued. "We hear much of other cities and of all they are doing and attempting to do, but I feel that, whilst we may not have as large a population as some of us would like to see, and possibly not so many industries, there can be no question that what we lack in quantity we more than make up in quality. This is a city that is clean, well endowed by nature, a place in which it is desirable to live and a city that has a high regard for the things that make life worth while.

"I have said on previous occasions that the only people who can sell Peterborough are the citizens themselves. One of our greatest needs at the present time is a healthy, community spirit in which there will be no place for petty jealous mean bickerings. This leads me to say that in the Old Home Week celebration which we are holding this year there will be work for all to do in order to make this event an unqualified success.

"I should like to plead for the active and practical support of every citizen in doing everything within their power in order to make Peterborough look its best, be its best, and to assure every visitor who will come to our city during that week of a real hearty welcome.

"Another matter which I think merits the support of every citizen concerned is the by-law which will be submitted in connection with the eytension to the Nicholls Hospital. I trust that when this by-law is submitted in the near future it will receive the unanimous and unqualified support of all those entitled to express themselves on this question.

Urges Town Planning

"Town-planning is also a matter of general interest. We expect Peterborough to grow, and it is imperative that in order to safe-guard ourselves, we should take steps now to plan for the future. I would like to see the city council take the lead in this matter in appointing a committee from amongst its own number and with other representative citizens in order that a thorough survey might be made and that the proper areas so far as factories, breathing spaces, recreation facilities and all the other essentials to a well-ordered city might be provided for.

In closing I want to express to the Mayor, the City clerk, and the members of the council my appreciation of the courtesies, confidences, and assistance which during the past year have been so readily granted.

"The grant given by the city council towards the work of the Chamber of Commerce is, in my opinion, a very practical endorsation on the part of the local legislative body of the Chamber of Commerce.

"To the members of the staff at the Chamber of Commerce I owe a great deal. Their willingness and cheerfulness in all that they have had to do have made my work as president easy and pleasurable.

I also want to bear my personal testimony to the members of the executive who by their co-operation and loyalty made it possible to accomplish all that was done. No man I think ever had a more loyal body of men to work with. To the secretary, Mr. Frank Stinson, I must also pay my tribute of respect. I have found him loyal, faithful, and efficient in all the duties pertaining to his office. He, after all, is the man who carries out in details what the President and executive plan.

"It is a matter of deep gratification to myself as I feel it is to every one of you present here tonight to see so many evidences of the general prosperity which is prevailing at this time throughout our great Dominion and I am sure that Peterborough is sharing in the general well being and I trust that everyone of you will have the satisfaction of feeling that you too are benefiting in this time of unparalleled prosperity."

Speaker Introduced.

With the minutes approved as read, and with the treasurer's report, a favorable one, adopted as read by Chairman C. S. Cummer, the duty evolved upon W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., to introduce the chief speaker of the evening—which he did in most complimentary manner, referring to the Minister's continuous political service since 1911. "It is my pleasure to congratulate the city of Peterborough on possessing so live a Chamber of Commerce as will allow her to enjoy her share of the prosperity which has begun to sweep the Dominion. I only hope that we may measure up to that great future, which has been predicted for Canada in the 20th century," said the honorable visitor in reply.

Since he had come to Peterborough as a Government representative, he wished to speak regarding his portfolio as Minister of Mines, and particularly of his Department of Game and Fisheries. Ontario, he considered a unique province, geographically, whose extent gave his one department concern for fish, game and furs.

Possibility of Deficit.

The province had been divided into sections, over each of which a chief warden and a force of special wardens patrolled, assisting other members of a small permanent and seasonal force of game wardens. Last year the revenue was $733,000, with expenditures amounting to between four and $500,000, but this year, with a very extensive program mapped out, a slight deficit was possible, he predicted. In speaking of the duties of his department concerning fish protection alone, the Minister stated that the fish of Ontario had been divided into commercial and game classes; it was necessary for the Department of Game and Fisheries to determine a general policy that would govern both as to conservation, propagation and taking of either. With the coming of the motor car, changes of temperature, shifting of land due to quick run-offs of silt, natural conditions had changed and made the problem of fish depletion more acute. The tourist trade, as for instance in the Kawartha Lakes, was another factor to be contended with.

Change Date of Opening.

"We have heard some complaint regarding our decision to change the date of opening for the bass fishing season from June 15 to July 1, but it has become apparent that the best way to increase the bass supply is by natural means—by leaving them time to complete their spawning season," continued Mr. McCrea. He told of experiments made as early as 1923 and of his efforts to obtain the assistance of scientists, to assist in determining the relation of conditions in Ontario waters to the propagation of game fish. Expert biologists had been engaged and were even now continuing their investigations. The season had been lengthened at the autumn end in accordance with the demand for a lengthier fishing period, and yet with regard to the need for protection of the spawning fish.

The Hon. Mr. McCrea made quite an issue of a couple of Toronto newspaper editorials, taking up each paragraph of them to show where the writers had been incorrectly informed, and incidentally giving some insight into the work of Ontario fish hatcheries.

He went on to tell of criticisms levelled by anglers' associations, and of the appointment of a committee to seek new ideas and generally, to assist his Department in improving its present regulations which were not beyond change for the same reason that regulations pertaining in the United States after forty years of attempts at fish conservation and propagation were not completely satisfactory. "We want and welcome the assistance and co-operation of all angling men and we are just as vitally interested in the development of the tourist traffic as you are here in the Kawartha Lakes district, but when we say that the best way to increase the fish supply is to lengthen the closed season, we have a problem. And right here let me say that there is no man who is keener or more enthusiastic in the working out of our problems than the Deputy Minister, Mr. McDonald, though his head has been sought at times by indignant organizations," said Mr. McCrea. "This year, in your district, we will have thirteen special men operating under Captain Carson, and patrolling these waters," was his announcement that elicited hearty applause.

Great By Mineral Wealth.

That last year $100,000,000 in new wealth was taken from the mineral deposits of Ontario, with consequential prosperity to the entire province, including the city of Peterborough, was the Hon. Mr. McCrea's proud boast as he turned from the Department of Game and Fisheries to the Department of Mines, of which he is also Minister. "Southern Ontario, including those interests in Toronto that are building great structures of sky-scrapers, are looking to Northern Ontario, and as I see it, in another two or three years, that one hundred million will be increased to two or three hundred millions of dollars of new wealth annually," he declared. In conclusion, the speaker expressed his pleasure at coming to Peterborough and voiced his hope that he might again have the privilege of addressing Peterborough men in the near future.

Vote of Thanks.

Having come in contact with the distinguished visitor on more than one occasion, regarding his association, J. E. Patte, president of the Ontario Provincial Silver Fox Breeders' Association and a director of the Canadian Association, knew whereof he spoke in voicing the thanks of the meeting to Mr. McCrea. Corroborating all that he said, and adding his own personal word of appreciation, R. R. Hall, K.C., seconded Mr. Patte's vote of thanks. Mayor Denne, having arrived late, was then called upon to conduct the final event of the evening's program — the installation of officers, which he did in his usual jovial manner. And when President James Dutton thought that he had finally reached the close of his agenda, he was beguiled into allowing J. J. Turner a few minutes, only to be further thanked for his efficient service to the Chamber, by Mr. Turner, who spoke on behalf of the officers and members of the Chamber of Commerce in Peterborough.

Among the guests present, together with the membership of the Chamber of Commerce, were the Hon. Charles McCrea, Dr. H. H. McKay, head of the Department biologists; Thomas McIndoo, vice-president of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition; H. C. Sootheran, recently appointed manager of the Royal Bank in Peterborough; James Turnbull, secretary of the Canadian Legion; D. A. Costello, H. Thornton, J. Roberts of Grafton and Co.; F. L. Bradburn, A L. Stedham, and C. P. Borland, new manager of the Peterborough Bank of Toronto.

A RECORD YEAR.

Railway statistics are usually a reliable barometer of national prosperity, so that the returns given in the annual report of the Canadian National Railways covering the operations for last year should be received with general satisfaction.

The setting up of a new record for all time in respect to the earnings of the National system was a notable achievement.

The total operating income is given as $53,213,795, which is an increase of $13,000,000 over the figures for 1927.

The operating revenue reached the huge total of $276,631,921, the largest receipts in the history of the road, passenger, express and telegraph revenues all showing substantial increases, while it has been possible at the same time to bring about economy in operation, enabling Sir Henry Thornton to report the best year in the history of Canada's National Railways.

The whole report is full of encouraging figures, and in the evidence it gives of splendid management as well as of the remarkably prosperous condition of the country, makes fine reading for the people of Canada.

INVERLEA PARK.

The ratepayers of Peterborough are to be asked to authorize the issuing of debentures to provide $10,000 for improvements to the civic swimming beach at Inverlea Park.

The program proposed includes repairs to the beach itself, the erection of better dressing-rooms and the installation of sanitary conveniences, all much needed improvements.

The Examiner hopes that this proposal will meet with general approval.

Inverlea Park is the only local swimming beach, and it affords pleasure to hundreds of citizens every summer; despite its obvious defects, it has been one of the most popular picnic and recreation spots in the city.

The time has come to provide better facilities and to make Inverlea swimming beach worthy of a progressive community.

The proposed expenditure for this purpose will be an investment in good health and sane pleasure and recreation; it is difficult to think of any other outlay that will give more beneficial results to the citizens generally than this suggested program for the improvement of Inverlea Park.

Hundreds of families are unable to take advantage of the lakes in the district; to them Inverlea is a necessity, and the improvements indicated will greatly add to the usefulness of the park.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

The fact that Peterborough is to vote on a measure of daylight saving on May 3 gives added interest to a report published by the Merchants' Association of New York which finds that the movement is growing across the line, and that this year 25,000,000 people will be affected by the system.

Conditions in the United States are similar to those here, that is there is no daylight saving on a national basis, because rural sections, as in this country, are stoutly opposed to the summer time idea, and the Government refuses to force the plan in the face of such widespread rural hostility.

Many United States cities, however, operate on daylight saving time, and Massachusetts has a State-wide summer time system.

Even in Connecticut, where it is an offence to show other than Eastern Standard time on public clocks, thirty-three cities and towns will continue to observe the daylight saving method by local ordinance.

In connection with the local vote, it should be noticed that the period of daylight saving proposed is much shorter than in many other centres—only from June 15th until Labor Day—so that it will only slightly affect the schools.

With the system confined to ten or eleven summer weeks, its chances of receiving popular support are considered to be better than in previous campaigns of this nature.

We have opposed the return to old conditions at this point because, with Chief Newhall, we felt that this would be a backward step, and that the general safety demanded the retention of the no-left-turn regulation.

The Council has, however, decided to scrap the regulation, and if their decision is approved by the Ontario Highways Department there will be nothing for the general public to do but adjust itself to the changed conditions and to co-operate in reducing accident hazards to a minimum.

As pointed out in previous references to this question, pedestrians will be deprived of the protection accorded them under the present system, and will have to watch for cars making a left turn and thus cutting through the stream of pedestrian traffic.

At the same time motorists will have to be on the alert to guard against accidents as a result of the change in traffic movements

Certainly the change cannot be regarded as contributing to safer conditions; it remains to be seen whether it does not mean the bringing back of a situation that the installation of electric signals was intended to eliminate.

CARDINAL AND SCIENTIST.

William, Cardinal O'Connell, dean of the Roman Catholic Hierarchy in the United States, and distinctly of the Church militant, has come out with a slashing attack upon the German scientist Einstein. Declaring that he has never yet met a man "who understood in the least what Einstein is driving at," and rather giving the impression that he doesn't quite grasp it himself, he suggests that behind the Einsteinian speculation on space and time there lurks the "ghastly apparition of atheism."

Well, in launching this assault, the Cardinal has one great advantage. It is that there will be precious few with enough of understanding of what Einstein means to come forward and defend him. There is, however, one atrociously weak point in the Cardinal's armor. It is the story of how history rose in terrible judgment upon a precisely similar attitude taken by his ecclesiastical predecessors toward, let us say, Galileo.

A vast deal of ink and white paper have been used up in Church apologetics to explain away that famous incident; and one cannot read Cardinal O'Connell's language now without wondering whether history may not repeat itself.

One passage in the Cardinal's address will be sure to invite an answer. It is this:

> "Truth is always very clear when seen with a clear eye. The fact that any theory cannot be enunciated and only succeeds in befogging the mind is patent proof that it is not really truth."

Will not the Scientist reply that this is strange language to come from the Prince of a Church, many of whose doctrines and dogmas frankly rest upon faith? If truth be always clear when seen with a clear eye, how comes it that so many of the things which Cardinal O'Connell teaches and believes are put down as mysteries?

As to whether Einstein is right or wrong, or even crazy, we haven't the faintest notion; because, after having read something of his writings, plus some attempted explanations of them, we got a mental headache. But neither, we must confess, are we impressed by the Cardinal. If he could explain to us what Einstein means, and show us where he is wrong, we should applaud him. But this merely calling names—well, we wonder what Newman would say of it.—Ottawa Journal.

THE MAN WHO MURDERED RUSSIA.

"The Aftermath" is not the least penetrating or the least brilliantly written of Winston Churchill's four volumes on the war. No living chronicler wields a more trenchant pen or writes history with a wiler grasp of trenchant pen or writes history with a wider grasp of phrase. His analysis of Lenin and of the part the chief Bolshevist played in Russia's red ruin is a telling and convincing effort.

Up to the end of 1916 the Germans had resorted to many terrible measures in their effort to break the Allies. But it was not until April, 1917, that, looking designedly upon Russia, they took their most somber decision. It was with a sense of awe that they turned upon that staggering nation the most grisly of all weapons. They transported Lenin in a sealed truck like a plague bacillus from Switzerland into Russia.

Lenin, says Churchill, was to Karl Marx, what Omar was to Mahomet. He translated faith into acts. He devised the practical methods by which the Marxian theories could be applied in his own time. He invented the Communist plan of campaign. He issued the orders, he prescribed the watch words, he gave the signal, and he led the attack.

An early tragedy appears to have transformed his nature. Of good family, and son of an unimpeachable father, he adored a rebellious elder brother. This brother was involved in an assassination and was hanged. That was in 1894, when Lenin was sixteen years old. He was at the age to feel. His mind was a remarkable instrument. When its light shone it revealed the whole world, its history, its sorrows, its stupidities, its shams, and above all, its wrongs. It revealed all facts in its focus—the most unwelcome, the most inspiring—with an equal ray. The intellect was capacious, in some cases superb, and capable of universal comprehension in a degree rarely reached among men. But it was so distorted by this personal disaster that he saw everything "Red."

The mind of Lenin was used and driven by a will not less exceptional. The body tough, square, and vigorous in spite of disease was well fitted to harbor till middle age these incandescent agencies. Before they burnt it out his work was done. A thousand years will not forget the work that he wrought. He left his mark. He won his place. And in the cutting off of men and women no Asiatic conqueror, not Tamerlane, not Jenghiz Khan, can match his fame.

"A Russian statistical investigation," writes Professor Salorea, "estimates that the dictators killed 28 bishops, 1,219 priests, 6,000 professors and teachers, 9,000 doctors, 12,950 land owners, 54,000 officers, 70,000 policemen, 193,000 workmen, 260,000 soldiers, 355,000 intellectuals, and 815,000 peasants." These figures, which are endorsed by Mr. Hearnshaw of King's College, Cambridge, do not include the vast abridgements of the Russian population which followed from famine. In Mr. John Buchan's words, Lenin and his associates lost for Russia 26 per cent. of her total population, 27 per cent. of her arable land, 32 per cent. of her average crops, 26 per cent. of her railway system, 33 per cent. of her manufacturing industries, 73 per cent. of her total iron production, and 75 per cent. of her coal fields.

Lenin was animated by a spirit of implacable vengeance. His alleged purpose was to save the world; his method to blow it up. Finally he was a Grand Repudiator. He repudiated everything. He repudiated God, King, country, morals, treaties, debts, rents, interest, the laws and customs of centuries, all contracts written or implied, the whole structure of human society. In the end he repudiated himself. He repudiated the Communist system. He confessed its failure in an all-important sphere. He proclaimed the New Economic Policy, and recognised private trade. He repudiated what he had slaughtered so many for not believing.

And then the last phase! When the subtle acids he had secreted ate through the physical texture of his brain Lenin mowed the ground. "The walls of the Kremlin were not the only witnesses of a strange decay. It was reported that for several months before his death he mumbled old prayers to the deposed gods with ceaseless iteration. But this jibbering creature was no longer Lenin. He had already gone. His body lingered for a space to mock the banished soul. It is still preserved in pickle for the curiosity of the Moscow public and for the consolation of the faithful." So ended Lenin, but the Babooncry of Bolshevism continues with us to this day.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

There is work for everybody in the Old Home Week activities. Have you found your place yet?

Chicago may appoint a city manager. The first qualification likely will be that the applicant must be bullet-proof.

With three by-laws to be voted upon Friday, May 3rd, should see an unusual large turn-out of ratepayers. It is a big bill-of-fare for a mid-year vote.

A Thought

(By Velma Runnells, Campbellford.)

"THE JUNK SHOP."

The devil owns a second-hand store. It is not well kept up in the inside but the outside glitters. You are sure you are getting a real bargain on the goods you buy. It turns out to be shoddy and the worst material. The owner of the store laughs behind your back. He gathers in your hard-earned money and trips the friend beside you. Do you recognize this store? Have you ever been ruined by its outer-brilliancy? It is the Devil's Junk Shop; Sin and its follies.

How bright the lights of sin are. How dazzling and alluring is the outer window! The crowd and the winning call of self-enjoyment pushes you through the door. You are trapped. Rarely ever will one find a person coming out again with the same expression on his face as when he went in with the noisy crowd. Again did one ever see many come out without the aid of a stronger person?

I often think of the painting covered with cobwebs and dirt. It was bought for a mere trifle. The buyer thought it was worthless. However, he cleaned it up. Stepping back from the now-cleaned picture, his eyes beamed with a new joy. He found it to be the priceless work of a master.

Some of us drift into the Devil's Junk Shop. There, sin covers us with dirt. Our feet become entangled with cobwebs. In other words we are powerless. But can you not see the Cross and the Crucifixion? Here God gave His only Son. For what purpose? So He could buy us out of the junk shop, and clean us up. Then He places us on the road to true value. On the road where character shines out to show the work of a Master.

Dear readers, sin always comes in brilliancy. Beware. But if you ever happen to be led in by the crowd, try hard to get out. As some one has uniquely put it: "God took me out of the mire and placed me in the Cathedral choir."

Each one of us has a value. Don't let the Devil put it over you. When you pass this junk shop once, and then turn and pass it twice, you are growing stronger to pass it the next time.

Horoscope

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

SATURDAY, APRIL 13, 1929

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

Benefic aspects dominate today, according to astrology, which finds influences strong that favor speculation and salesmanship.

The day is fairly fortunate for those who hold the reins of any sort of power, although they may arouse envy.

Under this direction of the stars the public mind is likely to be well disposed toward men in political office. The President of the United States is subject to the best influences of the stars.

For many who are quick-tempered the thirteenth of the month may be unlucky, for there is a sign making for quarrels and dissensions that are serious.

Legislators may be unusually sensitive to the disturbing forces liberated under this configuration and they should be careful to refrain from arguments or bitter speeches.

There is a sign read as presaging many divorces as well as marriages in the coming summer.

Among the reform movements foretold by the seers will be one that seeks to educate parents regarding their responsibilities. Sensational revelations uncovering neglect through the results of the divorce courts are forecast.

Changes in leadership are predicted for the British government which will make new history that is sensational, the seers prophesy.

Secret diplomacy again is prognosticated as more prevalent than at any time since the World War. Russia will be more in the limelight than usual this spring.

Fluctuations in the stock market may be sharp, the seers prophesy, but the rising tendency will prevail.

New systems of business co-operation helpful to persons of small capital are forecast.

Women are to develop marvelously as financiers at this time, and one will make a national name as a banker, astrologers predict.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of journeys and much work in the coming year which should be prosperous.

Children born on this day probably will be fine physically as well as brilliant mentally. The subjects of this sign usually enjoy sports. They prosper marvelously and generally marry happily.

Thomas Jefferson, third President of the United States was born on this date, 1743. James Harper, 1795, founder of the publishing house of his name claimed this as his birthday.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

IN PRAISE OF SLEEP

Bright eye, clear head, and steady hand,
These do the daily task demand;
And, though the foolish laugh about them,
No man will ever win without them.
No man may wrongly live the night
And hope to live tomorrow right,
For tonight puts on fools' raiment
Tomorrow always must make payment.

Sleep long, sleep well, that you may waken
With eye undimmed and nerve unshaken.
For he who robs himself of sleep
Buys joy too dear, sells strength too cheap.
The last tonight at pleasure's altar
Tomorrow is the first to falter;
But he with strength to carry on Arose today as fresh as dawn.

Oh, he who asks the help of friends
Finds friendship is a reed that bends;
And some will look to luck for favors,
But he who leans on luck soon wavers.
Bright eye, clear head, and steady hand,
These do the daily task demand;
And he who slumbers well, my brothers,
Will have these three, and need no others.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

There was a tense silence, then Anthony said, a harsh note of pain in his voice:

"It's only cowards who run away, isn't it, General?"

"There aren't any cowards in my army," the General answered proudly; he hung round his father's chair. "When will you be ready?" he asked anxiously.

"Not till after lunch," Anthony said firmly. "I'm going to take Auntie Ana into Honiton in the car."

"Such nonsense!" Ana cried out indignantly. "I can take the bus from the Lion——"

"I shall take you in the car," Anthony said again. The General did not argue; he recognized the tone of finality in his father's voice.

"After lunch is a long way off," was all he said rather disconsolately as he dragged himself out of the room. There was an unbroken silence after he had gone. Anthony went on with his breakfast imperturbably, and Ana watched him with a fast-beating heart.

He seemed so unmoved that she was almost tempted to believe last night had been all a dream.

During the long wakeful hours she had made up her mind that she would never again be so weak, never again allow him to kiss her or to say the many wonderful things he had said last night, and yet as she sat there trying to behave naturally and to look quite unconcerned her heart was racing so that she could hardly breathe, and she knew that Anthony would only have to hold out his hand to her for all her strong resolutions to break down ignominiously.

Then presently he said:

"What time would you like to go?"

"Any time that suits you."

"In half an hour, then. I'll go and tell Mollie." He went up to his wife's room.

"Of course Ana has told you she is going away?" was her greeting.

"Yes."

"Such absurd nonsense! She's a slave to that nasty old woman. Anthony, can't you persuade her to stay?"

"I don't flatter myself that I can persuade her if you can't."

"But surely you might try?"

"If she wants to go, she must. I'm going to drive her over to Honiton this morning to see that fellow Drake. Will you come?"

"No, thank you, I hate hospitals and sick people," Mollie said with a shiver. "When are you going?"

"In half an hour."

"You'll be back to lunch?"

"Yes."

Anthony turned at the door to look at his wife.

"Why don't you get up, it's such a lovely morning," he asked impatiently.

"I'm going to get up now," Mollie answered.

He went out, shutting the door behind him.

Mollie was nearly dressed when she heard her husband bring the car to the door. She pushed the window wide open and leaned out.

"Are you going? What a lovely morning! I shall go down to the sands and find the General, I think."

"Why don't you come with us?" Ana asked. She was in the little front garden looking up at Mollie's window, and her eyes were rather anxious.

"I'm not keen on motoring after your experience yesterday," Mollie answered, laughing. "Mind Tony doesn't finish you this time." She waved to them as they drove away, then she put on her hat and went out.

But she did not go down to the sands as she had said; she turned in the other direction toward the Mahons' house. Ralph Mahon was standing at the gate when she reached it.

"I was just thinking about you," he said. He came out to meet her. "I was coming along to hear how Miss Fabian got on last night."

"And I was just coming to tell you about it," Mollie answered. "She was really very lucky! She only bruised her arm, but Mr. Drake is in hospital with a broken shoulddr and arm."

"Poor devil!"

Mahon strolled along beside her.

"Is Phillis in?" Mollie asked.

"Yes, but she had a bad night, and she is not up. Shall we go for a walk?"

Mollie hesitated.

"I was going down to the sands to the General."

"I am sure he doesn't want you," Ralph Mahon said. He smiled down at Mollie rather familiarly. "I am sure, at any rate, that he does not want you as much as I do."

Mollie turned her head away.

"I don't like compliments," she said.

"Sorry. I thought you did." There was a cool note of amusement in his voice. He looked swiftly round to see if the road was deserted, then he took her hand.

"I haven't seen you alone for an eternity," he said.

Mollie freed herself gently.

"Please don't—supposing anyone saw us?"

"There is nobody to see." He took her hand again and raised it to his lips. "You're not very kind to me, Mollie." She laughed. She cared nothing for this man, but only for what he could give her.

"You forget I have a husband," she said lightly.

"I wish I could forget it."

They went a little way in silence, then Mollie said: "Ana is going home to-day. Her nasty old aunt is ill." He looked at her quickly.

"Are you glad?"

"Yes, I've noticed that."

"What do you maen?"

"That she seems to amuse Hambledon."

"It's more than I can do, at any rate."

"I often wonder why on earth you married him," Mahon said impatiently.

Mollie bit her lip. She rather enjoyed posing as a misunderstood and not very happy wife, and yet she was conscious of a twinge of pain at this man's words. She had married Anthony Hambledon for love, and for nothing else, and yet during the past few months she had almost completely forgotten it.

Anthony was not sufficiently exciting; at times even he bored her and she had been glad to leave him to Ana. Strange how one altered, she thought, and she glanced at Mahon from beneath her long lashes.

She envied Phillis her husband because he was rich, but for no other reason. Mollie was selfish and ambitious, but like most women of her type she had no real courage. There were times when she wished she had never met Mahon; there were times when she was afraid of him. She was a woman who could not play fair in the game of life; she was never anxious to fulfil her share of a bargain. There had been nothing between her and Ralph Mahon but admiration on his side and vanity on hers.

She did not see why she should not take clothes and presents from him if he wished to give them to her. His own wife was an invalid, and Anthony—well, Anthony never objected to anything she did. Sometimes, when she thought seriously about it, it was a source of anger to Mollie that Anthony troubled so little what she did out in Rhodesia she had had one or two quite serious flirtations with men—chiefly because she had not been able to find anything better to do, but he only comment Anthony had made was:

"I can't see anything in the chap myself, but if you like him—well!"—and he had shrugged his shoulders.

Anthony was like all husbands, Mollie told herself cynically once they had got you they took everything for granted. There was no excitement, no real appreciation. In her heart she considered that she had thrown herself away on Hambledon she did not find it convenient to remember that but for her own determination they would never have married at all. She had been the hunter, not he—he had gone back to his wilds and his loneliness, content to leave her behind.

"Let's go along the cliff path," Mahon said.

Mollie hesitated this morning her thoughts were not very tranquil, and she could not understand why.

"I don't think I ought to," she said.

He stopped and looked at her impatiently.

"Why not?" he asked. "Where is Hambledon?"

"He's taken Ana to Honiton to see Mr. Drake."

"I see."

She heard the note of amusement in his voice without quite understanding its cause, and she said hurriedly:

"Very well, I'll come."

They turned to the right, through the fields, and up the path to the cliff. It was a deserted little path, just wide enough for two to walk together.

"I am going to own again on Friday," Mollie said suddenly. Mahon smiled lazily.

"Is that an invitation?" he asked.

She flushed and turned to look at him sharply.

"What do you mean?"

"Only that I hoped you meant you would like to see me there, too."

Her eyes grew indignant.

"I really don't care if I see you there or not," she said haughtily.

He laughed.

"Come, Mollie, that's not the truth and you know it. What's the matter with you this morning? You're like a little bear."

"Nothing, only——"

"You can't have it all your own way, you know," he said masterfully. "You're like all vain women—willing to take, but not willing to give."

"Let me go."

"Yes, when you've kissed me."

"I don't want to kiss you, I——"

He released her and stood back.

"I read your note last night," he said.

"Yes." Her eyes were afraid.

"You asked me to lend you some more money. What is it for this time? Clothes or gambling?"

"You put things so brutally," she almost sobbed.

He frowned.

"Very well you had better tell Hambledon and ask him to pay your debts." He walked on a step with assumed indifference, and after a moment she followed.

"Ralph!"

"Well?"

"Please don't be angry with me."

He stood still, waiting for her.

"I'm not angry, but I suppose even you will admit that this is all rather a one-sided business."

"I thought we were friends."

Mahon made no answer to that, he just looked at her, and Mollie shivered and turned her pretty eyes away to the sea which was shimmering blue in the morning sunshine, and she thought suddenly of the day Hambledon had met her at Cape Town—how happy she had been, how wonderful the world had seemed. And now, after just these few years, it had all gone, the romance and the great looking forward to her life with him they were just an ordinary married couple like all ordinary married couples, and there was nothing more wonderful about their marriage than there was about any other marriage in the world.

"Life is horrible! so disappointing," Mollie thought, and failed to see that she had only herself to blame, and her own inordinate vanity and love of admiration.

Well, if Anthony was tired of her, this man was not, she thought with a thrill of foolish pride, and she turned and smiled up at him.

"You may kiss me if you want to," she said.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY THE FULL MOON LOOKS BRIGHTER THAN IT IS

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.
(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

"Moonlight and roses" is a romantic combination. Any combination with the moon is romantic. We are proud of our moon and attribute mysterious powers to it. Our word luny and lunatic mean moon struck or otherwise affected by the power of the moon.

The full moon is a magnificent sight. It dispels the gloom of the night. Man has always feared the dark and is grateful for a release from the dread of the night. "Bright as day" we say of a clear night when the full moon is beaming down upon us.

This is an illusion. The moon is never very bright and it is certainly very far from the brightness of the day. Every schoolboy knows that the moon is a cold body and devoid of heat or light, that it shines by reflected glory from the sun. It is much nearer to us than the sun and of course infinitely smaller in size. We all know that a great exaggeration to say bright as day for moonlight at any phase of the moon. But very few realize just how much weaker moonlight is as compared with the sunlight. As a matter of fact the full moon gives less than one eighty-thousandth as much light to the earth as does the sun at noon on a bright day.

The remarkable thing, however, is that while the full moon gives only one eighty-thousandth as much light as the sun we see much better than one eighty-thousandth by full moonlight than we can by full sunlight.

The same thing is illustrated by the fact that two spoonfuls of sugar do not make a cup of tea twice as sweet but only about five-fourths as sweet. The explanation is that a sensation increases by addition while the stimulus or the things that cause the sensation increases by multiplication. In the case of taste the multiplier is about four. Hence in order to make the tea twice as sweet as one teaspoonful has made it, we must add four teaspoonfuls. In order to make it three times as sweet, we must put in sixteen, etc.

We are deceived about the brightness of a moonlight night as a result of the same law except that the sensation of sight instead of taste is involved.

Why do you do what you do? Ask Dr. Thomson. Write him care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Uncle Wiggily

UNCLE WIGGILY'S LUCKY JUMP

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

Early one evening, after an April shower had sprinkled the woods and fields around Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow with soft and gentle rain, the rabbit gentleman called to his forty sixteen little bunny boys and girls:

"Come out to the back yard, my dears, and I will watch you practise your jumping lessons."

For you know that rabbits, dogs, cats and all animals must study and practise their lessons just as do you boys and girls. Dogs, when they are puppies, must practise barking. Pussies must practise mewing and purring and how to catch things in their claws. Rabbits must learn to jump, for they are such gentle creatures that the only way they can escape, when hungry Wolves, Foxes or Bob Cats get after them, is by running fast and jumping.

So that is why Uncle Wiggily called to his bunny children to come out in the yard and practise jumping. He wanted to be sure that if ever they were chased by a Bad Chap, the little boy or girl rabbits would have a chance to get away by taking big leaps to get to a place where they might hide beneath the roots of a tree or in a briar patch.

"The ground is nice and soft, now, for jumping," said Uncle Wiggily to his little boy and girl rabbits. "The rain has made it soft. Now come, Buster and Custer, we will let you start. Show me how far you can jump."

So the two boys took turns in running half the length of the yard and then leaping far and high into the air. Buster did very well, and Custer wasn't far behind in this jumping race.

"Now let some of the girls try," said Uncle Wiggily. "Here, Jingle and Jangle, show me how far you can jump."

The girl rabbits did very well, until it came the turn of Baby Bunty. And as she was about to jump she slipped on the edge of a mud puddle that Uncle Wiggily had made, a few days before, so that Taddy, the little baby brother frog of Bully and Bawler, would have a place to play. Bunty slipped so she did not jump as far as the others.

"Oh, Bunty! That is too bad!" said Uncle Wiggily kindly. "You must watch and not try to jump in slippery places. If a Bad Chap had been chasing you now he would have caught you when you slipped. You little rabbits cannot be too careful in your jumping. Now we will try it once more."

The next time Baby Bunty, who was a little orphan rabbit living for a while with Uncle Wiggily, started her jump far enough from the edge of the mud puddle so she did not slip and she jumped quite a long way for such a little girl bunny.

"Very good! Very good, indeed, Bunty!" cried Uncle Wiggily, clapping his paws. "That's the way to jump when a Bad Chap is chasing you."

"Why don't you show us how you would jump, Daddicums, if a Bad Chap chased you?" said Jingle.

"What! Fun to have our Daddicums chased by a Bad Chap?" asked Jingle. "Oh, that would be terrible!"

"No! No!" said Bunty. "I mean it would be fun to make believe a Bad Chap was hasing Unkie Wig and then for us to see how far he could jump—I mean how ar Unkie Wig could jump."

"That's a good idea, Bunty," said Mr. Longears. "I'll do it. One who teaches should always show the pupils how to do it. Now I'll go back in the fields a little way, and come running fast into the yard. I'll give a jump and show you how to do it."

So Uncle Wiggily went to a field beyond the bungalow yard and, as he got there, all of a sudden, out from behind a bush poppe the real Bob Cat, and not a make believe one.

"Gurr!" howled the hungry Bob Cat.

"Oh, my!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "Now I must do some of my very best running and jumping! Yes, indeed!" So the bunny started and the Bob Cat started after him. Uncle Wiggily ran toward the back yard and the mud puddle. His little bunnies saw him coming.

"No wonder! The Bob Cat is after him!" cried Baby Bunty. "Oh, jump! Jump, Unkie Wig!" she shouted. So Uncle Wiggily made a lucky jump over the mud puddle where Taddy had played. Then the Bob Cat umped to get the rabbit, but his paws slipped in the soft ground. Uncle Wiggily jumped clear over the puddle, but the Bob Cat fell right down in the middle and oh, dear me! How mucky and muddy he was! Out the Bad Chap crawled, very much ashamed of himself and back to the field he crawled without getting any rabbit that day. So everything came out all right.

Work has just been started on the $65,000,000 docks at Southampton, England.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS— by John Hix

to interest everyone, such as golf and lawn bowling. Baseball, lacrosse, cricket, softball, and others are already being arranged by the field sports committee, under D. Loomis. A proposal by the entertainment committee to hold the water sports on Tuesday morning was strenuously opposed by H. B. Rye, chairman of the regatta committee. "You can't hold a regatta in the morning," he declared, intimating that it is the desire of his committee to do the affair properly, and two hours is far too little time. A meeting of the water sports committee has been called for next Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock and the decision as to the time of the regatta was left to the committee.

Advertising the Week.

R. M. Glover reported that the gathering of names, undertaken by the publicity committee, is now proceeding under its own momentum, and the committee is turning its attention to an intensive campaign to bring visitors to the city. A card will be placed in every station from Montreal westward, telling of Peterborough's Old Home Week. A folder will go out in a few days to all the old boys and girls on the list, telling the high lights of the program and inviting them to return for a visit. With it will go a double card, one half of which is to be returned to the committee at once, announcing whether or not the person is coming home. The other half will be retained, to be deposited at Old Home headquarters on the visitor's arrival. Publicity is being carried on through the newspaper, Mr. Glover reported, and in other ways.

"Any committee chairman wishing to call his committee together, or requiring publicity of any kind, need only inform any member of The Examiner editorial staff," replied Mr. Glover.

About Parades.

An extensive report was presented by the parades committee, of which E. F. Mason is chairman. It was reported that Robert Hall had been compelled by pressure of business to resign as chairman of the industrial sub-committee, and J. H. Vernor was appointed his successor.

A sub-committee from militia units has been organized to assist in the program for Saturday, Sunday, and Monday, and the local units are expected to arrange something special for Sunday and Monday.

A comic section will be included in the parade, with W. Bowman, F. Scates, H. McCauley, H. Dugan, L. Burns, and W. Keller as a nucleus.

A cup will be presented for the best automobile on parade. It is suggested that the automobile parade be held on a separate day from the big historical parade.

To Beautify Peterborough.

Dr. J. E. Middleton reported on plans to beautify Peterborough for Old Home Week, with special reference to the part the City Council may take. The Mayor gave his assurance that the unsightly pile of tins at the incinerator will be disposed of before that time, and other places needing attention will be cared for if reported to the chairman of the Board of Works.

First Aid Corps.

It was reported that two members of the Canadian Legion had offered to organize a division of the St. John's Ambulance Brigade in Peterborough to act during Old Home Week. These men are willing to practise from now on, under a medical director, and the Canadian Legion executive has indicated its interest by giving the hall free for these practices. The division, composed of qualified St. John's Ambulance men, will be on hand during parades and at entertainments to render needed help.

"It's a splendid idea," said Mayor Denne, and the offer was enthusiastically received by the committee. A letter of thanks and acceptance will be sent to Samuel Berry, the proposer of the scheme.

About Programs.

The matter of official programs was laid over until next Thursday for discussion, opinion being divided on the advisability of allowing merchants to be solicited for advertising to carry the cost of the programs. It has been suggested that the information as to the program be copyrighted, and the Mayor will investigate the Council's rights to pass a by-law restraining unauthorized persons from capitalizing the occasion at the expense of Peterborough business people.

Old Home Reminders.

Mr. Glover drew the attention of the committee to the necessity of making provision for real Old Home features in the program. "While we have built the outside of the celebration," he said, "I think possibly we may have overlooked some of the inside things."

Mr. Costello agreed, and remarked that more "old stuff" should be brought in. "I suggest that the general committee ask the various sub-committees to discuss some one thing that they could do that would be typically 'old home,'" he said. The suggestion was accepted unanimously, and the secretary was directed to communicate with the chairmen concerned.

To Obtain Speaker.

On motion, instruction was given to write the manager of the Orillia Old Home Week, J. Miller, requesting him to address a public meeting in Peterborough on the first Thursday in May. Mr. Miller gave a wonderful address at Kiwanis Club a few weeks ago, telling the successes, trials and experiences of the Orillia week.

Meeting at 8 o'clock.

It was decided that the central committee meeting, to be held every Thursday evening, should be at 8 o'clock instead of 7.30 as heretofore.

REVIVAL SERVICES LARGELY ATTENDED

Instructive Services Conducted in St. James' United Church.

The meetings in St. James United Church seem to be "growing" on the people. Every United Church and many others in the city and district have been represented night after night. Last night the church was crowded to the doors.

The meeting opened as early as seven o'clock with a prayer service in the Sunday School hall and was followed with a half-hour of song, led by Mr. Dibble. In introduction Mr. Dibble said that "most people love to sing, that they can better express themselves in song than in any other way." That music has certainly had power to reach and touch the heart has been evidenced all through these meetings. In his beautiful tenor voice, with Mr. Mustaine's sympathetic accompanying, Mr. Dibble gave many very fine selections by request. Among these he sang again Paul Rader's words to the air of the popular ballad, "Mother Macree," and to the air of an old Scotch ballad he sang "That Man o' Galilee."

The two choirs have attended in full force throughout the week and have been an indispensable factor in the great success and inspiration of the meetings.

The Rev. William Allan, of St. Paul's Presbyterian church said he was grateful that the pastor of St. James had given to the people of Peterborough the wonderful opportunity of hearing the Dibble Party sing and preach. That it had been a blessing to the city. At the close of the service of song Rev. Mr. Allan led in prayer.

Good Program.

In the announcements for the remainder of the two weeks Mr. Dibble has mapped out a very ambitious and excellent program. All three members of the party are indefatigable in their efforts to make the meetings a success.

Those who attend one meeting are constrained to come again and yet again. The very quietness and saneness of the whole atmosphere of the services attract and hold people.

Mrs. Dibble, in her earnest sweet-spirited messages, appeals to both young and old. Last night her subject was "The Lost Christ."

"Presenting the story in the light of the same happening to-day—"The Child Jesus' was not mi ssed until night came." She brought a poignant picture of the thoughtless and careless parents about us who do not realize that their children are slipping away "spiritually" until it is too late to do anything. Until the night comes—we have been so busy with other things we have not noticed—or, in other words, so long as pleasure, amusement and money hold out, we are satisfied to live our lives carelessly and thoughtlessly.

The great need of the church to-day is not more organization but more of the presence and power of Jesus. "But," she said, "the world is becoming so churchly (for every respectable man and woman wants to belong to a church), and the church so worldly—that you can scarcely tell the one from the other."

Rev. Mr. Dibble will be the preacher on Sabbath morning, and Mrs. Dibble will address a mass meeting of women at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the church.

Service at 7:30 on Sunday evening—and the usual half-hour of song.

KIWANIS SHOW IS BEST CLUB EVER OFFERED

reflected in the efficiency with which he handles the big cast. Never were principals or chorus so well trained as this year. When members of the Club recall the heartburnings on the eve of other shows, they thank their lucky stars for guiding them to Mr. Purman this year. Broad smiles wreathed their faces as they watched the final rehearsal last night.

Any one who misses this show will never forgive himself—and there's none of the applesauce in this statement that marks one of the songs in the show.

A Terrible Predicament.

The show opens with the bevy of girls in a terrible predicament—without an opening chorus. These girls don't need any song, though, because they form a perfect picture without words—and it's wonderful how they get away with it.

Scene 2 is "Listening In," with Jack Primeau, Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland and John A. McNabb in the title roles, assisted by the girls. The idea is altogether new, and the execution is perfect. The musical numbers have a novelty all their own: "If You're in Love You'll Waltz," by Miss Ernestine McManus, assisted by Miss Lenora James and Leonard Hollingsworth; "Raggedy Ann," by Mrs. George Richmond, assisted by Miss Evelyn Armstrong and Miss Frances Jennings, (if there's any dancing anywhere to beat this act we haven't seen it); "Only a Rose," by Miss Geraldine Collins; "Go Get 'Em, Caroline," by Miss Jean McKone and Miss Edith Culcheth; "Little Butterfly" dance by Miss Sophie Yeates, assisted by George Nicholls; "Sampson and Delilah by Art Blade and Al. White; and the closing chorus, "And the Words are Applesauce," by the girls.

"They're the best girls I've ever managed," is the unconditional and enthusiastic report of the producer.

Yes, Maybe?

"A Sensible Conversation" between E. V. Morphet and George Richmond is the third secene followed by a new skit, "To-day and Fifty Years from To-day," by Miss Alice Donley and Ken McCannan, with John A. McNabb doing the explaining. Mrs. George Richmond sings "Climbing the Ladder of Love," assisted by the girls, and in "The Silent Prompter," a very amusing sketch, Miss Donley, Lloyd Bath, and "Dick" Lush provide a lot of humor, assisted by Mr. McNabb. Joe Wearing and his company bring the first act to a close with "A Few Dramatic Moments."

Just for To-night.

"We are Andy Purman's Girls," is the opening chorus of the second act, and maybe "the girls" will tell why. Scene 2 is a skit entitled, "It Happens in Every Well-Regulated Home," and Miss Donley and Ken McCannan re-appear under Mr. McNabb's direction in "Taking your Girl Home."

"Jazzomania" is one of the big features of the program, featuring E. V. Morphet and the girls, with an orchestra rendering several peppy selections. In "We Moderns" Miss Barbara Miller and Orville Wainman take the stellar roles, with an auto in the background.

One of the daintiest items of the entire production, and full of life, is "Fairy Tales," sung by Mrs. E. V. Morphet and Mrs. Wilbert Freel, assisted by Miss Ruby Jackson, Mrs. Verda Gamble, Fred Ash and Jack Clayton.

"They Call it Dancing," is sung by Miss Ernestine McManus, assisted by the girls, and "Running Away from the Blues," is the finale, designed to effectively chase the blues from anything but indigo dye.

All-in-all, it's a good show. The opening chorus is the most effective Kiwanis Club has had, and the finale is far away the best seen here. Everything in between is of high order; there's a snap and a dash to the whole production that leaves no room for a dull moment.

To Miss Mary Reynolds, pianist, goes much credit for the success of the rehearsals. "I don't know what I could have done without her," Mr. Purman told the Kiwanians last night as the rehearsal broke up at midnight. "It has been a strenuous time for her, but there's a lot of satisfaction for all of us in knowing that the show is so perfect it couldn't be better."—J. R. H.

OBEY IMPULSE TO MAKE LAWN

Now Is the Time for All Good Gardeners to Come to the Aid of the City.

OBTAIN SIGNS

Now is the time to obey that gardening impulse. A little work done this week or next will save a lot of heartburning and labor later in the season, and will give better results.

And when the lawn is seeded, don't let it get destroyed by trampling. Sign the coupon, promising to do your part toward beautifying Peterborough, and bring it to The Examiner office, or send it in with a 2-cent stamp to cover return postage, and you will be given two "Please Keep Off the Lawn" signs, that should prove effective.

If everyone joins the movement, Peterborough will be really beautiful; and every new member makes it easier for all the others by creating a "lawn consciousness" among citizens. YOUR strength is needed by the movement.

WEDDING BELLS

WANNAMAKER—O'TOOLE.

The Sacred Heart Church was the scene of a pretty wedding on Monday morning, when Rev. J. J. O'Brien united in the holy bonds of matrimony Madeline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis O'Toole, of Otonabee, to Keith Wannamaker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Wannamaker, of Lakefield. To the strains of the wedding march, played by the organist, the bride entered the church supported by her father, and wearing a gown of maize crepe romaine, and carrying Ophelia roses. Her sister, Marcelle, was bridesmaid, and wore sand over rose, and carried Ophelia roses. The groom was assisted by his brother Enith. Two small cousins of the bride served in the sanctuary.

After the ceremony the bridal party motored to the home of the bride, where a sumptuous wedding dinner was served to the immediate friends of the young couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Wannamaker left on the 3.40 C.P.R. train for a short honeymoon. The bride travelled in a navy dress and grey coat and carried a pretty purse, the gift of the groom. On their return they will reside in Lakefield.

In Paris... Mme. Payot world-famous beauty specialist advises this 2-minute beauty method

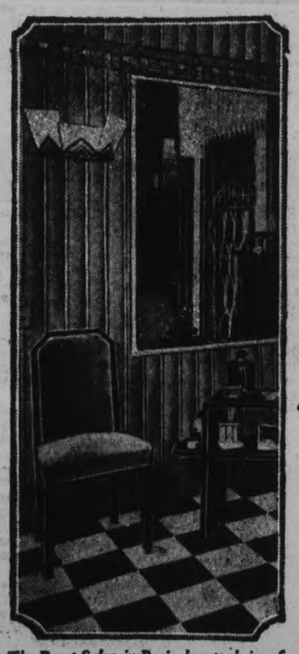
Madame Payot in her artfully decorated Paris salon, where every phase of beauty culture is carefully studied by this beauty dictator. Many of the loveliest women of the continent come to consult the eminent Madame Payot on problems of skin care.



The Payot Salon in Paris, beauty shrine of Europeans and Canadians alike, with its chaste elegance of mirrored walls and angular paneling, is an interesting example of the increasing use of modernist decoration.

"Recently I discovered a way in which the success of my work as beauty specialist could be increased. I recommend to my clients the soap of palm and olive oils which, separately, have great cosmetic value—and which, in the blending of Palmolive Soap, are doubly effective. It supplements excellently the effects of my Creme No. 1 and Lotion No. 1."

Dr. N. G. Payot
12 rue Nicholaus
Paris

FOR many years the elite of Paris have listened to the beauty advice of Mme. Payot, teacher of many beauty specialists.

Today, Mme. Payot advises the daily use of palm and olive oils in soap, in a simple 2-minute treatment, and warns against the harsh effects of the wrong kind of soap. Here is beauty news, indeed!

Mme. Payot's discovery

Madame Payot, in her appropriately modern background on the Richepause, Paris, tells of this discovery on complexion care:

"I found," she says, "that some women habitually use soaps that harm the skin, that some of my treatments in consequence seemed to have no permanent effect..

"So, I commenced to recommend to my patients the soap made of palm and olive oils—which, separately, have great cosmetic value, and which, in the Palmolive blending, are doubly efficacious in the case of blackheads, open pores, greasy skin, etc.

"The difference was immediately apparent. This home cleansing rule gives the correct foundation for the use of my Creme No. 1 and Lotion No. 1."

In the leading beauty salons of every Canadian city this very same treatment has long been recommended. Lovely Canadians travel all over the world to hear over and over again the merits of this most popular of home facial treatments. They go to Jacobson, of London; to Pessl, of Vienna; to Elise Bock, of Berlin; they visit the salon of the exquisite Lina Cavalieri, in Paris—and everywhere, everywhere they are given this same advice: wash for beauty with Palmolive Soap.

Her 2-minute treatment

Here is the famous Palmolive treatment, recommended all over the world, as Madame Payot would advise it: make a creamy lather of Palmolive Soap and warm water. With both hands massage this well into the skin two minutes, allowing it to penetrate the pores. Then rinse, first with warm water, gradually with colder. A final rinse with ice water is a refreshing astringent.

A simple treatment, yet it undoubtedly explains why Palmolive is one of the two largest selling soaps in France—known the world over as home of exquisite cosmetics. Here in Canada, and in forty-eight other countries, it is more generally used than any other soap.

A priceless formula embodying the precious oils of palm and olive, famous since the days of Cleopatra for prolonging health and beauty.

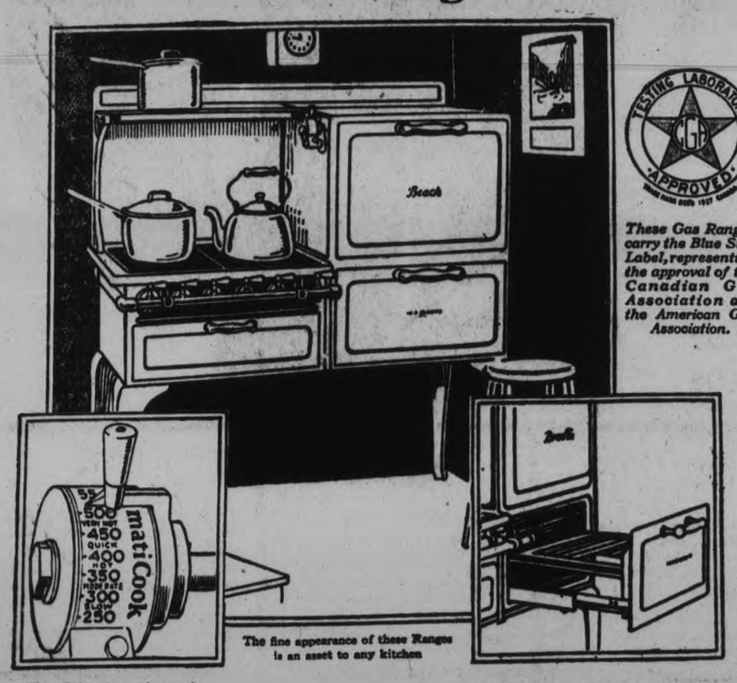
No Drudgery in Cooking with this Range!



The fine appearance of these Ranges is an asset to any kitchen

The "In-A-Drawer" Broiler, that pulls out on rollers, makes broiling foods a pleasure. No reaching into hot ovens, now!

TESTING LABORATORY APPROVED

These Gas Ranges carry the Blue Star Label, representing the approval of the Canadian Gas Association and the American Gas Association.

Beach Gas Ranges are designed to give superior service. Modern and up-to-date in every way, they combine beauty and durability with the newest time and labor saving devices.

Oven heat, accurately controlled by the Robertshaw AutomatiCook, is one of their fine features.

Mrs. M. G. Rose, of Ottawa, tells us she cooks whole meals in the oven with excellent results, and she finds soup most delicious when cooked that way.

And Mrs. Helen Otten, of Kingston, says, "The Heat Control saves me time and worry, for I can trust my range to turn out beautifully cooked food with practically no attention from myself."

Beach Gas Ranges are on display at your local dealer's. Ask to see them.

ARRANGEMENTS TAKING FORM

Campbellford Prepares To Hold Mammoth Celebration in July.

WATER CARNIVAL.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 12 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Arrangements for one glorious reunion are rapidly taking form, as was evidenced at the executive meeting hld in the council chamber last, night. Already there have been many committees formed and as many as possible are working on the details of their part in the mammoth celebration. As a result, Campbellford expects to welcome many thousands of her old boys and girls during the last four days of July and the first three in August. Numerous attractions have been arranged and the list is still in its infancy. By the time the dates arrive, Campbellford will be able to present the biggest week in its history. Special days for special places are being arranged, and one big day for the entire district. The town will be alive with color and throbbing with gay music. The canal will be brilliantly illuminated and the nightly water carnivals will be well worth seeing.

At the meeting last night, the first business was to check over the personnel of the committees and make such changes as were desired. George O'Sullivan's name was added to the publicity committee. J. J. O'Sullivan named his committee to see about the grounds and tourist camps. N. A. MacDonald, Robert Fox and W. J. Abernethy will form the personnel of that detail J. R. Smith, chairman of the finance committee named J. P. Archer, D. W. Douglas, S H. Neale and A. L. Reindeau. A. T. Linton said he would select his committee from the local branch of the Legion. Percy Morgan was added to J. N. Stone's committee for horse racing. denced at the executive meeting held brought before the executive was a letter from A. H. McKeel, tendering his resignation as chairman of the decoration committee on the grounds of ill health. P. C. Denyes was put in his place in charge of decorations.

Membership Cards for Sale

Finance for immediate needs was the first item up for discussion. J. R. Smith wanted to know where he was to get the necessary funds for such things as postage and other necessities before any revenue began to come in. Several methods were suggested, but the one to be finally adopted was the sale of membership cards in the Old Home Week Association at one dollar each. These cards will go on sale immediately and will be included with the invitations sent out of town.

Music

Major Bygott wanted to know how much money he had at his disposal for music during the week and asked for some expression from the committee as a whole, on what was wanted. G. A. Kingston suggested that he make an estimate and submit it for approval. The Major replied that such had already been done. It was expected that a jazz band would be engaged to meet all the trains, boats, etc. A Campbellford Old Boys' band was being arranged by James Mitchell. Several others were under consideration. The suggestion was also put forward that some of the Old Boys from out of town bring a band with them. This had been done in other places and it was believed possible that it would be possible for Campbellford. The suggestion will be forwarded to several cities.

Toronto Day Special

It is generally considered that Toronto gets more people from this town than any other city. With this in mind, the exeiutive are planning to have a special day for Toronto. They expect to run special trains from the city and return and to make special efforts to entertain the Toronto visitors on that day. The exact day of the week has not yet been set.

Another suggestion that met with favor was a Neighboring Towns day. Wednesday was considered the best day since it was the general half holiday throughout the district. Field sports, horse racing, ball games and several other major attractions are being planned for that day. It is expected that when a special day has been set, everyone from every town will come to Campbellford on that day. It will afford them an unusual opportunity to meet all their friends in the district in one central place.

Committees Report

J. A. Irwin, acting chairman of the water sports, reported that the committee had been sub-divided into three smaller sections and each was at work on its special feature. A. T. Linton had nothing to report as yet regarding the attractions and privileges. His work will have much to do with the midway that has been engaged for the week. J. J. O'Sullivan had nothing to report from, the grounds committee as yet. J. C. Birmingham, chairman of the dancing committee, was absent but the report that the committee had me and was working was handed in. H. N. Carr who is in charge of the parades, was out of town on business. Arrangements are being made for reception and accommodation, Mayor Davidson reported.

At ten o'clock, the committee adjourned to meet again in a week's time.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 12. — (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Mr. Purdy Petty has returned to town for a three weeks vacation after spending the past few months in Florida. After his vacation he will take a position in Detroit, Mich.

Mr. Jack Haig left this morning for Toronto where he will spend a few days before going to Iroquois Falls where he has accepted a position. The local police office is being carefully guarded since it contains one hundred and thirty-seven bottles of beer, supposedly home brew. The bottles were seized by the police here yesterday and are being held as evidence. They are packed in an old trunk and also in several cartons.

Wounded in the Arm While Cleaning Gun

HALL'S BRIDGE, April 12.—(Examiner Correspondence).— A painful accident which might have led to more serious consequences took place here on Monday. William Harris, of Hall's Bridge, set to work to clean a revolver, thinking it to be unloaded. The weapon proved to be loaded, however, and Mr. Harris put a charge through his left forearm immediately above the wrist. Fortunately the bullet missed the bones of the forearm, but severly damaged one of the nerve trunks. Dr. Edwin E. Willis was called, and he gave the necessary treatment. Mr. Harris is now recovering from the shock and it is expected that within a short time, he will have the use of the arm again.

MAIN MOTION IS CARRIED BY 24 VOTES

taking his tariff policy from Geneva rather than from his own province of Quebec. He found it strange that "a favorite son of Quebec is so unpatriotic to that province that loves him so much that he prefers Geneva to Quebec."

The Prime Minister appeared to be advocating a sort of "sit-quiet, hush-hush-hush" policy on tariff matters, Dr. Manion stated. He was afraid of provoking Washington. "Mr. Speaker, the members on this side of the House believe in taking their policies from Ottawa, Canada," Dr. Manion declared, amid Conservative applause. He was not antagonistic to the United States, the speaker asserted. He liked the United States, but he loved Canada.

Pouliot Speaks

Again, when Dr. Manion took his seat, the House expected to record its vote on the main budget motion. It was nearing six o'clock, and the members thought the vote would take place before the dinner recess. Then, J. F. Pouliot (Liberal, Temiscouata) took the floor. His speech was the signal for an outburst of interruptions from Conservative side. They were good ... tured interruptions, but at times so ociferous that Mr. Pouliot's voice could hardly be heard above the uproar. Jocular references were made repeatedly to the bomb which was placed in Premier Taschereau's office at Quebec. He was interrupted on a point of order when a member declared that the speaker had not once referred to the motion before the House. However, Mr. Pouliot persisted, carried his speech along till six o'clock and conversed after eight. Mr. Pouliot continued, and so did the interruptions and uproar. From the Liberal benches came applause when he answered Conservative sallies. Finally, he came to the end of his remarks and sat down, amid much amusement.

Members waiting for the vote, while division bells were ringing, united in singing a number of old-tme and popular songs. There was some good-natured banter, which concluded with the return of the whips and the taking of the vote. After the approval of the motion had been announced by the clerk, the House immediately resolved itself into committee of ways and means on the budget resolution.

Wedding Bells

CHAMBERLAIN—McALLISTER

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, April 3, at 3.30 p.m. at the home of the bride's parents, when Ruby May, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William McAllister, of South Monaghan, became the bride of George H. Chamberlain, elder son of Mr. and the late Mrs. Thomas Chamberlain, of Otonabee, the Rev. E. F. Swayne performing the ceremony.

The bride entered the room on the arm of her father to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march played by the bride's cousin, Miss Alvina Welch, of Toronto. The bride, who was unattended, was becomingly attired in a dress of rose beige crepe with satin shoes and hose to match and her bouquet was of pink roses, carnations and maiden hair fern. Her going away costume consisted of an apple green flat crepe dress, coat of tricotine with silver muskrat trimming with hat, shoes and stockings to match.

After the ceremony a supper was served to about twenty-five immediate relatives. The young couple will reside in Otonabee.

HEAVY GAINS ON NEW YORK LIST

CALL MONEY LOWER.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 12. (C.P.)—Definite signs of easing credit conditions, coupled with a continuance of favorable trade news, furnished the background for a broad advance in prices in to-day's stock market. Despite rather heavy week-end profit taking and sporadic bear selling of some of the speculative issues, prices of a long list of stocks were pushed up 1 to nearly 9 points, with at least a dozen moving into new high ground for the year.

Call money renewed at 9 per cent., and then dropped to 8.

Time money which has been on a flat 9 per cent. basis for about two weeks, also eased, the long maturities being offered at 8 1-2 per cent. While this is still a stiff charge to pay on speculative committments, Wall street seemed more interested in the trend than in the rate itself.

The decline of $135,000,000 in brokers' loans, bringing the total down $366,000,000 below the record high established a few weeks ago, and the increase from 81 to 81.9 per cent. in the New York Federal Reserve Bank ratio, and from 71.5 to 73.8 per cent. for the system as a whole, also helped to revive bullish confidence.

GEORGE STREET SOCIETY MEETS

Much Business Discussed at Meeting of Women's Missionary Society.

ADDRESS HEARD.

The April meeting of the W.M.S. of George Street United Church was held in the Board room of the Sunday School hall on Tuesday afternoon with a large attendance.

This being the Easter thankoffering meeting, the devotional exercises and hymns were in keeping with the occasion. Mrs. H. G. Walker, leader of Group C, was in charge of the opening exercises, which consisted of responsive Bible reading and prayer by Mrs. A. I. Brown.

The thankoffering envelopes were collected by Mrs. T. Redpath and Mrs. Armstrong, after which Mrs. J. E. Todd led in prayer for the consecration of the offering.

The report of the recording secretary, Mrs. W. H. Morton, was read and approved, and Mrs. J. Spencer, in the absence of Mrs. Dulmage, gave the treasurer's report, showing the funds of the society in a healthy condition.

A splendid and inspiring address on "Immortality" was given by Rev. David Wren, of Trinity United Church. Mrs. E. E. Harvey moved a hearty vote of thanks to the talented speaker, which was seconded by Miss Might, and unanimously approved.

The literature secretary requested that any one wishing the yearly report book leave their names and addresses with Miss Might so that the number required might be ordered.

Reports from the Associated Societies were given by Mrs. A. I. Brown for the band. She also took this opportunity to thank the W.M.S. members for the banquet they had given the band. Mrs. Knox reported for the Y.W.A. and Mrs. W. H. Morton for the Mission Circle, reminding them of the play, "Her Mother's Daughter," to be presented by the young people of Springville, in the Sunday School auditorium on Friday evening under the auspices of the Twilight Mission Circle.

Mrs. J. W. Hales, convenor of the sick and visiting committee, reported having made seventy-three calls during the month.

Arrangements were made for the mother and daughter banquet which will be held on Friday evening, May 10. The program committee reported that they had secured Miss Bamfield,a missionary from Africa, who spoke here at the recent Presbyterial held in St. James Church as the speaker for the occasion.

Mrs. J. Spencer was appointed convenor of the banquet with a head committee consisting of Mesdames J. W. Heeles, H. G. Walker Dulmage, T. Redpath, and W. H. Cunningham, and the group leaders to assist her.

Miss Daisy Davidson sang a beautiful solo, "Grateful O Lord Am I," accompanied by Miss Gwen Donley, which was much appreciated.

Mrs. G. Staples gave a report of the Oriental work, and the meeting closed with sentence prayers for the bereaved.

EVERYTHING BUT NERVE

NEW YORK, April 12.—Lawrence Green had all the requisites for a hold-up, except nerve. He had owned a revolver and ammunition for four months, but they were useless as long as he couldn't bring himself to the point of commanding 'hands up.' So he turned the "hardware" over to Patrol man Kashula, at the Tombs, and received in return a cup of coffee and sandwiches, to say nothing of an appointment with Magistrate Bu hel for violation of the Sullivan law.

FIRE DAMAGES

many gallons of gasoline was in the building, and the extreme heat caused the top of the tank to blow off. A waterline and a chemical was used by the firemen.

A chimney fire at 138 Park Street made necessary a trip by the firemen between the two big fires, at 9.46 p.m. Two chemicals were used. At 8.50 this morning overheated pipes at 360 Mark Street required the Brigade's attention.

More than 1,000,000 children are now employed in factories and shops of China, working from 12 to 16 hours a day at wages ranging from six to 20 cents a day.

Of approximately $100,000,000 in property owned by the Salvation Army $40,000,000 worth is in the United States and 10,000,000 worth in Great Britain, where the organization started.

BRITISH MOVIES ENJOY REVIVAL

24 COMPANIES.

LONDON, Eng., April 12 (By the Canadian Press).—The revival in the British film industry of recent months is described as remarkable. Last year imports of productions from the United States decreased appreciably while British productions numbered 78, indicating more activity in Britain than has been since the pre-war days.

There are in this country about 24 production companies more or less actively engaged in making pictures. In addition, one or two foreign firms are making films to fulfil their quota obligations, and a few British firms are dormant. About a dozen of the active firms came into being as a direct result of the Government's Cinematograph Films Act, which called for an increased number of home-produced pictures, and several of them have built new studios. Of the others, four—British Instructional, British International, Gainsborough, and Gaumont—were not appreciably affected by the legislation, because they were already committed fairly heavily to production, though British International, with a record last year of 22 completed pictures, has shot ar ahead of any other company.

This company seemed likely at one period to dominate the British industry. Its immediate necessity is a large circuit of theatres, which could be employed to bring its films to the notice of the smal exhibitor and the public in every part of the country.

Need Good Pict res.

Nevertheless, the greatest need of the moment is good pictures, and a good picture will always find a market. There has been much building in the West End recently, and indeed all over the country, and every new theatre requires as good a programme as it can obtain. The Gaumont group has swallowed up a large proportion of the best theatres in the country, but there is plenty of money to be taken outside these confines.

The British film revival has been remarkable. At one period in 1926 not a single film was being made in this country. Last year no fewer than 78 full-length pictures were trade shown. About 33 films were exported to the United States, and American imports into this country decreased appreciably. Not since pre-War days, when the British film held its own all over the world, has there been so much activity. Nor has business in the theatres been affected injuriously by the increased number of home-produced films. On the contrary; during the 1928 Christmas period in London all records were broken.

Since the new Films Act came into force British production in most quarters has been placed on a better business basis. The combination of production, distribution, and exhibition in one hand is evidence of a tightening of control and more careful administration. Nevertheless, much remains to be done. British producers have not learned yet how to organize helpful publicity, or to centralize resources (such as furniture properties, players, technical equipment). There is too much diffusion of effort where no competition is desirable, with the result that British pictures, for the results obtained, are too expensive.

The other great problem confronting the British producer is common to every studio throughout the world—the provision of suitable stories. The work of finding them is never completed. The amount of material to be sifted cannot be measured. The number of novels, plays, and short stories read, synopsized, and filed by a scenario department in a year runs into thousands. Every author, young and old, is appraised. Yet with all this effort it does not appear that many new authors of repute have become screen playwrights.

HORSE KICKS LITTLE CHAP

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL.

Johnny McIntosh, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McIntosh of Ford street, is in St. Joseph's hospital suffering from a scalp wound received when he was kicked by a horse last Tuesday evening.

How the boy came beneath the horse's feet is not known, and all facts pertaining to the accident are very meagre.

On Tuesday evening between six and seven o'clock in the evening as Mrs. McIntosh was working in the kitchen she heard the sound of heavy kicking in the barn where the horses are kept. Attracted by the sound Mrs. McIntosh went to the barn and opened the door to find her son, Johnny, lying unconscious beneath the heels of one of the horses. His head was bleeding from a deep gash on his head where he had been kicked. Other minor injuries from kicks were found on his hips, one arm and a wrist.

Dr. Murray Fraser was immediately called to attend the boy. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where it was learned to-day that although his scalp wound is serious, he is making favorable progress.

EIGHTEEN INJURED IN WRECK

PATHS USED BY WINDJAMMERS IS FOLLOWED BY AIRSHIPS

Trade Winds Just As Important Factor With Planes As Sailing Vessels.

TRIALS IN JUNE.

Problem Facing British Authorities Is Securing of Capable Crews.

LONDON, April 12 (By the Canadian Press).—The new British airships, the largest yet constructed in the world, are expected to make their first flying trials in May or June, and one of the problems associated with them is the recruitment of skilled crews.

Since the new mooring mast at Cardington was tested in 1926 and the R-33 returned to Pulham to be broken up, there has been no opportunity for any practical training in the air. At present there is a sufficiency of trained men from the old airships to ensure a full crew for one of the new ships for two watches of eight hours, but so far there are not enough trained men to provide three watches, which would be essential for any long flights. The new ships will require a crew of just under 40 men, and as there will be no need for both ships to be in the air at the start opportunity will be given when the first flying trials take place to give air exprience to the new men who are in process of training.

Major G. P. Scott as the officer in charge of flying and training, will not definitely command any one ship, and it is considered probable that Squadron-Leader R. S. Booth, who was the senior officer aboard the R-33 when she broke away from the Pulham mast in 1925 and Flight-Lieutenant H. C. Irwin will be the actual commanders of the 5,000,000 cubic feet capacity ships when they are both in commission. Major Scott, however, will, it is expected, take command of R-100 on her first flight, for once she leaves the shed of the Airship Guarantee Company at Howden she must be brought down to the Royal Airship Works at Cardington for her trials.

The home trials of the two ships and the requisite training of full watch crews must necessarily occupy some months, so that no date can yet be assigned to the first Empire cruise but the first Imperial flights of the State airship will be made along the route to the mooring mast at Ismailia in Egypt and then on to the similar mast at Karachi where there is also a shed for dry docking purposes. A very careful study is in progress of the meteorological conditions on the future Empire airship routes, and it is a curious instance of how modern developments revive old methods that "the roaring forties" of the old wind jammer days will now play an important part in the calculations of the future airship commanders. The winds used by the old sailing captains will become the handmaids of the controllers of the new craft, for by flying to Australia via the Cape, these westerly winds will enable a high speed to be maintained from Cape Town to Perth, and on the return journey, the old south-east trades, ignored by the steamers, will help to blow the airship home by keeping to a more northerly course. But unlike the old clippers, which were entirely dependent upon the wind, the airship when necessary, can rise superior to them by opening up all her engines to full power. Another favorable factor is that the colonization of the Empire was largely governed by the sailing ship routes, and, therefore, prevailing winds are in most cases suitable for airships on their Empire journeys.

STAMP COLLECTORS HAVE VALUED SHOW

TORONTO, Ont., April 12 (by the Canadian Press).—History, geography and pleasure are represented at the fourth annual exhibition of the Toronto Stamp Collectors' Club held at the Toronto public library. Stamps of every country under the sun are represented, from Luxembourg, Egypt and places with romantic names like Gambia, Liberia, Grenada and Leeward, in fact from every place one ever heard from. All colors, all sizes and shapes, they present a lovely spectacle.

Although philately might seem to be a man's hobby, Mrs. A. R. Clarke, whose collection of Canadian proofs and imperforates is outstanding, is perhaps the greatest collector in Canada. She is also the proud possessor of a 12-pence Canadian stamp which is worth the price of a good motorcar.

Among the exhibits by junior members only one little girl is listed, Miss Dorothy Creber. She also has chosen Canadian stamps and mounted them in a most attractive manner.

Most surprising is the fact that after all stamp collecting is of comparatively recent date. There are people living today who can remember distinctly the first postage stamp issued by Great Britain in 1840, and quite a few must remember the first Canadian stamp of 1851.

All kinds of collections are shown. Some choose only those stamps issued to commemorate events, such as those exhibited by "Emco." Others choose merely the prettiest stamps in the world, tiny engravings of scenes from every land. Another shows the first stamps issued by each country, a little lesson on the history of progress.

No mortgage other than purchase-money mortgages on property hereafter acquired by the Company or its subsidiary, The Sarnia Elevator Co., Limited, may be given by the Company or its subsidiary on any of their fixed assets, and no mortgage or pledge of the shares of The Sarnia Elevator Co., Limited, may be made and no additional stock ranking pari-passu with or prior to this Preferred Stock may be authorized except under authority of a resolution passed by 66⅔% of the votes cast at a special meeting of the holders of Preferred Shares called for the purpose.

PROPERTY AND BUSINESS OF THE COMPANY—Toronto Elevators Limited owns and operates a grain elevator at Toronto and owns or controls all the outstanding capital stock of The Sarnia Elevator Co., Limited.

The elevator at Toronto, constructed in 1928, is an electrically-operated steel and concrete structure with a storage capacity of 2,000,000 bushels. The Company operates a feed manufacturing plant at the Toronto elevator which is also equipped with special machinery to condition grain. Besides its services as a public elevator, the Toronto elevator will be used to conduct a general grain and feed merchandising business. Ontario is an important stock-feeding district and the volume of this feed business, as well as the flour-milling business, has grown substantially in recent years.

The Company's wholly-owned subsidiary (The Sarnia Elevator Co., Limited) owns and operates a newly constructed 1,000,000-bushel public transfer elevator advantageously situated on the waterfront at Sarnia. It is estimated that this unit will have handled approximately 10,000,000 bushels by the close of the current fiscal year. Existing capacity at Sarnia has proved too small to handle the business offered at that point. For this reason, 2,000,000-bushel additional storage capacity is now being installed there. The addition, when completed, will give the Sarnia Company a storage capacity of 3,000,000 bushels, and the management estimate that they will then be able to handle approximately 20,000,000 bushels per annum. It is expected that this new storage capacity will be ready in time to receive the 1929 crop.

Upon completion of the new annex, The Sarnia Elevator Co., Limited, will be indebted to the City of Sarnia in approximately $787,000 in principal amount under the agreement for sale by which the Company acquired its property and elevator from the city. This amount is payable in instalments over a period of twenty years.

EARNINGS — The certificate of the Company's Auditors (Thorne, Mulholland, Howson & McPherson) for the period ended March 30, 1929, covering 6 months' operations of the Sarnia Company and 4½ months' operations of the Toronto elevator shows consolidated net earnings available for dividends on these Preferred shares, after providing for depreciation and income taxes, of $82,278. Normal operating conditions at the Toronto elevator did not obtain until the close of this period. The management estimate that net earnings available for dividends on the above basis will be as follows:

For the fiscal period ending September 30, 1929.....$200,000.
This will represent the result of a full year's operations of the Sarnia elevator and ten months' operation of the Toronto elevator during a portion of which period normal operating conditions will not have obtained.

For the fiscal year ending September 30, 1930.....$364,000.

The annual charges on these Preferred shares will amount to.....$105,000

These Preferred Shares are offered for sale when, as and if issued and received by us, and subject to the approval of legal details by our solicitors, Messrs Blake, Lash, Anglin & Cassels, Toronto, and as to titles by Messrs. Arnoldi, Parry & Campbell.

It is expected that interim certificates will be ready for delivery on or about April 25, 1929.

One Old Boy's Success Story

Railway Rates Cut For Old Home Week

When writing to friends who are planning to visit Peterborough during Old Home Week, it would be a good idea to include these particulars about railway fares. So far, nothing has been arranged with the railroads across the border, but special rates have been obtained on all Canadian lines from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Your friends should purchase one-way, first-class tickets, fare for which must not be less than seventy-five cents, and secure a certificate to that effect, on a standard certificate form, from the railway agent at the starting point.

Your friends will then present these certificates to the secretary of the Old Home Week celebration immediately on arrival. He will complete them, and they must be validated by a special agent of the railway company. A charge of twenty-five cents will be made by this special agent.

By following this procedure, your friends will be given return transportation at half the one-way regular first-class fare.

Announcement will be made later regarding whatever arrangements are made with United States railroads. There may be special plans, of course, in case of such cities as Toronto, from which large delegations are expected. Special trains may be run, and in that case there would probably be other rates.

An Opportunity.

Inquiries are being made at once as to the possibility of securing J. Miller, manager of Orillia's Old Home Week, to address a public meeting in Peterborough on Thursday, May 2. Announcement will be made in these columns if the attempt is successful.

Mr. Miller is an outstanding speaker. His talks are full of humor and interest, and his efforts in connection with Orillia's celebration were so successful that what he has to tell will be intensely interesting to Peterborough people at this time. Those who heard him speak at Kiwanis luncheon a few weeks ago will look forward to his return with relish, and others may anticipate an interesting evening.

"Old Home Stuff."

The suggestion made at last night's meeting to arrange for more "old home stuff" will appeal to many as eminently sensible and sound. After all, it is not for the up-to-date entertainment that the old boys and girls are coming back. They can get that where they are. Just fancy an old Peterborough boy now resident in New York leaving the neighborhood of Coney Island to enjoy vaudeville and merry-go-rounds in Peterborough; or even an old boy resident in Toronto, with Sunnyside at his door!

What they are coming back for is to renew memories of old days. It will be granted by everyone that other attractions are needed; there must be amusement; but the fundamental should be "old stuff," as someone well said last night.

Suggestions will be gladly received. Two old lacrosse teams; two old cricket teams; two old baseball teams; two old rinks of lawn bowlers; opposing golfers of old days—these will be the interesting events of Old Home Week, not only to the visitors, but to a stay-at-home city "fed up" with the ordinary amusements.

Military Display

The announcement that local militia units will participate in the military displays of Old Home Week will be received with general satisfaction. Peterborough was at one time deservedly well known as the centre of a splendid militia organization, and old-timers will expect to see the old town still active in this regard. At the same time, the visit of the Toronto Scottish, an organization which took Cleveland by storm, is sufficiently outstanding to assure good attendances at all the performances on Saturday and Monday.

The militia is coming back into its own, after the post-war slump, and this visit should do much to revive memories and stimulate interest in Peterborough.

Arch Prohibited

A splendid proposal, made by someone a few weeks ago, is impossible of execution because of regulations of the department of highways. It was proposed to build an arch across the Peterborough highway, where it leaves the lake shore, with such a sign as: "The gateway to the Kawartha Lakes; Peterborough Old Home Week, June 29 to July 7." Permission has been refused by the Minister of Highways.

Arches will probably be erected in the city, however, and anyone interested in seeing what was done in this way in the old days should interview F. L. Roy, who has many excellent photographs.

An Appeal to Organizations

May an appeal be made to organizations to shoulder a share of the Old Home Week work?

Every organization of men and women in Peterborough has as one of its objects-in-being a healthy interest in the city.

This is an outstanding opportunity for them to show their worth. The Old Home Week committees are loosely knit; they are brought together hurriedly for a special purpose; their members scarcely know one another.

The established organizations can help by each doing some one thing. All the members can give their attention to that one thing for the honor of the particular association to which they belong.

It's worth while thinking about. If acted upon, the idea will do more to put Old Home Week over the top than any other single idea.

United effort counts.

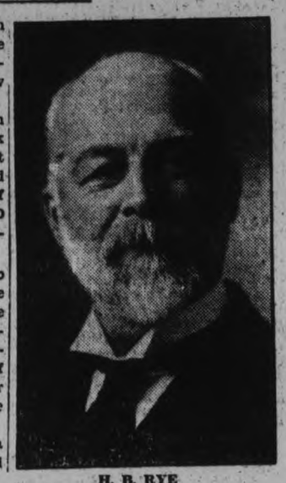
ORGANIZING WATER SPORTS

H. B. Rye seems to have right on his side when he requests that the water sports committee be left to organize the water sports. Somehow that seems sensible.

His ambition to give Peterborough a real regatta during Old Home Week will meet with general approval. It is many years since the city has had one. In fact, it almost seems as if a regatta would be one of the OLD features asked at last night's meeting.

No one is more fitted for the job he has on hand, than Mr. Rye. He knows water sports; he knows the people interested in water competitions; and he has the organizing ability to put across a real regatta. If he remembers to include events for the old boys and girls, he will have met all the requirements . . .

And we suggest he should have a free hand to choose time, place, and events.



H. B. RYE

Meetings

Dance Committee, Monday, City Hall, 7.30.

Publicity Committee, Tuesday, City Hall, 5 o'clock.

Water Sports Committee, Wednesday, City Hall, 8 o'clock.

Central Committee, Thursday, City Hall, 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Frank R. Martin, 362 Charlton Ave., West, Hamilton, Ontario, sends greetings. Writes that she lived with late Chief of Police Roszel and his wife, for some time. She wishes to meet officers of the L. O. B. A., or L. O. L., if at all possible and will motor to Peterborough.

Many friends of Rev. W. L. Armitage will be glad to know that he will be one of those to come to the Old Home Town. He has prospered and gained preferment in the west being Rector and Canon Residentary St. John's Cathedral, Saskatoon, Sask. Claims Saskatoon to be the "Hub" of the West, and worthy of the preferment.

Says the latest Publicity Committee effort: "We want YOU with us for the biggest event since Peter Robinson landed on Scott's Plains to lay the foundations of Peterborough. Come on back!"

A good thing to remember,
And a better thing to do,
Is work with the construction gang,
Not with the wrecking crew.

The Old Home Week committee has arranged with The Examiner to give a half price subscription rate to old boys and girls for two months, that they may be kept in touch with preparations. It is only 50 cents.

No one will quarrel with the plan of the dance committee to have community dancing from 10.30 until 1. If the old-timers stop then, we will be surprised!

No chairman should miss Thursday's meeting of the central committee. Every meeting from now on will bring its important decisions to be made.

The dance committee will meet on Monday evening at 7.30; the publicity committee on Tuesday, at 5 o'clock; the water sports committee on Wednesday at 8 o'clock, and the central committee on Thursday at 8 o'clock.

Don't forget that Peterborough should be really beautiful for Old Home Week, and that now is the time to start work on lawns of gardens.

Suggestion was made last night that old time concerts might be arranged for Old Home Week. That's the kind of thing that will make it a real OLD HOME Week.

Unofficially, it is said that one church organization of women, at least, has determined to serve meals during Old Home Week. Good work!

Another good idea: Put up signposts at various places, such as: This is where old Trinity Church stood.

Any notices in regard to Old Home Week will be gladly inserted in this section of the paper free of charge.

It has been suggested that displays of old time pictures be made in various store windows. What do you think?

And now, how about your lawn? Have you joined the crusade yet?

Every man is in SOME organization. Is yours planning to help Old Home Week?

The addition of the comic section to the parade will keep some people we know out of mischief for a few evenings, anyhow.

We wonder whether every old boy and girl is on the invitation list. Are you sure?

Texas' Sackville Is Elected Mayor

Mayor of his town, president of the school board, and the town's most prominent merchant, is the present success of H. A. Sackville, Dilley, Texas, who attended school in Peterborough.

The boys with whom he went to school here will recall Mr. Sackville by his nickname, "Texas." Starting at the Third Line school in Smith, under James Middleton, he progressed to public school in Peterborough, under William Smith, and then to Collegiate Institute under Messrs. Fessenden, O'Brien, Fife and Kenner. He graduated in business training from the William Pringle Business College, and says the splendid training he received in Peterborough started him on the road to success.

Elected Mayor

In the Dilley Herald of April 5 is the story of Mr. Sackville's latest success, a week ago last Tuesday, when he was elected to the mayoralty. Says the Herald: "Mayor Sackville is one of Dilley's substantial business men, who has always taken active interest in projects for betterment of our city, and is well acquainted with city affairs, having served for several years as alderman."

"As president of the school board, Mr. Sackville has had the pleasure this year of bringing to completion a modern new school, financed on a bond issue of $60,000, and to-day he officiates at the official opening and dedication exercises. The Dilley Herald says of this success that "it speaks in the highest terms for the business judgment, close attention to details, and foresight of the present school board. The fact that the school board has ever worked in complete harmony has had much to do with not only the details of the building program, but with all school matters."

Coming Home

That Mr. Sackville announces his intention to return for Old Home Week will gratify many Peterborough citizens. Home town people are always pleased to note the successes of their former neighbors who have moved to new pastures, and Mr. Sackville's is outstanding.

From Manitoba

John Elmhirst writes from Castle Point, Manitoba, sending in a list of sixteen former residents of Peterborough city and county. Eight of these are located near Carberry, Man., with others at Brookdale and nearby.

Mr. Elmhurst, whose wife was formerly Lorretta Nelson, of Apsley, left here 37 years ago. His father was Warden of the county of Peterborough for two sessions, in the long ago. He was also Reeve of Burleigh and Anstruther townships for fifteen years.

After 36 Years

J. Everett White, who left here in 1893, resided at R. R. 3, North Monaghan. He is now a salesman in the grocery and biscuit business.

"Glad to Accept"

Recollections Sublime—and"

"Some of my recollections of Peterborough are sublime; others not so good; but as my name is George (although not Washington) I cannot tell a lie, and therefore refuse to answer this question in its entirety." Is the reply of George Dunsford, 3a Havelock street, Toronto, to the embarrassing request to compare his present home with Peterborough.

Mr. Dunsford, who lived at 748 Water street, married Martha Kirn.

From Windsor

Harry Rush, secretary-treasurer of the Prince Edward Hotel Company, Windsor, Ont., left here in 1905. His mother and his sister still reside at 182 McDonnel street

From St. Catharines

Mr. and Mrs G. Putland, 73 St. Paul Crescent, St. Catharines, Ont., left here in 1926, and expect to come back for a visit during Old Home Week. "Peterborough is a very nice place to live," remarks Mr. Putland.

From Illinois

Mrs. James Livingstone, R. R. 2, Dundee, Illinois, was born in the old Dixon home, Peterborough, and left here in 1870. A brother, William C. Barrie, resides at 523 Chamberlain street. Mrs. Livingston's maiden name was Mary Jane Barrie. She is looking forward to a trip home for Old Home Week.

ROOT CROPS RESPOND TO PROPER FEEDING

Root crops play an important part in Ontario agriculture, with something over 300 000 acres devoted annually to the production of potatoes, mangels, turnips and sugar beets. While potatoes and sugar beets are in the nature of special cash crops, mangels and turnips find a place in the rotation on the majority of general farms in this province. In growing either mangels or turnips, it is surprising the difference that a sufficient supply of plant food in the soil will make.

In 1928 a number of demonstrations were carried out in different parts of Ontario with mangels and turnips. Some of the plants were given a complete fertilizer (generally 200 pounds of nitrate of soda, 300 pounds of super-phosphate, and 100 pounds of muriate of potash), other pots had the phosphate and potash, but no nitrate, while a third plot got no fertilizer at all. On the farm of Clarence Dennis, Brampton, the use of the complete mixture showed a yield of 39 tons of mangels to the acre; without nitrate 32 tons, and with no fertilizer, 28 tons. On the farm of H. C. Mason at Mount Brydges in Middlesex County, mangels which received the complete mixture yielded 1569 bushels per acre; with no nitrate 1341 bushels and with no fertilizer at all 1253 bushels. Use of nitrate alone, drilled in at time of planting, gave a yield of 828 bushels of turnips per acre on the farm of Archie Taylor, at Grand Valley, while the unfertilized section yielded only 568 bushels.

"I used 100 pounds of nitrate of soda on two-thirds of an acre of mangels," states D. Z. Gibson of Caledonia, president of the Dual-Purpose Shorthorn Club of Canada," and was well pleased with the results, although I did not do any measuring or weighing, but just observed the improvement where applied. I sprinkled the nitrate around the young mangels on the surface just after thinning. I put it on after thinning so that the mangels alone would get the benefit, and not the weeds that always sprout up with the young mangels."

DETROIT, Mich., April 12 (Canadian Press). — Two four-storey brick warehouse buildings near the river front in Detroit's business district were demolished late this afternoon by an explosion. FARMERS ARE DEMANDING BETTER SEED THIS SPRING

Supply of High Quality Grain Is Feared To Be Insufficient.

32 PER CENT. REJECTED.

Provincial and Federal Governments Are Endeavoring to Raise Standard.

That the farmers of Peterborough county are demanding better seed for sowing this spring, but that it is very doubtful if the supply of high quality seed, from present indications, will be sufficient to supply these increased demands was the statement of J. B. Nelson, district Agricultural Representative, in an interview with The Examiner to-day.

In discussing the seed situation as it is presenting itself now, Mr. Nelson said that the demand for registered seed in the county is far in excess of the supply now in the district. "But," continued he, "the supply of coarse seeds such as oats, barley and wheat is fair and the varieties of these grains as grown here has shown a great improvement. We are beginning now to find out just how small is the quantity of registered seed grown in the county and it is this failure on the part of the local farmers to grow their own high quality grain that is causing the present scarcity."

It was said that there was only one man growing registered oats in the whole county, and it was pointed out how quickly his supply was bought up. Further Mr. Nelson stated that the seed grown here had difficulty in reaching requirements for two reasons; the great prevalence of weeds on nearly all the farms in the district, last fall being a particularly poor season for harvesting good, high quality seed.

32 Percent Rejected.

It was pointed out that in the Ontario Seed Drill Survey conducted in 1928 that particular attention was given to the matter of weed seed content. Of the samples taken, 32 per cent were found to be rejected on account of weed seeds and therefore considered unfit to be classed as seed for seeding purposes in Canada, and 4 percent were found to be rejected on account of low germination. The remainder were divided among three grades, viz., 1, 2 and 3, with slightly more in grade 3 than either of grades Nos. 1 or 2.

Mr. Nelson spoke of the great campaign now being waged by the Provincial and Federal governments to raise the standard of seeds in the face of these conditions. That the farmers in Peterborough county are aiding in raising the standard of seed was clearly indicated said Mr. Nelson in the great desire, as being shown now, to secure the best seed available.

Too, an increasing number of farmers are taking advantage of the free seed analysis as conducted by the Department of Agriculture in their laboratories in Ottawa. Under this plan farmers can send threesamples the seed to Ottawa and have it fully tested and graded free of charge by the department.

New Grading Regulations.

Another thing that Mr. Nelson said would work out to the benefit of the farmers in this community was the new grading regulations which has done away with much of the confusion that existed previously. The old grades were: registered, Extra No. 1, No. 1, No. 2, No. 3 and rejected. In the old way a farmer buying No. 1 seed would naturally think that he was getting real good seed when in truth he was getting only the third grade.

Under the new system of grading this is all cleared up. The names of the new grades are: registered 1, registered 2, registered 3, No. 1. No. 2, No. 3, and rejected.

In aiding the farmer in selecting quality seeds certain amendments have been made in the Seeds Act. These deal particularly with the fine seeds such as alfalfa and clover. In these varieties the seed situation is the most serious and nearly amounts to a famine. The amount of home grown seed is very small and is nearly negligible. Necessarily, a large amount of imported seed must be called into use.

Change in Coloring.

According to the new regulations all such imported seeds must be coloured as a protection to the buyer. Red clover will be coloured blue if coming from the United States and green for other countries, which grow seed considered suitable to growth in Canada. and coloured red when coming from the countries which do not supply clover of the quality desired for seed in Canada. Alfalfa seed must be coloured red except when it has been grown in special states neighbouring on Canada, which are considered extra good for growth here, and will be coloured blue.

In summing up the results of the 1928 Seed Drill Survey, W. J. Lennox, District Seed Inspector of the Department of Agriculture states, "This information indicates clearly that if the producers are to control as far as possible, the spread of weeds through seeds sown, it is essential that strict attention be paid to the selection of seed oats, barley, wheat, etc., as well as clovers and grasses. It is a recognized fact that any machinery made and used at this time cannot be depended upon to remove weed seeds entirely from a quantity of any particular kind of seed. Cleaning machinery is a great aid in separating good seed from shrunken, light and damaged seed and weed seeds, but pure seed is grown pure, not manufactured. In the cleaning of seed badly contaminated with weed seeds the loss in many cases is appalling.

"There are yet," continues the report, "Some clean farms in Ontario and it is considered that it is the result of thorough cultivation of the soil, sowing good seed and careful harvesting and storing, also in most cases, if not in all, pulling weeds by hand. Weeds are distributed over this Province to such an extent that at least a few of the most injurious may be found in any given locality. This being the case it is quite probable that one or more vital seeds may be carried by birds, machinery or some other means to a clean farm where it germinates and produces a healthy plant. This weed, if allowed to spread, will soon become prevalent. In such a case a roguing by hand will prevent the spread and maintain on that farm the condition of freedom from that particular weed, which condition a farmer will admit is one of satisfaction and pride to him, as well as one of untold valtie. It is claimed by many that the seed produced in Ontario in this day is more contaminated with weed seeds than previously, and that if this condition does not improve we cannot hope to maintain the high position which we have held for years in the markets of the world. Seed merchants and growers in most, if not all countries, are raising the standard of purity for seed considered fit for seeding purposes.

The facts of the case may be summed up as follows—

"From the methods employed in taking the 1928 samples, it may be assumed that the summary of results of analysis indicates the quality of the seed which is being sown in the Province of Ontario, viz., that 32 per cent. of the quantities sampled contain sufficient weed seeds to designate the seed rejected or unfit for seeding purposes as defined by the Seeds Act. As grade No. 3 in the case was in reality the fifth grade and permitted a total of 100 weed seeds per pound in oats, barley, etc., and a total of 500 weed seeds per ounce in fed clover, alsike, alfalfa, sweet clover, etc., the condition is a serious one for the producer.

"As good seed is recognized as one of the most important factors in securing high crop yields which lower costs of production because it costs relatively little more to produce an acre of good seed than an acre of poor, the matter is of great importance to the grower who intends to use the crop as feed, as the one who sells on the market.

"As the markets of the world demand a reasonably pure seed now and are raising the standard, it is essential that producers realize the value of clean seed and that those who sow seed from the crop produced on the farm select only the best of the crop for seed and have it cleaned well and graded properly, and those who purchase secure only the best procurable for the purpose intended, and in each case proved suitable by analysis for purity and test for vitality.

Intended for Feed.

"In the Province of Ontario a large proportion of the crop produced is intended as feed for livestock and consequently the seed is mixed (barley and oats), (barley, oats and spring wheat), (barley, oats and peas), etc. No doubt this crop is beneficial to the feeders of livestock, particularly when the mixture is that recommended by experiment stations as suitable in securing high yields of quality feed. Nevertheless, it must be accepted that this product has a feed value only. From the survey it may be noted that many quantities are found to mixtures, that is, for instance, oats containing more than 300 seeds of barley per pound. In such cases there was not any indication that the seeds had been mixed to sow to produce a crop of feed, but on the other hand it was evident that the oats had become mixed with the barley as a result of carelessness in handling of the crop. Such a crop can be marketed only at the value of feed, or in any case below the value of pure oat crop."

JUST A WEE DRAP.

Washington, D. C., April 11—A full glass of whisky is made up of only so many drops, and it's these few drops that are causing trouble in government liquor warehouses. Emptied casks always have a few drops left in the bottom, and officials, in an effort to stop this little leak, have issued orders that all casks shall either be subjected to live steam pressure for 15 minutes or soaked in a boiling solution of washing soda for 24 hours.

SOCIETY HOLDS MONTHLY SOCIAL

Entertaining Program Provided By Members of Havelock Church Society.

HEAR MISSION ADDRESS.

HAVELOCK, April 12.—(Examiner Correspondence).—One of the most enjoyable evenings ever held in Knox Church took place on Monday, the occasion being the monthly social of the Christian Endeavor Society. The president, H. F. McNichol, presided. Owing to the lengthy program, Rev. J. Lennox spoke only briefly on his experiences in mission work in London, England, promising to deal further with the subject at some future meeting. Rev. Mr. Lennox's remarks, although brief, were of a very interesting nature.

Musical numbers on the program consisting of a piano and violin duet by Mrs. H. F. McNichol and Harry Anderson, a piano and guitar duet by F. McLaughlin and A. E. Wilson and selections by the orchestra composed of F. McLaughlin, piano; H. Anderson and F. McKenzie, violins; and E. A. Wilson, guitar, were enthusiastically received. Pleasing vocal solos were also given by Mrs. C. Jamieson and Miss Verva Rorke accompanied at the piano by Mrs. McNichol.

Miss Allie McNichol won the prize in a kitchen shower contest, the consolation award going to Fred McKenzie.

After the service of refreshments the evening's entertainment was brought to a close with a vocal duet by Mrs. C. Jamieson and Rev. J. Lennox, accompanied by the orchestra. The proceeds amounted to $10.

WEDDING SHOWER.

BENSFORT, April 12.—A large number of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William McAllister recently to present their daughter, Ruby, with a miscellaneous shower in honor of her approaching marriage to George Chamberlain, of Otonabee.

A short program of instrumental music, readings and speeches was enjoyed after which an address was read by Miss Viola Nurse, to which the bride-to-be suitably replied. Following the program lunch, was served and a social hour enjoyed.

A NEW SPORT.

Kabul, Afghanistan, April 11.—This land of tribal chieftains and the ready use of daggers, has been introduced to a new sport. It is elephant racing. The uncertain temper of the robed gentlemen lends an added thrill to the job of bookmakers who handle wagers on the lumbering runners and keep their eyes peeled for possible knife thrusts.

GERMANS HOLD FAST TO OFFER MADE EXPERTS

Long Session of Allied Representatives Fails to Yield Results.

BALFOUR NOTE SCRAPPED.

Smaller Creditors Are Demanding That Larger Ones Make the Sacrifices.

PARIS, April 12 (C.P.).—While the Germans are holding fast to their positions since the latest offer made Tuesday, the reparations experts of the creditor nations are now trying to persuade one another to make the necessary concessions in an effort to meet the Germans half way.

A long session of the Allied representatives Monday appeared to have yielded no positive results and the experts went into conference again to-day on the question of who was to scale down claims to make an agreement possible.

Balfour Note Scrapped

The British are understood to have scrapped the Balfour note by which they stated that they would take no more of German reparations than the amount needed to cover their war debts, and to be now demanding their full share of reparations under the Spa percentages agreed upon immediately after the close of the war. At the same time they are said to have included the proviso that they are willing to abandon part of the sums paid on their debt over and above the amounts received from Germany with the understanding that it benefits Germany alone and not be applied to reduction of the war debts owed them by the other Allied powers.

The smaller creditors are understood to have taken the position that the principal creditors ought to make the necessary sacrifice to satisfy the Germans. Both Italy and Belgium take the position that their demands cannot be scaled down. The French attitude is that they already have abandoned half their claim to reparations for the reconstruction of devastated regions and pension which total $6,000,000,000, and that until the other creditors make an equal sacrifice, they are unable to go further.

Concessions from States

The British attitude is interpreted here as bearing indirectly on the war debts to the United States. The insistence on full payments of what is owed them by the Allies irrespective of what amount Britain receives from Germany on reparations is taken to mean that any concessions to her Allies depend on concession from the United States.

The experts of the creditor nations were in session this afternoon and it was probable that they would confer with Owen D. Young, the chairman, later. It was hoped that from these two conversations some advance might be made to meet the German offer.

MARION'S MAIL

"Dear Marion:

"I have been very interested and also amused at the discussion of the hours young girls should keep. Would the neighbors like to hear from a young girl expressing her opinion? I have stayed at home helping with the work since I quit schoo. What hours should I keep?

"I think that Sportswoman's letter was just fine. I am very proud to say that I have a mother who must be a lot like Sportswoman. I have a lot of friends who come to my home. Mother uses all my friends just lovely. She is the best pal any girl could have. The young people are not all going to the bad. Why do not the mothers encourage the daughter's confidence and why can't the daughter tell mother everything? When I come home from dances, parties, shows, etc., I tell mother who I danced with and all about it. She is always interested and always likes to hear it all and I would tell her more than my best girl friend. I know most mothers would do anything for their daughters if they only go about it in the right way.

"Well, Marion, I think that I have said enough, if not too much. Some girls will say that this is applesauce, but I don't mind criticism.

"Where is Whoopee? I enjoyed her letters. I hope the Girls' Column is soon started. Your page is wonderful, Marion, and I wouldn't miss it for anything. Wishing it continued success.

"Sincerely, CORINNE."

Thank you for your letter, "Corinne." We are certainly pleased to hear your opinion.

"Dear Marion:

"Here I am back again for another chat so soon. I forgot to send the clipping I had for Marleigh.

"What wonderful letters the neighbors are sending every day! And such a lot of valuable information on everything. But haven't they overdone the bridge question? Just as the answers to 'Thinker' were carried on too long last winter. Neither subjects were very enlightening like your Whatnots are for instance, or those splendid letters from 'Quid Est,' 'Adastia,' 'Quo Vadis,' and oh, so many others. 'High Flyer' is a cure for the blues. If she could only give us a little more of her time from Joe and Sonny Boy. I would enjoy being a Highflyer the odd time, if I had some competent person to look after our six babies. But although we are far from ancient, hubby and I have not been to a show or dance in five years. But we can enjoy our friends at home and enjoy a game of bridge or five hundred, etc., when babies are safe in bed. And speaking of children, let us hear from you neighbors on how you arrange your housework to keep ahead or even up with all the demands on your time. I feel so discouraged sometimes, if we could only have some of the conveniences you city neighbors enjoy it would be a great help. Well, I have stayed too long again.

"Sincerely, DORY."

I certainly hope the neighbors come through with the information you seek, "Dory."

LINGERIE ENSEMBLE

THE STYLE No. 2619, a new lingerie ensemble consisting of tailored shorts and fitted bandeau, is quite the smartest idea for sports and all around occasions. The shorts can be made fitted with tucks to shaped yoke buttoned at center-front, or as sketched in lower view, gathered to yok pointed at center-front which closes at side. Candy stripe washable radium silk with hip yoke, applied leg bands, and binding for bandeau cut on the bias of fabric is extremely smart. A nile green crepe de chine can be treated in same manner with contrast of yellow crepe. Georgette crepe, ninon, crepe satin and voile also appropriate.

THE PATTERN in Picture Chart is most amusing for every detail is shown as to construction which simplifies the making for even the experienced sewer. It is designed in sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust, and offered at cost price 15 cents as a service to readers who sew.

NEW FASHION BOOK containing all the Spring styles is 15 cents, but may be obtained for 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

Some people seem to be rather proud of the fact that they have few friends. "I think that we are none of us big enough for more than one or two deep friendships in our lives," said a young English novelist writing about friendship recently. And that, I think, is the attitude of a good many people.

My own opinion is that most of us need to have more friends than that—six or seven or eight—perhaps a dozen real friends are not too many. The trouble with having just one or two friends in a lifetime is that one is likely to be too exacting, demanding too much and possibly giving too much as well. If you have severa. friends then the passing thouhtlessness of one, or the moodiness of another does not assume exaggerated proportions.

There is nothing that helps so in maintaining a generally happy disposition as the faculty for making friends where you find them—not mere acquaintances but real friends. After a woman is married and has children it is often true that she looses track of some of her old friends, but unless she renews these old friendships or manages to make new ones she is bound to miss something very helpful in her life.

It has been often said that there are no friends like old friends. True, no friendship formed in later life can be precisely like the friendship that begins in childhood. But :ome of the finest friendships I know of are the sort formed in maturer years.

Some women imagine that the woman who is a true companion and friend of her husband—the woman who forms real friendships with men—does not need or easily form friendships with women. But if you will think over the women of your acquaintance who have the finer sort of friendships with the men of their acquaintance you will, I think, notice also that they make strong friendships with women.

Caught Napping

By CORONA REMINGTON

"I've had a wonderful time, Mrs. Denton, and I hope I may call again soon," said Robert Foulaine sincerely.

"You're a dear boy," smiled his hostess, "and I'm very fond of you. Of course you may come again and as often as you wish."

"It's great to have you to confide in, and I don't know how I'd ever get along without you."

"You'll learn how pretty soon after you find the right girl. You'll forget all about that middle-aged friend you used to run to with your troubles," laughed Mrs. Denton.

"But I never expect to find the right girl and you know I shall never forget you as long as I live."

"Pooh! I've heard that a thousand times before and from as many discouraged young people; but don't you worry, she's probably waiting for you right around the corner this minute."

"Well, we'll soon see—as it's now—" (he drew out his watch and glanced at it) "ten minutes of eleven there isn't much time left."

Foulaine went down the broad steps rapidly and jumped into his car. In a moment he was whizzing along the boulevard toward home. His talk with Mrs. Denton encouraged him as it always did, and he felt decidedly optimistic as he slipped into his garage and turned the engine off.

"Oh, where am I?"

He looked quickly about the garage as he heard the frightened voice of a girl.

"You're all right," he assured her. "Where are you? Wait till I get my flash—thought it was in my hip pocket—no, here it is.

"What! Not in the car?" Foulaine exclaimed as he saw a terrified young face looking out at him from the back seat of the car he had just left.

"How on earth did you get in there?" he asked, his eyes growing big with admiration as he took in the details of the girl's appealing little face.

"I—I must have fallen asleep."

"Something tells me you did," he laughed, "but how did you get in the car in the first place? By mistake, I suppose."

"No, it wasn't a mistake, either; but I'm ashamed to tell you. It'll seem so crazy to you."

"Nothing you could ever do would seem crazy to me," he told her as if he had known her a lifetime.

"Just after dinner this evening I was up in my room and I saw a—an acquaintance of ours coming up the walk. I knew he had come to call on me, and I knew, too, that mamma would make me see him, and I didn't want to. I made up my mind last time that I—I'd never see him again. So, without even stopping to get a hat or a wrap, I slipped down the back stairs and out the kitchen door. I had no idea where I was going, but realized that without money I couldn't get very far, so I spied your car standing next door and jumped into it. It seemed providential to me, and I felt so thrilly as I sneaked in and shut the door," the girl laughed.

"A very sensible thing to do," he assured her.

"What time is it?" she asked abruptly.

"Twenty minutes of twelve. You must let me take you home. It's five miles from here to Grant Place."

As they drove slowly along the boulevard Robert talked to her as if he had known her always.

"I'm scared to tell you how much meeting you has meant to me," he said solemnly.

"And to me, too," she answered simply. "You—you're so sympathetic and you understand."

"And I'm going to bring the car here every night in the hope that fellow'll come and you'll run out and hide in it again. Or, maybe, now that you've found out that I'm a friend of Mrs. Denton's, you'd let me call sometimes and then when he wanted to come you could tell him you ha.! another engagement."

"All right," she smiled, "and thank you ever so much—you've been too good to me."

"Not half as good as you've been to me."

He escorted her to her door, then stood there absently a few seconds after she had slipped noiselessly into the hall.

He looked up at Mrs. Denton's house, large and somber in the half light of the night, then tiptoed around the sidewalk and threw a pebble against her window. The girl next door heard the funny "pinking" sound and went to her window to see what it could be. She recognized the man standing below and waited breathlessly. He threw another pebble.

"What on earth is he doing that for?" she wondered.

A second later he threw one which was followed by the light flashing in Mrs. Denton's room, and in another moment a plump silhouette advanced toward the window.

"Who is it?" she asked, peering down into the darkness.

"It's Robert," said an exultant voice, "and I've found her! I've found the girl for me!"

"You crazy boy. I told you you would. Now go to bed and tell me about it in the morning."

"So he feels that way, too," she kept saying unbelievingly as she finally dozed off to sleep.

TWO-YEAR-OLDS IN SCHOOL SOON

By NEA Service.

CLEVELAND, April 12.—In the near future, your two-year-old son or daughter will give you an airy wave of the hand, and trot off happily to school. That's the prediction of Josephine MacLatchey, member of the bureau of educational research, Ohio State University.

The present age for the beginning of a child's education, Miss MacLatchey points out, is when it reaches the age of 5. There is no reason, she believes, why a nursery school can't be established to take care of a child's education between the ages of 2 and 5.

"Between birth and the age of 2 a child learns to walk and talk," Miss MacLatchey says. "Most people do not realize what a remarkable feat the child has accomplished during those years.

"Proper training for the child between 2 and 5 will work wonders, many educators now believe."

FAVORITE RECIPE.

YELLOW LOAF CAKE.

(Contributed by "Garry Ann")

One-quarter cupful milk; quarter cupful water; ½ cupful butter; 1 cupful sugar; 1 teaspoon flavoring; 1 egg; 3 egg yolks; 2 teaspoonfuls of baking powder; salt; 1¾ cupfuls of flour.

Beat the butter to a cream, gradually add the sugar together with the flavoring and the egg and egg yolks well beaten together. When creamy, add a little of the flour which has been sifted with the baking powder. Then add a little of the milk and water mixed. Continue in this way until all is used, beating well. Transfer into greased pan; a tube pan is preferable. Bake 45 minutes in moderate oven.

ORANGE FRITTERS.

Half cup milk; ½ cup flour; 1-3 teaspoon salt; 1 teaspoon of baking powder; 1 teaspoon sugar; 1 teaspoon butter melted; 1 large orange, seeded; powdered sugar.

Add the dry ingredients sifted together to the milk and then add the butter. Divide the orange, heat fat, dip the sections of orange one at a time in the batter and slip them into the fat and cook until a golden brown. Drain on crumpled paper, dust with powdered sugar and serve with chicken or game with fruit sauce as dessert.

CHOCOLATE LAYER CAKE.

(Contributed by "Flossie")

One-third cup shortening; 1 cup sugar; 1 egg; 1 cup milk; 1¾ cups flour; 4 teaspoons baking powder; ¼ teaspoon salt; 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Cream shortening, add sugar gradually, beating well, add beaten egg, one-half the milk, and mix well. Add one-half the flour which has been sifted with salt and baking powder; add remainder of milk, then remainder of flour and flavoring. Beat after each addition. Bake in greased layer-cake tins in moderate oven 15 to 20 minutes.

BROWN BETTY PUDDING

½ cup sugar.
1 teaspoon cinnamon.
Butter.

Butter a deep dish and put in a layer of chopped apples. Sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon and a few small lumps of butter, then a layer of bread crumbs, again a layer of apple; and so on until all is used. Cover closely and steam ½ of an hour in a moderate oven. Then uncover and brown quickly. Serve with sugar and cream or a thin boiled custard. Whipped cream is delicious.

COFFEE CAKE

(Contributed by Mrs. F. P.)

1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons butter
¾ cup coffee
¼ cup milk
2 teaspoons baking powder
1¾ cups sifted flour
Pinch of salt
2 eggs

If you want to ice it with boiled icing save one white of egg.

OLD FASHIONED PARTY

Even though we do try to get something which will be new to our guests, we often turn back and have a good old-fashioned party, with even more merriment. Your guests will be delighted to go back with you, especially if they are older people, and will enjoy playing the games which they played during childhood.

You could have an Old Fashion Dinner, and make it a conundrum having your menu printed and let each guest choose what he wants. Your menu might be something like this:

A country in Asia (Turkey)
A color and a letter (Gravy)
Cape Cod fruit and impudence (Cranberry Sauce)
A river in Italy, an Irish woman's beverage, and "the five little pigs that went to market" (Potatoes)
A parent and cuttings (Parsnips)
Reverse and small bites (Turnips)
Time measures (Beets)
An Indian's wife and interjection of silence (Squash)
Well or badly brought up (Bread)
A goat (Butter)
A letter (Tea)
A crowd of people in a small place (Jam).
Mixed-up type (Pie)
Two of a kind (Pears)
A receptacle for fluids and a letter (Candy)
A crow's call and a doctor's payment (Coffee)
Ancient tales (Chestnuts)
What I do to be cream (Ice Cream).

And here are a few good games for after dinner:

"Plops" is played with a wooden spoon—one of the number of blindfolded and armed with this doughty instruments, attempts to read the features of any one member of the circle. On no account must he use his fingers.

Another one of olden times is threading the needle. Put a large empty bottle on its side, seat a friend on this, with the heel of his right foot resting on the floor, and the heel of his left foot upon the toe of his right. Then give him a needle to thread and watch him maintain his balance.

Then, of course there are lots of other games of olden days which may be ransacked, with possibly a touch or so here and there make them quite different. Let some of the guests suggest some old games. It's loads of fun trying to learn a game which is rather difficult to grasp.

As the time draws near for departure, if your guests are still enjoying themselves and wouldn't mind a little joke, announce that you will give each guest the name of an animal and that afterwards when that particular name is called the player must do whatever he is told. Give everyone in a whisper the one word "Wildcat" then taking your stand at the door say, "Now all ready, the first animal whose name I call must get out of this room before I do". Then call "Wildcat" and step aside to avoid being trampled on!

By Mary Marshall

A garland of large black tulle flowers is used as a shoulder strap above. Right above is shown red and white flowers on a blue frock and blue crepe de chine slippers with red heel and rhinestone buckle. At the left center an afternoon frock of mauve georgette with violets at the waist. At the right a cluster of taffeta flowers with picot edge on a taffeta frock and below a cluster of tiny flowers placed below the waistline on an evening frock.

There are some women who never wear artificial flowers unless perchance they are attached to a frock when they buy it and they simply tolerate their presence.

There are women who would as soon go forth without gloves and a handbag as they would go out without some sort of a flower decoration.

There are women who are discriminating in this matter of artificial flowers—wearing them only when they are convinced that they really add to the effectiveness of the ensemble, realizing that to wear such ornament simply on general principles does not make for clever dressing.

The wise woman realizes that artificial flowers at best are fragile, knowing that the flower or flower cluster on a frock will surely have to be replaced by a fresh one before the dress has been worn many times. There is nothing that so effectively ruins the appearance of any ensemble as a flower that is a bit soiled or bedraggled.

If you have recently whiled away any of your precious time at fashion shows where mannequins display the season's newest frocks and wraps you may have been impressed—as so many other women have been of late—by the fact that mannequins are walking so much more rapidly than they used to.

Even the amateur mannequins who lend their services to benefit fashion shows have caught this new speed from the professionals. The old-time languid gait has disappeared and bridesmaids and brides seem to hasten their paces as they walk toward the altar to the quickened strains of the wedding march.

The reason for this, I am told, is that the new "fluid line" in clothes with airy draperies of chiffon and georgette and tulle really demands this more rapid stride. Drapery nowadays must flutter, not hang languidly and limply.

TOUGH BREAK FOR BOTH OF THE BOYS.

Wilmington, Del., April 11 (By NEA Service)—It's pretty hard to tell who got the worst of this argument. Patrolman Fick received a broken nose and Jesse Waiters, got a fine of $25 on a charge of assault and an additional $10 on a charge of disorderly conduct.

All this happened, according to Patrolman Fick, when Waiters hit him on the nose. Fick got in a return blow to Waiters' eye, just to avenge his own personal grudge, and then arrested him to satisfy justice.

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

A FEW days ago a neighbor asked that I write a Whatnot on "Friendship," and while I am not so good at writing "to order," usually succeeding only when the idea is my own, I cannot refuse to write on the greatest thing in life, what Blair has referred to as:

Friendship! mysterious cement of the soul,
Sweet'ner of life, and solder of society.

It would be a poor world indeed if there were no friendship in it, and most of us would not care to face the morrow without friends.

Friendship is a peculiar thing, too. Small minds cannot compass it. They may think they have friends and that they are being friendly, but they cannot meet the fundamentals of the necessary attributes.

Friendship is like a sheltering tree, under which we may hide from the rain storms of life. Friendship is made more sacred and enduring by adversity, because those who have gone through trouble, sharing one another's woes, love the more dearly. Friendship makes burdens light and sorrow bearable.

Seeing that it is so important to us, we should be careful about our friendships. If there is any bitter experience in the world it is to find a trusted one false.

And to judge before entering a friendship, we must have some guide. What, after all, should one seek in a friend?

Some people are not very particular, indeed. Anyone who makes flowery speeches in praise of her is a friend; anyone who gushes and says "Do call and see me" is a friend; anyone who agrees with everything she says is a friend.

But that is not friendship. One must be very much her friend to pardon the flowery speeches made by the first-named; and the second is no better. Friendship does not mean agreeing with one when one may be wrong, because true friends will tell one another those faults which may be prejudicial.

If I make a mistake, my friend will tell me she thinks it is a mistake; she will not help me into further error by approving it.

A friend should be a second conscience.

In fact, Mrs. Ellis remarks: "To act the part of a true friend requires more conscientious feeling than to fill with credit and complacency any other station or capacity in social life."

And the only way to have a friend is to be one. It's a co-operative thing.

• • •

Probably the best summing up of friendship is given by Pollok in his "Course of Time":

Friends given by God in mercy and in love;
My counsellors, my comforters, and guides;
My joy in grief, my second bliss in joy;
Companions of my young desires; in doubt
My oracles; my wings in high pursuit.
Oh! I remember, and will ne'er forget
Our meeting spots, our chosen sacred hours;
Our burning words, that utter'd all the soul,
Our faces beaming with unearthly love;—
Sorrow with sorrow sighing, hope with hope
Exulting, heart embracing heart entire.

You will not find happiness in numerous friendships. If you have one true friend you are passing fortunate; if you have more friends of worth life is very good to you.

• • •

Actions, not words, are the true criterion of the attachment of friends, and the most liberal professions of good will are very far from being the surest marks of it. Beware the woman who protests too much her friendship for you!

I know some people who will urge others to visit them, just to take them away from "friends" who really desire to have them. The visitors, if they are unwary, are likely to think the importunate hostess more friendly than the real friends.

I know some who declare to one's face that a hat or a gown are perfectly adorable, and then to the next caller they tell what a fright one looks. That is the opposite of friendliness.

When you have gained a friendship, don't neglect it. You must surround it with respect, and not crush it into a corner. Friendship is not like an umbrella, to be used only on a rainy day.

Cherish it; tend it carefully. If it is the most precious thing in life, it is worthy of a great deal of attention and care.

Friendship takes in so many other virtues! To have friendship, to be a friend, one must be honest, true, respectful, generous, kindly, forbearing, staunch, wise and loving.

Your duties as a friend are to be what you would like a friend to be to you.

• • •

And then, when you have given and taken friendship—
Fast as the rolling seasons bring
The hour of fate to those we love,
Each pearl that leaves the broken string
Is set in Friendship's crown above.
As narrower grows the earthly chain,
The circle widens in the sky;
THESE are our treasures that remain,
But THOSE are stars that beam on high.

FOR MOTHERING SUNDAY

(Contributed by "Eleanor")

Now let us pray; God bless all mothering things, not only mothers of the human race, but mother-birds with warm, protective wings, beasts of the field with kind maternal grace, and Mother Earth, from which the gold grain springs. Now let us pray; God bless all mothering things.

God bless all mothers, selfless in their love, who use their love to set their children free, who are as gentle as the timid dove, yet have the strength to face courageously the lonelines when young ones soar above. God bless all mothers, selfless in their love.

God bless all women who are mother-wise, though baby lips have never named them mother, teachers, nurses with their lovelit eyes, giving their lives in service to another—the spirit's, not the body's enterprise. God bless all women who are mother-wise.

ANNOYANCES.

Annoyances are like mosquitoes! They buzz outside the window of the mind, buzz outside the stronghold of the soul; a tiny hole is what they hope to find, through which to push towards the guarded goal. Once they have reached the heart's recess—how they will mar its peace and happiness.

Annoyances are like mosquitoes! 'Tis well to put up screen against their coming, else will they anger, nag, and irritate by their incessant, aggravating humming, and make us rail against an unkind fate.

Annoyances are like mosquitoes! And if allowed a little time and space, how they will sting and poison all the air, leaving their impress on the mind and face; turning to ugliness what once was fair. O, mind and heart beware! Annoyances can sting—close doors and windows tight when they are on the wing.

OLD SONGS

LOVE'S OLD SWEET SONG.

(Contributed by "Donnie")

Once in the dear, dead days beyond recall,
When on the world the mist began to fall,
Out of the dream, that rose in happy throng,
Lo to our hearts love sang an old sweet song.
And in the dusk where fell the firelight gleam,
Softly it wove itself into our dream.

Even to-day we hear love's song of yore,
Deep in our hearts it dwells for evermore.
Foot-steps may falter, weary grow the way,
Still we can hear it at close of day.
So till the end, when life's dim shadows fall,
Love will be found the sweetest song of all.

Chorus:
Just a song at twilight, when the lights are low,
And the flickering shadows, softly come and go;
Tho the heart be weary, sad the day and long,
Still to us at twilight, comes love's old song,
Comes love's old sweet song.

TWO LITTLE GIRLS IN BLUE

(Contributed by "Sweet Marie.")

An old man gazed on a photograph
In a locket he wore for years;
His nephew then asked him the reason why
That picture had caused him tears.
"Come listen," he said, "I will tell you, lad,
A story that's strange, but true!
Your father and I, at the school one day
Met two little girls in blue.

Chorus.
"Two little girls in blue, lad,
Two little girls in blue,
They were sisters, we were brothers,
And learned to love the two.
And one little girl in blue, lad,
Who won your father's heart
Became your mother—I married the other,
But we have drifted apart.

"That picture is one of those girls," he said,
"And to me she was once a wife:
I thought that no longer she loved me, lad.
And parted from her for life.
My frenzy of jealousy wronged a heart,
A heart that was good and true—
For two better girls never lived than they,
Those two little girls in blue."

INDIANS SUFFER COLD OF WINTER

Fondness of Staying Out in the Rain Also Lends To Much Sickness.

TREATY RIGHTS.

Fondness for Staying Out in Rain also Leads to Much Sickness, Government Officers Report.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 12. (by The Canadian Press).—For most of Canada this has been a very pleasant winter—not excessively cold, no very bad storms, more employment than in former years. However, with many of the Indian population, numbering 105,000, the season has not dealt quite so kindly. Much sickness among the Red men, inhabitants of the north is reported, and tidings coming through from one isolated band after another cause anxiety to the officials of the Department of Indian affairs who do their utmost to make the lives of these wards of the government as happy as possible.

The latest reports have come from the posts along the shores of James Bay where sickness is causing much trouble. Hunting and fishing were the occupations of the red men when Jacques Cartier sailed up the St. Lawrence and they see no reason why they should not follow these callings in the present generations. They have certain districts where their ancestors hunted and when winter comes, to many of them there is an urge to go to these same localities, often a hundred or more miles from any white settlement or medical assistance.

Little or No Provisions.

The Indians with their wives and children fare forth to these isolated parts with little or no provisions, confident of living off the country as they go along. The women snare rabbits and the men trap and hunt larger game. Things go not too badly until some of the family fall sick. Often it is the head of the family and if game is none too plentiful, hunger soon faces them.

The influenza epidemic which spread over a considerable portion of Canada and United States this winter also reached up among the Indians of the north. Many have died and on some occasions word of their plight reached civilization only because of the extensive winter flying that is being carried out in connection with the exploration and prospecting activities of mining companies. Numbers of Indians suffer from tuberculosis and they fall an easy prey to influenza and accompanying diseases.

The department of course cannot supply doctors for every band of Indians. It "caches" hundreds of dollars worth of medical supplies with the various missionaries working among them. It instructs any Hudson Bay factor to issue supplies to Indians in want, and charge it to the Dominion government. Dr. E. L. Stone is the medical superintendent and he keeps in touch with the outposts of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police who wireless appeals should Indians be found in want. Every effort is made to meet the need of the situation and the airplane is a very present help to the red men.

Treaty Indians.

Nearly all the Indians in those northern parts are "treaty Indians." The British government took the position that no land was to be taken away from these aboriginal inhabitants except through treaty and the Canadian government carries this out. When Ontario took a large tract of land around James Bay, it did so by treaty with the Indians which the Federal government arranges. The terms provide that a reserve equal to 640 acres for every five souls be set aside in the territory and that every Indian, male or female, get $4 year as long as "grass grows or water flows."

One hundred and twenty-eight thousand square miles in Ontario near the Manitoba boundary remain which Indians have not ceded over by treaty and accordingly receive no reaty money. Department officials plan visiting the natives there during the summer to arrange a treaty and plan reserve.

In the section around James Bay from whence reports have come that many Indians are sick, there are about 1600. "When I was there last summer," said one of the officials who paid the treaty money, "the Indians were fairly healthy. As soon as the department officials arrive however, these natives hurry to the post to be doctored. They are lectured on how to avoid the spread of tuberculosis and protect their children from it, but I am afraid they pay very little attention to what we say.

"The Indians are passionately fond of being out in the rain and it is impossible to keep even those suffering from tuberculosis from going out and getting drenched. They kept coming to us for medicine. You are not sick I told one of them. 'I know' he replied, 'not sick now but want some medicine so not be sick after you go away'."

ROMAN GALLEY RECOVERED FROM DEPTHS OF LAKE

The famous galleys of the Mad Emperor Caligula have at last come to light as Mullolini's plan for pumping out Lake Nemi, near Rome, is successful. Caligula used the floating palace to stage wild orgies, and it is said this galley and its mate were sunk with al itheir revellers in a mad attempt to provide a spectacular scene for the emperor's gratification. After lying on the lake bottom for 1,900 years, the galleys have been brought to light by the method of pumping out the entire lake.

Have you entered the Kodak Company's $30,000 Prize Contest?

One of the 1,223 cash awards can easily be yours

PROBABLY you have already heard of this big event for amateur picture-takers. But have you made any pictures for it yet?

If you have said to yourself, "What's the use of entering? I can't win. I'm no expert with the camera," you're making a big mistake. The winners in this contest are going to be men and women just like yourself; people who, if you asked them, would say they had little or no photographic ability.

GRAND PRIZE $2,500—for the best picture of any type in the following classifications.

PROVINCIAL AND STATE PRIZES—For Child and Baby Pictures—$11,400 will be awarded for the pictures showing the most interesting children. $100 is being given for the best child picture from each province of Canada and each state of the United States. This same amount is offered in April under exactly the same conditions, making 114 prizes in all.

The Maritime Provinces of Canada count as one province. British Columbia and the Yukon count as one province. District of Columbia counts as one state; Hawaii, Alaska and all other U.S. dependencies combined count as one state.

Every picture of children that you submit stands a chance of winning the Grand Prize; or any of the 108 prizes in each of four other awards. And even if you don't come in for a share of the prize money, you will, at least, have made an attractive picture to add to your collection. Anything goes as long as it is a picture of children, and if it has the least spark of interest in it, don't fail to send it in.

AWARD NO. 1—Scenics—For the best picture of any city or country outdoor scene . . . . . a first prize of $500; a second of $250; a third of $100; 25 prizes of $10 each and 75 prizes of $5 each.

AWARD NO. 2—Informal Portraits—Pictures made at from, say, two to ten feet distance, for the purpose of showing a person's features . . . a first prize of $500; a second of $250; a third of $100; 25 prizes of $10 each and 75 prizes of $5 each.

AWARD NO. 3—Story-Telling Pictures—For the pictures telling the most interesting story . . . a first prize of $500; a second of $250; a third of $100; 25 prizes of $10 each and 75 prizes of $5 each.

AWARD NO. 4—Sport Pictures—For the best pictures of sports and games . . . a first prize of $500; a second of $250; a third of $100; 25 prizes of $10 each and 75 prizes of $5 each.

AWARD NO. 8—Interior Pictures—For the best inside views of rooms, corridors, staircases, or other portions of homes or other buildings . . . a first prize of $500; a second of $250; a third of $100; 25 prizes of $10 each and 75 prizes of $5 each.

AWARD NO. 9—Still Life Studies—For the best pictures of art objects, curios, cut flowers, any still-life subjects in artistic arrangement . . . a first prize of $500; a second of $250; a third of $100; 25 prizes of $10 each and 75 prizes of $5 each.

The Prize Contest Office reserves the right to change a classification for the benefit of the entrant; if not classified on the back by the entrant the pictures will go into the classes in which they are most likely to win.

9 Each prize-winning picture, together with the negative, and the rights to the use thereof for advertising, publication or exhibition in any manner, becomes the property of the Kodak Company.

10 No prints can be returned, except that entries in the Enlargement Competition will be returned upon request. All mailings are at the owner's risk.

Do not send negatives until they are requested.

11 The decision of the judges will be final. In the event of a tie, the advertised award will be paid to each of the tying contestants.

14 An entrant may receive only one prize. In case the judges select any entrant for more than one award, he will receive the largest thereof. If he wins, for example, a $100 provincial prize in the Child Picture Contest, and if either the same print or another of his prints in the General Contest wins an award larger than $100, he will receive the larger amount. The Kodak Company will consider the purchase of desirable pictures even though not prize-winners.

15 Winners of the provincial prizes in the Child Picture Contest for March will be notified as soon as possible after March 31, and for the April Contest as soon as possible after April 30, 1929; winners in the Special Enlargement Competition and all other Classifications will be notified as soon as possible after May 31, 1929.

BATTLE EXPECTED AT OTTAWA OVER GRAIN MIXING QUESTION

Proposal Will Arouse Great Argument in House of Commons.

GIVE ATTENTIVE EAR

Farmer Members Claim Wheat Growers Have Lost Millions in Marketing.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 12 (By The Canadian Press).—Observers of political affairs in the capital believe that the big battle in parliament after the Easter recess will be on the proposal that mixing of wheat intended for export, in Canadian elevators, be declared illegal. The demand has come from the prairies that the ultimate purchasers of Canada's wheat abroad should get it as it is graded when the farmer delivers it at the country elevator. Many of the prairie members, who have already spoken in parliament on this question, are determined the practice of mixing of grades now so prevalent, should be stamped out.

The government is evidently inclined to give an attentive ear to the protests from the prairies. "In my opinion," said Hon. C. A. Dunning, minister of railways, speaking in the house, "we will never get back to where the wheat of western Canada will take its proper place in the markets of the world until we eliminate the mixing of the straight grades of grain."

Dissatisfaction in West.

Dissatisfaction is found in the west over the handling of the 1928 grain crop—the largest in the history of the Canadian prairies, amounting to more than 500,000,000 bushels. While there is difference of opinion among the members of parliament from the wheat growing districts as to the extent of this discontent, there is unanimity that discontent exists. Some of the members have told parliament "the prairies are on fire over this question," that the farmers are demanding action and the present board of grain commissioners who administer the Canada Grain Act, the legislation under which the government exercises a certain control over the handling of the crop, should be dismissed. Other members did not go as far as that, but suggested that a few changes in the act would meet the situation.

The complaints the farmer members have made refer to grading, mixing and skimming, and the administration of the act. They claimed that the wheat growers have lost millions of dollars because of the manner in which the wheat was marketed.

Grading has developed into a very complicated question for parliament to deal with. Two years ago warnings came from Liverpool, and were frequently repeated, that Canadian wheat was not standing up to its grades. To use the words of one of the officials of the Canadian Department of Agriculture, this threw a scare into those responsible for managing the marketing of the crop so that on the arrival of the new wheat last fall the inspectors were instructed to "grade much harder."

While the first three grades of Canadian wheat are fixed by the Canada Grain Act, much depends on how the act is interpreted. The grades below three, namely four, five, six and feed, are decided by the Grain Standards Board which meets early each crop year and fixes the standards, having received samples from various parts of the country. This board met in October but much grain had already been graded. Five nights of frost in August had caused considerable damaged grain and there was general disappointment among the farmers over the grades they were getting. It was contended much of the frozen grain only suffered "bran frost," which did no real damage to the milling quality.

Standards High.

The Standards Board found the grading was too severe and ordered it reduced somewhat. However, it was still high and evidence before the agricultural committee of the house of commons already taken indicates the Canadian wheat was a full grade higher this year reaching Liverpool than heretofore. The British miller found he was getting as good a grade certified as No. 4 as he used to get marked No. 3, and so on. It took the British buyers until about the middle of November to appreciate this. Then, according to the farmer members of parliament, the spreads in prices between the grades began to shrink. However, in the meantime half of the wheat in Canada had passed out of the hands of the farmers and they did not therefore reap the advantages of this change in spreads. This cost the wheat growers "tens of millions of dollars," one member asserted in discussing this point in the House of Commons recently.

The mixing has already come in for much condemnation on the floor of parliament. It was claimed buyers would go through the trains of wheat in the various large stations of Western Canada and pick out the cars in which the wheat was much above the minimum of its grade. These would be diverted to their elevators and mixed with inferior wheat until it was just over the minimum standard. It would then be exported. The farmer would not get any extra because his original wheat was above the minimum. It is claimed this works to the disadvantage of the producer in that the British buyers in the long run pay for what they get and mixing down to just above the minimum eventually lowers prices. The advantage goes to the company which is able to buy No. 4 wheat and sell it as No. 3 and so on. There is no doubt, however, that the mixing will find strong supporters before the session is over so a merry battle may be expected.

"High-powered" Ticket.

The chief objection about the administration of the Grain Act for which the grain commissioners are blamed by certain farmer members is the "hybrid" or "high-powered" ticket as it has been termed. The complaint is that this ticket, given when a pool farmer put his wheat into a line company elevator for special binning, took away from the farmer the right to designate that his wheat must go to a pool terminal elevator with the result that he would lose the two cents a bushel bonus which the pool gives to its members who use its terminals. It was provided in the act that the farmer should have the right to designate such terminal elevators.

Thomas Donnelly (Liberal-Progressive, Willow Bunch), speaking in the house of commons stated: "I fully agree with those who say the prairies are on fire and the western farmer is expecting some redress from the wrongs from which he is suffering at the present time. The whole problem is a serious one to western Canada; the western farmer's bread and butter, his livelihood, depends on the proper solution of this problem. I say therefore that he is expecting some redress."

The situation was summarized by John Millar (Liberal-Progressive, Qu'Appelle) as follows: "There is widespread dissatisfaction but the situation is simply this, that the grain trade has grown to enormous proportions and our machinery for handling the trade has not changed in proportion. Trade practices have changed, new trade practices have grown up and the machinery is not sufficient."

Robert Gardiner, leader of the United Farmers of Alberta in the house, speaking on the address in reply to the speech from the throne, said: "While the crop of last year was the largest ever grown in Western Canada, it is my humble judgment that that crop was not produced at a profit. I am not going to say it was produced at a loss, but the margin received by the farmers was so close to the cost of production that we can say that the crop was not produced at a profit. I think I can say that the crop was probably the greatest disappointment of any crop that has been grown in the west for many years past. This was due to climatic conditions, frost, hail and so forth." Mr. Gardiner on that occasion took up a number of different complaints of the wheat growers with respect to the way the crop had been marketed.

SEAWEED FINDS READY MARKET

FOUND FIREPROOF.

LONDON, April 12.—By The Canadian Press).—Nova Scotian seaweed—eel-grass—is being supplied to Great Britain for insulating buildings against noises and echoes, it is disclosed by a writer in Overseas, the monthly journal of the Overseas League.

The discovery that seaweed will exclude noise to a large extent from buildings and stop echoes by the use of a particular kind of packing on walls and ceilings, was made by Capt. A. G. Huntley, an officer of the Royal Engineers. This packing is made from the variety of seaweed known as eel-grass.

The eel-grass, asserts the writer, is fireproof, non-verminous and sound absorbent, and it grows to perfection where it is washed by fresh and salt water. If it is gathered from a sandy shore it is full of impurities, but off the coasts of Nova Scotia it grows under ideal conditions on a rocky shore. The eelgrass is gathered in Nova Scotia and shipped to Great Britain in the form of mats. These mats are fixed to the flat surface of ceilings and walls. Over the mats thin wood battens are nailed and upon these canvas can beb stretched and treated to suit any decorative scheme that may be designed.

A number of London buildings, says the writer in Overseas, have been improved in this manner. In the new headquarters of the Midland Bank, in Cheapside, the great hall has been insulated in this way against noises. From it the sounds of traffic on the street are excluded and in it the buzz of conversation and the sounds of mechanical aparatus are deadened. The new Bank of England, Lloyd's Bank, in Cornhill, and Commercial Union building next door, are also being protected in the same way against noise. In the Royal Ear Hospital a room has been made sound-proof to such an extent that the ticking of a watch can be heard from one end of it to the other.

A hundred houses to be erected in Scotland under a housing scheme are to have seaweed mats under their floors. To dwellers in flats in which the performances of neighbors' pianos and gramophones formerly penerated walls, floors and ceilings, says the article in Overseas, "Nova Scotia's seaweed will come as a boon and a blessing."

Old Books

NEWTON'S AND COWPER'S OLNEY HYMNS

In these prosaic days it may seem strange for anyone to be writing on so romantic a subject as old books. Most people are apt to class them with such oddments as cast-off clothing, bottles and rags, and whenever the subject crosses their minds, visions of the garbage man or dealer in second-hand goods pass before their eyes.

There is nothing quite so disreputable-looking as a tattered, dirty old volume. Men and women often hesitate before touching its grimy covers. But what is true of the human being is just as true of an old book. It is not the appearance that counts; it is the intrinsic worth. Diogenes was not remarkable for cleanliness, nor was Dr. Johnson, but each, in his day and generation evinced a clarity of thought not often vouchsafted to much sprucer and more polished individuals.

Librarians, in the course of service, make the acquaintance of many books, young and old, decaying and decayed. Each forms his own indivdual likings. Personally, I have found the greatest interest and the truest compaionship in the ancient, seedy-looking volumes which stand in serried ranks on secluded shelves in the library. Like Chelsea pensioners who have performed their duty, they rest as living witnesses of bygone days, to be reverenced rather than ridiculed. Many of these have been in the library for years, others have come to us from various sources and at various times in recent years. The latest to join the ranks is a second volume of a four volume set entitled "The Works of the Reverend John Newton." Although an odd volume it is valuable as containing the hymns known as the Olney Hymns, which were written by Newton in conjunction with his friend, the poet Cowper.

Newton's earlier years had been passed at sea, in company with his father, who was a commander in the merchant service. When the latter retired, on his appointment as Governor of York Fort, in the Hudson Bay Company's service, Newton still continued to be a sailor. He followed this calling until the year 1754, when owing to illl-health was compelled to relinquish it. But he had become converted several years prior to leaving the sea. He dated his changed views on life from the 21st March, 1748, when a strong religious feeling was awakened in him through belief in God's Providence in steering him safely through a storm. He ever afterwards commemorated this day as his great deliverance."

He determined to be a clergyman, being moved thereto by the influence of Whitefield and Wesley, for both of whom he had unbounded admiration. In due course he received the incumbency of Olney, a living in the gift of Lord Dartmouth. To this retired spot came Cowper, accompanied by his devoted friend and nurse, Mrs. Unwin. He at once identified himself with the religious life of the community and before long Newton and Cowper had begun that splendid series of hymns which number among them such magnificent outpourings as "Glorious Things of Thee Are Spoken," and "How Sweet the Name of Jesus Sounds." These are both by Newton and can lay claim to equalling the best that Cowper wrote, although the great majority fall far below this standard. Readers of Hymnology know Cowper's productions well. They are sung throughout the world. It is only necessary to call their first lines to mind:

'There is a fountain filled with blood";
"Hark, my soul, it is the Lord";
"Jesus, where're Thy people meet";
'What various hindrances we meet";
"God moves in a mysterious way."

It cannot be said that the hymns are calculated to cheer the fainting soul. "There is only one really jubilant note struck in the entire collection, and that is in "Glorious Things of Thee Are Spoken." Contrition and anguish of soul seem to be borne on the breeze and in almost every note of Newton's lyre, whilst Cowper's melancholia and religious mania certainly precluded cheerful composition.

In his touching preface to the hymns, Newton says: ". . . The public may be assured that the whole number were composed by two persons only. The original design would not admit of any other association. A desire of promoting the faith and comfort of sincere Christians, though the principal, was not the only motive to this undertaking. It was likewise intended as a monument to perpetuate the remembrance of an intimate and endeared friendship. . . . We had not proceeded far upon our proposed plan before my dear friend was prevented, by a long and affecting indisposition, from affording me any further assistance. . . Though it is possible a good judge of composition might be able to distinguish those which are his, I have thought it better to preclude a misapplication, by prefixing the letter C to each of them. For the rest, I must be responsible."

There are many less interesting books in our library.

Ed's Store Opening

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

Ed Spayth, young and energetic plumber, did two things shortly after his arrival in the city of Brampton. The first of these was to start up a new plumbing shop on Main street a couple of blocks away from John Jennings, the oldest and biggest and keenest plumber in the city. And the second was to fall in love with a bewitching young blonde who passed Ed's store each noon.

Ed found, one day, that his business was increasing so rapidly that he needed a girl to handle the office routine. So he called up the office of the National Business College and told them of his wants.

That afternoon a girl appeared.

And as Ed looked at her his heart skipped a couple of beats, all the world turned sunny and he felt that fate surely was good to him. It was the girl with whom he had fallen in love and whom he had never met before.

"You're engaged!" exclaimed Ed, at length coming out of the trance into which her advent had plunged him. "You can handle the work all right—it's just plain stenography and a little bookkeeping and helping me get ready for a big opening I'm going to have shortly. Lots of people don't know I'm in business here yet, and I'm going to put on an open house, with music and flowers as favors, and everything to get them coming. By the way, what's your name?"

Of course, with Ed as infatuated as he was, anything that Lillian did would have seemed right to him. But she really was efficient.

Business was getting better with Ed now, and he found his hands full in looking after everything and also in making his preparations for the opening.

His plan was simple enough. It was that of personally calling upon several hundred of the leading business men of the city and asking them to come to his store for the opening, and of also getting the city health officer to make an address during the opening on the topic of right plumbing as a necessity in making homes healthy. Ed was confident that his plan was a mighty good one. But, still, there was a little speck of doubt in his mind, which made him refrain from telling Lillian what he planned. If the plan went over well, then he could brag about it. If it failed to get the men, then the least said about it the better.

Ed was, without doubt, heart and soul in his efforts to make his opening a success. It meant so much to him, not only in business but also in love. If his opening went well and he got a lot of business he'd be in a position to offer marriage to the one girl in the world.

A week before the date scheduled for the opening there was an accident. A heavy beam fell on Ed. When he finally came to himself it was to find that he was lying in a bed in a private room in a hospital. A nearby calendar told him that he had been unconscious or only semi-conscious for two long weeks. His opening date was past. He'd made a failure of it!

Then the door to the room opened and Lillian stepped in. A startled glance came to her face as she saw that he knew her.

"Oh, I'm so glad!" she cried, and there was no doubt that she meant it.

"I—I failed on the opening," Ed murmured slowly. "It'll be a hard pull from now on."

But Lillian smiled reassuringly.

"Look at this!" she exclaimed.

She waved a bunch of yellow sheets in front of Ed. They were order blanks, and on each sheet was an order—a good order.

"Why, why" gasped Ed. "I don't understand. "What does this mean?"

"It means that we put the opening over on the date you'd scheduled for it," Lillian explained. "And the orders just poured in."

"But," Ed expostulated, "how did you get the men to come? I didn't tell you my plan for doing that."

Lillian smiled at him affectionately. "I—I figured you didn't have quite the right slant on that," she explained. "I've felt all along that it's the women you should interest. Women are really the main factors in the great majority of plumbing jobs. So I invited all my women friends and dolled up the store with cretonne and served cakes and tea. And the women came and—and the orders came, too, and—I'm so glad."

She smiled at him happily. Ed clasped her hands, and then he kissed her.

"What I can't understand," said Ed happily a few moments later, "is how you know so much about the plumbing business."

Lillian dimpled and smiled a bit shyly.

"I suppose I'll have to tell you," she said. "I fell in love with you when I used to pass your store on the way to business college. And so when you called the college and asked for a stenographer I got them to send me to you. My family thinks I'm still going to business college. They don't know I've taken this job. And they don't know I'm working under the name of Lillian Montgomery. You see, I ought to know a lot about the plumbing business. I—I'm a plumber's daughter. I'm the daughter of your competitor, the man you wanted to show you could make good. I'm the daughter of John Jennings. My real name is Lillian Jennings. I didn't tell you before, because I was afraid you wouldn't hire me if you knew, and oh, my dear, I did so want to work for you!"

And Ed kissed her again.

Because Sunlight is all pure soap, it is the most economical . . . bar for bar it washes more clothes than common soap.

SCOTS CHURCH MEETING IS OF HISTORIC VALUE

Duke of York Will Attend General Assembly in May.

LORD HIGH COMMISSIONER

No Scion of Royal Family Has Ever Previously Held the Office.

LONDON, April 12 (By the Canadian Press).—The appointment of the Duke of York to be Lord High Commissioner to the Church of Scotland is an additional mark of the importance of the General Assembly to be held in Edinburgh in May.

It is expected that at this assembly the union of Church of Scotland with the Free Church of Scotland will be finally approved and that the division of the Scottish Presbyterian communion which has existed since the "Disruption" in 1843 will be finally healed. For the Scottish church and people the occasion will, therefore, be one of historic interest, and in Scotland it will be regarded as fitting that the proceedings should be graced by the presence of the King's second son as His Majesty's personal representative.

The General Assembly—the highest ecclesiastical court in Scotland, with full powers of decision as to church affair—meets annually in Edinburgh in May and sits for 10 days. The Lord High Commissioner, as representative of the King, by his presence adds "The sanction of the civil authority to its proceedings," but takes no active part in the decisions.

First to Hold Office.

No scion of the royal family has ever previously held the office, which, with two exceptions, has always been bestowed on a Scottish peer, usually one prominently associated with the affairs of the Scottish church.

On two occasions, commoners have discharged the duties of the office. The first of these was Sir John Hope, appointed by Charles I.; and the second was James Brown, M.P., a miners' agent and elder of the Kirk, who officiated in 1924 during the Labor administration.

For he 10 days of the General Assembly in 1924 Mr. Brown and his wife (addressed as "Her Grace") lived in Holywood Palace, attended by lords and ladies in waiting, and performed all the functions of the King's personal deputy, including the reception and entertainment of Scotland's nobility. The appointment of the Duke of York is in its way, a great a departure from precedent as was that of Mr. Brown.

During the sessions of the General Assembly the Lord High Commissioner resides in Holyrood Palace, one of the royal residences, which has in recent years frequently been occupied by their Majesties on Scottish visits. He is escorted by cavalry, and rides in a state coach on his journey from Holyrood up the long slope of "the royal mile" of Edinburgh, to the assembly meeting-place near the Castle, and his arrival is intimated by a salute of 21 guns from the castle. At the assembly meeting he occupies "the Throne Gallery," and, whoever he may be, he takes precedence of Dukes and Earls, and generally is invested with all the dignity and prestige associated with sovereignty.

FORMER PRIEST REPORTED SLAIN

LED BAND OF INSURGENTS.

MEXICO CITY, April 12 (CP).—Guadalajara despatches to Excellsior today said the hands of vengeance had reached out and taken the life of an alleged former priest named Vega, evening the score for his recent execution of Victoriano Ramirez, alias "El Catorce" co-leader of a band of Jalisco insurgents.

Vega and "El Catorce" were charged by government officials with having been leaders of the band who, on April 20, 1927, burned a Guadalajara-Mexico City passenger train, killing 54 men, women and children. The bandits are said to have locked the doors of the coaches, set them afire and shot those who tried to escape through the windows.

Vega, Excelsior's story said, was shot dead Wednesday night at Hacienda Guadalupe near the town of Arandas, Jalisco, by a cousin of El Catorce. The assassin emptied his pistol into Veta's breast under cover of darkness and then escaped by horseback amid a hail of bullets from the dead man's followers, said to number more than a hundred.

among the items at to-day's meeting. The Rev. J. Douglas Paterson and G. A. Gillespie were the lucky winners of James Doran's booster prizes.

A thoughtful note was struck by the Rev. Mr. Paterson when he suggested, that the club express its sympathy to the bereaved families who had suffered through the drowning tragedy at Harmony creek last Friday night.

The Speaker

With His Worship Mayor Denne, as well as representatives of almost every branch of the dairy industry locally, in attendance, Mr. Robinson proved a straight-forward speaker. Declaring that there is no town or city or for that matter, village in the country that has not a supply of good milk, and also a supply of bad milk in varying quantities, he went on, as stated above, to urge a closer co-operation between producers, dealers and health authorities so that the stigma of an epidemic attributable to its milk might be avoided by any community. He stated, to the surprise of many, that very often, the smaller towns have a more dangerous supply of milk than the larger centres, though such conditions should naturally be reversed, since the smaller communities are "nearer to the cow" and there is, therefore, less opportunity for contamination through extensive handling. Milk cleanly produced, and subjected to the double safe guard of pateurization, should be the aim of all progressive centres.

Mr. Robinson concluded by speaking of the National Dairy council, that body of thirty-three representatives of every branch of the dairy industry, which has as its object, the supervision of Canada's Dairy Industry. That industry last year amounted to approximately $250,000,000.

CANUCK CLUB WINNERS OF JUNIOR CUP

GOOD PROGRAM

Congratulations were showered upon the Canuck Club, winners of the Junior City League Hockey Championship, at a banquet given in their honor in the club rooms of the Sacred Heart Church last evening. V. J. Tully presented the champions with the silver cup which he donated to the City league.

It was a happy event. The banquet was tendered by the ladies of the church and the tables were tastefully decorated in the club colors. Good fellowship prevailed along the banquet board, and the boys recalled some of the stirring games that had been played in their march toward the championship.

The toast list brought forth expressions of appreciation from the boys to the church, and Rev. J. J. O'Brien and Rev. J. C. Moloney for the great assistance which had been given the club, making its successes and activities possible.

Rev. J. C. Moloney reviewed the history of the club from its organization, three years ago. The purpose of the club, said Rev. Moloney, was to provide clean sports for the boys of Sacred Heart Church, and to give them a club tradition.

The toast list included the following:

"Our Parish," proposed by Joseph O'Toole, replied to by Rev. J. C. Moloney. "Our Team," proposed by James Fleming, replied to by William Prindible. "Our Club," proposed by Rev. J. C. Moloney, replied to by Joseph Paquette. "The City League" proposed by Bernard Jones, replied to by Cecil Wolfe. "The donor of Cup," proposed by Ted Outram, replied to by V. J. Tully, who presented the cup. "Our Parents," proposed by Kenneth Carroll, replied to by William Meagher. The pictures of the team were presented to the players by M. Murray.

OBITUARY

HERMAN WILSON.

The funeral of the late Herman Wilson took place on Thursday afternoon. Private service was held at his late residence, 2 King George Street, at 1.30, being conducted by Rev. J. L. Hughes, rector of St. George's Church. The cortege then proceeded along Young Street to the church, where the funeral service was held. The large congregation which almost filled the edifice testified to the respect in which the deceased gentleman had been held both by those who had worshipped there with him Sunday by Sunday, and by the community among whom he was esteemed and loved. The casket was preceded into the church by the rector and choir, the Scripture sentences being recited during the procession. Psalm 90 was next solemnly chanted. During the service the hymns "On the Resurrection Morning" and "Now the Laborer's Task is O'er" were sung. Rev. J. L. Hughes based his address on the words, "A just man and devout." In referring to their departed friend, the rector spoke of his upright life, true and just in his dealings with men. He had held the office of warden from 1913 to 1919 continuously, and since then has served as sidesman or on the Advisory Board. On account of his sound judgment and wide experience, his advice was often sought, and his opinion obtained. He had been a devout, that is God-fearing man, always regular in church attendance, and a devoted communicant. Through the sorrow there was the note of gratitude to God for the faithful service rendered in life. Over four-score years of time; life's race had been well run, life's duty well done. No longer could the preacher say "Vanity of vanities, all is vanity." The Easter message gives us a Living Hope through the Resurrection. Life, its work, its hopes are not doomed to destruction, but are taken up into the fulness of God's purpose. "Until the day dawns and the shadows flee away," we leave him in God's keeping.

Psalm 23 was chanted as the body, preceded by the rector and choir, was borne from the church. Mrs. R. King carried out the duties of organist. The bearers were Messrs. J. D. Manley, L. Johnson, W. Wood, B. Johnson, P. Aitchison, and E. Sanders. Interment took place in the family lot, in Little Lake Cemetery. Many floral tributes were sent. The funeral arrangements were carried out by D. Belleghem & Sons.

THEY WORK NIGHT TURN.

Cleveland, O., April 11. — Chicken thieves are great night workers. During the night, Ohio farmers lose nearly $1,000,000 worth of poultry a year through petty thefts, according to Walter H. Lloyd, editor of an Ohio farm journal. Numbered among the common thieves are village idlers, farm youths and organized city gangs.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

AGENTS RAID TWO CONVENTS

Mexican Nuns Are Released While Spanish Women Must Leave Country.

SEDITIOUS LITERATURE.

MEXICO CITY, April 12 (CP).—Agents of the Department of Interior conducted a widespread series of raids on places of religious character during the last 24 hours, making a number of arrests and closing the buildings.

Two convents were raided. Ten Mexican nuns found in one were released after being warned they were acting in violation of the constitution. Spanish nuns found in the other convent were given ten days to leave Mexico.

A building occupied by the "Army for Defense of Women" was raided also. Among things found which the agents classed as seditious were: a bulletin alleged to have been printed in the United States by the exiled Bishop of Huejutla, escapularios containing the purported dried blood of the Priest Projuarez, who was executed for an alleged attempt on the life of General Obregon; and pictures of Jose De Leon Toral, slayer of General Obregon, which the agents said were being sold to raise funds to buy ammunition for the so-called Catholic insurgents.

Eleven women were arrested but released with order to appear later for investigation. An engineer named Galindo Pimentel was arrested and held.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist some Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful of powder or four tablets in water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

On her one-hundredth anniversary recently, Mrs. Mary Ann Prosser of Newcastle, England, received a congratulatory telegram from the Prince of Wales.

PINEHUURST N. C., April 12. — John Van Ryn, of Orange, N. J., and Sadadazu Onda of New York and South tennis championship between themselves to-day.

Van Ryn and Onda moved to the finals yesterday by eliminating the double-barrelled Davis Cup menace from Canada. Van Ryn defeated Jack Wright of Montreal in straight sets, 6—1, 6—4, 6—1, while Onda took out Marcel Rainville of Montreal in four sets, 6—1, 6—0, 3—6, 6—3.

Van Ryn outclassed Wright largely by virtue of his backline markmanship. His superiority yesterday was demonstrated by the fact that he was behind only once in any of the three sets. A perfect day was spoiled when Wright broke through to win Van Ryn's service in the second set, and lead 4 to 3.

Rainville, Wright's Davis Cup team mate, was worn down and out by the consistency of Onda. The phlegmatic Japanese kept his advantage over his rival in the back court, the Canadian's weakest position, and adopted a policy of watching and waiting. He appeared content to keep lobbing volleys back across the net and waiting for the Canadian to smash out of bounds.

TORONTO LEAGUES FAVOR SECESSION

T.A.B.A. Leagues Oppose Tax of 25 Cents On Certificates.

TORONTO, April 12.—The Toronto Amateur Baseball Association, like any individual, does not like taxes, and expressed bitter opposition to the Ontario Baseball Association's demand of 25 cents for every playing certificate. Representatives of the various Toronto leagues assembled at the T.A.B.A. weekly session last night in protest to the tax, and after a thorough discussion they decided to return to their organizations and consider the proposal of seceding from the provincial body. Many were in favor of breaking away immediately, but it was deemed advisable to wait until next week, when the delegates will gather again with the decision of their leagues.

The Viaduct league, at its own meeting, also voiced the same opinion as the T.A.B.A., but were more anxious for an immediate break. Viaducts decided to drop out of the O.B.A.A. and also the T.A.B.A. if the tax is enforced. Other leagues are also greatly opposed to the certificate charge, claiming that it is a direct burden on Toronto teams, who are now not any too strong financially. Hamilton is also hit hard by the tax and favor a break, and if the two cities drop out the O.B.A.A. will lose half its senior leagues and most of the revenue.

It was explained at the T. A. B. A. session that the Ontario body was just anxious to build up its treasury, which has been dwindling for the last few years. The certificate tax would net about $400, while the 10 per cent. cut on the Ontario playdowns would about make up the needed $4,000 a year to run the association. Toronto league did not consider it fair that they should have to provide the big share, which will be the case with the tax and 10 per cent. cut.

Pick Committees.

The tax talk took up most of the time at the T.A.B.A. meet, but there was also other important work dealt with. A. H. Dault was elected chairman of the championship committee, with a representative of each league. E. Trull was appointed chairman of the emergency committee and F. Armstrong convenor of the minors.

Several players who have failed to return uniforms to their clubs were suspended. Leagues were requested to appoint delegates to the T.A.B.A., while all leagues starting the season on April 27 were ordered to have their playing certificates in for the next meeting.

The extension of time for declaring a winner to enter the Ontario play-downs was considered, and although the leagues were in favor of leaving the Provincial Government they wanted a reply to the request for extra playing time. The city leagues want to continue their playing season an extra week, which would stretch the local championship competitions until September 28.

The T.I.A. was granted prior claim on all players employed by concerns operating teams. President Kerr of the Industrial League asked for protection, claiming several teams were wrecked by players refusing to join the team where they worked and signing with open clubs.

UNITED STATES GIVEN PRIORITY

Sir George McLaren Brown Will Propose Modifications to Olympic Regulations.

FOR WINTER SPORTS.

TORONTO, Ont., April 12 (C.P.).—The Olympic Winter sports for 1932 were awarded to Lake Placid, N.Y., by the International Olympic Committee on May 28, 1925, granting the country awarded the Olympic Games priority on the Winter sports, according to a cable from Sir George McLaren Brown, member of the international committee, to P. J. Mulqueen, president of the Canadian committee.

The cable says the award was made despite strong support of Canada from Britain, France and others, and "despite a general feeling that Canada was desirable."

Sir George stated a direct and general appeal was made to "Garland of California" to concede Canada the Winter sports or have Montreal included with applications and subjected to an examination by experts, but Garland declined, "standing on his legal position under the regulations of the International Olympice committee."

Sir George said he was placing on the agenda for the next meeting proposed modifications to the regulations regarding Winter sports.

ROSENEATH NOW MODERN VILLAGE

Building Development Has Made Great Strides During Past Six Years.

ROSENEATH, April 12.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The development of Roseneath has been marvelous in the past six years. Seven new dwelling houses have been built in the village, the Royal Bank remodeled, a new saw mill and grist mill, two garages have been enlarged, the wonderful Agricultural hall which make a first class skating rink in winter; the Orange hall is now an up-to-date building for concerts and theatrical plays; sidewalk have been made and repaired; then electricity comes in, first to the numerous residences and on Tuesday night the streets were lighted with Hydro. It is hardly possible to comprehend what electricity means now, nor what it will mean in future to mankind.

There are so many remarkable inventions that would be impossible without it. Those who have the Hydro, especially the farmers wonder how they ever managed so long without it. It is a labor saving along with its conveniences.

What wonders will each succeeding generations disclose? Well the modern wonders wane before future achievements as ancient wonders fade before the present? Roseneath can now boast of being an up-to-date village.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

BULOW IS STILL RECOGNIZED AS GERMAN'S PILOT

Commish's Ruling May Void Paulino-Schmeling Bout.

MANAGER'S RIGHTS.

NEW YORK, April 12.—The Max Schmeling-Paulino Uzcudum match, which was scheduled as the first of the great outdoor boxing attractions of 1929, was virtually annulled by an unexpected ruling of the State Athletic Commission Wednesday.

In response to an inquiry from Paul Chairman Prehn, of the Illinois Athletic Commission, the New York board sternly reiterated its intention of continuing its recognition of Arthur Bulow as the sole manager of Schmeling.

Schmeling, who is now in Germany, has announced he will remain in Europe until the expiration of the Bulow contract unless some way is found to allow Joe Jacobs, an American manager, to handle his business. Bulow's contract does not run out until a year from next December.

Must Protect Managers.

In replying to Prehn, the local Commissioners said that Bulow is the only man who will be allowed to transact business for Schmeling in this State. Schemling signed a commission contract before he lost his heart to Jacobs, and the Commissioners have adopted the attitude that they must protect the rights of the managers as well as those of the fighters.

If Prehn accepts this ruling for Illinois, his lead will probably be followed by the commissions of other States where boxing is legalized. Prehn is the president of the National Boxing Association, an organization which controls boxing in over twenty States.

'QUAKE SHOCKS TERRIFY CITIZENS

For Third Successive Day Inhabitants of Italian Town Crowd Into the Squares.

BOLOGNA, Italy, April 12 (CP).—For the third successive morning, residents of this city were awakened and brought outdoors into streets and public squares by earth tremors. A fairly strong shock was felt at 1:36 a.m.

The squares today were filled with crowds of frightened people, many of whom nervous from the shocks stayed up all night and kept the lights burning so as not to be caught unawares by a recurrence.

A second shock was felt at 6:20 a.m. today. Thus far little property damage has been reported, with no casualties.

BOY SCOUTS ARE FETED AT BANQUET

Number 6 Troop Presented With J. John Hockey Trophy.

SCOUT LEAGUE TITLE.

Number 6 Troop of the Peterborough Boy Scouts, bright-eyed, teen-age boys and light-hearted young gentlemen, turned out 100 per cent of their corps at dinner in the Downyflake tearooms Thursday evening at which they received from the hands of its donor, the J. John Cup, emblematic of the Scout hockey league championship.

The Troop and its leader, Scout Master Ernie Wolfe, were heartily and perhaps a little wistfully congratulated upon their victory and their interest in their association by other gentlemen, who with the passing years and their responsibilities have not lost the clear, eager spirit of eternal boyhood. These men, some of them guests, were John A. McKone, president of the Peterborough Boy Scouts' Association; Joseph John, former president; John E. Sullivan, chairman of the No. 6 Scouts' committee; R. M. Glover, past president of the Ontario Hockey Association; H. Gainey and L. Sweetman, members of No. 6 Troop's committee.

Joseph Clancy delighted the boys with two songs.

President's Compliment.

Mr. McKone congratulated Ernie Wolfe on his "good-looking Troop" and their perfect attendance. "It shows that the boys have a deep feeling for their association and for the fine ideals which bind them together. I think they should be congratulated in their Scoutmaster. I don't think you could find any better than Ernie Wolfe if you searched the country over. I also wish to compliment the members of No. 6 committee on the encouragement they give the boys. The Boy Scouts is an excellent association. It tends to make men of the boys through and through. Sports, of course, are one of their activities and I am glad of the opportunity of congratulating Troop No. 6 on winning the hockey league honors."

"Precious Years of Youth."

Mr. Sullivan as chairman of the committee cordially welcomed the guests and said he was delighted to see all the members of the Troop present. "We are very glad to see the boys enjoying the precious years of youth," Mr. Sullivan said. "You have many privileges which we did not have at your age. We feel sure you appreciate those privileges, and we are confident that you will do your part. You are all looking forward to the camp this summer, and we shall have one of the best camps going out of Peterborough this year. Much is due to Mr. John and to J. J. Turner for the progress the Boy Scouts have made in this city. They have made many sacrifices for this work. I want to congratulate Ernie Wolfe and also Frank Taylor who is Scoutmaster of No. 3 Troop and also secretary of the Peterborough Boy Scouts' Association. The cup was won last year by Troop No. 5 (All Saints) and this year they were again in the final game, which was decided by the close score of 2 to 1. I wish to thank Jack White for the able manner in which he refereed."

Presented by Mr. John.

Mr. John, presenting his trophy, said, in part: "Last summer the Boy Scouts of Peterborough were treated to an outing at Chemong Park. Mr. Sullivan was the prime mover in that picnic and you owe him a great deal for the pleasure you had. To Troop No. 6 I wish to say that they are a credit to themselves and to their committee. They organized their Troop and have it in good shape. You organized a hockey team and you went out and won. I ask Mr. Wolfe to accept this cup, which is symbolic of your prowess on the ice."

Playing the Game.

Ernie Wolfe thanked Mr. John for donating the trophy to the Scouts of Peterborough, and said Troop No. 6 was proud of it. "We assure Mr. John that it was the aim of our hockey team to play the game fairly and not merely to win the trophy. We would like to congratulate Troop No. 5 for the game they played."

Mr. Wolfe expressed the Troop's thanks to the committee for the complimentary dinner.

An Ideal for Athletes.

Mr. Glover said he was delighted to hear Mr. Wolfe say that his team played the game for the game's sake, in a manly and fair way, and not simply for the winning of the prize.

"It's in the race and not the prize,
Glory's true distinction lies.

"I am very happy to be with the boys," Mr. Glover said. "I have a friendly feeling for Scout work and for all boys down to the little wee fellows. There is no greater work a man can engage in than helping a boy in business, in sport or in any of his efforts or needs. That we landed on our feet as well as we have is due more to good luck than judgment. Only good mothers and fathers helped us to where we are to-day."

Lessons From Defeat.

Mr. H. Gainey advised the boys to engage in some sport. "You will learn that you must be a good sport in defeat as well as in victory. In that respect Troop No. 5 showed what they were fine young sports. When you are looking forward to summer camp, don't forget your school work. You will get all the more pleasure out of camp if you have done well at school. For the next seven or eight weeks I don't think the Scouts should meet oftener than once a week."

Something Unusual.

Mr. Sweetman urged Troop No. 6 to try to increase its membership to at less fifty. "Mr. Wolfe has a fine troop and I wish to add my congratulations to them. A rather remarkable thing to me this evening was to hear praise for a referee. I played baseball quite a bit but I never heard anything like that. I heard more threats of 'kill him.' Any way, Mr. White must be a wonder to win praise as a referee."

Mr. John entertained the boys, young and not so young, with several readings and a final allegory depicting the beauty of the golden rule of character.

Personnel of the Troop.

And the committee is composed of Messrs. J. E. Sullivan, Harry Gainey (Sr.), Mr. L. Sweetman, and J. O. Bowen.

CLEVER WORK DISPLAYED AT BOXING SHOW

Rapid Fire Action Seen in Tournament Staged in Y.M.C.A. Gymnasium.

SEVEN BOUTS

First Tourney That Has Been Held in the City for Many Years.

A program of seven three-round bouts that sparkled with plenty of activity from gong to gong was dished out to the large crowd of fans in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium last night. This is the first time in several years that a boxing tournament has been arranged, and the full house that greeted the boxers attested to the fact that this city still holds a great many people who enjoy watching a clean cut exhibition of this branch of athletics.

The boys who took part in these bouts are in it for the love of boxing in itself, as they are paying for their tuition, and offering their services in the tournament free of charges, and the atmosphere of good sportsmanship that was very apparent throughout the evening among the contestants illustrated perfectly how much actual enjoyment can be derived from properly engaging in this line of sport.

Lesurf-Sturgeon.

The feature bout of the evening was between Reg. Lesurf and "Bim" Sturgeon, who exhibited more genuine skill and boxing ability than any other pair of contestants. These boys stepped into the battle with plenty of vim and gave the crowd a speedy exhibition of clever hitting and neat defensive work. Both are smart boxers, Lesurf having the edge in speed and accurate punching, while Sturgeon's superior condition was much in evidence in the third round.

Jones-Pepin.

R. Jones and M. Pepin, who were second on the program, were the most evenly matched pair in the tournament. Both seemed to favor straight left hand blows, which they exchanged smartly and effectively. Pepin was the neatest hitter, while Jones exhibited more actual boxing skill.

Laderach-Clayton.

Otto Laderach and Walter Clayton were the heavyweights on the bill, and waded into each other after Otto had forgotten his ring etiquette by poking Clayton on the nose at the handshake. Although some of the weightiest wallops of the night were handed out in this bout, it afforded both the spectators and the boxers a great deal of amusement. Clayton is the most finished boxer of the two, while Laderach's effectiveness lies in a straight left, which he unlimbers in Dempsey style with plenty of weight behind it.

TAYLOR—COPPING

W. Taylor and K. Copping were also very evenly matched, showing footwork that was very creditable. These fellows mixed it more freely and landed more blows than any other two boxers on the program. Taylor's speedy punching was a feature of this bout, Copping used his right hand more effectively than his opponent, and blocked very nicely, while Taylor's pet punch is a straight left to the jaw.

TENNIS CLUB JOINS LAWN BOWLERS.

It is announced that the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club will absorb the Peterborough Tennis Club. The tennis players were glad to throw in their lot with the lawn bowlers, since tennis has reached a low ebb, and it was felt that under the clear-sighted bowlers the game would be placed back on its proper strong footing. It is reported that the plans of the bowlers for the finest grounds in Eastern Ontario are being realized. The necessary capital is coming in readily, and an expert from Toronto, who built the greens of the Granite Club in that city, has been secured, and will set to work as soon as weather permits on the local property.

The boys in the South end of the city have always been prominent in sports, and there is a big future ahead of the Canuck Club.

GOOD BOUTS AT "Y" TOURNEY.

The Boxing Tournament at the Y.M.C.A. last evening was a great success. The students of the flying gloves showed that they have been tending to their lessons and stepped into each other in a lively style in every round. A little clumsiness was exhibited by some of the boxers, but they are all rugged boys, and with continued practise should develop a great deal. The best of sportsmanship and good fellowship was shown in all the bouts. It is to be hoped that there will be more of them in the near future.

WINTER SPORTS GO TO LAKE PLACID.

Canada put up a strong argument for the winter sports of the 1932 Olympic Games, which will be held on this continent at Los Angeles, California. It was thought by the International Olympic Committee that California was not the proper setting for the winter games, since weather conditions are not suitable. After due deliberation of Los Angeles, Lake Placid and Canadian claims, the committee decided that the winter sports will be held at Lake Placid. Canada's claims were not considered, since the United States had the priority claim on the sports, having been given the Olympic games in 1925. California is more than huffed on losing the winter sports, Lake Placid is jubilant.

McLEOD—DARLING

Hec. McLeod and Harold Darling gave the audience a taste of the unusual as McLeod favored infighting while his opponent was content to whip his punches in from long range but left his right jaw unprotected as a rule when he ducked. McLeod is a dangerous hitter, but will showed marked effectiveness if able to speed up his punches.

MORTON AND BRIEN

G. Morton and Brien, two C.G.E. boys who have had only a few lessons, showed promise of becoming very adept with the gloves. Morton had a decided advantage in height and reach and had the edge throughout the bout. Brian adopted a rather peculiar although very effective style of defence and used his left to advantage.

CASSIE—TOMPKINS

George Cassie and Tompkins were the lightweights on the bill and were not backward about landing the hard ones. Tompkins, who has only been in the class a few weeks, shows aptitude for the game that reflects credit on his trainer, while his opponent had the advantage of more training, which was quite apparent throughout the three rounds.

The bouts all consisted of three 3-minute rounds and were no decision affairs. Wilfred Jones acted as referee and Doug. Loomis was timekeeper. This tournament certainly taught everyone present that there is more to boxing than is generally attributed to the sport and the clean-cut exhibition and general feeling of good fellowship should entice many new members to sign up. The next tournament will be held on April 25 in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium.

UTILIZE WASTE COAL.

London, April 11.—In a lonely spot in South Wales, a carefully guarded experiment is under way in the conservation of waste coal, known as small coal or 'duff.' Rumors of the experiments are that the coal is being separated from the dirt and graded into sizes from small grains to "flour." The "flour" probably will be mixed with a heavy oil and used for heating.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

"Simba," the motion picture record made by Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, the famous explorers, during four years in the jungles of Africa, is at the Capitol Theatre this week and is one of the most exciting and thrilling films ever seen in this city. It holds not one dull minute from the time the Johnsons load the outfit for their long trek into the jungles up to the startling climax when half-naked natives, armed only with slender spears, surround and kill full grown lions.

Marching across the screen comes antelopes, giraffes, zebras, rhinos, hippopotamuses, herds of elephants, leopards — all the denizens of the jungle, just as they are at home. And they are photographed with a clarity and against such wildly beautiful backgrounds that the value of the film is wonderfully enhanced.

Among the outstanding features of the picture are the charge of the infuriated rhino straight at Osa Johnson, who is forced to shoot him to save her own life; the stampede of a herd of elephants, seeking safety from a jungle fire, the swarms of ugly crocodiles infesting the rivers that the party was forced to cross; the gorgeous shots of running giraffes, of speeding antelopes and zebras; perfectly marvellous flashlight photos of lions and leopards; and above all the scene which shows fourteen lions playing in a grassy glade like a lot of big cats.

One sees Osa Johnson shoot a charging lion that falls within twenty feet of her. This young woman, who evidently has no fear, calmly stalks some of the most dangerous animals to get them into places where her husband can photograph them.

But really the great kick is when "simba"—that is the native word for lion—makes himself a nuisance by killing off the herds of the natives, and the blacks, with only their spears, turn the robber into a pincushion, dodging his charges and hurling their spears until he falls dead.

"Simba" is a picture that should not be missed. It has thrills that are real, not of the Hollywood variety, and, more than that, it is a picture the like of which will not be seen for years and perhaps never again.

The vaudeville attraction consists of a sextette of clever Scotch musicians, the Jean McLeod Company, who play and sing and dance and tell jokes. They are arrayed in the kilts and the tartan, with feathered bonnets and plaid scarfs. To the music of the bagpipes, and the beat of the drum, they give Scotch dances and Scotch songs that include several of Harry Lauder's favorites.

A bit of odd agility is a skipping rope dance done by one of the members of the company, to the tune of "Old Folks at Home." Another odd bit of effective music on the pipes is the typically American tune of "Marching through Georgia." A sailor's hornpipe in costume is another light-footed dance number, and a tiny tot does a brisk little toe dance that gets her much applause. A stirring piping of "Highland Laddie," with the McLeods marching off in flying tartan, forms an appropriate closing to a typically Scotch act.

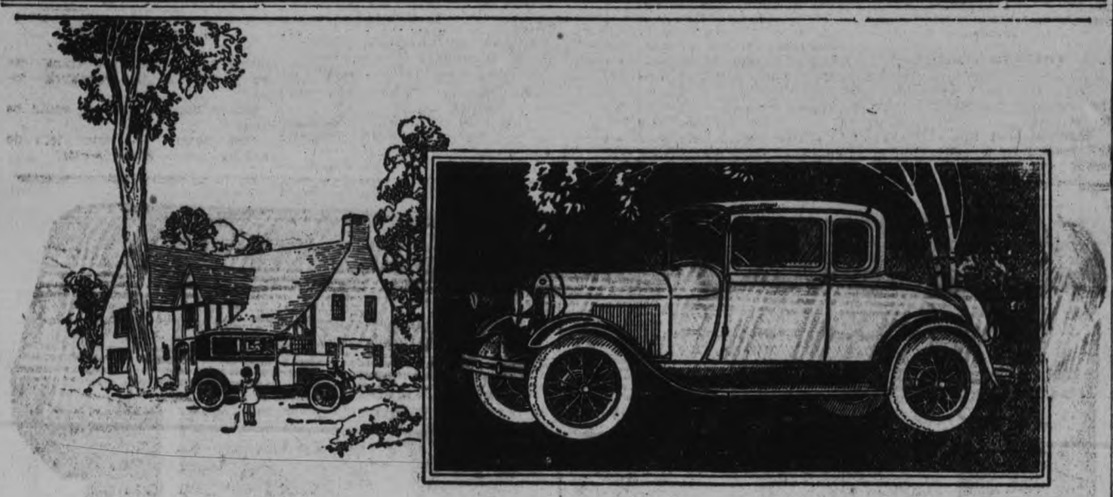
SEE LIFE AT ITS MOST MAGNIFICENT MOMENTS—IN THE MOST MAGNIFICENT SPECTACLE THE SCREEN HAS EVER GIVEN YOU . . . . !

Heralded as one of the biggest hits in years. Millions have paid $2.00 a seat to see it—now it comes to the Regent.

NOTE:—Due to the number of people who will want to see this great picture, kindly try to attend the matinee and the 7 o'clock performance.



Alert and Powerful

SUPERB action both in traffic and on the open road has won world wide demand for the Ford car. This great performance together with remarkable beauty of line and colour makes every owner of a Ford Car its enthusiastic champion. A short turn behind the wheel will explain such staunch pride of ownership.

¶Ask your Ford dealer to let you drive a Ford Car. He will be glad to take you out. Select the steepest hills, the heaviest going—you will be amazed at the power at your command. Make for the thickest traffic. Drive alongside other cars. Try the quick getaway, the swift pickup in second, the easy gearshift. Feel the smooth, sure action of the six brake system. A demonstration will convince you of the outstanding merit of the Ford Car. Drive it yourself, there is no better test.

Drive it Yourself—There is no Better Test

Ford Car Features

Choice of colours
55 to 65 miles an hour
40-horse power engine
Full balloon tires
Fully enclosed six-brake system
4 Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers
20 to 30 miles per gallon of gasoline
Shatterproof glass windshield
Theft proof ignition lock
Reliability and low upkeep

Enduring Quality—Power; ability to endure sustained high speeds; smooth operation of the remarkable Ford engine; quietness of the transmission and rear axle; ease and certainty of control; braking efficiency; acceleration and riding comfort—these are the result of quality inbuilt throughout the Ford Car.

Riding Ease—The unique Ford Car feature of transverse, semi-elliptic springs has much to do with its road tenacity, reducing the effect of body sway on rounding turns. Torque tube drive, an original Ford feature now adopted by a number of the more expensive motor cars, relieves the springs of all driving strain. Four Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers cushion road shocks and provide smooth riding even on rough stretches.

Time Payment—If you prefer to buy out of income, you will find the authorized time payment plan offered by all Ford dealers most attractive.

PAUL MELANGER STILL AT LARGE

Guards, After All Day Search, Fail to Find Escaped Convict.

MENTALLY DEFECTIVE.

GUELPH, Ont., April 12 (C.P.).—After an all-day search in the surrounding district of the Ontario Reformatory, guards failed to find any trace of Paul Melanger, Fort William, Ont., inmate of the psychiatric ward of the institution, who made his escape early Wednesday morning.

Melanger, who was confined in one of the rooms on the ground floor, ripped a light screen from the window and had been gone half an hour before his absence was discovered.

He was not classed as a criminal insane inmate, but a mentally defective. According to Superintendent G. F. Neelands, he had never shown signs of being dangerous.

INVITE OPINIONS ON ONSIDE PASS

C. R. U. Sends Out Copies of New Rule To All Unions and Clubs.

TORONTO, Ont., April 12.—At a recent meeting of the rules commission of the Canadian Rugby Union, one of the proposed amendments submitted to the commission was to incorporate in the present rules provision for an "onside or modified form of forward pass."

The commission feeling the proposed inclusion of this rule would mean an important change in the present system of play, did not care to take the responsibility of approving or discarding this suggestion without getting the opinion of those who would be most affected by such action.

After considering the matter the commission has drawn up what they think would be the best rule to govern this play providing the weight of opinion is favorable to its adoption. Copies of the rule have been forwarded to the secretary of each union affiliated with the Canadian Rugby Union with the request that he get an opinion from his union as to wether they are favorable or unfavorable to the proposed change.

TWO SEAPLANES COLLIDE.

ROME, April 12.— (C.P.)— Four men were killed to-day in a crash of two seaplanes manuvering near the Augusta seaplane drome.

The planes were at a height of 300 feet when they collided and were hurtled to the water in a tangled mass. The occupants of both planes were killed, namely one Lieutenant and three enlisted men.

If it's safe for us - it's safe for you!

WE ARE long-established new car dealers, and have responsibilities. We daren't take chances. To misrepresent the cars we sell would mean ruin to us, and we are in business to succeed. We adopt the safest policy—that of honestly representing the true value of every used car we have in stock.

They are all Good Used Cars. They have been reconditioned by first class mechanics. Many of them look like new cars and every one of them is worth every dollar asked for it.

Come around and see them. You needn't buy, but we guarantee that you will be absolutely safe in doing so. If it's safe for us to sell them—it's safe for you to buy.

Here are some typical bargains

DEPENDABLE USED CARS

IN MEMORIAM

DEGAN.—In loving memory of our dear brother, William E. Degan, who passed away four years ago today, April 12, 1925.

Cherished memories of one so dear,
Daily recalled by silent tears,
'Tis only those who have loved and lost
Can realize the bitter cost.
While you suffered we were sad,
Brothers, Sister, Mother and Dad;
We tried our best to ease your pain,
Praying for your recovery—but all in vain.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly, tenderly and true.
There is not a day, dear Willie,
That we do not think of you.
—Sadly missed by Father and Mother, Sister and Brothers.

IN MEMORIAM.

ALCOCK.—In loving memory of Leslie J. Alcock, who departed this life 3 years ago to-day.

Ever remembered by Father, Mother, Sister and Brothers.

"Safe in the Arms of Jesus."

IN MEMORIAM.

PAYNE. — In ever loving memory of my dear daughter Helen, who passed away on April 12, 1924:

Five years have passed since that sad day,
When one we loved was called away,
God took her home; it was His will,
But in my heart she liveth still.
—Inserted by her mother and father.

C.P.R. SERVICE IS AGAIN OPEN

Bridge Near Claremont Is Repaired After Recent Flood.

EXPRESS GOES THROUGH.

The first wheels over the re-built C.P.R. bridges which were washed out a week ago near Claremont on the Peterborough-Toronto division carried a light engine which was sent out as a preliminary test. This morning it was reported from C.P.R. circles that the work was a complete success and would be open to-day for the regular train services. The first train to go through was this afternoon's express from Montreal, and the first local since Friday evening, April 5th, will come through tonight from Toronto to Tweed.

Since the break in the line eight days ago, the C.P.R. passenger trains through Peterborough have been going only as far as Burketon Junction. People who have been clamoring for train news, especially last Saturday, Sunday and Monday, demanding from the local office news of the progress of repairs, are now informed that the Peterborough-Toronto line is itself again.

When the bridge went out early Saturday, April 6, the C.P.R. train to Montreal had just passed over. As the last coach went over the bridge it was felt to shake, and when the engineer stopped the engine and went back to investigate it was found the bridge had gone out.

Flyers Send Message Home

First Direct Word is Received From Southern Cross Airmen.

NEAR STARVATION.

First Inkling Is Given Of Suffering Which Crew Endured.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., April 13. (C.P.)—The first direct word from the missing airmen of the "Southern Cross," was received at Sydney today in messages signed by C. P. Uim, the noted pilot, whose few crisp words in the form of telegrams gave some slight inkling of the suffering which the crew of the plane has undergone since they were forced down on March 31, while en route from Sydney to Wyndham.

The message said: "We are returning to recondition the Southern Cross for the flight to England."

This was the first message signed by Uim. It was addressed to Chairman Garlick of the Sydney citizens fund through which part of the two weeks' search for the missing men had been conducted.

Thanks Citizens.

In this same message Uim asked Mr. Garlick to convey in behalf of himself, Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith and their companions, "Heartfelt thanks to the citizens of Sydney for all they have done for us."

The message was telegraphed from Derby, having been carried there by a Heath Airways plane, which made a landing near the Southern Cross, which was discovered yesterday near Port George. There was a dramatic meeting when the rescue machine landed near the stranded airmen.

After a short stay with the flyers the rescue plane returned to Derby, bearing the messages to the outside world.

A message from Pilot Uim addressed to his wife said:

"All O.K., but still very weak from starvation."

A third message was addressed to the parents of Captain Kingsford-Smith. It read:

"All O.K. Returning to Sydney for overhaul."

UNIFORM SYSTEM OF INSPECTION FOR MILK PRODUCERS IS ADVISED BY PRESIDENT OF DAIRY COUNCIL

Dairymen Are Warned Not To Antagonize the Dealers But Work Together.

UNIVERSAL PASTEURIZATION

Recommends Forcing Every Producer to Contribute to the Local Organization.

Discussion on ways and means of improving the quality and distribution of milk in this city and a talk by F. E. M. Robinson, president of the National Dairy Council, dealing with a cure for some of the ills most prevalent to the milk producing trade were the main features of the successful meeting of the local branch of the Dairymen's Association, held in the Paragon Hall last evening.

A uniform system of inspection for all producers of milk meant for human consumption; a warning to the dairymen not to antagonize the dealers but to work in harmony with them for the benefit of both; and to work for the aim of universal pasteurization of milk were the big points in the practical advice that Mr. Robinson gave the dairymen

"A city man who has made good on the farm," was the way in which H. B. Cowan referred to Mr. Robinson, as an introduction. It was stated that Mr. Robinson had a herd of jersey cattle numbering two hundred, the second largest herd in Canada, that he was an expert on farming and milk production and that he was one o fthe Dairymen's Association had a that is drafting the model dairy low for the Dominion government.

Stating that the organized branch of of Dairymen's Association had a big job on its hands without trying to fight the dealers, because both parties were essential to the other for the conducting of the dairy business, Mr. Robinson went on to outline some of the important work awaiting the efforts of the local branch.

Benefits For All

He first advised that more producers in the district should be signed up by the organization, saying that some men were willing to derive the benefits without taking an active part in securing them.

Outlining the best possible plan for the raising of the necessary finances for the running of the organization, the speaker said that the money should be taken from the milk cheques of the producers, paid by the dealers, non-members and members alike. This would cause all to take an active interest, since all were contributing their share.

The speaker stressed the fact that the milk producer who is selling a high quality of pure milk must obtain a premium in the way of a better price for his milk or he can not continue to produce it. The usual premium in this regard was said to be one cent per quart. Unless some premium for his extra care is realized the produced naturally drifts back to the uncleanly, less-expensive way of producing or takes his milk to the larger cities where it does command higher price, because of its quality.

Milk Clean and Cold

The biggest necessity for the milk was said to be clean and cool, and the arbitrary number of regulation that are aimed to bring this condition about were not favored by the speaker.

"I have yet to meet a body of farmers who object to inspection if all are inspected the same," declared Mr. Robinson emphatically. It was stated that the farmers did become angry at dire inspection for a few and no inspection for the others.

Pasteurization was said to be the only guard against some of the germs that caused disease in the people who drank the milk. The speaker declared that universal pasteurization would work out for the benefit of all and that the public would pay for the extra precaution. In this regard the speaker spoke from experience when he stated that the producer who peddled his own milk earned the little extra that he got on its sale. Conditions were gradually working toward central distribution and this, it was said, would work out to the benefit of the men in the industry and the welfare of the public.

One Dollar, New Fee

That the fee from the dairymen selling milk to local dealers be one dollar; half of this to go to Ontario Dairymen's Association as in the past and the other half to go toward defraying the expenses of the local branch, was the motion passed at the meeting.

W. J. Moore, cheese instructor for this district, reviewed the great strides made under the local organization of cheese makers last year. He stated that the cheese making industry requires good milk even more than did the city, since every part of the milk was used in the cheese making. "All that is needed is clean and pure milk and plenty of it, said Mr. Moore, when he referred to the confusion caused by the government advice to farmers on the care of milk.

Three Small Children And Maid Are Burned

KALAMAZOO, Mich. April 13 (CP.).—Three small children of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy M. Curran, and a maid were burned to death early to-day in a fire which gutted the Curran residence. Curran barely escaped the flames as he rushed from the house for help.

Mrs. Curran is in a hospital here and was not told of the tragedy. The children, John, 2; Marilyn, 4, and Clair, 6, apparently had attempted to escape, their bodies having been found on the floor of their bedroom on the second floor.

PRISONER SAYS HE SAW PARKS

Much Wanted William Montgomery Is Arrested By City Police.

BOUGHT LARGE CAR.

It was 21 years ago—he is thirty-nine now—that William Montgomery committed his first act of theft in Peterborough, was subsequently arrested by Detective S. J. Newhall, convicted and served his term. The day before yesterday he came back to Peterborough with a string of aliases and an equally lengthy list of warrants for his arrest marking his travels, purchased a liquor permit, did some drinking, and was arrested by Sergeant Wigg and Constable Thompson of the city police force when he attempted to escape through the window of a well known place near the corner of Aylmer and Brock streets. One of the contributing factors in his final downfall was a worthless cheque for $1,500 which he almost succeeded in passing on a local motor car dealer in exchange for a large sedan car. Montgomery has become a cheque artist beyond the ordinary, and a number of samples of his work now in the hands of Chief Constable Newhall attest to the versatility of his penmanship.

Saw John Parks.

While the story of his adventures is something distinctly unusual, his declaration that "I saw John Parks about two weeks ago, down in Western Ontario" was perhaps the most unexpected statement that he made

ALLIED EXPERTS HAND GERMANS BILL FOR REPARATION DAMAGES

24 BILLION DOLLARS.

French Circles Claim Submitted Plan of Annuities Represents Sacrifices.

PARIS, April 13. — (Canadian Press).—The reparations experts of the Allied powers, who have been studying revision of the Dawes Plan to-day handed the German delegation the allies' bill for reparations for damages incurred in the Great War.

Actual bargaining between Germany and the reparations creditors for a final settlement of the last remaining financial question between them will begin in earnest on Monday.

The amounts which the Allied powers still expect Germany to pay were put before the experts this morning in a formal document setting forth a plan of annuities which was said in French circles to represent considerable sacrifices by the reparations creditors.

Read in English and French

The document was read both in English and French in the famous tea room of the George V. hotel which, without comment or discussion from any direction, it was decided to adjourn until Monday morning at eleven o'clock when a detailed discussion of the plan and figures will begin.

The experts have kept the actual figures a close secret. But there

Department Of Justice Refuses Comment On Action Of Trial Judge At Cochrane

OTTAWA, Ont., April 13. — (C.P.) — The Department of Justice declined this morning to make any official comment on the refusal of Mr. Justice Wright, at the trial for murder of Pertelli Rinta-Konno, to accept a verdict of "not guilty" brought in by the jury. At the department, it was was pointed out, that the administration of justice is a Provincial responsibility, and not a Federal. The function of the Judge in a trial, it is stated here, is to see that justice is done. If a judge on the bench feels that a jury has not been true to its oath, and has rendered a verdict which is not in accordance with the evidence placed before it, the opinion expressed here is that the judge has a right to take steps which will result in justice being done. In the case of the Cochrane murder the net result is that the accused will be given a new trial. Another jury will review the evidence and a verdict may be reached which judge [illegible] as jury will feel satisfies the ends of justice.

Australian Boys Pay Visit To Toronto

TORONTO, Ont., April 13 (C.P.)—The 160 Australian college boys on a visit to Canada and the United States left this morning by motor busses for Guelph, where they will be the luncheon guests of the Ontario Agricultural College. Afterwards they will inspect the college, the purpose of their tour being "education by observation," as well as the fostering of goodwill.

Returning to Toronto late this afternoon, they will proceed to Hart House, University of Toronto, where they will be the guests of the City of Toronto at dinner.

The Australians will conclude their visit to Toronto next Wednesday. Meanwhile an elaborate program for their entertainment has been arranged.

BRITISH BUDGET COMING MONDAY

Wing of Conservative Party Has Been Demanding a Forward Policy.

THREE WEEKS SESSION.

LONDON, April 13 (By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent). — Parliament meets again on Monday for its last brief round. Three weeks or so are likely to see the end of it, and the battle joined at the polls. Practically the only business remaining of importance is the Budget which the Chancellor of the Exchequer will submit on the opening day. And the Budget is a statement which all parties will closely scrutinize for on the Budget may turn issues of the election.

For some time a Conservative wing has been demanding a more forward policy for the polls, a policy which would at the same time offset the Labor campaign for nationalization and the Lloyd-George unemployment scheme. They illustrate their argument with Conservative by-election losses. They take the ground that the Government's de-rating scheme, while excellent in itself, lacks in magnetic appeal to an electorate which has difficulty in understanding it, and contend that to point out the fallacies of nationalization is not enough —there must be some concrete and positive policy for the future.

Sound Battle Cry.

And it is here that the coming Budget enters the scene. For there is a widespread belief that in his Budget speech Right Hon. Winston Churchill will sound the Conservative battle cry, that he will indicate an election program which the Prime Minister will later elaborate. For that reason Mr. Churchill's speech is awaited with more than usual eagerness. His Budget will announce a large revenue surplus, although this is already earmarked for the rating relief suspense account. But what secrets will it also reveal? Development of Empire trade, a permanent scheme for meeting unemployment, widened plans for Empire migration—these and other forecasts all appear from time to time in the columns of political prophecy. But so far the Government has not shown its stand.

MAPLE SYRUP IS IN DEMAND

EGGS 23 TO 27.

Produce was fairly plentiful on the farmers' market this morning. Vegetable of the staple variety were priced at the usual run, and maple syrup was the chief center of interest on the outer market. It sold at 70 and 75 cents a quart.

Little pigs were $6 apiece.

In the basket section, butter was generally quoted at 43 cents a pound and hens 28 to 30 cents. Eggs in different grades were quoted from 23 to 27 cents a dozen.

Much discussion, in which nearly all present took an active part, was a feature of the meeting toward the close, and new light was thrown upon many knotty points.

E. Butler, the president, occupied the chair, and brought back a report of what had occurred at the recent convention of the dairymen in Toronto.

Schooner Carried Big Liquor Cargo On Her Last Trip

Five Members of Crew of "I'm Alone" Arrive in Montreal En Route From New Orleans—Captain of Ill-fated Rum-Runner Not With Party.

ACCORDED FIRST CLASS TREATMENT WHILE IN NEW ORLEANS JAIL STATES WILLIAMS

One Sailor Claims Vessel Was 25 Miles Off the Coast When the Chase Began and 225 Miles When It Sank.

MONTREAL, Que., April 13 (Canadian Press). — Five members of the I'm Alone crew, including Mate John Williams, of Halifax, arrived in Montreal to-day en route from New Orleans to their homes. J. T. Randall, captain of the ill-fated rum-runner, was not in the party.

The men were met here by a Montreal man and hastened away from newspapermen and photographers. Reporters who had boarded the train at a suburban point, had a brief chat with the men, who were decidedly taciturn.

John Williams said that the treatment accorded the men in jail at New Orleans was "first rate." They had been allowed all sorts of privileges and any food they wanted.

He said that there were 2,800 cases of liquor aboard the ship when she sank, and that they were at least 25 miles off the coast when the chase began. They were 225 miles from the coast when they sank, he said.

He declared that under no conditions would he ship with the captain again, but refused to amplify the statement.

James Barret, a Montrealer, criticized the crew of the United States Coastguard vessel which sank the I'm Alone for delay before attempting to pick up the crew after the vessel had gone down. He paid tribute to Leon Mainjoy, of St. Pierre, Miquelon, who was drowned. "He was one of the finest men God ever made," he exclaimed. "It makes us all mad when we think of his wife and two kiddies."

The men who arrived to-day were John Williams, mate, James Jensen, and Chesley Hobbs, all of Halifax, Edouard Fouchard, St. Pierre, and James Barrett, Montreal.

JURY NAMES SLAYER

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., April 13 (C.P.).—A Coroner's jury here last night named Joe Masaduct, also known as Joe Puia and, "persons unknown" as responsible for the death of Victor Gualtieri, who died following a stabbing affray. The evidence showed that 15 stab wounds had been inflicted and that the victim before his death said he had been attacked by two men, one of whom he named as Masaduci.

J. C. MILLER, ORILLIA TO ADDRESS SPECIAL OLD HOME WEEK MEETING

Orillian Made Great Impression Here Several Weeks Ago.

ADDRESSED KIWANIS CLUB.

Thursday, May 2 Has Been Set As Date For Big Gathering.

J. C. Miller, of Orillia, manager of the splendidly successful Old Home Week there, will visit Peterborough to address a public meeting on Thursday, May 2, probably in the Collegiate Hall. The place of meeting will be definitely announced later.

Mr. Miller made a great impression a few weeks ago when he addressed Kiwanis Club on the subject of conducting a reunion. Many members of the Old Home Week committee were present as guests of the Kiwanians, and so enthusiastic were they that on Thursday evening they authorized one of their number to open negotiations with Mr. Miller for a return visit. He generously consented, when approached yesterday, to come and tell the Peterborough public the possibilities Old Home Week holds.

Not only has Mr. Miller a fine grasp of the problems of Old Home Week, but he has a wealth of wit, and his addresses sparkle with humor. No one who can possibly arrange to be present should miss this meeting.

From Calgary

William James Bourne, Suite L, Connaught Apts., Calgary, Alta., left Peterborough in 1905, and is now department supervisor with the T. Eaton Co. His wife was formerly Roxie Florence Edmardson. He resided at 231 Rink street.

"There are very few places that I have visited that can come up to the old town for beauty," says Mr. Bourne.

The French warship was escorted by the United States cruisers Marblehead and Cincinnati. They met the Tourville off Nantucket lightship.

ROSS DAVIDSON IS PRESENTED WITH DIPLOMA

Judge Huycke Makes the Presentation of the Certificate of Royal Humane Society.

SAVED GIRL'S LIFE.

"A boy of 16 did what the Knights of King Arthur would have been proud to do," declared His Honor Judge Huycke at the Confederation School last evening. The occasion was a concert arranged by the Home and School Association, at which the Royal Humane Society's Certificate for life saving was presented to Ross Davidson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hebron Davidson of Morrow street. H. B. Rye, Reeve of the township of North Monaghan, discharged the duties of chairman. In his opening remarks the reeve referred to the main purpose of the gathering—the honoring of a young man who had performed an act which had resulted in the saving of a life. He had not done it thinking or expecting to receive a reward, but merely to render assistance to someone in danger. This deed of bravery had been duly recognized by the Humane Society, and the Certificate sent by this society was to presented at this gathering.

Part way through the program the chairman introduced His Honor Judge Huycke, and Ross Davidson was called to come forward. His Honor said he felt greatly honored at being asked to be present on such a momentous occasion. Occasions like this were rare, and the large assembly was present to show honor to one who had performed a conspicuous act of bravery. The speaker congratulated the reeve and township on their splendid and spacious school, which he had not before had the privilege of visiting. He would, however, congratulate them even more, on having in their midst a young man of such heroic character as their young friend here. "We read with pride of the Knights of Chivalry," continued His Honor, "those who bravely helped others in danger and trouble, but a boy of sixteen did what the Knights of King Arthur would have been proud to do." Ross did not think of a reward; only of rendering assistance to someone in danger. His Honor recounted the incident which took place in June 1927, when the bravery of the gallant youth was called forth in the saving of the life of Margaret Denny. The speaker referred to the modesty of the young man regarding the publicity of the whole affair. After reading the certificate, His Honor handed it to the recipient and thanked him personally. He said the whole community owed a debt of gratitude to him, for life was the most valuable thing we possess.

Become Heroic Men

Heroic boys usually become heroic men, and His Honor would venture to prophesy for him a future which would always find him ready to perform brave and manly deeds. This was not the first occasion when their honored friend had saved a life; a similar incident had occurred in Ottawa where Ross with his family formerly lived. Miss Denny was unfortunately unable to be present.

The certificate read:

"Royal Canadian Humane Association. Patron, His Excellency the Governor General of Canada. Honorary Testimonial. The committee on awards having considered and reported thereon, The Royal Canadian Humane Association has unanimously resolved that Ross Davidson is justly entitled to this Honorary Testimonial of the association, awarded for prompt action and presence of mind in the rescue of Margaret Denny, from drowning in Otonabee River, Peterborough, Ont., June 27, 1927." Here followed the signatures of the officials of the association: "Dated at Hamilton this 6th day of March, 1929."

Witness At Impeachment Trial Testifies Mrs. McPherson Made Visit To Art Colony

SACRAMENTO, California, April 13. — (C.P.)—The "kidnapping" of Aime Semple McPherson, the evangelist, nearly three years ago, had an airing yesterday in the impeachment trial of Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy, before the bar of the State Senate, when Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Stelaff, once known as the "Miss X" in the alleged abduction investigation, testified of dealings she had with the accused jurist in an effort to protect the name of the woman pastor.

Mrs. Wiseman-Stelaff, who arrived only yesterday morning from Seattle, told the Senate she produced, under an arrangement with Hardy, the woman who "posed as Miss X" in the McPherson kidnapping case. The evangelist had been accused before a Los Angeles grand jury of having made a romantic visit to the Artists' Colony at Carmel, Cal., with her radio operator, Kenneth Ormiston, at the time she declared she was held a captive by kidnappers in Mexico.

The witness also testified she was positive Mrs. McPherson and Ormiston went to Carmel together, because both the evangelist and her mother, Mrs. Minnie E. Kennedy, had told her so.

Judge Wright Refuses to Take "Not Guilty" Verdict

Accused Will Stand Trial a Second Time For Murder in Fall

Judge Wright Refuses Jury Acquittal of Murder Charge at Trial in Cochrane—Members Are Sent Back to Re-consider Decision and Then Report Disagreement.

YOUNG FINNISH IMMIGRANT WAS ACCUSED OF SLAYING FELLOW FINN IN DRUNKEN BRAWL

Authority On Criminal Law Is Unable To Find a Precedent For the Case—Judge Is Known To Have Refused a Verdict Of Guilty On Murder Charge.

COCHRANE, Ont., April 13.—(Canadian Press).—The jury at the second murder trial held at the spring assizes here reported a disagreement late yesterday afternoon, but only when its members had deliberated for two hours after they had been sent by the judge to reconsider an early verdict of "not guilty." The accused, Portelli Rintakonne, Finnish immigrant, who came to Canada last August, was remanded in custody until the next assizes, after Mr. Justice Wright had discharged the jury.

The accused who does not understand English, was brought back into the dock four different times before the case was disposed of, so far as the present sittings are concerned. Rinta-Konno was accused of killing Julius Niemi, fellow-Finn, in a drunken brawl at South Porcupine on the night of Nov. 11, which chanced also to be the prisoner's twenty-first birthday.

Retiring at 12.05 p.m., the jurors returned into court three and a half hours later, when, in answer to the usual question by the clerk, the foreman, R. M. Peel, Kapuskasing, announced the verdict as "not guilty."

"Gentlemen of the jury, I do not propose to accept the verdict," said Mr. Justice Wright, and he sent them back to consider again the evidence placed before them. More than an hour and a half elapsed before the twelve good men and true came back again, this time to ask a question.

"Is it correct in a case of this kind" inquired foreman Peel, "to warrant a verdict of manslaughter, that the accused's mind must be a total blank?"

"Well, hardly to that extent" replied the judge, "the mind must be in such a condition that he had no appreciation of what he was doing."

Another half hour passed, and then disagreement was reported. The jurors were discharged and the case formally traversed.

TORONTO, April 13. — A Supreme Court jury at Cochrane yesterday returned a verdict of "not guilty" after hearing the trial of one Portelli Rinti-Konno for murder. Mr. Justice Wright, presiding, refused to accept the acquittal and sent the jurors back to reconsider the case. The result was disagreement and the case has been traversed until the next assizes.

To say that the news of this action declared to be without precedent, startled Toronto's legal profession is no exaggeration, while one of the highest authorities in the province on criminal law, whose name cannot be quoted, thought the defendant had been given ground for appeal.

"I would doubt that it is within the power of the judge to refuse such a verdict," he declared. This establishes what seems to be to be direct appealable grounds. If it were my case I would at once appeal.

He stated that the action of the judge in refusing a verdict of acquittal in a capital case was without precedent as far as he knew.

"The only case at all parallel that I know is that of Rex versus Buckley," stated the lawyer. "A man was tried nearly forty years ago in Toronto for the murder of a woman named Bertha Usher. His name was Thomas Buckley, and he was tried before the late Chief Justice Sir Thomas Galt. The jury brought in a verdict of murder, but his lordship refused to accept this and sent it back for a verdict of manslaughter. He then sentenced Buckley to five years in the penitentiary."

"There was quite a newspaper sensation over this case," he added "and as a result the man was called back and given fifteen years. He died in Kingston.

"In that case the judge refused a verdict of guilty on the charge which the man faced," he continued. "In the present instance, apparently, the judge refuses the acquittal."

GREY BATTALION HOLDS RE-UNION

FITTING TRIBUTE PAID.

TORONTO, Ont., April 13. (C.P.) — Memories dear to the hearts of every man, were revived when seventy old-timers feasted, conversed and sang away the early hours of last evening at the first annual banquet and reunion of the Toronto Association of the 147th Grey Battalion at the Hotel Victoria.

In bodies they were living to-day—in memories, yesterday. The first days of early training, of drilling on the streets of Owen Sound, of formation on the market Square, of the defaulters' squad drills in Riverside Arena, of little pranks played on one another—all of them vivid memories, came back as each one talked informally around the festive tables.

There were other memories; memories that were sad—of fallen comrades. Fitting tribute was paid to those who had given their lives for King and country, and for freedom, by Rev. Captain R. A. Spencer, of Dundalk, a former officer of the battalion, who proposed the toast to "our Fallen Comrades."

"To-night we have memories, not faces; the thought, but not the form. Just the same they are still with us, and their names will never fade. I regret that we as a battalion were unable to reach the line as a single unit. It would have been easy for some of us to die for our country, but a greater job has been left for some of us—to live for it."

TO SEEK EXTRADITION.

HAMILTON, Ont., April 13 (Canadian Press). — Word was received here from Toronto last night that Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General, had decided to take action in the H. D. Petrie case, and will take steps to have the former Hamilton lawyer extradited.

STRONG OPPOSITION IS FOUND TO MANY OF THE TARIFF CHANGES REVISIONS KEENLY DEBATED

U. F. A. Group Inquires About Excise Tax On Sales of Motor Cars.

CORRESPONDENCE TABLED.

Hon. R. B. Bennett Criticised Attitude of Government in Treating Crayon Manufacturers.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 13 (Canadian Press).—Discussions of the tariff changes occupied most of the time of the House of Commons yesterday. Frequently pointed interchanges enlivened the afternoon and evening sittings but on the whole the proceedings lacked the interesting developments which characterized the day before.

Members of the U.F.A. group last night wanted to know whether the Canadian Automobile Producers who in 1926 promised to pass on to the consumer the benefit of the discontinuance of the five per cent. excess tax on Canadian-made cars up to $1,200 in value, were keeping their agreement.

Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, tabled in the House replies he had received from a number of automobile firms assuring him that purchasers were getting the advantage in the price of their cars. However, some of the firms had not replied.

Stearic Acid Item.

The item which placed stearic acid on the free list when entering Canada for the manufacture of candles or crayons, brought on criticism from Conservatives. A company manufacturing crayons, Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader, explained, had asked for increased protection on their products in order that they might complete successfully with firms in the United States. Instead of granting the increase, the Minister of Finance was allowing them to bring in one of the ingredients free of duty. "This was not mentioned in the hearing," Mr. Bennett said. "Is this method of compromise to be adopted? The amount involved is small, but the method is one of far-reaching consequences. It represents the difference between the Liberal party and the party with which I am associated." He claimed the Government was willing to make a compromise for power without regard to the welfare of Canadian industry.

Platinum Wire.

The item to place platinum wire, platinum bars, strips, sheets or plates on the free list was also contested by Conservative speakers, who claimed that as Canada was one of the few countries producing this precious metal, encouragement should be given by means of protection to the refining of it in this country.

General A. E. Ross ((Conservative, Kingston) said that ever since he had entered the House he had been pleading with the Government for consideration of the ore industry.

He had particularly in mind the treatment of feldspar in Canada, and urged that the Minister of Finance should take action so as to afford necessary protection against foreign competition in the treatment of feldspar in this country. The item then carried.

A further item to put chronometers and compasses and parts thereof, on the free list, passed with little discussion.

Coroner Conducts Inquest Into Death of Mrs. Ruth Reynolds.

DRIVER GIVES EVIDENCE.

BRIGHTON, April 13. (C.P.) — The jury inquiring last night into the death of Mrs. Ruth Reynolds, killed on the Provincial highway east of Brighton on April 4, found that she came to her death as the result of the collision of a truck with the car in which she was riding. The truck was driven by W. Stivers of the Quinte Transportation Company. The jury added a rider that the Provincial government be requested to pass a law limiting the speed of trucks on the highway to 25 miles per hour, an dalso that truck drivers be not aske dto drive continuously more than 10 hours.

Stivers in his evidence stated that as he tried to pass a car that was travelling just ahead of him at the time of the accident, it stopped suddenly and he was not allowed time to swing back before striking the car that Mrs. Reynolds was riding in. He stated that his speed was not over 27 to 30 miles per hour, but other witnesses who saw the truck before the collision stated it was doing close to 50 miles per hour, and driving on the wrong side of the road for a distance of 400 feet.

GASOLINE EXPLODES.

ROSENEATH, Ont., April 13 (Examiner Correspondence).—Two boys were injured, and several others learned a severe lesson in carefulness yesterday, when one struck a match and applied it to an empty gasoline drum in the fair grounds. There was sufficient gas in the drum to explode with a detonation that was heard all over the village. One boy suffered injury to his leg, another was burned, and all were more or less singed.

The accident occurred just after school, when the boys were playing. Dr. Hershey was quickly on the scene and gave medical assistance.

WOMAN STRUCK BY MOTOR CAR

Mrs. McCoy Receives Deep Gash On Right Side of Forehead—Shoulder and Wrist Broken.

BRAKES PASS TEST.

Walking quickly across Charlotte street near Rubidge to greet her son, Mrs. McCoy, R. R. No. 5, Peterborough, suffered serious injuries when she was hit by a car driven by Edward McBride, at 7.30 last evening. Her injuries included a deep gash on the right side of her forehead and her left shoulder and wrist broken. She was immediately attended by Dr. D. W. Clarke and Dr. J. A. Morgan, and was later removed to St. Joseph's Hospital by ambulance.

It is understood that Mrs. McCoy had alighted from one of the busses at the corner of Rubidge and Charlotte street. She then walked a very short distance along Charlotte street, when she saw her son, Hugh Anderson, across the street, and made her way across the road to him. The bus had to stop to allow Mrs. McCoy to go in front of it. She had reached the street car track when she was hit by the car driven by McBride and carried twenty-seven feet.

McBride, who is a licensed chauffeur, was driving his father's car and his brakes passed the police inspection after the accident.

ARTHUR CUTTEN BEING HELD UP IN HOTEL PLANS

Project May Fall Through if Property Owners Will Not Reduce Price.

CONSTRUCT STORES.

Wanted To Make An Immediate Start on the New Hotel.

GUELPH, Ont., April 13 (Canadian Press). — Arthur Cutten, Chicago multi-millionaire, reiterated last night that he would not be "held up" in his plans to present a luxurious hotel to his native city.

If negotiations for surrender of four certain leases are not successfully concluded on reasonable terms and conditions, Mr. Cutten will drop the whole hotel project definitely and permanently. Mr. Cutten is staying in the city until Sunday for further conferences with his solicitor, C. L. Dunbar, K.C.

"I will not consent to be held up just because I am regarded as able to pay,' 'said Mr. Cutten emphatically in an interview in the office of his solicitor.

"In the event that the leases are not obtainable on reasonable terms, I will construct a group of stores along the whole frontage up to the Rowen property and on the other side of it, and if that step is decided upon it will go through, and the hotel project will be abandoned for all time." Mr. Cutten spoke positively of the subject. There was no hesitancy in declaring his wish and readiness to make an immediate start on the structure. It has long been one of his ambitions to help his native city, and this may seem to him most feasible and to contain greater possibilities for permanent benefit than any other.

Thus the big proposal hangs in the balance. Mr. Cutten recognizes the fact that the tenants are entitled to compensation for the closing of their premises for a period long enough to permit of the erection of the new hotel, and is prepared to deal reasonably with all.

On motion a vote of thanks was given to the hostess and the young ladies who took part in making the meeting interesting and successful.

A delicious lunch was served and the usual social hour was spent.

The annual meeting held in May will meet at the home of Mrs. Delbert Brisbin.

Haliburton Trapper Treed By Wolf Pack

LINDSAY, April 13 (Special to The Examiner).—A wolf story with all the thrills of a movie epic comes from Haliburton county. Simon Bowers, a trapper, whose home is in Bancroft, had occasion to visit his trap line a few evenings ago. While travelling through a swamp he was confronted by two wolves which showed little signs of being the least bit timid. Having no firearms, Bowers took refuge in a tree, and to his surprise in a very short time four more of the prowling beasts of the forests joined their brave companions who kept watch at the foot of the tree. There are more comfortable quarters than roosting in the branches of a tree, but Mr. Bowers was quite satisfied, and spent the night there with the pack of wolves keeping close watch, and made no attempt to vacate until the morning.

CANADA LEADS IN THE MAKING OF ALL CHEESE

THREE SPECIAL GRADES.

English and Scottish Cheddar Product Brings Top Market Price.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 13.—(Canadian Press).—Canadian cheese enjoyed a premium of approximately 1½ cents a pound over all other cheese imported into the British market last year. "There is a justifiable pride in this achievement" said Dr. J. A. Ruddick, Dominion Dairy Commissioner, in a recent address "because it is a real achievement to beat the world in any line of effort, but I suppose the jingle of nearly two million dollars of solid coin which this premium represents in the pockets of the cheese producers of this country, is the thing that really matters."

Figures laid before the Agricultural Committee of the House of Commons recently indicate that the position this country obtained not only at the top of the world's market but with a lengthened lead over previous years, was the result of increased efficiency all along the line. It began with the farmers who raise better cattle and take better care of their milk. It continued with the cheesemakers, the graders, and other agencies until the cheese reached the markets of Great Britain.

Three Special Grades.

Canadian cheese is graded into special, number one, number two and number three. During the past year over 93 per cent of all the cheese made in Canada graded special or number one. The cheese on the average was the finest Canada ever produced. The following table indicates how the quality of the cheese has advanced since grading was inaugurated in 1923, and it might be explained in this connection that the grading last year was the stiffest, because the men engaged in the business have become more effeicient as they gained experience:

Year	Boxes graded	Per cent Special or first grade
1923	1,458,129	78.0
1924	1,584,359	84.7
1925	1,895,122	85.9
1926	1,845,581	86.3
1928	1,567,182	93.1

Eastern Ontario, the district from Kingston to the Quebec boundary, produced over one third of last year's total. It had 558,400 boxes and 95.88 per cent of this graded number one or special. Western Ontario, the portion of the province west of Toronto produced 174,945 boxes but this district led the province in regard to quality with 97.72 grading number one or select. The details for the other parts of Canada have not been worked out yet.

Cheddar Cheese Leads.

While Canadian cheese leads all the cheese brought into Britain it does not fetch as high a price as the English and Scottish cheddar cheese. There is a difference of about 3½ cents a pound. The production of cheese in the British Isles however is steadily falling off largely because of the greater use of milk for other purposes and many think the cheese making industry over there will almost disappear. Canada stands the best chance of any outside country to supply the demand usually provided from the factories of the United Kingdom and special efforts are to be made to produce cheese of the so-called "fancy" variety in Canada which will meet the tastes of those in Britain who in the past have looked for quality regardless of price.

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

WHAT strange words these are! "Age after age, Lord, thou hast been our home; from all eternity thou hast been God, ere ever hills were born, ere ever earth and world were made. Thou crumblest man away, summoning men back to the dust, thou to whom a thousand years are like the flight of yesterday, like an hour passing in the night. Year after year thou sowest men like grass that grows anew, that in the dawn is fresh and flourishing, and by the twilight fades and withers. For under thine anger we perish, we sink in terror at thy wrath; thou dost expose our sins and layest our guilty secrets bare; our days droop under thy displeasure, our life is over like a sigh. Our life is seventy years at most, or eighty at the best; it is a span of toil and trouble, soon over and we flit away. Yet who weighs the full weight of thy displeasure? Which of us dreads thine anger? Oh, teach us so to count our days, that we may take it to heart."

A Wintry Landscape.

What a picture! In parts we seem to be looking upon a wintry landscape which is locked in the grip of snow and frost and ice. The whole outlook is bleak and uninviting, and within our heart there arises a longing for clear skies, balmy air, and the feeling that summer is nigh. As we gaze we are impressed with the brevity of human existence upon the earth. Life is carried away like so much driftwood on a sudden flood. The life of man upon this earth is bounded by a morning and an evening, and these are never far apart. Lying in between, you have anger, wrath, iniquities, secret sins. In the morning, like growing grass, with the withering process commencing almost immediately and soon ending in the death of an early evening.

High Sounding Nonsense.

What pathos! "Oh, teach us so to count our days, that we may take it to heart." That is an occupation that few care to engage in. We think of a student at school, or an accountant at his books. The idea seems to be that of a man taking stock of life and finding it a problem which gives pain to the heart. There are many people still with us who are far more impressed with the drawing of the cork than with the contents of the bottle. High sounding words are often no more than the clothing of an anemic mind. You may frame the picture painted in this Psalm in high sounding poetry till you lose sight of the picture in beholding the frame. But after such folly has exhausted its resources it will still be as cheerless as a cemetery mantled in snow with all the mourners gone. I am quite ready and willing to admit that it is not pleasant to contemplate, but I am convinced that such contemplation will be profitable for all who will engage in it. Life for too many is empty, aimless, worthless, tragic! For all such, death will spell destruction and despair.

This Psalm is ascribed to Moses. Israel had been delivered from the bondage of Egypt so that they might be free to enter and take possession of the Promised Land. This land, which was said to flow with corn and wine, was but a short journey from Egypt if a straight course had been followed. Yet, for forty years, they wandered in a circle within the wilderness. Unbelief is always costly. We may keep on going, although living in a condition of unbelief, but it will not be a going forward—at the best, it will be moving in a circle. Our best possessions are often so near in the purpose of God and yet so far because of the perversity of our own hearts.

Land Of Corn And Wine.

This is believed to be one of the oldest of all the Psalms. It has been described as the most sublime of all human compositions. In it is to be found the deepest feeling expressed in the most exquisite language. It is magnificent in its imagery. Given "the faculty of mental creation" wedded to a truly devout spirit, and it would be easy to annihilate the centuries and transfer ourselves back to that far-off period and place. We are with this strange people on their desert march. We can see the desert streams, which soon dry when the rains have gone and the sun has come. It is night! The night-watch has been set in the camp, and a brief rest is being enjoyed by this journeying people.

The Most Exquisite Human Language.

The Psalm bears all the marks of old age. If it was written when we think it was, it must have been old when Homer sang. Yet there is a timelessness about it that permits it to fit into every generation no matter how modern or up-to-date that generation may imagine itself to be.

Will It Always Be Just Like This?

In it human life is set forth as troubled, transitory, transgressing. Troubled: "For under thine anger we perish, we sink in terror at thy wrath." Tansgressing: "Thou dost expose our sins and layest our guilty secrets bare." Transitory: "Our days droop under thy displeasure, our life is over like a sigh." Everywhere there seems to be death! You can hear the mournful music of a funeral dirge, the tolling of a funeral bell. Man is supposed to have advanced—and he has in many senses! His creature comforts are greater than they have ever been. He knows more of luxury than he has ever known. Education is more accessible to the masses than it used to be to the classes. Medicine and surgery have worked wonders in the world. But with all our advance, our knowledge and our scientific skill we have not been able to effect any change in the wages of sin. Death still lays its cold grip upon young innocent life. It respects not ability or wealth. It has no regard for old age. It has placed a mortgage on every human body and nothing that we can do will prevent it from foreclosing. That law has not yet been repealed. "The soul that sinneth it shall die."

No wonder the Psalmist in great soul agony cries, "Oh, teach us so to count our days, that we may take it to heart." Or, as the more familiar version puts it, "So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom." Not many are disposed to engage in such a task. The one thing most people refuse to face is the brevity of human existence upon the earth. There may be two reasons for this. The uncertainty of the count probably deters many from setting themselves to the task of trying to figure out how long life is likely to be. Who has any guarantee of the future? Very often the most unlikely go first for that journey through the valley of the shadow of death. Another reason may be the inevitableness of death. We read that it is appointed unto men once to die. That is an appointment we all must keep whether we want to or not. Proxy plays no part in this affair. It is not at all pleasant to contemplate. We are mostly disposed to dodge the disagreeable, and so find it easy to be preoccupied with more pleasant things than the thought of death. That is one reason why the motto of so many is, "Let us eat, drink and be merry."

Applying Our Hearts Unto Wisdom.

"So teach us to number our days!" It would be well for more of us if we made that our frequent prayer. Not simply to take the measurement of human life, nor consider the chance of survivorship—but take the measure in relation to the work that still remains to be done. Seeking first a sense of the Divine Presence, with a heart that is hushed and a spirit that is subdued, consider your diminishing opportunities and make adequate provision for eternity.

A Prayer Well Worth Our Attention.

"Our life is seventy years at most, or eighty at the best." Think, as you make a simple division of that possible but by no means probable number of years that you have to work with! Set aside five years of infancy and you may have sixty-five left. From sixty-five, subtract one-third as spent in sleep, and the figure drops to forty-three years. Five hundred and sixteen little months! And don't lose sight of the fact that seventy years is not the average span of life. At the best it is but a breath. Over it there glows a heaven. Under it there burns a hell.

Easter Has Brought a Glorious Change.

A strange form of punishment used to be practised by an European State many centuries ago. The one to be punished was put in a beautiful house. It was finely furnished. There were priceless pictures adorning the walls. Glorious music was provided in the music room and books, both interesting and valuable, made up a splendid library. Delicious food was regularly served. At first the prisoner wondered what strange form of punishment this could be. Then one day he realized that the walls of the house were contracting and that it would only be a question of time before death would be his lot. This old story is a parable of life.

It is wisdom to wend your way to the Cross. It is wisdom to put your trust and confidence in Christ. And you will know that it is wisdom at last, when by His grace you stand in heaven.

We may well thank God that the melancholy strain of this Psalm, due to the incessant funerals and the aimlessness of the desert marchings, has been largely transformed into the radiancy of a glorious landscape by the resurrection of Jesus Christ and the warm light of the Easter morn.

Praying Saints

THE Holy Spirit will give to the praying saint the brightness of an immortal hope, the music of a deathless song, in His baptism and communion with the heart. He will give sweeter and more enlarged visions of heaven until the taste for other things will pall, and other visions will grow dim and distant. He will put notes of other worlds in human hearts until all earth's music is discord and songless.

If in His gifts and benefits, God were more sparing and close-handed, we should learn to be more thankful. The very unbroken continuity of God's favors causes us to lose sight of the Giver, and to for-

Bible Difficulties and Personal Problems.

1. Is the Church not at fault in failing to use unleavened bread at the Lord's Supper?

THE COST OF GOVERNMENT.

The Citizens' Research Institute announces that the combined per capita cost of government in Canada, as arrived at by a study of the finances of seventeen representative Canadian cities, is still moving upward.

The combined per capita cost for these seventeen cities ranges from $55.41 to $122.34, with an average of $94.87, as compared with $94.18 in 1926 and $94.36 in 1925; and this average would be still higher were deficits on Federal trading enterprises taken into consideration.

The institute finds that the general trend of per capita governmental costs, while exhibiting some slight variations, still continues the evening up process across the Dominion, which has been in evidence now for some years.

Western cities generally have had decreased per capitas year after year from their high peak, while Ontario, Quebec and Eastern cities still show no definite signs of having reached the peak of per capita costs.

This may be accounted for to a large extent by reason of the filling up of areas in Western cities already provided with improvements, while in Ontario and Eastern cities, where new improvements are required to take care of added population, such increase has brought in its train increased per capita costs.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS SOCIETY.

The coast to coast appeal of the League of Nations Society in Canada for a larger membership in this organization deserves to be enthusiastically answered.

The society's aims and objects should commend themselves to all Canadians.

It exists to promote the cause of international peace, to keep the people of this country supplied with information in regard to the League of Nations, to stimulate a better understanding between Canadians and the people of other nations, and to establish branches throughout Canada that will foster these objects.

These are objects that need only to be emphasized to command support.

It is obvious that public opinion in all countries forming the membership of the League of Nations must be behind that great experiment if it is to have a chance to succeed, and a larger membership in the League of Nations Society in Canada will materially help to popularize the organization and secure for it the support that is essential to final success.

The campaign will be held on Tuesday next, and it is to be hoped that when the returns have all been received the League of Nations Society in Canada will be able to report the enlisting of thousands of new members throughout the Dominion.

THE MINING SURVEY.

The geological survey of Peterborough and Hastings Counties, announced by Hon. Charles McCrea Minister of Mines, to take place this summer, will be appreciated by many residents of the district who have maintained that mineral wealth exists in the northern part of the two counties and that early investigations were hasty and ill-organized.

The inquiry to be launched by the Government will decide whether or not this confidence in the possibilities of the district from a mining viewpoint is justified.

Should the survey uncover any promising fields there will be far-reaching results so far as the prosperity of Peterborough and this whole section of Ontario is concerned.

It is the opinion of many people that extensive deposits of commercially worth-while ore can be located by modern methods, that the long since abandoned gold properties may yet yield rich returns, and that there exist deposits of copper, lead and magnetite that should be scientifically and thoroughly explored.

If these predictions are verified as a result of the activities of the Provincial Department of Mines, this district will become the centre of a new and profitable industry that will bring wealth and prosperity to Eastern Ontario.

Hon. Charles McCrea is to be congratulated upon his decision to thoroughly investigate the entire territory, and the findings of the geologist who will make the survey will be awaited with keen expectation.

THE HOSPITAL BY-LAW.

The anxiety of the Nicholls Hospital Board to modernize Nicholls Hospital and provide the additional accommodation that they point out is urgently needed, is another indication that Peterborough is growing and developing.

Hospital accommodation that was sufficient to the needs of the community a decade ago will not suffice to-day.

In hospitals, as in paved streets and parks and municipal services generally, it is necessary to keep abreast of the times.

The cost of civic government increases with demands for increasing municipal functions and services; it is inevitable that this should be so unless we are satisfied with conditions as they are and can content ourselves with doing without what other communities consider not only desirable but necessary.

The by-law to authorize the issuing of debentures to cover the cost of Nicholls Hospital improvements is in line with the general trend throughout Canadian cities.

Those who have had the responsibility of directing the affairs of that institution feel that the present plant is inadequate to meet the needs of the community it serves, and they are asking for assistance to provide what they conscientiously believe is necessary in the best interests of the people of Peterborough.

The whole question should be thoughtfully considered by the ratepayers in the light of present needs and future requirements in the matter of hospital accommodation in Peterborough.

TOURIST POSSIBILITIES.

One of the notable features in Canada's commercial development in recent years has been the increased attention and active aid directed to building up the country's tourist trade. The Department of the Interior has long been closely associated with this phase of our national economic life; its investigatory work relative to the development of the natural resources of the country places it in a position to supply valuable information along the line of tourist inquiries and to issue material that promotes the development of tourist travel. For a number of years the department has been conducting a vigorous campaign to bring Canada to the attention of prospective tourists and to extend tourist business as a constructive public activity that contributes largely to the national income and development.

That this work is bearing much fruit is evidenced by the fact that tourist travel is fast becoming one of the important industries of the Dominion. The growth of the traffic is most strikingly indicated by the increase in tourist automobile entries. In 1928 a total of 3,645,455 tourist cars entered Canada, as compared with 3,153,800 in 1927, an increase of upwards of 500,000 cars. The expansion of tourist travel to Canada via railway and steamship lines has been remarkable in recent years, and while it is officially estimated that the value from all classes of the traffic reached $242,754,000 in 1927, reports from reliable sources throughout the country indicate that this expenditure was far surpassed in 1928. Briefly, tourist travel brings to Canada an income comparable with the value of either the country's pulp and paper or mineral production.

As already pointed out, the work of developing tourist traffic fits logically into the general work of the Department of the Interior. But the department is not alone in this feature of Canadian development. The railway and steamship companies have played a very important part in directing attention to tourist attractions, particularly along their respective routes. Well organized provincial and local tourist bureaus have also been active.

With such magnificent and varied natural scenery combined with ideal summer and autumn conditions and accommodation to meet the requirements of practically all classes, Canada offers the vacationist an unlimited range of attractions, each having a strong appeal. The natural advantages which the country holds for the canoeist, the camper, the motorist, the angler, or those seeking recreation and health, are unique. Each year increasing numbers enjoy the scenic beauty of Canada's vast lakeland districts, her forested areas and majestic mountain ranges, which are surpassed by no country in the world.—Ex.

AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE FOR LEGAL LIABILITY.

A great many insurance policies on automobiles are falling due about now and owners are appreciating with a shock certain increases that were announced a few months ago. The only rates affected are those covering "legal liability for bodily injuries and death" and "legal liability for damage to property of others." These rates have gone up fifty per cent.

The Ontario Government made an announcement that it was going to hold an investigation into this matter, but so far as we have seen no statement has been issued since.

It is the general public, those who do not own automobiles as well as those who do, who seem to be affected most by this great increase in the cost of insurance. And in this way. When automobile owners get their new bills and discover the increased cost of insurance against legal liability, it is probable that a very large number of them will drop this part of their policies and retain merely those applying to loss of the automobile only.

Against quite a large proportion of owners of motor cars the public has always had no redress; there are many from whom nothing could be collected by people injured by their cars. To increase that number by making the cost of insurance for legal liability more expensive, almost prohibitive in some cases, is a serious thing. We ought to be working in the direction of compelling every owner of a motor car to carry insurance to cover legal liability; instead, we are working in the opposite direction.

To make matters worse, it probably could be proven that the owners who carry insurance to cover legal liability for accidents to others are themselves the most careful of drivers and least likely to cause accidents to others. It will be generally agreed that the fellow who buys a much-used car with more or less defective brakes and other equipment is often the most reckless driver on our streets; he has nothing to lose and he can, therefore, afford to be reckless. It is the broken-down truck or the decrepit flivver of accident vintage that, driven by an irresponsible driver, dashes across street intersections and turns corners on high without thought of consequences.

The Journal sincerely hopes the Ontario and Quebec Governments are going into this matter very seriously. It is evident that there are going to be a great many more cars of all kinds on our highways this year than there were last, and that number will go on increasing. It looks as if compulsory insurance by law is a necessity—perhaps insurance carried by the Government itself and issued with the licenses of automobiles. It has been argued that such compulsory insurance against legal ability might make for still more reckless driving, but that seems hardly possible among those likely to avail themselves of the opportunity. Anyway, pedestrians as well as the occupants of cars have the right to demand that if they are injured—deprived of ability to earn their livings and put to expense of doctors and hospital bills—as the result of the careless acts of automobile drivers they shall be able to collect damages from the offenders.—Ottawa Journal.

Peterborough may yet find herself in the mining belt.

It is now up to motorists to show that they were right in advocating the rescinding of the no-left-turn rule, and they have no chance of doing that if they do not exercise reasonable care and caution.

The daylight saving argument will grow warmer with the weather as May 3 approaches.

Hon. Dr. Manion and the Government shared the honors on the last day of the Budget debate.

Out of 400 motorists stopped by a traffic officer 50 had no operating license. The regulation does not seem to have enough teeth.

Saving deposits in Canadian banks decreased seven millions in February, which sounds like a lot of first payments on new cars.

A Thought

A MISER.

Old Time, in whose banks we deposit our notes,
Is a miser, who always wants guineas for groats;
He keeps all his customers still in arrears
By lending them minutes and charging them years.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

THE CHAMPIONS

This fellow walks, that fellow runs,
And people call them champions,
And yet I'm never much impressed.
This fellow ran a mile at best,
And though it tires and though it wears,
It wasn't up and down the stairs.
You talk about a champion—
How many miles has Mother run?

That fellow walked across the land
From coast to coast, you say. That's grand.
That's farther than from stove to sink,
From front to back, you likely think,
And vastly harder to endure,
You likely say. But I'm not sure.
He may have bunions on his feet,
But Mother has his mileage beat.

And Dad some walking has to do,
Some coming from and going to,
Although no sporting pages hail
The party with a dinner-pail.
But, if you want to see a spring
That's quite a sight, just take the hint,
Get up some morning where you are
And watch Dad catch a trolley-car.

You pay a dollar now and then
To watch some skinny runner, when
At home your father leaps about,
Your mother carries dishes out.
What say we all stay home tonight
And really get this matter right,
While fifty million shouting sons
Cheer Pa and Ma, the champions!

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

CHAPTER XIII

Mollie was late for lunch.

"I've been wondering what had happened to everyone," she said in the privileged, scolding way of an old servant. "Nobody in but me and Master Robert."

She alone of all the household never called Hambledon's son "the General."

"A heathenish name given to the dear lamb by a heathen," so she protested indignantly.

"Isn't Mr. Hambledon in?" Mollie asked quickly. She felt relieved. "Well, we won't wait lunch, we'll have ours."

She went up to her room and Ellen disappeared kitchenward muttering something about "Me waiting here with a hot joint and all——" Mollie shut the door of her bedroom and threw her hat down on the bed. She stood for some moments staring blankly before her, then quite suddenly she began to cry.

"I think life is hateful, hateful," she sobbed passionately. Mollie always blamed life for her own mistakes, and this morning for the first time she had dimly realized that perhaps her friendship with Ralph Mahon had been unwise.

It had grown at such a rapid and unexpected rate. Before she could realize it she had found that an ordinary acquaintance had turned into something which she was incapable of keeping within bounds. From being an extremely courteous admirer, Mahon had become masterful and possessive.

As a man he did not attract Mollie, but he had played upon the strings of her vanity with kilful fingers and had gratified her wish for expensive gifts until now she was terrified at the extent of her own liabilities to him.

They had parted excellent friends that morning and he had told her not to worry. He had told her to forget the money she had borrowed from him and that it had been his pleasure and delight to help so charming a lady out of small unimportant difficulties.

"But I shall have to; I must pay you back," Mollie had insisted. Mahon shrugged his shoulders.

"Very well. At any time convenient to you," he had murmured, and Mollie had kept an appalled silence, knowing full well that such a time could never come.

"And he would kill me—or Ralph!" Mollie thought in despair. She was secretly rather thrilled at the possibility of rousing her husband to passionate jealousy; she loved sensation of any kind. Her tears were only those of self-pity.

Hambledon was not a rich man. Nobody knew better than his wife what a struggle it had been to reach even their present state of prosperity. Five hundred pounds would be almost as difficult for Anthony to find as it was for her.

"Something will turn up," she tried to assure herself. "Something always turns up."

But her indebtedness to Mahon was not the only thing that distressed her; there was another unpleasant memory which was not so easy to dismiss.

Coming back along the cliff path that morning Mitchell, Phillis Mahon's maid, had overtaken and passed them.

Mollie disliked Mitchell and feared her.

"She makes me shudder," she had often told Ana. "There is something uncanny about her. She walks so silently, too, like a cat hunting a bird."

She had said something to that effect to Mahon after Mitchell had wished them a respectful good-morning and gone on her way.

Mahon had only laughed.

"Nonsense! the woman's perfectly harmless. If she wasn't so useful to Phillis I wouldn't keep her about the place, I admit. She gets on my nerves, but as for anything else——"

"I don't believe she is half such a fool as she pretends to be," Mollie had protested nervously. "And I am sure she hates me."

"Hates you! Why on earth should she hate you?"

"Because she is so fond of Phillis," Mollie said.

"Oh, I see!" Mahon laughed amusedly. "Well, there is no need for you to worry. I am perfectly capable of managing a dozen Mitchells." But Mollie was not so confident.

Supposing the woman had deliberately followed and watched them? Supposing Phillis had sent her?

Mollie knew well enough that Phillis was jealous of every woman to whom her husband paid any attention.

The tears flowed fast down her cheeks, but they were not tears of regret, but only tears of rage that she could not bend Fate to her will.

She heard a car coming along the road, and a moment later drawing up at the gate, and she hastily dried her tears and bathed her eyes. Now there would be Ana and Anthony to face, and Ana was so observant even Anthony had long enough ago lost interest in his wife's tears. Perhaps seven years had taught him exactly how much or how little they were worth.

"It's all his fault, anyway," Mollie defended herself bitterly. "If he'd been different, more loving and attentive, none of this would ever have happened."

What she really meant was if he had been richer, but Mollie was never honest with herself.

A moment later Anthony called to her from the little hallway.

"Anyone in? Lunch is waiting."

Mollie went slowly downstairs.

She did not want to meet her husband and she did not want any lunch; she did not want anything. She was thoroughly wretched in the way that a spoiled child is thoroughly wretched if for once its will is crossed. Anthony and the General were at the table alone when she entered the room. Mollie stopped in the doorway.

"Where's Ana?" she asked blankly.

"I left her at the hospital. She's coming back by train after lunch, and going up to town to-night by the six o'clock," Anthony answered calmly. "Drake's rather bad, and she wanted to stay with him."

"I knew there was something between them," Mollie said triumphantly. "If there wasn't she wouldn't be so attentive to him. I didn't believe her when she told me they had only met once before."

"Does it matter either way?" Hambledon asked.

"She's not behaving well to us at all," Mollie scolded. "Running away at a moment's notice and leaving me."

"My dear girl, you talk as if she were a paid servant."

"Well, it hadn't cost her anything to stay here. She's only suited herself," Mollie snapped.

She always got unpleasant when she was seriously upset.

Hambledon made no answer but he coloured a little with annoyance.

"I wish I could go with Auntie Ana," the General said wistfully.

"Well, then, you can't," his mother snapped at him. "And don't speak when you're not spoken to."

The morning had seemed like a dream. He and Ana had said so little, and yet it had meant so much.

Ana had tried to avoid direct conversation, but once outside the town Anthony had turned the car into a side lane and stopped the engine.

"If you are going back to London to-night we have got to have this thing out," he said determinedly.

"What's the use? There's nothing to say," Ana protested wildly. "I behaved like a fool last night. I was upset and silly—if you were a sportsman you wouldn't remind me of it."

"Remind you of what? That you love me and that I love you. Don't be a coward, my dear."

And suddenly she had given in.

"Very well; what do you want to say?"

He had sat with his arms resting on the driving wheel, not looking at her when he answered.

"Last night after you had gone to bed, I thought the whole thing out, Ana. I don't know why it has been allowed to happen. I'm not a man who likes trouble. I'm not a man who has gone about looking for—well, for affairs with women. I never looked for this. It just happened before I knew it and it can never be undone. I suppose I ought to have behaved like the approved hero of a novel and not said anything to you about it, but that was impossible, and I'm glad I told you. But you knew without being told, didn't you?"

"Yes."

He turned his head quickly, looking down at her, and she smiled, though there were tears in her eyes.

"It seems so silly," she tried to explain stumblingly. "When I am with you alone it doesn't seem possible that you are really married—it seems somehow as if—as if——"

"If it wasn't for the General," he broke out hoarsely.

"Yes—if it wasn't for the General," Ana agreed, and then for a moment they were both silent. It was Ana who spoke first, trying to hide her distress.

"And so in the words of the old song, 'You will go back to your life, and I shall go back to mine,'" she said with an attempt at levity. "I used to think those words were so silly, but now—I don't. You will go back to Rhodesia—how many miles away is it?—and I shall go back to Wimbledon, and turn into an old maid devoted to good works like Aunt Hilda—and all this will seem like a dream—if we—ever—meet again."

"We shall meet again."

Ana cried out fiercely:

"I hope we never shall. It's not fair—I've never had any real happiness until now, and now—now——"

"You would have been happy with me, Ana?"

She could not answer, and he urged again:

"Say you would have been happy with me. Don't let's deny one another the few memories which will be all that is left to us."

She turned away from the pain in his eyes.

"It would have been—Heaven," she whispered.

THE PAPACY AND MUSSOLINI.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—The Commonweal (Catholic) of New York contains a studied analysis of the treaty between His Holiness and Mussolini by a special writer, and it may be taken as authentic. The treaty will surprise many since the emphasis which the Pope has laid upon his spiritual independence has induced him to give away many of his time-honored rights. For example, the Pope makes no claim to the city of Rome which he agrees shall become the capital of a united Italy. In return for that he is given precisely the independence enjoyed by ambassadors in foreign countries. The territory comprising St. Peter's and the Vatican, consisting of about 120 acres, becomes the papal state, the laws of which will be administered by Italian civil judges. It is evident that the Pope has laid no stress whatever on his temporal sovereignty, but has relinquished much in order to preserve his spiritual independence. He has not even provided for the trial of priests by church courts (called for centuries the "benefit of clergy"), and has relinquished any condition that there may have been by which Italy was ruled by the canon instead of the civil law.

The aloofness of loyal Italian Catholics towards the Italian state will now be changed into a hearty co-operation. This will strengthen Italy immensely. The Pope also recognizes the King of Italy. Hence the coldness of their relations also has been completely removed. It also removes the hostility of Catholics throughout the world towards the kingdom of Italy, a most notable international gain. The treaty, unlike a concordat, which is a treaty with one country, is on behalf of the whole Catholic world.

Non-Catholics in Italy may still continue to be married by a magistrate, but the canon law prevails for Catholics who, if they wish to remain Catholics, must conform to it in matters of marriage. An Italian bishop, on appointment, will now take this oath: "Before God and on the holy gospels, I swear and promise to respect and to cause my clergy to respect the King and the Government established by the constitutional law of the state. . . ." Catholic children are to receive religious education. Non-Catholics are exempt from any obligation in that respect. To sum up it may be said that for the purpose of devoting the church to the greater spiritual welfare of mankind the Pope has given up all his century-honored rights, privileges and exemptions as independent of and above a state. It is without doubt the most wonderful and the most inspiring change in the course of human affairs, perhaps, on record.

IMPERIAL OIL SETS NEW HIGH

Registers Net Gain of Six Points On Toronto Exchange.

GENERAL LIST DULL.

TORONTO, April 13.—(Canadian Press). — A spectacular upward movement in the oil group provided the only interest in an otherwise dull session on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. Trading was practically monopolized by the oils, while price changes on the rest of the list were insignificant. A heavy demand for Imperial Oil sent the price flying to a new high for all time, at 119½. The close at this figure showing a net gain of 6 full points. Imperial new advanced 1¼ to 30¼. After opening at 48¾, British American climbed up rapidly to 51¾, an increase of 2¾ points, while International Petroleum had an appreciation of 2 points at 57. Canadian Oil was up 1½ at 71½. Service Stations equipment closed at the morning's high of 80 for a net gain of 3½ points.

The rest of the list contrasted sharply with the activity in the oil group. International Nickel was very quiet, closing ¼ point higher at 48¼. Hayes Wheels at 58 and MasseyHarris at 70¼ were 2 and 1 points stronger, respectively. Lake Superior was up 1½ at 24¼, while Moore and Seagrams were both stronger.

Canadian Industrial Alcohol sold off 1¼ points to 35½, while Page Hersey lost a point to 128 and Canners Second Preferred 2 points to 22¼.

MINE LIST HOLDS FIRM

PEND OREILLE SLUMPS.

TORONTO, Ont., April 13 (Canadian Press). — Prices leaned toward the softer side on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day, though marked changes were isolated. Trading was quiet, with total sales reaching only 452,000 shares. Pend Oreille, which was selling ex-rights, slumped to a low of 7.75, the close at this figure showing a net loss of 1.50. Noranda broke 70 cents to 52.60, while McIntyre lost 45 cents to 18.55. Lake Shore at 26.25, and Sudbury Basin were off 25 and 15 respectively.

With the exception of Home which was 1.00 higher at 22.25, the oils were all easier. Associated dipped 45 cents to 5.05, while South-West Pet. was off 25 at 5.00, and Maryland 25 at 8.00.

LEAD ISSUES LOSE GROUND

Industrial Section Suffers Setback On Heavy Week-end Profit-taking.

COPPER PRICES DOWN.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 13 (Canadian Press).—Extreme dullness characterized to-day's brief session of the stock market. Price movements were extremely irregular, but many of the leading industrial issues lost ground on heavy week-end profit-taking.

Although definite signs of credit improvement appeared in the closing days of the week, Wall Street was still disturbed by the possibility of a temporary stringency incidental to the heavy mid-month turnover of funds. Heaviness of some of the popular industrials was attributed to liquidation by large operators who had bought those stocks for a turn earlier in the week.

Further selling came into the copper shares as a result of the recent downward readjustment of the red metal prices. Whereas nearly all of the leading coppers were making new high records a few weeks ago, when copper prices ran up to 24 cents a pound, Cerro De Pasco to-day sank to a new low level for the year, and most of the others sold 10 to nearly 35 points below the year's highs.

Local Butcher Is Slightly Injured

Though he escaped with comparatively light injury, Albert Wright, butcher at Fitzpatrick and Geraghty's Aylmer street store came within an ace of losing the sight of an eye about noon yesterday. To-day it is badly swollen and sore.

Mr. Wright had carried in a quarter of beef, and when he set it down, a part of it struck a row of butcher's knives on a ledge nearby, causing one to flip up and strike him, causing a cut to his eye lid and bruising the eye-ball. He was attended by Doctors Howson and Cragg, and is back at work this morning.

BENEFIT CONCERT IN LEGION HALL

Capacity Audience Greets Performance—Excellent Program.

A capacity audience greeted the performers at the benefit concert held last evening in the hall of the Canadian Legion when an excellent program of song, instrumental numbers and readings was given. Captain James Abraham was in the chair and Colonel T. J. Johnston acted as vice chairman. There were many encores for a splendidly varied entertainment and especial enthusiastic applause was awarded the efforts of T. Staziker, who was heard in vocal solos and monologue. His work called forth several encores and was much appreciated.

During an intermission, Captain Abraham spoke with much appreciation of the services rendered the Legion in the past by Mrs. R. Bugg and the manner in which she had given time and untiring loyalty to the cause of returned men and to other good works which had received her attention. A real debt of gratitude was due Mrs. Bugg for the many services rendered by her to the returned men and their dependents.

The program opened with a selection by the Salvation Army Quartet, followed by a piano solo by Miss Edith Wallwork; a vocal solo by Alfred Marshal, tenor; a reading by Mrs. G. H. Rowe and a vocal solo by James G. Browne. Miss Minnie Allen was heard in a vocal solo, and S. Thomson gave a Highland dance, accompanied by Piper D. Milne. T. Staziker gave several vocal solos and monologues, and Ted Markham, versatile comedian, rendered several well-received numbers.

W. Thomson gave some Lauder impersonations; John Smith, baritone, was heard in vocal numbers, and Miss Jessie Pattison, contralto, also contributed a number and encore. Miss Minnie Allen sang with violin obligato by Miss Winnie Wallwork, Mrs. Wallwork played mandolin selections, and Mrs. Poole gave piano numbers.

VERSAILLES IS DESCRIBED BY MISS M R RANNIE

STARTED IN 1624.

The fascinating subject of "Versailles," that monument to the extravagance of the self-styled "Sun King," was the basis of the paper given by Miss M. R. Rannie to members of the Women's Art Association, at their meeting held yesterday afternoon in the studio of the Conservatory of Music.

The speaker was introduced by the president, Mrs. W. Blackwell, who also voiced an appreciation of the delightful paper, at its conclusion.

Miss Margaret Widdess opened the program with two splendidly-played piano numbers, Schuett's "Etude Mignonne," and a "Gavotte" by Glauzonov.

At the conclusion of the paper afternoon tea was served.

Versailles.

The historic Palace of Versailles, called by Voltaire, an "abyss of extravagance," and situated eleven miles distant from Paris, was originally a hunting box, built in 1624 by Louis the Thirteenth, evolving later, in the hands of Louis the Fourteenth into one of the world's magnificent wonder spots.

One writer estimates the cost of Versailles at one hundred and forty millions of dollars. Water for its scores of fountains had to be brought from one hundred miles away and at one time, thirty-six thousand men and six thousand horses were employed in the construction of its roads. It proved eventually to be the downfall of France. Louis the 14th set a pace which Louis the 15th, dying a state of boredom and satiation, lived up to, and from which the ill-fated Louis the 16th and his queen, Marie Antoinette, reaped the harvest.

1,400 Fountain Jets.

In the gardens at Versailles, there are fourteen hundred fountain jets, which play from May to September at a cost of $6,000 an hour. The waters are pumped into immense reservoirs cleverly concealed in the roofs.

There are marvellous inlaid floors and furniture, a vast number of works of art and in busts and statues of historic characters, bronzes, vases and stone figures of nymphs and dancing fawns.

In 1669, the general plan of Versailles was enlarged by Louis the 14th and the half-finished plans were demolished The historic Hall of Mirrors, which runs across the back of the palace, was built in 1684 and has in it thirty scenes depicting the reign of Louis the 14th. It is two hundred and forty-four feet long, thirty-four feet wide and forty-two feet high. Each of the seventeen windows is placed opposite an arch of mirrors. There are white damask curtains embroidered in gold and a profusion of precious ornaments. Many of the grand pieces of silver were removed after the Revolution Here, in 1855, a Grand Fete was held in honor of Queen Victoria, and in 1870, when the Germans entered Versailles, an iron cross of Prussia was placed of an altar there.

In 1710 a wonderful white chapel was consecrated at Versailles.

The king's bed at Versailles was made of solid silver and there were many beautiful things in silver and cut glass, in Florentine marble, in jasper and agate and ebony.

In the Throne Room or Salon of Apollo, the throne of silver, eight feet high, was supported by four silver figures of children, and had crimson velvet hangings and a Persian carpet.

The Petit Trianon

To accommodate his entourage, Louis built two extra pleasure palaces, the Grande and the Petit Trianon. In the latter, Marie Antoinette and her ladies lived an ideal existence, dressed in simple frocks and straw sun hats, removed from the more vivid atmosphere of the Grand Palace.

Two great painters, Le Blanc and Lemoine, were represented in the wonderful paintings of Versailles. In the Salon of Hercules, the great court ballroom, all the gods of Olympus were represented in one hundred and forty-two figures painted by the latter, but he was so ill-repaid by Louis for his work that he took his own life.

The ceilings and paintings in the Hall of Mirrors caused much irritation in Europe against France, as they pictured Louis in attitudes of triumph over the other crowned heads.

When the "Sun King" died, clouds gathered about Versailles. Louis the 15th hastened the end by his prodigal habits and the weak and vacillating Louis the 16th was unable to cope with the stern circumstances in which he found himself. It was from Versailles that the King and Marie Antoinette were taken to the Tuilleries and later, to the guillotine.

Many of the costly fittings were removed from Versailles and sold or placed in the Louvre. The historic palace then became a school and museum. Napoleon never fancied Versailles and it became later a museum of art.

"To-day," said Miss Rannie, "it is a place of memories." After the American Revolution, it was the scene of a treaty between France, England and America. In 1871, after the Emperor of Germany had been crowned in the Hall of Mirrors, negotiations were carried on by which France surrendered Alsace and Lorraine to the conquerors and agreed to pay Germany one billion dollars.

Then, by an ironic twist of Fate, it was in the Hall of Mirrors, after the Great War, that Germany was forced to repay and radical changes were made in the map of Europe.

This was the last meeting of the Women's Art Association for this season Much regret has been expressed by the members at the inability of Miss Mamie McCarthy to hold an exhibition of her pictures, owing to Mrs. McCarthy's illness. This exhibit, which was scheduled for this Spring, has been postponed to the Fall.

How Telephones Increase.

A net gain in telephones, for the past year, of 45,862 as compared with 38,222 in 1927, is the statement of steady growth contained in the annual report of the Bell Telephone Company. 139,001 instruments were installed and 93,139 removed to provide this net gain. Further, the fact that over 65% of the 714,245 Bell Telephones are in service in homes gives some idea of the substantial progress of the company in providing service in spite of many changes of location.

modest manner and with a brief word of thanks. Following this, the chairman, on behalf of the Home and School Association, presented the school with a large sized handsome photograph, framed in fumed oak, of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales; Mrs. Jackson, headmistress, receiving the gift. The president, Mrs. A. J. Seger, in showing the photograph, stated that it had been taken in Toronto by a Canadian photographer, upon the occasion of the last visit of H.R.H. to that city. A copy had been sent by the photographer to Her Majesty the Queen, who declared it to be one of the best photos of the Prince ever taken.

In a pleasing speech a vote of thanks to His Honor Judge Huycke was proposed by the Rev. J. L. Hughes, seconded by Mr. A. J. Arnott, school trustee, and supported by Mrs. Seger, president of the Home and School association.

Opening Chorus by scholars of Mrs. Jackson's class; instrumental items by Misses D. Leeson, Isabelle Jackson, Chrissie Milby and Clarence Collins. Recitations by Mrs. Turner and Miss Margaret Pitchford. Vocal solos by Misses McCarthy, Geneva Sedgwick, Beatrice Curts, and Rev. J. L. Hughes. Humorous songs by Mr. Ted Markham and Mrs. William Thomson (Harry Lauder Impersonator). Accompanists, Mrs. King, Chrissie Milby, and Mrs. Hughes.

A vote of thanks to the artists was moved by Mrs. B. Jackson, secretary of the Home and School association, second by Mrs. Seger. The serving of refreshments by ladies of the association brought to a close a happy and memorable evening.

while in conversation with an Examiner reporter in the police station. In answer to further query, he replied that Parks was well dressed, but he was not accompanied by his Aylmer village sweetheart with whom he eloped about that time. Montgomery had talked with Parks for a few minutes but the latter had made no reference to his Peterborough jail break.

With warrants out for his arrest in Rochester, Cobourg, Tweed, Parry Sound, Niagara Falls, N.Y., Findlay, Ohio, and many other centres, Montgomery has been much sought after for forgery offences. He has used perhaps a dozen aliases, signing himself William Montgomery, William Marsh, A. Butler, George B. Filson, J. C. Long, William F. Rogers, William J. Rogers, T. H. Jessop, John T. Jacquith (one of his favorites), T. H. Thompson and many other fictitious names.

Montgomery was arraigned before the Police Magistrate, but became confused and elected trial of a form that he had not intended. A remand for one week was granted and he will likely change his election to that of summary trial.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

When Cadillac makes such a statement you know it is so

Cadillac can honestly say that in twenty-three years it has never exaggerated or over-emphasized and Cadillac can still truthfully, honorably say: There are no motor car manufacturing plants in the world in which every other consideration is so completely set aside for the attainment of the highest possible quality and precision as the magnificent manufacturing laboratories in which Cadillac and La Salle are produced.

It is actually the fact that the Cadillac Motor Car Company can and does build into Cadillac and La Salle not only the best in materials and workmanship but the finest possible artistic and scientific achievement in motor car design, engineering and manufacture.

This is not only logical and reasonable but in a very real and literal sense inevitable. For back of traditionally superior Cadillac craftsmanship stand the colossal resources of General Motors deliberately planned to achieve a purchasing power that permits value-giving in excess of any other standard.

With the wealth of surpassing new engineering and manufacturing refinements in today's Cadillacs and La Salles it becomes more obvious than ever before that if you want the kind of luxurious motoring that Cadillac gives you simply must drive a Cadillac or La Salle.

Consider, for example, the Cadillac-La Salle Syncro-Mesh Silent-Shift Transmission—designed and perfected specifically for protection on mountain roads and in the maze of city traffic. A vital essential in time of emergency, this transmission permits clashless, lightning-like shifting of gears with a finger-touch, at any speed, and without pausing in neutral.

The sense of security inspired by the Cadillac-La Salle Duplex-Mechanical System of Four-Wheel Brakes will prove a decidedly unique motoring experience. Though these brakes are amazingly powerful and positive in action no effort is required to operate them. The slightest touch of the toe on the brake pedal and they respond instantaneously.

Cadillac-La Salle Security-Plate Glass, with which Cadillac-La Salle windows, doors and windshields are equipped, is not conventionally laminated sheets of cheap glass but the highest quality, perfect-vision plate glass that cannot be shattered in the event of collision or by stones flung up from the wheels of passing cars. These are but three of a host of similar exclusive ultra-modern manufacturing refinements incorporated in Cadillac-La Salle. Experience these new features for yourself. Drive the new Cadillac or La Salle. Then see if you can find their equal elsewhere.

In addition to twenty-three refreshingly beautiful Fisher Bodies for the new Cadillac and the new La Salle there are fifteen exclusive and exquisite custom-built models, Fleetwood designed and Fleetwood built.

cent years has been New Zealand. Dr. Ruddick in speaking before the agricultural committee did not fear this competition. Of course the cattle in that island have pasture the year round and in the past they have not been put in stables. However they have rainy weather that injures the animals very much and there are many other ways in which the Canadian dairyman has the advantage. For one thing the grass does not grow as fast as over there.

The question of the exodus of Canadian Milch cows to the United States has been the subject of much discussion both inside parliament and outside. Dr. Ruddick however does not see any cause for anxiety over this. It furnishes another source of revenue. There were great numbers exported to that country last year. This might cause a low? ering in the total production of milk for a year or so but the herds could be quickly built up again by raising some of the thousands of calves which are yearly slaughteerd as soon as born.

The price outlook for cheese this coming summer is bright. Last year on the country cheese boards the average price was 21 cents, a full three cents a pound more than the year before. The great demand for other milk products, the increased consumption of milk all over the world, are factors which are expected to hold up the prices this season unless some unexpected situation arises.

There is a great demand for butter in Canada. Most of last year the price was higher than the world market price less the cost of shipping the butter to Britain. Then there is the demand for cream and other dairy products in the United States. These are expected to take up any increase in milk production likely to follow last year's high prices.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, the head of the German delegation, who has been keeping his own council through the experts' negotiations, gave no inkling by word or change of feature as to how the Allies' proposal impressed him.

PEOPLE'S DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN GOOD HEALTH

Dr. E. H. Wood Delivers Address To Friday Night Supper Club.

SUNLIGHT IMPORTANT.

Periodical Medical Examinations of Body Are Urged By Speaker.

"You were born healthy and it is up to you to see that you keep fit and maintain that good health," said E. H. Wood in his address on "Health Tips" to the boys of the Friday Night Supper Club, at their weekly supper in the Y.M.C.A. last evening.

Speaking on the importance of sunlight to health Dr. Wood said: "I would like to urge you to support any measure for daylight saving, so that all may be given every opportunity during the summer of getting their share of this vital force for health."

"The desire to escape from sickness and to achieve health is not a new one. No man ever wished to suffer from disease and historical records show that mankind has always evaded and fought disease as best he knew," said the speaker in beginning his talk.

He pointed out the great strides that had been made in the combatting of disease in recent years.

Sunshine, too, was stated to be most important and referring to this the speaker said only recently it had been found that glass stops the ultra-violet rays of the sun. However, a new glass that transmits these valuable rays has been discovered, and this is coming into wider use, although as yet, rather expensive for the normal home.

Raw Fruits and Salads.

In food it was advised to get back to the more natural foods, and raw fruit, salads and more whole cereals were suggested in this regard. Less food was advised.

Exercise was necessary for good health, and frequent bathing to remove the waste material and dust from the pores was important.

Speaking of community health, Dr. Wood said: "Preventive medicine has made tremendous strides in the last 50 years. It is difficult to visualize the change unless we get some elderly citizen with a clear memory, and a talent for description to give us some vision of what the state of affairs were then. "People will periodically take their automobiles to an expert for a check up, but not themselves," said the speaker.

A periodical medical examination was urged by Dr. Wood, who illustrated the importance of this on the findings of life insurance companies.

"If they did realize the importance of this," the doctor remarked, "the medical profession would be experiencing the same boom as are the automobile mechanics, except that their work would largely be preventive medicine rather than curative as it is to-day."

Through the efforts of the medical profession and allies, the bacteriologist, pathologist and laboratory worker generally, and in spite of tremendous opposition from well-meaning people, fanatics in a way, who through ignorance or bias, or for financial reasons, seem to be always on hand to battle against any reform. It is also remarkable the friends they are able to gather together to wage these battles.

Opposition Good Thing.

"But," stated the speaker, "a virile opposition, even in health matters, is possibly a good thing since it prevents things advancing too fast, and before the public is ready for them.

Sewage disposal, not only the sewage plant, but the whole great system, has largely made possible the stamping out of typhoid fever; garbage collection; smallpox vaccination, the ventilation of modern buildings, and the annual examination of school children were some of the community health efforts dealt with by the speaker.

KEEP YOUR BABY HAPPY AND WELL

Every mother wishes her child or children to be well and happy; to be bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked boys and girls. No mother, though, can expect her children to escape all the ills of babyhood and childhood, but she can do much to help them fight the battle for health.

All prudent mothers constantly keep at hand the means of aiding their little ones when sickness comes suddenly—as it generally does in the case of children. In every home where there are infants and young children Baby's Own Tablets should be found. Read what Mrs. Mary Hill, Centre Dummer, Ont., says concerning these Tablets:—"I am the mother of six children and would not be without Baby's Own Tablets. They are a wonderful medicine for little ones."

Baby's Own Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach and thus break up colds and simple fever, banish constipation and indigestion and allay the irritation accompanying the cutting of teeth. They are absolutely safe and are pleasant to take. The Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

In Police Court

When the city police directed a raid on 233 Princess street about 12.50 this morning, they found nearly fifty bottles of home-made beer, and, placing William Faiers under arrest, brought him to the police station. This morning he was charged with selling, and a remand of one week granted. He was allowed his freedom on a bail of $1,000.

Harry Martin and George Newall each paid fines of $40.00 and costs when they appeared on charges of consuming liquor not purchased on their individual permits.

HUDSON-ESSEX SALES INCREASE

New Local Record Established For the Month of March.

100 PER CENT GROWTH.

By far the largest selling month which Hudson-Essex has ever known in Peterborough is reported for March. The new all-time record of new Hudson and Essex cars purchased in Peterborough shows an increase in business of 100 percent. more than that of the same month last year. This demonstrates the ever-growing popularity of these cars with people who must have a real good automobile.

Mr. C. L. Brewer, the local distributor, said that never before had cars in the Hudson-Essex field approached such a sales mark in this city.

"Such an achievement by my organization is particularly a matter of pride to me," said Mr. Brewer, "because early this year, I predicted a tremenodus swing to Essex the Challenger.

"Our firm offered at that time to purchase all the Hudson-Essex cars which the factory would sell us, because we felt that Essex had built itself a distinct niche in the automobile field, and that the big buying swing this spring would be to Essex.

"All this year the swings of buyers to Essex has been very strong indeed. In addition to our natural business from old Essex owners, we have had an amazing proportion of 'other car' owners make a switch to the Essex.

"This spring the automobile is active, but a feature of it is that the public's likes and dislikes are strong. Those automobiles which are popular are very popular inded. But there is no ground of moderate favor. A car is either very good or not good at all. The big swing to Essex which we have noted is simply an instance of this important tendency."

WEDDING BELLS

HEFFERNAN—BERNIEZ.

A quiet, pretty wedding was solemnized on Tuesday, April 9th, at the Church of Our Lady of Mount Marmel in Hastings, when Zita Marie, eldest daughter of Mr. Joseph Berniez and the late Mrs. Berniez, became the bride of Robert Joseph Heffernan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Heffernan, of Douro.

The bride wore a lovely gown of peach-colored satin trimmed with silver lace. She wore a matching hat, satin slippers, and white silk hose, and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Mary McGillen, of Peterborough, was in apricot georgette trimmed with silver lace, with hat to match, and bouquet of Sweetheart roses.

The cousin of the bridegroom, Mr. Joseph Doherty, of Douro, acted as best man.

After the ceremony the bridal party motored to the home of the bride, where a dainty wedding breakfast was served to the immediate friends of the young couple. Mr. Heffernan and his bride left later on an extended honeymoon trip by motor to Montreal. On their return they will live on the bridegroom's farm in South Douro.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a rope of pearls, to the bridesmaid a topaz pendant, and to the best man a set of gold cuff links.

SPECIAL SERVICES.

Mrs. George Dibble Will Address Women on Sunday Afternoon.

A week ago the people of St. James United Church were waiting, somewhat in doubt as to what type of evangelism they were to be privileged to hear and participate in. Evanalistic meetings were believed to be dead, or at least dying. Most of those which remained, many have learned to oppose and deplore.

But in St. James United Church, Peterborough at the present time a "Singing Revival" is in progress and if their Monday night musical service is a fair sample of the kind of evangelism that is being offered night after night to a large congregation by the Dibble party, it can be strongly endorsed by the most conservative.

A week's services closed last night and throughout the evangelists have not once taken advantage of any emotional methods. As Mrs. Dibble said in her closing address, "the meetings have simply been singing and talking about Jesus."

The gospel songs led by Mr. Dibble, with the talented accompaniment rendered with such brilliant technique by Harold Mustaine would make these meetings a power in any city or church; but when they are followed up by Mrs. Dibble's convincing messages the power is increased two-fold.

Last night's service was one of the best. The church was filled almost to capacity. The music was of an exceptional type and the vast audience was fully in tune with both the singing and preaching.

The subject of Mrs. Dibble's discourse was "Jesus the way" and in emphatic words she made plain that there was positively no other way by which man may be saved.

The great interest taken by Peterborough young people in this series of meetings is remarkable, and goes to prove that youth of to-day is better, and not worse than that of yesterday.

To aid in bringing the people to these services, especially woman's four o'clock meeting on Sunday afternoon at which Mrs. Dibble will speak on "Mother Eve and her daughters." The Peterborough bus company has graciously arranged their routes to suit this hour's service.

Rev. Mr. Harton, Park Street Baptist church, and Rev. William Allen, St. Paul's were on the platform. Mr. Harton leading in prayer. Several other clergymen of the city showed their good will toward these services by their continued attendance at the meetings.

"KIWANIS KAPERS"

(By Jeanette)

"The best amateur show I ever saw," was the verdict of a man who used to be in the show business, as he came out of the Grand Opera House last night after the first-night presentation of the Kiwanis "Kapers," styled as an "Ultra-Modern Revue" and staged and produced by Andy Purman, who proved himself by his production last night to be a showman par excellence and a master hand at gauging the taste of his audience.

From the first scene, in which "The Girls" proclaim the fact that "We Have No Opening Chorus" to the finale, when the entire company assembles on the stage, to throw serpentine streamers at the audience and to tell them that they are "Running Away from the Blues" the Kiwanis "Kapers" lives up to its title. It is styled as an ultra-modern Revue and offers a little bit of everything in a well-designed menu of fun and frolic and merriment, with a few serious moments interjected by Joe Wearing, whose untimely demise on the stage of the Opera House last evening, at the hands of the law, was a regrettable incident which, however, was not allowed to interfere in any way with the triumphal progress of the show. The Kiwanians still "kapered" hilariously and the sorrowful episode was soon forgotten.

A very fine selection of characters for the parts was an outstanding item in the smooth progress of the production and the "Girls" who helped to make the show such a success were bright and shining lights. They worked hard, but their youth and prettiness and freshness brought them plenty of applause for their efforts.

Another very entertaining portion of the entertainment was in the inclusion of Stewart Widdess' Silver Slipper Orchestra, which played in the "Jazzomania" section of the program.

As for staging, with elaborate curtains and drops, for costuming, which was effective in every act, and for acting, the "Kapers" had any other Kiwanis Club entertainment of previous years, beat a mile. It's a real show, with atmosphere "a la Dumbell" in a series of scenes that have rapid fadeouts and that progress from one laugh-getter to another.

Although every episode, fresh and joyous, brought plenty of applause from the audience one small bit seemed to tickle them immensely. It was the pantomimic little thing in which a lighted house plays the prominent part, and was entitled "It Happens in Every Well-Regulated Home." For this, there was appreciative laughter, prolonged and hearty.

The "Kapers" opens with the "Girls" on stage, in their abbreviated costumes that include only a white blouse, a pair of navy bloomers, a pair of dancing slippers and a pair of golf socks, plus plenty of youth and jollity and agility and grace. In company with Jack Primeau, who acts as a sort of glorified interlocutor for the two skits which follow immediately, when the girls make a stage audience at the rear, they tell about their lack of an opening chorus, in happy voices.

Radio Novelty

In the skit which follows, entitled "Listening In" Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland, in a vivid costume of scarlet and white is the "Sadie Thompson" of the piece and Jack Primeau is the professor who vainly tries to teach her a music lesson, with the aid of an enlarged clef board held by the girls, who are the "pupils" of the sketch. Mrs. McClelland sings "She's a Hard-Boiled Rose" in her own inimitable manner, and gets a lot of fun, along with the audience, out of her efforts to master the scale.

Jack McNabb acts as a masterly Radio Announcer from a radio station whose artists emerge from a cabinet to sing and dance in turn. This is an extremely effective arrangement, bringing them on in an entirely novel manner, and it seems to set the note of unexpectedness and freshness which permeates the entire production.

The first vocal solo is Miss Ernestine McManus' contribution to the first portion of the program, in "If You're in Love You'll Waltz" from "Rio Rita" and is a lovely dancing song beautifully sung by the clear, true soprano voice. Miss McManus wears a lovely white gown and is assisted by Miss Lenora James and Leonard Hollingsworth, dancing a stately waltz of old-time, graceful fashion, the lady in crinoline skirts of yellow, with black lace flounces, and the gentleman in a brown swallowtail coat and tight trousers. There was renewed applause for this dainty song and dance number.

A contrasting bit was the lively dance that accompanied Mrs. George Richmond's singing of "Raggedy Ann" one of the song hits featured by Fred and Dorothy Stone. The singer's sweet, high soprano and her gown of Castilian red georgette made a splendid set-off to the lively dancing and peculiar costuming of the two dancers, with their red wigs and their gingham outfits, doing a "raggedy" dance in a hilarious fashion that brought them back for a double encore. The two assistants were the Misses Evelyn Armstrong and Frances Jennings.

A song from "The Vagabond King" entitled "Only a Rose" was given very beautifully by Miss Geraldine Collins, wearing a gown of white and pale pink. Miss Collins' lovely, soft soprano was heard to splendid advantage in this graceful selection, which received an encore that demanded a repetition.

The Gold Dust Twins came to life last night when Miss Jean McKone and Miss Edith Culcheth arrayed themselves in potato bag outfits and piebald stockings, to blacken their faces and don kinky wigs, and sing "Go Get 'Em, Caroline" with vim and vigor that brought them repeated applause and a double encore.

Mr. McNabb paused in his program long enough to announce a telegram from the president of the Kiwanis Club, J. J. Turner, expressing gratification at the fine radio reception.

Owing to the illness of Mrs. H. F. Doig, scheduled to sing "Little Butterfly" the song was omitted, but a Butterfly dance was a graceful bit just here, done by Miss Sophie Yeotes, in full white skirts edged with silver and a floral bandeau. The little lady did some clever toe work in her brief dance encore, and then a burlesque gentleman who essayed to imitate her brought down the house with his eccentric antics. George Nicholls was the imitator, in a flyaway red wig and enormous skirts.

Art Blade As Delilah

One of the skits, brief and startling, that proved a hit of the evening, was the "Sampson and Delilah" interlude by a pair of nuts; Art Blade as a large Delilah and Al White as a small Sampson, in lionskin and glittering helmet. The two enslaved the amused attention of the house for a brief and erratic appearance, which included the presentation on the stage of a surprised and hasty live chicken.

The Girls ended this portion of the program with a sprightly chorus entitled "And the Words are Applesauce."

Scene Three brought on two blackface performers, Verne Morphet and George Richmond, in "A Sensible Conversation" which belied its name. Both performers were at their characteristic best and "Verne" received an appropriate floral tribute from members of "The Gang" at the Quaker Oats Company. These were presented by President Turner. Verne insisted on telling a story that Andy Purman objected to, but he won the day and the audience got a kick out of the conclusion of the tale.

"To-day and Fifty Years from To-day" was the title of a sketch explained by Jack McNabb which told the story of an innocent flirtation of today and another, half a century hence. It was a snappy short bit, well enacted by "The Girl" Miss Alice Donley, and "The Boy" Ken McCannon.

"Climbing the Ladder of Love" brought Mrs. Richardson's voice and attractive stage presence to the fore again, in a solo that had a marvellously effective setting with a bevy of pretty girls against an orchid back drop of futuristic type. The girls wore white blouses, black berets, black shorts and Spanish scarfs of red, with deep black fringe. They paraded up and down little blue ladders. This number had a double encore.

Another introduction by Jack McNabb, whose services were generous and served to smooth the path of the performers, was a prelude to a clever skit entitled "The Silent Prompter." Dick Lush was splendid as the main actor, although speechless, in this bit, which was one of the best of the lot, and he had fine support in Miss Alice Donley, as "Evangeline" and Lloyd Bath, as "The Man." The way in which Dick Lush, as the prompter, carried out his part, and his ingenuity in supplying words for his quarrelling companions, kept the audience in spasms of laughter, and brought the performers plenty of applause.

Then came the sad part of the evening. Joseph Wearing, in a well-meant but misunderstood endeavor to impart some remembrance of the more serious aspect of life into the minds of the giddy audience, came on for "A Few Dramatic Moments" which had had an abrupt conclusion. Mr. Wearing's entrance was extremely good. The lowered lights flashed up and there was the figure of the well-meaning man, standing modestly with folded hands. But, in the middle of what appeared to be a very fine and well memorized attempt to remind his hearers that "there are more coffins than merry-go-rounds and more dentists than bartenders" Mr. Wearing's career as a stage uplifter came to a tragic end. Jack Deanard appeared, and, with swift and accurate aim, felled the City Solicitor to the ground with a well-directed shot. "I seen my duty and I done it," were the police officer's striking words as he regarded the fallen form of the uplifter of the drama.

After an intermission, the Girls appeared again, singing "We are Andy Purman's Girls" their bright youthful zest and unconscious enthusiasm bringing them the renewed applause which greeted their every appearance.

"It Happens in Every Well-Regulated Home" one of the many hits of the evening, and much enjoyed by the crowd, was a pantomimic performance in which a few odd words were the only audible means of explaining the action. It went ahead, however, much to the entertainment of the watchers. This bit has to be seen to be appreciated. It is a clever and amusing, stunt, and the actors are anonymous.

"Taking Your Girl Home" (in three parts) was also explained by Jack McNabb, and enacted very skilfully and quickly by Miss Alice Donley, as the Girl, and Ken McCannan as the Boy.

Jazzomania"

Then came the musical feast of the evening, with Stewart Widdess and his Silver Slipper Orchestra scoring a triumphant entrance on the scene. This snappy organization, with its clean-cut, skilful performers and its melodious melodies, is always a welcome addition to any program. Their smooth, pleasing music was at its best in a section that included many popular hits of the season. Entitled "Jazzomania" the musical numbers included "Sweethearts on Parade" with the chorus sung by Stewart Widdess; "Silver Moon" in which Mr. Widdess also scored with his muted violin playing the lovely melody "I Wanna be Loved by You", "Copenhagen", "Doin' the New Low Down", "Who Wouldn't be Jealous" and "There's a Rainbow 'Round My Shoulder."

"Pickin' Cotton Low Down" was another orchestra number that brought on Verne Morphet in blackface, with his cotton-picking girls as a dancing chorus, in their farmerette outfits of overalls and "cow breakfast" hats. A double encore greeted this number, and there was much applause also for the appearance of the girls in the "I Wanna be Loved" song and dance hit. They wore zippy outfits of a futuristic type in this dance with colorful dresses that had black patterned lines of diamond shape, and their little hats were of the "pancake" variety. They made an animated and vivacious group of agile dancers in their dainty gowns.

"We Moderns" was a constrasting bit by two small things of skill and charm. Little Barbara Miller, in a frilly apricot frock and bonnet, and small Orval Wainman, in a suit of navy and white, along with a toy auto of bright colors, were the tiny pair, whose acting and singing made a decided hit with their hearers.

"Poor Mr. Smith" was a "nut" act that was brief and snappy. Walker Jones was the nutty Mr. Smith, Victor Johnson made a very excellent lady as the Governor's wife, and Bert Wainman was the soft-hearted attendant.

A gay piece of interesting atmosphere was the "Fairy Tales" episode in which Mrs. E. Verne Morphet and Mrs. Wilbert Freel were the pretty Mary Janes of the piece, reading and singing about old fairy from picture books and then watching them enacted in modern fashion.

"Cinderella" in the hands of Miss Ruby Jackson as the star, Fred Ash as Prince Charming, and Jack Clayton as Cinderella's Boy Friend, became an up to date burglar racket; "Little Miss Muffett" as it was enacted by Mrs. Verda Gamble in the name role and Fred Ash as the Spider, was an intensely modern bit in which the gentleman was counted out after one whiff of the lady's gin, and "Babes in the Woods" with Mrs. Verda Gamble as the Baby Girl and Jack Clayton as the Baby Boy, resolved itself into a parking episode, with the lady walking home.

"They Call It Dancing" was a sprightly song and dance number, in which Miss Ernestine McManus appeared as the singer of the pretty vocal selection around which the episode is built. Her attractive, birdlike soprano voice was very effective in this selection, and the Girls had a peppy dance which illustrated the modern version of Terpsichorean grace and ease, and the manner in which the "hot" music of the day jazzes them up, in the modern dance clinches.

For a characteristic and appropriate ending, the entire company appears on the stage, in varied costume, singing "Running Away from the Blues" and throwing serpentine crepe at the audience.

The Kiwanis "Kapers" of this year is one of the best shows ever offered by this society. Andy Purman, the director, has left no stone unturned to get the best possible effects. It is smooth running and without amateurish atmosphere. Snappy and brisk and entertaining, the "Kapers" are well worth seeing more than once. Many who went last night and helped to fill the house almost to capacity will doubtless swell the attendance to an "S. R.O." height to-night. For those who like to be amused and entertained and pleased, the "Kapers" will give them their money's worth and a little more.

The Grand Opera House orchestra supplied fine music during intermissions and Miss Mary Reynolds did splendid work at the piano, as accompanist for the show. The costumes were from Mallabar of Toronto, and the scenery from the DeLuze Studios and Jack Koster, also of Toronto. A. Comstock and Sons supplied the furniture and Watson's Tire and Radio Supply the radio broadcasting equipment.

The personnel of the Silver Slipper Orchestra is as follows: Leader, Stewart Widdess, (violin), Bill Steer, pianist, Wilson Dunlop, drums, Joe Watson, banjo, Douglas Widdess and D'Arcy Carter, saxaphones, Donald Greene and Bill Ellis, violins, Stan Wheeler, trombone, Grant Braund, trumpet, and Armbrose Pooley, tuba.

When pins were first invented, in the fourteenth century, the maker was allowed to sell them only on the first two days in January. The pins were so expensive that it was the custom to give as a present a sum of money to be used as "pin-money." Hence the term.

REGISTER Of Social and Business Meetings

The Register is published to enable organizations planning major meetings to know in advance, and reserve, evenings on which there are no rival attractions. It will pay Peterborough organizations to consult the Register prior to settling dates. Responsible officers should mail notices well in advance.

Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, April 13 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—The Reverend and Mrs. N. Clarke Wallace and their daughter, Ann Louise, have returned after spending a week in Toronto.

Mr. A. J. Meyers has purchased a new Willys-Knight truck and has taken the contract for trucking to and from Toronto for the Campbellford Cloth Company. Harold Petherick, the driver, said he managed the first trip through Morganston and Castleton without finding the roads impassable.

At the close of the regular Lodge session, the officers and members of Loch Lomond Rebekah Lodge (248), Campbellford, enjoyed a social hour in the form of a miscellaneous shower for one of their members, Mrs. Victor Hay, whose home was recently destroyed by fire.

D. A. Owen has sold his race horse, "Leo Stewart," to Dr. West. Lovers of the sport expressed considerable pleasure when they were told that the horse was still to remain in Campbellford area.

Wednesday as the weekly half-holiday is proving a difficult problem for some of those concerned. For several years the banks have recognized the Friday half-day during the entire year, even though the stores have only been closed for the holiday during the six summer months. A feeling has been manifest among the local bankers that Saturday would be the ideal day, and it is meeting with general favor. Should the banks close that day, the farmers would be considerably inconvenienced for a time at least, and it is thought that the change will be effected this year. For the present the bankers will fall in with the others and close their places of business on Wednesday.

THE GHOST SONG

We boys were glad to have Little Gil in our club. Since Little Gil was a tramp's boy, we expected a lot of trouble in making the little hobo kid live up to that rule which says every member of our club must attend meetings, or give a good excuse for being absent. But not Little Gil! By Jinks! He never was absent. Even when it was ocked—it was no trouble for Little Gil to get in. He seemed to know some magic by which he could open any lock. Anyway, he always got in when he wanted to get in, and we were a most sure to have him hanging around long after every other boy had gone home.

And of course, alway we would let him stay as long as he pleased. Once I was the last to eave him. I said goodbye and walked up he bank a piece. Then I turned around and came back to the porch. I tiptoed up the step and peeped in the window, ust to see what he was doing. There was Little Gil, s tting on the organ bench, and all of a sudden he tarted pumping with both feet, and began to play as many keys as he cou'd possib y work with both his l ttle bony hands. Then he jumped up and turned around and made a low bow to the mpty chairs about the long p ne table. The next moment he was dancing a sort of Irish jig in front of the organ; c ming to a stop slowly, he put h s hands in the deep pockets of that long, green, raggedy coat that hung to his ankles, and stood still as if he were dreaming. Then suddenly he raised his voice and began to sing. And to hear Little Gil sing—

I slumped down below th window, so he couldn't see me. And I listened while he sang an old song—

"Believe me if all those endearing young charms—"

"Always the old songs," I said to myse f, as I sneaked s owly away and walked up th rive path; I kept my eyes to the ground as I rudged on. "A ways the old songs for Little Gil. I wonder why?"

And then one day Shadow Loomis came into my wr ting room as I was just finishing the minutes of the meeting in my book. I could see that Shadow was angry about something.

"Seck," he says, "I think we ought to give that kid a good li king, and not be slow about it, either. I m sick and t red of him."

I looked up in surprise.

"Who?" I asked, and my voice showed my amazement. "You mean Little Gil? What in the world should we whip him for—"

"No, no," cut in Shadow; "of course I don't mean Gil. Poor kid! Got enough troubles o his own without having that smart dud always worry him—"

"Come on!" I interrupted, impatiently; "give me the nam —who is razzin' him?"

"The boy n the red and green mansion that belongs to that Englishman—you remember the kid who came in her one day and tipped over our table and eft us all sprawling—"

"Oh, Lord Harry, you mean!" I sa'd, with a grin. "Yeah, Shadow; that was a slick th ng h did to us that day. By Jinks! If he hadn't pulled that table-tipping stunt on us, he'd have got a good licking that day. But tell me—"

"I'll tell you. I just came upon him suddenly—or rather it was Little Gil I came upon, running like a frightened deer. He pas ed me like a streak of greased lightning, and I yelled at him, but he wouldn't stop. I wondered what was wrong with him. The next minute I saw—it was that Lord Harry kid, riding h m down. Riding him down—get this—on a pony—Gil had to run. He wou'd have been caught, I guess, if I hadn't stopped the little Lord. Lord me eye! What right's he go to be called Lord in America, I ask you? Why didn't he stay over in England if he wanted that—"

"Cut out the whys and wherefores, Shadow. Tell me, did ou stop him?"

Shadow held out his hand Across the back of it and well up on the wrist was an ugly red welt, that stood out like a long, angry, red blister

"He cut me with his riding whip, when I stepped n front of his pony," said Shadow, ruefully, and he had enough gumption to smile at the thought o it. "But he got past me, anyway, and rode away. And when I get my hands on him—"

"Lord Harry!"

"By the Lord Harry I'll make him sorry!" exclaimed Shadow. He half turned away from me, but swung ar ound again. "He's got to stop chasing L ttle Gil, Hawkins. I don't mind this crack he gave me with his whip. That can come second. I ust don't want anybody to bother that poor, little, ragged tramp-boy. And what's more, he's a member of our club now. And we have to stick by our own, you know. We owe it to Gil."

I smiled up at Shadow.

"You like that little beggar, don't you, Shadow?" I asked, softly.

"Like him? Of course I like him. I don't know when I ever l ked a kid as much—except maybe you, Seck. But he's got me, Gil has. And I like it. I want to like h m. I think I'd like that hobo kid, no matter what anybody told me bout him. He hasn't had as good a break as you and I, Hawkins, anybody can see that, but he's true blue, ll the way. And there's something about h m—I don't know what it is, Hawkins, but he doesn't seem any hobo kid o me. Only his clothes—that s al that make me th nk of him as a hobo. Something, the way he acts, maybe, or perhaps it is the way he ook at you with those big eyes, when he tells you something—aw, well, you just know the kid is true, that's all. Yes, O like him. I'm proud of it."

I nodded my head.

"You and I both, Shadow," I said, "you bet, I'm proud we've got h m with us. There is something about the l ttle tramp that gets me; sometimes he says things that just make my heart go out to him. The way he sings, for one thing. Always the old songs. And the beautiful way he sings them. Nobody would expect a hobo's boy to sing like Gil does, Shadow."

"Oh, you and Lew Hunter always go by the way a fellow sings!" said Shadow, with a wave of his hand. "Well, maybe you're right about that. I don't know. Surely he can sing! Always the old songs, as you said. Somewhere he must have learned them, when he was ittle—"

"When he was little," I said, nodding as I smiled up at Shadow. "He seems so little now—it doesn't help one to think of him as being any littler, does it? But he must have earned those songs when he was no more than a baby, Shadow. Things like that stick with a fellow. I can remember when my mother used to sing me her old songs—when I used to go to sleep with those melodies in my ears, and think they were the most beautiful songs in the world—just because mother sang them."

"You're right," said Shadow. "And they are the most beautiful songs, Seck. The songs your mother used to sing when you're a little fellow. They stick with you the longest, don't they? And when you grow a litt e bigger, like you and I are now, we hear lots of new songs, but we always think those old songs are the be t, don't we?"

I sat up straight and stared at Shadow.

"Do you mean that?" I asked. "By Golly! Shadow, I didn't think you ever thought of such things in that way. Of course you're right. And Little Gil—"

"He's thinking of his mother," said Shadow, nodding slowly, as he looked me in the eyes. "Whenever he sings one of those old songs, Hawkins, you can bet your ast nickel that kid's thinking of his mother—"

"He says he n ver had a mother," I broke in. "When you say anything to him about a mother, he gets mad and thinks you're trying to make him fee bad because h hasn't got any mother. But somewhere back in his little life there was a mother who he'd him close, Shadow. And I'l bet you she was a sweet mother, too—she sang those songs to him. Once I asked him: Gil,' I say , 'where did you learn all those old songs?' And he shook his little o d head and there was a far-away look in his eyes. 'I dunno,' he says; 'seems like onc upon a time, long ago, I heard 'em, but I've forgotten everything but the songs.' That was sad, wasn't it, Shadow?"

Shadow shook his head.

"Poo kid!" he muttered, under his breath. Then he got up and turned to go. But he swung ound again to me and said: "We've got to take care of him, Hawkins. Him being with O'd Daddy Joe—an old tramp—"

"Hush" I lifted my hand. "Old Daddy Joe is no longer a tramp. Why keep up a thing? If a man was a bum once, and turned a new leaf, why don't we all give him credit, and forget the past? Daddy Joe is lodge-keeper now for Sir Eustace—"

"Yeah, and I'm goin' up and tell that Sir Eustace if he doesn't keep his Lord Harry off of our Little Gil, we'll make it hot for him."

I laughed.

"Don t do that, Shadow," I said. "We will stop Lord Harry, a l right, but I don't think we will have to go to Sir Eustace about it."

"Hold on!" said Shadow. "Don't say any more—here comes Little Gil, now."

Perry Stokes came in with the little hobo kid.

"Hi, there, Seckatary Hawkins!" shrilled Little Gil. The e wa a grin on his face as wide a a new moon. "Gee rickets! I'm happy, I am. You guys don't know how happy you made me, when you let me in this club. I been runnin' and laughin' ever since the day—"

"Running, mostly, eh, Gil?" cut in Shadow, with a mischievous grin.

"Yeah, that's right, you did see me runnin', didn't yer?" he said, looking wist ully up at Shadow. He took a step nearer, grabbed ho d o' both lapels on Shadow' coat, and looked up into his face. "But don't be mad, Shadow. I like you. Listen—I will sing you a beautiful song—listen!"

He turned away rom us and stood in a corner his face to the wall, his back to us. He made a bow into the corner, a though he could see through it, as though some great audi nce wer waiting there fo him, unseen by us. He stood up straight again, his hands in the pockets of his ong, faded coat.

"Listening?" he called out, sharply. We knew he did not mean that for us. What unseen presence was he calling to attention now? Why did he do things in this mysterious fashion? I leaned to one side, to get a better look at his face. All I saw was his profile but it gave me quite a start. It was not Little Gil. Not Gi as we knew him. Now he was far away from us again; in his eyes was that far-away look. "Aren't you listening?" he called out suddenly in a pleading voice.

We knew the question was not for us. But for whom? Why did Little Gil act this way? Even as I was turning this over n my mind, I saw his face suddenly relax and there came a soft, contented smile. His back all this time wa turned to us, and he faced the corner, where all was gloom. And then we heard him say softly—so soft y that, had it not b en so quiet, we would hardly have heard it: "Thank you! I knew you would come!"

Shadow turned a worried look at me—a look tha questioned me—but I shook my head and turned away from him—turned way and fixed my gaze once more upon that strange littl fellow. His hands had ome out o his long pockets now—slowly h folded them upon his breast, and that one sleeve, tha was ripped from shoulder to wrist, fell like the wounded wing of a b rd. And his head was raised now—hi eyes were losed, and he was sing ng—

'Oh, promise me—"

Always he old songs! Always some shade of the past he brought up with those sweet melodies of othr days that we boys hardly know, unless we come across them in some faded books. How sw etly he sang it! "Oh, promise me—" the first words rang like silvery raindrops that fall with musica softness in a silvery pool on a summer's evening. Perry and Shadow we e gaping, as I glanced up, and I knew they were caught in the magical meshes of that boy's voice. But so was I. Yea, I, too, knew that here I was privileged to listen to a most unusual voice, singing in a most unusual way. Now he had come into the middle of the song—and I gripped my chair with both hands and leaned forward—was I being hypnotized into seeing things—or was there really some ghostly presence forming in the gloom of that corner in front of Little Gil—some luminous shape was there, surely, in the gloom, some unnatural sheen—

It was gone in a moment, with the ending of the song. And Gil turned suddenly, a happy laugh upon his lips. He gripped Shadow again, with both hands, holding tight to both lapels on Shadow's coat—

"Promise me," he said, "as the old song goes, y'know, Shad. Promise me—won't you?"

Shadow could not answer at once. And when he did, his voice was shaking-

"After that song, Gil," he stammered, "I'll promise you anything, if I can do it—"

"Oh, just promise me that you'll promise," cut in Little Gil, dancing from one foot to another as he pulled Shadow this way and that, first one lapel was down, then the other, and Shadow's face lost some of its seriousness—or should I call it fright—as he answered:

"I'll promise you anything, Gil."

"A'right, then, promise me you won't do anything to Lord Harry—no, you must promise me more than that, Shad. You must promise me you won't even SAY anything to him—y'know wot I mean, Shad—not say anything erbout—well, him chasin' me, f'rinstance, y' might say . . . oh, now don't look so sour, Shad, think! Think, now! Listen, if you ain't made up your mind yet, I'll sing you another song—"

"No!" came Shadow's voice, and now his words boomed loud above Little Gil's echo—"don't sing me any more of those ghost songs. You don't have to. I'll promise—I won't say anything to Lord Harry. About him chasing you, as I saw today." Shadow turned to me. "I'll leave that to Hawkins."

For a moment there was silence, as Shadow turned and made his little bow to me. But I didn't say anything. Nobody said anything. None of us could. Little Gil broke the silence—

"Ghost songs, you said!" he exclaimed under his breath. It seemed as though he were talking to himself. "Ghost songs! Yeah, that's what they are. Gee rickets! I couldn't sing that way by myself. No. Always SHE must hear. Lessen she listens to me, I cain't ever sing like that. She SHE must hear. Lessen she listens to gives me the start. She sings the first note, you see, then I know how to go on. Yeah! Gee rickets!"

He was staring at Shadow now. His forefingers were held aloft and he seemed to be listening. He shook his head.

"Gone, now. Couldn't sing another song if I had to. Yeah. You're right. They're ghost songs. Shadow, you told me right. Funny I never thought of that before! They're ghost songs!"

"Let's not talk about it any more, Gil," I said. I laid my hand upon his shoulder. "Look at me, Gil!" He turned his big blue eyes upon mine. "Fair and square!" I said. "We're goin' to be brothers like that, aren't we, Gil? You, and me. And Shadow and Perry, there. And all the boys in this club. We aren't going to have any secrets from one another, are we, Gil?"

"No, indeedy!" He shook his head as he gave me his answer. And in his eyes I read nothing but true blue. "No secrets, anymore, Hawkins. And thank you for taking me into your club—"

"Forget that!" I cut in, and I tried to look severe. "We ought to thank y u, Gil, for joining us. But from now on, as I said, you are not going to hold back any secrets on us, are you? You are going to tell us everything?"

"Yeah!" he said, quickly. "All but Daddy Joe's secrets—you see, I cain't fer th' life o' me give old Daddy Joe away—y' see, he been King o' the Hoboes so long—"

"Stop that!" I said, harshly. "You don't know what you're saying, Gil! You don't ever want to repeat that again. Do you know, we have had a visit from Jeckerson, the famous detective from Watertown? No of course you didn't. But I'll tell you now—he's looking for the King of the Hoboes—that's just what I'm getting at, Gil—you want to be careful—if there's any secrets that we ought to know, you'd better tell 'em to us now, before it's too late—so's we can help you—"

"A cop!" exclaimed Gil. His eyes were wide. He held my hand, but he backed away from me and now was staring into my eyes. "A cop, is he? Come to find Old Daddy Joe? No! No, Hawkins, you mustn't let him . . . don't let him take Old Daddy Joe away from me— Gee rickets! How good that man has been to me! Don't let no cop take my Daddy Joe—"

"Stop it!" I said. "Who's said anything about letting 'em take Old Daddy Joe away from you? We boys are your friends, Gil. We've got that motto tacked up over there and it says fair and square. You know what that means, don't you?"

"It means you won't let Old Daddy Joe be taken away f'om me!' 'exclaimed Gil, and he flung himself upon me. "That's wot it means to me. Don't you let 'em take Old Daddy Joe. I ain't got nuttin' in this ol' world no more—nuttin' a'tall but my singin' an'—"

He was smiling now, all of a sudden. The light in his eyes was the same now as we had seen when he had stood in the corner and sang.

"Don't worry, Gil," I said, as I patted him upon the shoulder. "We like you. And, somehow, it seems every boy in this club likes your Daddy Joe. He's got a soul, Daddy Joe has. Maybe you gave it to him. We don't care about that, but we are goin' to play fair and square not only with you, but with those you love, Gil."

Which we did.

WEDDING BELLS

NORTHEY—BULLOCK

LAKEFIELD, April 13 (Examiner Correspondence).—On Thursday, April 11, Aldus Northey, of the village of Lakefield, was united in marriage to Mrs. Sarah Harris Bullock of Smith township. The ceremony was performed quietly at the parsonage of Regent Street United Church by Rev. S. A. Kemp. The couple were unattended.

Quite a company of their friends gathered in front of the Parsonage to decorate the marimonial car and to greet Mr. and Mrs. Northey with congratulations and a shower of confetti as they left the parsonage, and they made a merry and lively time for the "newlyweds." Mr. and Mrs. Northey are well known in the locality and will reside on Nassau street.

CLEMENTS—BIRD.

MADOC, April 13. — (Examiner Correspondence.) — A very pretty home wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bird Cooper, on the evening of March 23, when their sister, Sara E. Bird, became the wife of William Clements. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. G. A. Adamson, of Eldorado.

Promptly at 7.30 to the strains of the bridal chorus, played by Miss Sadie Bird, of Trenton, the bride entered the parlor leaning on the arm of her brother Albert, and took her place beneath an arch of evergreens trimmed with roses and white bells

The bride looked charming in a dress of rosewood crepe-back satin, and carried a bouquet of pink and white roses. Her little niece, Alice Diamond, made a very pretty flower girl, carrying a basket of roses and sweet peas. She was dressed in white organdy trimmed with pink.

After congratualtions, the guests, numbering about fifty, repaired to the dining room, where decorations of pink and white prevailed and sat down to a sumptuous wedding supper served by four young ladies dressed in white.

The many beautiful and costly presents testified to the high esteem in which the bride was held by her many friends. The groom's gift to the bride was a purse, to the organist a gold bar pin, and to the flower girl a ring. The happy couple will reside at Ivanhoe, where Mr. Clements conducts a general store.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright,
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet,
Or dims the radiant light.
No unkind word our lips shall pass,
No envy sour the mind,
But each shall seek the common weal,
The good of all mankind

WARSAW.

Financing the Institute is a matter of consideration, since money-making is not of itself the Institute's work. However, no organization can be run without money. The member's fees of twenty-five cents do not go very far, and of that fifteen cents per member goes to the Confederation. Each branch of fifteen paid members receives $3.00, if there have been at least six meetings, all returns asked by the Department have been made, a satisfactory financial statement has been furnished for the previous year, and a list of officers for the current year sent. With these amounts, but little could be done

For their own finances, Warsaw Institute has put on plays; the first one was "Cranford." They have given concerts of various kinds; a century of song; an old-time concert; lectures, debates, serials, and served meals for public convenience. At times refreshments have been served with a small charge attached.

As many of the members strenuously object to dancing, this branch has never given a dance, though when the Institute was asked to endeavor to see that a certain sum was raised for Armenians. Dr. Munro and some other gentlemen kindly gave a dance and procured the money.

During the war several ladies, the first of whom was Mrs. James Moore, opened their homes for afternoon teas, and social evenings, and goodly amounts were obtained.

There were egg days, when every one brought the eggs laid on a certain day Many who were not institute members assisted.

Social evenings were held in the Institute Hall, then over Mr. T. Clement's store.

Also, the Institute was entrusted to use some large amounts of money obtained by "at-homes" given by the orchestra and others. At first, Dr. Munro, who was in charge of the money granted the Institute to buy the goods, yarn, flannel, gauze, absorbent and other materials required, and present the bills for payment, but the branch felt they could do better buying by having the cash in hand, and the committee gave it. Naturally, the Institute was only too glad to show show how far it could make the funds go.

MILLBROOK.

Institutes are being asked to take special note of the bulletins, replete with information on household economics, which are issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture and are available on request. The list is probably not as familiar to Ontario homemakers as its usefulness warrants, and includes the following:

"How to Reduce the Family Meat Bill," illustrated with the several cuts of beef, and with recipes for using the cheaper pieces:

"Cutting up and curing pork and beef."

"Suggestions for the preparation of frying and broiling chickens."

"The household preservation of eggs," and coupled with this is another leaflet on "Eggs," with recipes, and facts regarding the food value of eggs.

"Canadian grown apples," with a number of recipes for cooking this healthful fruit.

"Fruit and vegetables — canning, drying, and storing."

"Preserving fruits and vegetables in the home."

Then there is the helpful series of booklets by Helen Campbell especially in reference to dairying: "Why and how to use milk," "Why and how to use skim milk," "Why and how to use cream," "Why and how to use buttermilk." "Why and how to use cheese." "Milk drinks." "Home-made frozen desserts," and "Why and how to use cottage cheese."

In asking for all or any of these the address is: The Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

The Junior Red Cross work is an activity which Institute branches are urged to foster in their respective communities. This movement was organized during the war to give the younger folk a chance to do their bit in helping the men at the front. In peace time it has grown so rapidly that in addition of twenty thousand members is reported each year. There are now 5,744 branches in Canada, with a total enrolment of 157,155 Canadian boys and girls; the slogan is: "Health, Service and Good Citizenship."

This work has proved not only a pleasure to the boys and girls, but one of great educational value, teaching self-confidence and self-control; it inculcates the practice of virtues that are of undoubted civic value, and is making a great contribution to the health services of the country.

MODERN TREND

THE STYLE sketched in featherweight tweed depends entirely on its clever lines showing modernistic influence that has entered the daytime mode. It is a smartly wearable type that is strikingly chic fashioned of suede washable flat silk crepe in black with inset neck band of eggshell, light navy blue with white pique, and silk crepe in modernistic print. Almond green wool jersey is jaunty for active sports or classroom.

THE PATTERN contains a Picture Chart, a perfect guide to follow to make it without involving the least bit of difficulty, even if it is your first attempt at sewing. It is offered at cost price 15 cents as a service to readers who sew, and is designed in sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust. In the 36-inch size, 3 yards of 40-inch material is all that is needed to make Style No. 2617.

NEW FASHION BOOK containing all the Spring styles is 15 cents, but may be obtained for 10 cents if ordered with pattern.

ELECTRIC FISHERMAN.

BERLIN, April 11. — Electricity is the newest aid to fishermen. In certain parts of this country, big catches are reported from the use of an electric fishing device. It consists of two copper cables, one of which is placed below the water, and the other near the surface. Current passing between the two kills all fish in the vicinity.

OLD SONGS

BEAUTIFUL DREAMER
(Serenade)
(Contributed by Beatrice.")

Beautiful dreamer, wake unto me;
Starlight and dew-drops are waiting for thee;
Sounds of the rude world, heard in the day,
Lulled by the moonlight, have all passed away.

Beautiful dreamer, queen of my song;
List, while I woo thee with soft melody;
Gone are the cares of life's busy throng.
Beautiful dreamer, awake unto me,
Beautiful dreamer, awake unto me.

Beautiful dreamer, out on the sea,
Mermaids are chanting the wild lorelie;
Over the streamlet the vapors are borne,
Waiting to fade at the bright coming morn;

Beautiful dreamer, beam on my heart
E'en as the morn on the streamlet and sea,
Then will all clouds of sorrow depart;
Beautiful dreamer, awake unto me,
Beautiful dreamer, awake unto me.

LITTLE MARION PARKER
(Contributed or "Young' Point" by "Nancy.")

Away out in California
A family bright and gay,
Were planning for their Christmas,
Not very far away.
They had a little daughter,
A sweet and pretty child,
And all the folks who knew her,
Loved Marion Parker's smile.
She left her home one morning
For school not far away;
And no one dreamed that danger
Could come to her that day
And then a murderous villain
A fiend with heart of stone, took little Marion Parker
Away from friends and home

The world was horror-stricken,
And people held their breath,
Until they found poor Marion,
Her body cold in death
And then they caught the coward
Who Hickman was the man
Who brought him back to justice,
His final trial to stand.
There is a great Commandment
That says "Thou shalt not kill"
And those who do not heed it
Must suffer sorrow still.
This song should be a warning
To carry far and near
We cannot guard too closely
The ones we love so dear.

THE DRUNKARD'S LONE CHILD
(Contributed by "Babe of the Woods.')

I am alone, all alone my friends all have fled,
My father's a drunkard, my mother is dead,
I am a poor little child. I wonder and weep
For the voice of my mother to sing me to sleep.
She sleeps on the Hill in a bed made of clay,
How cold it did seem to lay mother away
She's gone with the Angels and none do I see,
So dear as the face of my mother to me.

Chorus:
I am a little lone'y girl in this world so wide
God look down and pity "The drunkard's one child.
Look down and pity, Oh soon come to me, take me to dwell with mother and Thee.
'Tis spring time on earth, the birds so glad,
I listen and wonder my heart is so sad.
Sweet flowers bloom around the corner wonder by,
But the form of my mother no longer is nigh.
Last night in my dreams she seemed to draw near,
She pressed me as fondly as when she was here.
She smiled on me sweetly and fondled my brow,
And whispered, Sleep on I am waiting for you now

The Farm That Wouldn't Sell

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

"Then it is understood, Miss Andrews, that you will keep an eye on the place and show it to prospective buyers. I might add that in addition to your fee as caretaker, Mr. Garrish will allow you a nominal commission if the farm is disposed of through your efforts." Lawyer John Pangburn buttoned his fur coat snugly about him and turned away.

A touch on his arm arrested him. "It's rather a pity, isn't it," Margaret Andrews questioned him, "for the last of the Gerrishes to let the property go out of the family?"

"Yes, young lady," admitted Pangburn, "it is, undoubtedly. But, lord, these young chaps nowadays—what's a few acres and a bunch of cows compared to the subway rush and the bright white lights? Henry seems to think he can set Wall Street on fire with the proceeds from the sale of the farm."

Left alone, Margaret watched her recent visitor's car grow smaller and smaller along the ribbon of road that threaded the Woodbridge hills. But her thoughts were elsewhere—with old Henry Gerrish, who a few days before had gone to join his fathers on the hill; with young Henry Gerrish, whom she had never seen until the day of the funeral, and then only at a distance.

For Henry had gone out to an uncle ranching it in the West some months before Margaret's arrival in Woodbridge and had not come home until summoned by the death of his father. There had followed the speculation in the neighborhood as to Henry's intentions regarding the farm. Would he follow his father's and grandfather's footsteps? Today those queries had been answered, for Henry, immediately after the brief reading of his father's will, had instructed Pangburn to put the old homestead on the market.

As time passed, however, and the place remained unsold, Margaret came to feel for it a continually increasing fondness. Watching the spring sowing of fields rented to a neighbor, tending the small flower gardens about the doorways opening the windows to flood with sterilizing brightness the unused house, dusting the quiet rooms—all these activities developed in her almost a sense of part ownership with Henry Gerrish. And more and more she waxed indignant with him for wishing to dispose of his inheritance.

Would-be purchasers happened along now and again, but for one reason or another departed unimpressed. One year passed—two years—three.

Then one sunny afternoon in April into John Pangburn's dingy office stalked a youth with worried lines about his eyes. "Look here, Mr Pangburn," he began without preamble, "I'm hard up. Things haven't panned out as I hoped. What I get in from the farm hardly pays the taxes. The house won't rent. Why the deuce doesn't the place sell?"

Pangburn shook his head. "Henry, I don't know. It's the dickens of a ways for me to travel down with every Tom, Dick and Harry, but I've wondered sometimes—do you suppose that that Miss Andrews queers the deal? She'll lose her little income if she sells the farm."

Henry nodded. "Guess you've hit it. And she stands to get the commission in the end. Listen, now—I've an idea. The girl doesn't know me. Send me down to look it over as buyer and I'll size up the situation."

"Good scheme," said Pangburn, "a confounded good scheme."

One afternoon the last of the Gerrishes (pro tem.) followed in amazement Margaret's slim figure and marveled at the words which fell from her lips. How unfair had Pangburn been!

"Can't you see it?" she was demanding. "Those forty acres in corn, the west twenty in alfalfa, that swamp drained for celery, the timber lot cleared and yielding a little ready cash, good utility stock in the chicken runs, a few grade cows to start with—"

"This line of talk," mused Henry to himself, bewildered, "should have nailed every customer." Aloud, "I wonder why the present owner doesn't keep it?" he said. "Why does he sell?"

"Because," said Margaret promptly, "he's an idiot!"

On his return to town Henry cast a bombshell at Pangburn's feet. "Heavens, man," he cried. "She's made the place so darned attractive I'm going to farm it myself!"

One year from the day she met him Margaret Andrews married Henry Gerrish and came back from the little Woodbridge church to the old house he had tended.

"Funny," ruminated Henry, "old Pangburn thought maybe the place didn't sell because you ran it down, or something o' the sort."

Margaret was silent a moment. Then, "Maybe," she confessed slowly, "he was right. You see, I hated to see old Henry Gerrish's son squander the work of years and generations. Not that I ever actually said anything—only, well . could have been more enthusiastic!"

"But why," demanded Henry, puzzled, "did you praise it to the skies to me? You didn't know it was I—"

"Didn't I?" laughed his bride of an hour. "Do you suppose, Henry Gerrish, I could dust the photograph of a man with a dimple in his left cheek every few days for three years and not recognize him when I saw him?"

HOME HELPS

CLOTHING.

In the spring a young girl's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of dress:

However light the turning be, there are a few fairly weighty points which she will do well to remember. Because the body is more than raiment, the really most important point in the consideration or choice of dress is its hygienic qualities. Clean it must be and loose enough to admit of the free movement of the limbs, though not necessarily of the unattractive "uncommon fit" of Smike's overcoat. If, in addition to this, it is of sufficient warmth in cold weather, the main demands of hygiene are satisfied. Those are the qualities of clothes which affect the wearer's health. There is another which affects her peace of mind—and thus indirectly, I presume, her health also. As it affects the comfort and happiness of others as well, it deservedly occupies a quite important place in our consideration of wearing apparel—we mean the appearance of clothing.

What daughter of Eve has not had a perfectly good entertainment or social function ruined for her because of some defect in her attire?

On a number of factors does the gratification derived from the appearance of our clothing depend:

(a) Is it suited to the occasion? Knickers at a party and a georgette dress at a skating rink would produce, in conjunction with their environments, equally jarring notes. A woman washing dishes in her kitchen is badly dressed in anything but a plain housedress, apron or smock.

(b) Is it suited to the wearer? The Powerful Katrinka and Tillie the Toiler could not choose the same type of dresses. (Not that I would uphold either as mistresses of the art of clothes selection.) The thin woman can indulge in taffeta, tiered skirts, and a greater variety of printed materials, but is well advised to be more wary of low necklines and short sleeves (or no sleeves) than her plumper sister. Use all your artistic sense of line and color in planning that wherein you are to be clad. Before my mental eye arises the picture of a little auburn-haired 'Iris' who must have had an artistic mother. She was a lithe, lissome, wee thing, and the simple green frock she habitually wore, in conjunction with her blue, blue eyes, was, for me, a note of enchantment which conjured up the vision of wild iris with prodigal blue blossoms and graceful green fronds in an old limberlost of a swamp which I knew. Study effects. Be yourself, and wear what appears most pleasing on you, regardless of what all the other misses and mesdames may be wearing.

(c) Is it suited to the income? Does it testify to good budgetting? By making simplicity the keynote of our wardrobe, good results can be achieved with moderate means. There should be evenness of attire; we should not sacrifice one garment for lavish expenditure on another. Extremes of fashion are to be avoided; they are in bad taste and extravagant. A woman stood at a window watching two friends approach. One was dressed in something quite striking and very new; the other wore her four-year-old tailored suit. The observer said, "There could be absolutely no doubt as to which was the better dressed."

Ready-to-wear garments have, undoubtedly, good style and are usually well made. Women in ordinary circumstances may be justified in buying certain garments that way. But what a wonderful saving can be effected with only a very pleasant expenditure of energy by the average woman in making her own housedresses, aprons, and lingerie!

MARION'S MAIL

Dear Marion:—

It is a long time since I wrote you though I have thought of you very often. My husband and I were very ill with 'flu and after effects and it was March before I recovered from the bronchial cough. I seemed to have no ambition and I had a lot of letters to answer and other work to do as we were ill since Christmas. I did want to get that boudoir cap pattern but am afraid they are all gone now. I read the paper every evening and enjoy your page and the letters very much. The page is a great addition to the paper. I often think how tired you must be sometimes. The Whatnot is very instructive. About bridge, which I enjoy playing very much; I can't understand the objections to it. I think people have the idea—some people—that it is played for money. In that case it causes unhappiness. We play for fun and a lot I know do the same. It is a clever game and one must have a good memory and it is impossible to cheat if it is fairly played. I enjoy Five Hundred and Whist also. If one never does anything worse than play Bridge she will be all right. I am enclosing four recipes and twenty-five cents for a pattern and book

Yours very truly.
"Fides"

Thank you for your letter, "Fides." I am pleased to know you are better, and surely hope that with the coming of spring we shall see an end to this illness. Thank you for your nice encouragement.

"Dear Marion:

Here I am again with more old timers for the Old Song column. I guess I was a bit unlucky in the songs I asked for, so I'll try again. Has any neighbor got the words of "Terry," "Just An Old-Fashioned Lady," and "Colleen Bawn."

Gee, we have had some fine weather lately, haven't we, and lots of rain too, I guess. I often wonder, Marion, if you ever had any more letters from our friends 'The Thinkers.' I think I'll conclude now, wishing you every success. I am

Yours sincerely,
Erin's Youth."

Please don't start those two off again, "Erin's Youth"!

Thank you for your contributions, which are much appreciated.

THESE Spring days most people are suffering from actual oxygen starvation. Winter, with its sunless skies and fewer opportunities for outdoor exercise, has gradually thinned and devitalized their blood so that it is not carrying the amount of oxygen required by the body tissues.

If you are feeling languid and off-color you need a tonic. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will invigorate and purify the blood stream so that it will again carry a generous supply of oxygen throughout your system.

Microscopic tests prove the value of these famous Pink Pills in increasing the blood count. Buy a box today at your druggist's, 50 cents, or postpaid from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ontario.

When your Children Cry for It

Mothers, who take one simple precaution, are seldom worried. With a bottle of Fletcher's Castoria in the house they can do what their doctor would tell them to do, when baby is fretful, feverish, colicky, constipated or stuffed-up with cold—give a few drops of this pure vegetable, pleasant-tasting preparation. It comforts Baby and soothes him to sleep in a jiffy. It's perfectly safe for the youngest infant. Use it freely—and as often as needed, specialists advise. A more liberal dose is all it takes to comfort and relieve older children, when feverishness, bad breath, no appetite, colds, etc., show they need a good purging. The mark of genuine Castoria is the Fletcher signature on the wrapper. Look for it to avoid imitations.

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

There were two splendid lessons at Kiwanis Kapers last night. One was of the "Thou shalt" type and the other was a "Thou shalt not."

• • •

Something new in the history of amateur and even professional productions in Peterborough was the starting of the show on time, and the director is certainly to be congratulated on the achievement.

• • •

This gives rise to the first lesson—"Thou shalt arrive at shows on time." Fully one-third of the seat holders arrived after the affair had started, annoying those who were seated, and causing a great deal of confusion.

It opens up the whole matter of keeping appointments and being on time. There are some people who have a record for lateness, and it is nothing of which to be proud.

• • •

There's nothing smart in being late. The essence of good manners is thinking of others, and certainly those who arrive late for a play or concert cannot be accused of regard for those already in their places!

It is terrible to have the opening chorus, or lines, or pictures spoiled by thoughtless people who tramp all over one's feet and blot out the view of the stage.

Some people actually think it is "correct" to be late. If you set your bridge party for 8.30, they will arrive at 9; if the concert is due to start at 8.15, they plan to get there at 8.25. It's simply ignorant.

• • •

I heard one lady say a few days ago, "we'll say 7.30, and then they'll be here at 8." What's the sense in it, after all?

• • •

If a few show managers, and hostesses, will follow last night's lead, they will be rewarded by finding people on time thereafter.

• • •

Arriving late is a bad habit, embarrassing to everyone and damaging to the entertainment.

The second lesson came from a woman about row "M." It was decidedly annoying.

I surely thought when I went to Kiwanis show I would be spared the annoyance of the "title reader." There's one, at least, in every picture audience who reads the titles aloud.

There were no titles to read, but this woman actually read aloud the names she knew from the cover of the program!

What on earth did she go to the show for? She didn't see or hear half of it—she couldn't have, because she effectively spoiled it for me.

• • •

Just when I was all set to catch the "gag" in the minstrel act, this woman would pounce on some name she knew, and point it out to her escort.

• • •

And in one of the daintiest of the acts she varied the program by telling her gentleman friend the names of the girls in the cast.

It happens at every concert and show. I don't know what on earth such people go to shows for. The music doesn't mean a thing to them, and they spoil it for everyone else in the vicinity.

It is insulting to the artists to talk while they are performing; it is unfair to those who have paid their money to HEAR THE MUSIC; and it is utterly foolish on the part of the offender herself to dress up for a show when she could talk equally well at home or in the park.

• • •

'Nuff said! The polite woman will only need a hint, and the others would not obey a police order!

• • •

There was another lesson, too. No flowers went over the footlights, and I found out afterward this was by order of the director—wise man!

"I never saw an amateur yet who could come forward gracefully and accept a bouquet," he told the cast—and he was right. How often we have felt embarrassed as an artist walked up to the footlights to receive flowers!

• • •

It was thoughtfulness for the performers themselves that prompted the order, and they should be grateful.

• • •

So besides the fun we had—and it really was the best show I've seen in Peterborough—there were several lessons to be learned.

• • •

At a bridge the other night (yes, I still play!) one of the players told what I think is an excellent plan for the summer home.

You all know the bother laundering is during the time spent at the cottage—there is no washer; probably not even an iron. And things DO get mussed more there than at home.

• • •

This idea is to use crepe paper for window curtains, cheap to start with, requiring no laundering, and easily renewed.

This woman even plans to have overdraperies of the same paper in the shades she desires. She will use the paper, too, for covers for the dressers, tables, shelves, and for napkins.

That seems like an excellent time- and work-saver—a great recommendation to the busy housewife on vacation!

I have noticed many neighbors listed in the membership of the beautify Peterborough campaign, but there are many of you who have not yet joined.

• • •

We started this on our page, neighbors, and I want to see it well supported by women. Let's put it across in a real way.

• • •

All you need do is sign the coupon and bring it to The Examiner downstairs office. You will be given two cards asking people to keep off your lawn.

Or, if you are not coming downtown, mail the coupon, with a 2-cent stamp enclosed to pay postage, and the cards will be sent you.

• • •

Then start work on your lawn. Get the men folk interested. Make your home the centre of a beauty spot all its own.

• • •

And think of the result when we all do it!

Personality

When Ziegfeld selects girls, you can be sure they have personality. This lovely New York girl now appearing in "Rio Rita," has talent—and beauty, too—enhanced by wonderful skin and the softest waves of dark brown hair.

"When friends ask me what I do to make my hair so soft and glamy," says Miss Hargrave, "I have to think twice to tell them, because I give so little time to it. The method I use is very popular among New York girls. I just put a little Danderine on my brush each time I use it. I am getting my hair grow; but you'd never know it, Danderine keeps it so soft and easy to arrange and holds it in place so wonderfully. It gives my hair such a silky, soft and lustrous appearance, friends are always commenting on it. There isn't a trace of dandruff left now that I am using Danderine regularly. And it keeps my hair and scalp so clean and comfortable that I don't shampoo half as often as I used to."

Danderine quickly removes clinging film from your hair, brings out its natural color, gives it more life than brilliantine. It makes the hair easy to dress; keeps it in place. It usually checks dandruff. It isn't oily; doesn't show. All drug stores have the generous 35c bottles. A delightfully fragranced necessity for the well-groomed girl!

That Body of Yours

By Dr. J. Barton

REMOVING TONSILS BY ELECTRICITY

You have had repeated attacks of tonsilitis and your family physician and the specialist have advised operation.

They have pointed out that when the tonsils are not badly affected, even though quite large, the general opinion now is not to disturb them.

But that when the tonsils, or one of them, is in bad shape, that rheumatism was very likely to follow later, heart disease. Then some one tells you that you will not need to undergo the operation, that the tonsils can be destroyed by electricity which coagulates the tissues and by "drying them up" destroys any harmful organisms.

Of course it means going a number of times to the office of the specialist who does this kind of work. The treatments may extend over a number of weeks, even months.

What about this?

There has been a lot of arguments both ways about this method for the past ten years, but those in favor of it and those opposed are still widely apart in their opinions.

That this method is helpful in some cases cannot be denied. There's the very nervous individual who will not undergo a general anaesthetic and yet hesitates about having such an operation performed by a local anaesthetic.

He feels that he might "fade" during the operation and something serious would happen.

He is quite willing, however, to go a number of times and have the tonsil tissue "coagulated" by electricity.

There are others who have some organic condition which prevents operation by the knife. Here also the electrodessication treatment is of service. And cases also where the condition of the tonsils is bad, but the specialist is able to get at every part of the tonsil and destroy it, not leaving any portions to give trouble.

However, there is no question but that where the tonsils are in a very bad condition and the patient can stand an operation, the use of the knife to clear away every bit of tonsil is the best treatment.

Therefore, if you have to have your tonsils removed, think over the above facts and remember that if the electric drying process is not completely successful, and you have to have the tonsils removed later by a surgeon, he is going to have a more difficult task to make a nice clean job because of the scar tissue that was caused by the electric process.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

"Children are helpless nowadays."

"You cannot expect girls and boys nowadays to help with the housework. Helping mother has gone out of fashion. It is a lot easier to do all the work yourself than to try to get young folk to help."

You hear that sort of comment so often now days that you finally become convinced that girls and boys are less helpful than they used to be and that the age of helplessness lasts longer than it used to a generation or so ago.

One reason for this may be that mothers are impatient, and another may be that clubs and various organizations outside the home provide the rowing children with so many interests and activities that they have little time or energy left for the old-fashioned divers on the part of mother. Then, too, prejudiced mothers may be prejudiced against looking back over their own childhoods they may overestimate their own helpfulness.

Helpless as these youngsters of the present generation may be I am convinced that they have a rather astonishing ability to shoulder responsibility. Present-day methods of training has developed their powers of initiative—or rather it has done less to thwart such native powers than the old-time educational methods.

Fifteen-year-old Mary who would be very much embarrassed if asked to help mother and the cook get ready for a dinner party could probably do it nicely if asked by her mother to take the entire responsibility of choosing the menu, doing the ordering, helping the cook with the more elaborate dishes or actually cooking the dinner herself.

Some children unfortunately are never given an opportunity to show their real ability. One of the only pleasant results that can ever come from illness in the family is that it often provides children with an opportunity to show what they can do when the mother of the house is ill or kept from her usual duties while nursing a member of the family.

St. Catharines May Lose Annual Water Classic

NEW COURSE MAY BE LAID AT HAMILTON

Present Course at St. Catharines in Poor Condition.

NEEDS DREDGING.

Desjardins Canal at Windy City Well Adapted For Holding Regatta.

ST. CATHARINES, April 13.—"It just amounts to this: If the Canadian Henley course is not dredged out, we will lose the annual regatta," said a prominent official of the St. Catharines end of the regatta management yesterday. He said that for half a mile from the starting point of the races the channel has filled in seriously, due to sand, sewage and the grapeskins dumped into the water by the near-by winery.

"We think the Canadian Government will dredge the channel in the interests of sanitation, if for no other reason," he added. "If the dredging is done, the material taken out can be deposited on the western bank near Ann street as a foundation for the new grand stand.

A new aspirant for the Canadian Henley regatta has appeared in the City of Hamilton hitherto not considered, and many of the leading oarsmen here think the regatta will go to Hamilton if it ever leaves St. Catharines.

The proposition at Hamilton is to use the old Desjardins Canal for a course, which is said to be well adapted for the purpose. However, officials here say every effort will be made by St. Catharines to keep the regatta, and they believe that, with the co-operation of the Canadian Government, this can be done.

JIMMY FOXX IS STRONG AT BAT

Also Versatile Player and Plays Any Position for the Athletics.

A SECOND RUTH.

NEW YORK, April 13.—St. Louis Browns were playing the Philadelphia Athletics at Philadelphia on July 20 last summer, when, with two on bases in the fifth, a twenty-year-old boy stepped to the plate to face John Ogden, veteran righthander. Ogden thought to slip a fast one over in the groove. The boy batsman took a toe hold, drew back his bat and swung. Zowie! What a drive. It is 350 feet from the plate to the two-deck left field stand. The stand is 60 feet deep. The street behind Shibe Park is 40 feet across. The drive not only carried over the double decker, but sailed across the street, struck on the roof of a house and bounded on to the second street, an actual carry of 467 feet, without allowing anything for height.

The boy slugger was Jimmy Foxx. If he had just one more "r" on his name there is no telling how far he would have driven that ball. As it is, he is the only batsman ever to hit the ball over the left field stand at Shibe Park.

Bought as Catcher.

Two others have dropped balls on the roof but bounded into the street, but none ever has come close to equaling the feat of Jimmy Foxx, the boy that Connie Mack bought as a catcher, but who, he has discovered, is just as capable at first base and even better than a sacker.

It was again the Browns also that Jimmy demonstrated most convincingly that Connie Mack made no mistake when he shifted his kid catcher to third base in place of Sammy Hale. The Athletics won the game, 1 to 0, and it was Foxx's fielding that saved the day. With two on, Manush slapped one toward third. Jimmy pounced upon it, whirled and threw to second and Bishop handled the ball so quickly that Manush, a fast runner, was doubled at first. In the ninth inning the Browns filled the bases. Two out. The batsman hit one of those mean bad hopers between third and short. Like a flash, Jimmy leaped for it. He snagged it. There was just time to get the batter at first and the game was over.

"He is going to be Babe Ruth's successor as a slugger," says the Athletics and the Philadelphia baseball writers. "A kid who can pull the stunts that Foxx can before he is 21 is sure to be a famous ball player."

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Irvin "Ace" Bailey, who showed all the boys in the cash and carry circuit how to bag goals this season, has been in town several days this week, and Wed. nite some of the boys got together and entertained the sharpshooter at a little gathering, handing him a cigarette case as a momentoe of the occasion. Old games was talked over, and altogether it was a happy reunion. 1 thing impressed me, Mister Sporting Editor, and that is, that success ain't turned the head of the lad what helped the Peterboro cop the O.H.A. senior title a few seasons ago. He's just the same old Bailey, ready to give the resta the Leaves credit for his goal-scoring average, and wearing the same size hat he used to have up in his Peterborough boarding-house when the Petes was riding the crest of the wave. Mister Bailey has been earning a lotta money, and he has been getting all kinds of publicity all over the circuit, but neither the easy money nor the fame has spoiled him. The more credit to him. Prosperity has ruined many a athalete and press stuff has turned older heads than that of the Bracebridge lad, so it's a pleasure to run into a bird what can weather such a experience and keep a level head. Every Peterborough fan wishes him luck when he signs a matrimonial contract May 1st.

The local ball teams is waiting for the weather to give them a chance to start practise. And by the way, Mac, the old scramble for players seems to be going on, and once more the Peterborough Central Ontario League team, which to my way of thinking oughta have 1st call on promising material, is finding themselves with a battle on their hands every time they go after a likely candidate. In the long run it is doubtful whether the cause of baseball is helped by this yearly argument over players. In most baseball centres the senior outfit has the right-of-way, but there is nothing like that here where clubs in lower series not only want to keep all they had but try to grab up all the other available material. Some folks may not like what I'm saying on this point, but I can't help that, Mac. I think this berg oughta to be represented in the big series by the strongest team possible, and I believe the majority of fans got the same view of the situation.

Sports oughta play a big part in Old Home Week, Mac. It would be a great stunt to field an old-time lacrosse team with Mister Fred Lynch, Mister Percy Rubidge and some of them famous lads in line. General Don Hogarth, member of the Legislature, is another old-time Peterborough lacrosse star who might be persuaded to don the uniform once more. And by the same token, it would be possible to trot out the old Midland League ball team of days gone by. The old-time battery, Mister Dan McCabe and Mister Chris. Graham, is still here. So are some of the other players, including Mister Bill Grady, Mister "Lobster" Thompson and Mister Jack Sheridan. Mister Jack Mulhall, the old 2nd baseman, is in Toronto, and Dr. Andy Scott, third baseman, is in London. And the rest could easily be located. It would be a great drawing card, Mac, to get that gang together some day during Old Home Week. And it is hoped that something can be done along that line.

Well, Mac, just in passing we got 1 pro title anyway, thanks to them Windsor boys, which grabbed off the Can-Pro tinware. It saved us from a washout at the hands of Uncle Sam.

Sportfully yours,

A. WISE CRACKER.

Sports Writers Predict American League Champions Will Meet Giants in Final

(By Allan J. Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor.)

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 13.— If the predictions that blossom in the spring bear fruit by October, it will require only a few subway rides in the Harlem and Bronx to witness the battle for the world's baseball championship of 1929. The verdict of more than sixty major league baseball writers and sports editors, expressed in the third annual Associated Press consensus, is that the New York Yankees and Giants will win the pennant races that start next Tuesday.

Here's the order of the finish predicted:

American League — New York, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Detroit, Washington, Cleveland, Chicago and Boston.

Windsor Collegiate Beats Montreal 44-28

WINDSOR, April 13. (C.P.)—The Windsor Collegiate Alumni, the 1928 Senior Dominion Basketball champions, easily disposed of Montreal last night in the first of the interprovincial playdowns by 44 to 28. The tricky Windsor forwards, aided by the sterling defence work of Dawso nand King, appeared to be able to penetrate the Montreal defence at will.

OFFERS CUP FOR ANGLERS

J. W. Gravestock Donates a Trophy To Be Competed For By Local Sportsmen.

WOULD FORM CLUB.

The sport of casting gained considerable impetus in Peterborough on Wednesday night, through the good offices of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association, three members of the Toronto Anglers' Club staged a demonstration of both bait and fly casting in the armories. That Peterborough may by next winter boast an anglers' club similar to that which holds competitions throughout the winter months in the Queen City, is the aim of J. W. Gravestock, manager of the Canadian Crayon Company, himself an ardent devotee of the rod and reel. The local fish and game association has received the following letter from him, in which he has offered to donate a trophy to be competed for by Peterborough anglers. The letter reads:

Dear Mr. Graham:

Our bait-casting exhibition on Wednesday was a great success and proved of vastly more interest than was anticipated.

I intimated as much at our annual meeting when I moved that we embark on such ventures. The mere fact that about 200 people turned out for the occasion merits us in going forward along those lines and would indicate that with little effort our Club can get at least 200 paid up members this year.

The Club has received some valuable advertising and with a view to consolidating our position gained by this initial success I would like to have the privilege of donating some kind of cup or trophy to be awarded annually to the member who scores the highest as regards distance and accuracy, somewhat along the same lines of the tournaments conducted in Toronto and other cities.

I am sure that others interested will be glad of an opportunity of doing likewise and leave it to the committee to decide the order of prizes. If this suggestion is acceptable to the committee I will send you my cheque for $25 immediately so that the cup can be on display during the season and acts as an advance agent for the tournaments that should take place weekly during next winter.

The only stipulations on my part are that the cup be awarded annually and that it is to become the property of the member who is skillful enough to win it three years in succession.

My object in doing this is that experience in angling has shown me quite plainly that as a man becomes more expert in his art, he automatically becomes a better sportsman. Those of us who use casting baits exclusively know that we seldom catch undersized fish and that our method hooks fish in the mouth only, so that we are enabled to return them to the water absolutely unharmed. The old style live bait fishing almost always hooks fish in the throat or gullet and in most cases they cannot be returned unharmed, irrespective of their size. By catching only the mature fish (and returning all possible) we give all fish a chance to spawn at least once before they are caught.

TWO CLUBS AMALGAMATE

Lawn Tennis and Bowling Under Direction of One Executive.

PLANS PROGRESSING.

The amalgamation of the Peterborough Lawn Tennis Club with the Bowling Club has taken effect. The tennis club, it is stated, was passing through a low ebb in their fortunes and they decided to accept the invitation of the bowlers and join in the enterprise of building new courts and greens on the large piece of property of the bowling club. The tennis will be under the direction of the executive of the bowling club and the tennis players will be listed as members of the bowling club.

The number of tennis players to be allowed in the club will be limited to not more than 50 men and 30 ladies and it is expected that the full membership will be more than taken up very shortly.

It is reported that the finances necessary for the completion of the big construction program on the club's new grounds are coming in quickly. Over $5,000 is already on hand.

A committee consisting of M. Bredin, A. Brown and B. Chesler was delegated to go to Toronto for the purpose of inspecting the new Granite club house and the other fine clubs there. An expert, who has been actively engaged in constructing lawn bowling greens in the larger cities, was engaged to look over the property here, and it is likely that he will be given the contract to build the local greens.

The work on the greens is going along smoothly, it is said, and it will be pushed forward rapidly when the ground has dried out.

Major Segrave Knighted By The King In Honor Of His Brilliant Performance

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., April 13.—(C.P.)—Major H. O. D. Segrave arrived home from America yesterday, with a new world motor speed record to find that the King had conveyed the honor of knighthood upon him as well as congratulating him in a message from Craigwell House on his brilliant performance. It was believed this was the first time that such an honor had been bestowed for speed on land although it has rewarded aerial feats several times in the past.

Sir Charles Wakefield, who backed Major Segrave, said last night, "A Beau Geste indeed to knight this gentleman who has made such a courageous and successful effort to enhance the glory and prestige of Britain the world over."

The delay of the liner Olympic by gales and fog interfered somewhat with the plans for reception of the triumphant automobile racer. When the ship stopped at Cherbourg yesterday, Major Segrave told newspapermen that he would take the wheel again if anyone bettered his mark of 231 miles an hour established at Daytona Beach, Florida, in March

GUELPH HAS STRONG ENTRY.

GUELPH, Ont., April 13. (C.P.) — With 29 players on the list eligible to try out for places on the Guelph Intercountry Senior Baseball Team this year, there is every indication that the Leafs, who were champions of the league in 1928, will have an outfit, equally as strong, if not stronger, this year than they had when they copped the pennant last fall.

Although Scotch people are slower to marry than either English or Welsh, they have, on the average, larger families and are better patrons of the divorce court.

Despite that the number of operators has been increased, it required an average of 40.2 seconds to put through a telephone call in London last year, compared with 37 8 seconds in 1927.

HUPMOBILE

makes sweeping price reductions

to give the motoring public immediate advantage of HUPMOBILE'S new expansion program

Early in January HUPMOBILE acquired a new plant in Cleveland, comprising more than a million square feet of modern and advanced automotive manufacturing facilities.

This was the first step in HUPMOBILE'S 1929 program of expansion, giving HUPMOBILE a doubled production capacity for its famous Century cars.

Now comes the second step; that of passing along to the public the economies which HUPMOBILE'S extended production plans make feasible.

All models in the 1929 HUPMOBILE Century Six and Eight lines are embraced in these sweeping price reductions.

Consistently, for more than twenty years, HUPMOBILE has won and held its public by fine motor car quality at notably low prices.

But today, in this new schedule of prices, HUPMOBILE excels itself in value-giving.

SIGNS OF PROMISING LOCAL SUMMER SPORTS CAMPAIGN

Indications Point That Peterborough Is In For One of the Most Successful Athletic Summers in History of the City.

EXECUTIVES PREPARING FOR SEASON; CENTRAL LEAGUE HAS GOOD PROSPECTS

Signs of spring are in the air, and everywhere. The golfers are preparing to gallop gleefully. Everyone is busy, painting the old crate, overhauling the kicker, getting the little ship into commission.

The ball players are feeling the urge, dragging forth the willow from closets, feeling and greasing the old finger mit, itching for the smack of the bat on leather. The young ones have been out prancon the ball parks in the south end already, while the older ones are content to rub the arm and get cautiously into training, awaiting warmer weather.

Indications point that Peterborough is in for one of the most successful athletic summers in history.

The Central League team has lined up a strong string of players, and as soon as the green sward at James Stevenson Park has dried out they will be out gamboling.

FIFTH TEAM MAY ENTER E.P.L.

The East Peterborough League promises to be even more prominent than last year All the old teams will be back, and there may be one new one, composed of young players who have moved up from the junior ranks. In this league the closest competition has prevailed for years, and it is here that the most speculation is current.

Baseball for the younger players will not be lacking, because the City League will be back strong, and already several experienced managers have stated their intention of fostering a team of youngsters.

In the schools the boys are trying to decide whether they will play softball or the more virile hard variety. Whichever way it goes the sport will be keen.

Soccer is all settled and arranged, more teams having entered the fray than for many years past. Within a very few days the boys will kick-off and go booting down the long stretch to E. A. Peck's club bags, and the championship.

SOFTBALL MEETING NEXT WEEK.

The curtain will soon be drawn down on the bowling season, and the boys are talking softball, and in their anxiety to get started a meeting has been called for next week. Nine teams have been suggested as probable entries in the twilight game.

The runners have been out on the road for weeks now, and they are getting down to real work in preparation for the full bill of track meets this summer.

In every line of sport there are signs of activity and when Sol breaks forth in real earnest the whole jamboree will be off smartly.

KID CHOCOLATE WINS ON FOUL

Graham Has Lead On Points When He Lands Low Blow in Seventh.

COLORFUL AFFAIR.

COLISEUM, New York, April 13.—A dusky boxing machine from the Island of Cuba, the colorful 'Keed' Chocolate, with the flashing ivory smile, battled his way out of the valley of defeat last night to christen Jess McMahon's new indoor arena with a victory by a foul over "Bushy" Graham in the seventh round.

It was a battle as wild and uproarious as the opening itself of a mammoth barn-like arena far up in the Bronx. While the pair of contenders for bantamweight supremacy milled furiously in the centre of the huge arena and 16,000 cheered and hooted them on, as many more fans fought outside for admittance. To add to the general excitement, the enclosure holders of 1,000 counterfeit tickets clamored for seats already filled.

Colorful Affair.

In all it was one of the most thrilling and colorful nights the boxing faithful have seen since the days when old-time heavyweights met in the old pioneer horse market on 24th Street, and the most exhausting part of it all was the bout itself.

While the 16,000 fortunate enough to gain seats without suffering serious injury rustled their feet in fresh sawdust and howled to the rafters hundreds of feet above, Graham and the flashing bolt of ebony staged a frantic struggle.

Four times in all one or the other bounced on the canvas, felled by the storm of leather that whistled through the ring. Chocolate went down in the very first round from a crushing right to the chin, and again in the second from a low left that was palpably foul. He rose in the second and floored Graham with a left hook.

With the seventh a few seconds old Chocolate caught "Bushy' with a winging right hand on the chin. The Utica flash scrambled for a moment toward the canvas, caught himself and ran into the full power of the enraged negro's attack. Chocolate swarmed all over him and the end seemed seconds away.

Graham in Distress.

Reeling helplessly in a corner, Graham swung a long left hook to the body that plunged far below the danger line on Chocolate's trunks. The crowd rose to a man and yelled "Foul!" Chocolate turned to the referee, started to sink to the floor, and then walked unaided to his corner as the official halted the match and gave the negro the decision. The round lasted two minutes and four seconds.

Although Chocolate seemed freshest at the close and Graham tired and in dire danger of a knockout, the Utica dancing master had a definite lead on points when the bout ended. Ring-siders gave Graham four of the first six rounds, while Chocolate won the second and fourth. Graham scaled 121½, Chocolate 120.

The match, originally scheduled to decide the bantamweight champion in a division ruleless for the past two years, did little to advance the claims of either toward title recognition. Graham previously had been accepted as the 118-pound champion by the National Boxing Association.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

THE BRILLIANT LITTLE BUTTERFLY KIDDIE COMPANY COMING TO THE CAPITOL MONDAY, TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY, DIRECT FROM PANTAGES THEATRES IN TORONTO AND HAMILTON. THE BROADWAY COMEDY, "THE SHOPWORN ANGEL" ON THE SCREEN. THREE SHOWS DAILY AT 2.30, 7.00 AND 9.00.

For Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the Capitol will offer the wonder kids of vaudeville, "The Butterfly Kiddie Co." This brilliant little company won the hearts of Capitol patrons on two occasions last fall. They are returning in a brand new show, after a triumphant two weeks at the Pantages theatres in Toronto and Hamilton. In order that every person will have an opportunity of seeing this clever company of juvenile artists, there will be three performances daily. The usual matinee, and two performances each evening at seven and nine o'clock.

"THE SHOP WORN ANGEL," THE SCREEN FEATURE

Stepping along on her own two dainty little feet, is Nancy Carrol, the latest bit of piquant personality to grace the screen. Her latest picture, in which she is co-featured with Gary Cooper, "Shopworn Angel," the feature attraction, is a new triumph for Nancy Carroll.

Nancy Carroll has everything. She is a delight to watch. The life and action in her portrayal, the absorbing personality and the charm of her presence provides all the entertainment one needs for one evening. But then there's Gary Cooper. Cooper has "that" which, for men actors, is the same thing as "it" for women actors. He has proved it in many strong parts but, in no one of his pictures, has he excelled so completely as in "The Shopworn Angel."

"The Shopworn Angel" is a tender love story of a boy, shy, bashful, honest, and a girl, gay, giddy, charming and true. It is a pathetic story played against the bright background of Broadway. It is a glittering piece of romanticism, a thrilling tangle of circumstances in which a clean-minded young man and a re-awakened girl are swirled helplessly.

"The Shopworn Angel" has many things to recommend it. It has Nancy Carroll, Gary Cooper, Paul Lukas, that captivating and mysterious person, and an unusual, moving love story in a brilliant setting. It is good entertainment throughout and it is good for thinking people. "The Shopworn Angel" is a picture to see and to talk about.

LOCAL BUSINESS SHOWS PROGRESS

Modernizes Store Exterior and Interior — To Enlarge Work Department.

SPORT GOODS HOUSE.

A local business that has shown considerable expansion since its inception nine years ago is T. H. Ashby's Sport Goods House and Repair Shop, at 200 to 204 Rubidge street. Starting in a modest and unpretentious way, this business has been favored with a yearly-increasing patronage, necessitating interior changes in the building from time to time. And last week the work of remodelling the two stores into one on modern lines was completed. The fronts have been reconstructed, and now attract and hold the interest of passers-by with their 28 feet of copper-bound plate glass, and a distinctive central receding entrance. The southern wall also presents a generous area of plate glass. Interiorally, there are 26 x 22 feet of selling, display and shelf space with a mezzanine floor for the office. Ashby's have every reason to be proud of their present up-town store in a down-town district.

The workshop is also to be considerably enlarged, that Mr. Ashby and his son Clyde may no longer be handicapped for want of room to meet the ever-growing demand for their skilled services in repairing bicycles, lawn mowers, skate grinding, etc.

This firm carries complete lines in sport goods—fishing tackle, hunters' supplies, skates, hockey outfits, skis—in fact whatever is needed in the sports field—together with C.C.M. bicycles for young folks and grown-ups.

A faithful adherence to their "the-customer-be-pleased" policy has rewarded Ashby's with that confidence of the public which invariably results in a successful business career. The many friends of Mr. Ashby and his son Clyde, who joined his father three years ago, are extending congratulations.

HERE ARE THE FACTS

READ THEM

Many people buy without investigation of facts and on snap or emotional judgment. Every year it is estimated a million car buyers change their ideas on their car after they have had it six months. Consider the following facts before purchasing your next car—and then decide for yourself which car offers the most value for the money.

1. Do you know that no car under $2,000 outside of Ford is putting on Houdaille Double Acting Hydraulic Shock Absorbers as standard equipment?
2. That no car under $1,500 except Ford has triplex shatterproof windshield glass as standard equipment.
3. That Ford is the only car under Buick with three-quarter floating axle.
4. That Ford is the only car under Buick with Torque tube and Radius drive construction.
5. Ford is the only car under $1,500 with five-bearing transmission.
6. That the New Ford has 25 roller and ball bearings on its chassis.
7. Ford is the only car under $1,500 with three-quarter irreversible steering system.
8. That Ford is one of few cars built to-day that has five-steel-spoke wire wheels as standard equipment.
9. That Ford is the only car under highest priced cars with silent six-brake, internal expanding all-enclosed system.
10. That wrist pins in motor are machined to .0002 and are of full floating type.
11. That aluminum alloy pistons are balanced to an accuracy of two grams. This is the finest balance of any piston in any car regardless of cost.
12. That when car is traveling 50 miles per hour—the revolutions per minutes of motor is only 2052.
13. That gear ratio of New Ford is 3.7.
14. That the actual road clearance of New Ford is 9½ inches—highest of any American stock car.
15. That New Ford car has proven itself in public hands this past year as one of the finest performing cars ever built—from standpoint of pickup, hill-climbing ability, speed and riding comfort.
16. That the New Ford car has proven itself beyond any doubt as the most wonderful Winter car ever built. It starts easily in cold weather and bucks snow beyond belief—ask the owners.
17. That service and dealer responsibility behind the New Ford is unequalled by that of any other car built.
18. That New Ford holds the road at high speeds as good as cars being sold at highest prices.
19. Lastly, that the New Ford stands out supreme in its field—in mechanical design, specifications, equipment, quality, and precision workmanship.

GEORGE AND KING STREETS - PETERBORO, ONT.

PRESENTS PLAY.

Drama Staged Under Auspices of George Street Church Society.

A three-act drama was presented in the Sunday School Auditorium last evening by the Springville Literary Society under the auspices of the Twilight Mission Circle of George Street United Church. The scenes take place in the farmhouse kitchen of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Tompkins. These parts are taken by Walter Brown and Jessie Schaffer, who both believe in constantly working, particularly the wife, who kept everyone around the place busy, if it was only sewing carpet-rags. Her daughter Julia (Helen Whittington) who has been away to college is the only exception to the rule.

Other members of the household are Louise (Connie McConnachie) who Mr. Tompkins believes to be his own child; Ruth (Helen Staples) a niece of Mr. Tompkins who is staying with the family; Dixie (Robert Armstrong(and Jerry (Lloyd Whittington) hired men on the farm. Louise and Ruth are very fond of each other and often plan amusements in spite of Mrs. Tompkins' ideas. John Remington (S. S. Staples) a young man in love with Louise, visits the home and when Mrs. Tompkins and Julia find out that he and Louise are attached to each other, they make a plot to separate them. Through the efforts of Mrs. Tompkins a position is secured for John in the city and later Julia and her mother send Louise a forged letter under John's signature, telling her he intends to marry his employer's daughter for business reasons. Louise faints when she reads the letter but, recovering, finally decides to accede to her parents' wishes and marry a wealthy old farmer near-by.

Dixie, who has always been very kind to Louise, and Ruth talk matters over with them and decide to take a hand in the affair, as they see Louise is so unhappy. Ruth plans to go to the city to see John and next day he returns to the farmhouse with her, accusing the Tompkins of the deception. Julia then shows her true character and in spite of her mother calls Louise an outcast, without a name.

Mr. Tompkins is astonished, but his wife confesses the deception practiced for so many years. Dixie comes forward and claims Louise as his daughter. Instead of being a poor hired man he is now a New York millionaire, who disguised himself and came to find his daughter and see how she had been treated. All ends happily, and John and Louise are united. Mr. Tompkins forgives his wife for deceiving him. All the characters took their parts exceedingly well, portraying a bit of real farm life.

Assisting artists were Misses Alda Bartlett, who gave an instrumental solo; Miss Evelyn Miller, who gave two readings, and Miss Bernice Cane, who delighted the audience with two vocal solos.

PATRIOTIC LEAGUE WILL PRESENT PLAY

The Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham which has undertaken to beautify Armour Hill and turn it into a Memorial Park, and on which a great deal of work has already been done, anticipate having the road built for motorists so that it may be used by visitors during Old Home Week. To make this possible, funds are required and the members of the League are giving a play in the Collegiate Assembly Hall on Wednesday evening next by the Dramatic Club of Trinity Church, which is said to be a comedy of real merit.

The program laid out by the members of the League is a most ambitious one, and they deserve the support they are receiving from citizens generally and they do hope there will be a full house on the presentation of the play Wednesday evening.

IN MEMORIAM

BROWN.—In sad and loving memory of my dear husband and father, James Brown, who passed away in Nicholls Hospital, April 13, 1928.

We watched him suffer day by day,
It caused us bitter grief to see him pine away,
And could not give relief.
We are thinking of the past,
Picturing you in memory as we saw you last.
You suffered much in patience borne;
Physicians were in vain,
Till God in his great love
Released you from all pain.
—Sadly missed by his loving wife and two little sons, James and Andrew.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving rememberance of our darling little boy, Jack McMahon, whom God called home April 14, 1926:

The depth of sorrow we cannot tell
Of the loss of one we loved so well,
And while he sleeps a peaceful sleep
His memory we shall always keep.

Sweet little flower of heavenly birth
He was too fari to bloom on earth,
So angels came with speedy hands
And bade him bloom in a better land.
—Sadly Missed By Father and Mother.

Utilities Answers Query

Request of City Council For Surplus is Refused By Commissioners.

$15,000 FOR NEW LINES.

Reduction in Power Rates Is Being Thoroughly Investigated.

Lively discussion among the Utilities Commissioners followed the reading of two letters from the City Council asking information concerning the disposal of the surplus revenue of $28,353.94 derived from the electrical department for the year 1928 at the meeting of the Utilities Commission on Saturday afternoon. One letter requested the return of the money to the city.

A letter from the City Council dated April 3, which had also been forwarded to the Hydro Electric Commission, said in part, "We request the Hydro Electric Power Commission to return the $28,353.94 to the city."

The second letter from the City Council of April 12, said in part, "We request information from your Commission concerning the disposal of the surplus money."

Letter Drafted

The following letter was drafted in reply to the City Council, "We note your request of April 12, 1929, that we inform the City Council how we propose to use the surplus revenue of $28,353.94 derived from the electrical department for the year 1928.

"For your information it is the intention of this Commission to use this surplus for some of the purposes as outlined in section eighty-nine of the Power Commission Act, chapter fifty seven, R.S.O. 1927.

"The Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario has already approved of our request to spend $15,000 of this surplus in rebuilding of lines in certain sections of this

DISARMAMENT IS DISCUSSED BY 22 NATIONS

President of League of Nations Makes Plea For Co-operation in Opening Meeting.

INTERNATIONAL FORCE.

Proceedings Are Indicative of a Probably Prolonged Discussion.

GENEVA, April 15 (By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).—With 22 nations represented and work lying ahead to take possibly three weeks, the preparatory commission on disarmament under the League of nations reassembled to-day. In the opening proceedings President Loudon of the Netherlands emphasized the need for the principal interested powers coming to an agreement over the points at difference.

"I have made this statement on several occasions and I re-affirm it now," he said "that agreement of the commission on a draft convention establishing a reduction in armaments will be possible only when the interested powers have succeeded in reaching an understanding on certain point of capital importance, over which up to the present they have been divided."

Perhaps significantly, he added: "We may here find means of stimulating a solution of these problems which are so urgent."

As President Loudon spoke he had near him a huge pile of letters which he declared he had received from organizations representing millions of workmen, urging that the commission should reach some definite conclusion.

International Aviation Force.

President Loudon read a letter from Clifford B. Marmon, of the United States, president of the International Aviation League, at Paris, and thereby occasioned the first incident of the proceedings. Harmon, who was present, urged in his letter the foundation of an international aviation

Cameramen Prevent John D. Rockefeller, Sr. From Attending Church Service On Sunday

LAKEWOOD, N.J., April 15.—(Canadian Press) — A dozen cameramen prevented the attendance of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., at church yesterday. The Rev. Marshal Sewell, pastor of First Baptist church, announced indignantly this morning that he would ask for a police detail next week to keep photographers clear of the church property.

The cameramen, whose numbers included two mounted atop automobile trucks containing sound registering apparatus, were grouped about the church steps and lawn when Rockefeller's automobile arrived, the aged millionaire looked once from the window of his limousine and ordered the chauffeur to return to the estate.

There was a rush for automobiles on the part of the photographers and a half hour's chase about the town followed, with Rockefeller making a vain attempt to get into another church. The pursuit ended at the gates of the estate.

CREW OF THE SOUTHERN CROSS LIVED FOR ALMOST TWO WEEKS ON WILD BEANS AND MUD SNAILS

Heath Airways Plane Found Men Haggard and Weak.

SIGHTED SEARCHERS.

Men, After Forced Landing, Soon Became Exhausted From Exposure.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., April 15. — (Canadian Press).—The crew of the airplane Southern Cross lived for two weeks on wild beans and mud snails and were extremely haggard and weak when found by a Heath Airways Plane on Thursday, it was revealed yesterday when the rescuers reached Derby.

The returning airmen said they learned from Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith, who with Charles P. Ulm and two others, came to grief on March 31 when they were forced to land in the mud-flat regions near Port George while on an easy-stage flight to England that the men soon became too exhausted from exposure to make their way to the coast and probably would have perished had their rescue been delayed much longer. The meeting between the stranded fliers and the pilot of the rescue plane was described as highly emotional.

Captain Kingsford-Smith told him that he and his companions had sighted several planes passing over them but could not attract attention to their position with signals of other means. When the first plane was sighted it bolstered their lagging spirits sky high, the captain narrated, because they knew then that the search was on and believed sooner or later they would be able to attract attention to themselves.

Will Fly in About a Week

Heath plane will return to the stranded airmen within a day or two and will take a supply of fuel for the Southern Cross, which Kingsford-Smith hopes to fly back to Sydney for reconditioning preparatory to another start on the flight to England.

It was thought that it would be at least a week fore the Southern Cross could take the air again. Captain Kingsford-Smith asked for 75 gallons of gasoline and thought that he and his companions would be strong enough by Friday to begin clearing a runway for the take-off.

Navigator Litchfield seemed the most fit of the four, but all were completely done-up when help arrived.

There was still no news late last night of Lieut. Keith Anderson and Robert Hitchcock who have been missing with the plane Kookooburra for four days since they started out to look for the Southern Cross. The airplane Canberra, which was first to locate the Southern Cross, was ordered yesterday to proceed to Alice Springs to assist other planes in searching for the two would-be rescurers.

MELBOURNE, Australia, April 15 (Canadian Press).—Premier Bruce announced to-day that the Federal Government would give financial assistance to the relief fund which has been opened in Sydney to promote the search for Lieutenant Keith Anderson and Robert Hitchcock, whose plane has been missing five days. The two aviators have not been seen since they left Newcastle Waters, northern territory, to search for the then missing Southern Cross.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., April 13 (C.P.).—A Coroner's jury here last night named Joe Masaduct, also known as Joe Puia and, "persons unknown" as responsible for the death of Victor Gualtieri, who died following a stabbing affray. The evidence showed that 15 stab wounds had been inflicted and that the victim before his death said he had been attacked by two men, one of whom he named as Masaduct.

POWER REPORT EXPECTED SOON

On Government Plans For Dams 4 and 5—Only Rumors Heard.

REBUILDING NO. 1.

With the announcement that the Federal Government has let to the Detroit River Construction Company, a Canadian organization, with offices at Windsor, Ont., the contract for a new dam to replace old No. 1, about a mile below Lakefield, Peterborough's interests in the re-harnessing of the upper Otonabee, next turns to the long-expected report of the Government's plans at dams 4 and 5 above Nassau.

Citizens who follow this question, and there are some who have at heart an effort to redeem as far as possible the water power heritage this community recklessly flung away, hope that the report of the government engineers will be made public soon enough for the fullest consideration before any tenders may be called for work at either dam 4 or 5. The city council of Peterborough has asked the Dominion government virtually for expert opinion as to the feasibility of combining dams 4 and 5 under one head. That request is an earnest of good faith; but the city's first need is information.

Last of the Wooden Walls.

If a fall of 27 feet is available at dam No. 5, and 30 feet at Burleigh, it is evident, even to the general public, that these are local resources which should be given the best and fullest consideration by the people of Peterborough. This attitude becomes the more emergent when it is understood that dam No. 5 is the last of the old wooden structures to be replaced, that the appropriation for it will likely be included in the estimates of the current session of Parliament, and that tenders may be called this year.

Larger Appropriation.

Such is the usual sequence in the progress of the affairs of the Department of Railways and Canals, and a possible consequence of it is creating a little apprehension locally. Old No. 5 dam is to be replaced; the Department has engineers' reports on the combining of dams 4 and 5; but will the appropriation for Trent Canal purposes be large enough to cover the additional cost of the proposed extra work? Is the Department taking fully into consideration the possibility of Peterborough going into the power generating business at Burleigh Falls and at No. 5?

RATES IN LAST ANALYSIS MADE BY THE PUBLIC

Fire Insurance Expert Discusses Methods of Schedule Rating.

TALKS TO ROTARY.

Rev. George Dibble Delights Members By His Fine Singing.

"The public is responsible for fire losses and in the final analysis makes insurance rates," declared Walter J. Blackburn of the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association in an informative address on schedule rating at to-day's luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary club.

Mr. Blackburn's remarks gave his hearers a new insight into the methods by which fire insurance rates are arrived at, and his talk was full of interest.

President W. R. Morris, at the beginning of the luncheon, read an appeal by J. A. McKone, president of the Peterborough Boy Scouts' Association, appealing for financial assistance and commended the appeal to the members of the club. President Morris also called attention to the League of Nations' drive for membership, pointing out that the movement deserved the support of every Rotarian.

Rev. George Dibble was a guest today, and the singing evangelist whose voice has been heard so often over the radio, delighted the gathering with a number of songs which his cheerful personality and fine voice made most enjoyable.

Especially notable was his singing of that fine number, "The Trumpter," which Rev. Mr. Dibble rendered with splendid effect.

The average man knows little of the methods and operations of the insurance companies, but their activities are of vital importance to him, as insurance is the basis of credit and the essential protection which allows business life to function," said Mr. Blackburn, in beginning.

The modern business world moves on credit and without the protection afforded by insurance, credit in any large measure would be impossible.

Insurance ratings must be based on experience, and in order that this experience may be as full and complete as possible Underwriters' Associations, comprising the bulk of the companies doing business in Canada, were organized.

The Underwriters' Associations have two general objects, the first being to control the expense of carrying on the business by doing for the companies collectively the things they would otherwise have to do individually. For instance, if twelve companies were interested in a certain property, and no underwriters' association existed, each company would have to send its individual inspector to inspect and rate the property, but under present conditions the underwriters' association sends one man and the cost of his work is pro-rated amongst all the companies.

This centralization of effort, which

BOATS ARE USED BY SEARCHERS

Government Is Removing Temporary Bridge At Harmony Creek.

MARSH SEARCHED.

The search for Helen Wright's body, which was carried on with renewed vigor all day on Sunday at Harmony Creek by many friends was again barren of any reward. No trace of the missing girl was found, although the ground bordering the creek for miles was investigated by the search parties.

Yesterday was the ninth day since the flood tragedy at Harmony Creek carried Helen Wright to a watery grave, and it was hoped by searchers that her body would rise from the water.

Six boats, manned by searchers, sought out every part of the marsh bordering Lake Ontario and a motor boat patrolled Lake Ontario. Another large party patrolled the shores of the creek going over the ground that has been under the eyes of searchers for over a week.

All hope of finding the body is now being built up on the theory that it is held fast beneath some part of the ruined cement piers. The Government is removing the temporary bridge, and it is expected that within a few days the search can be made under the bridge.

GERMAN DELEGATE FAILS TO GIVE EXPERTS AN ANSWER

Delegates Decide Not To Make Public Figure in Allies' Bill At Present.

ADJOURNMENT ASKED.

Germany, It Is Believed, Wanted More Time To Study the Allies' Demands.

PARIS, April 15.— (C.P.) —Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, German spokesman, faced representatives of the creditors of his country to-day and apparently deferred temporarily a positive answer of yes or no to their bill for damages incurred in the Great War.

After a closed plenary session of the Experts' Committee on Reparations lasting an hour and ten minutes, during which Dr. Schacht had the floor a great part of the time, the experts adjourned until 11 a.m. to-morrow. The only actual decision arrived at was not to publish the figures contained in the Allies' bill at present.

A wish of the creditor nation delegates to study their figures and ascertain just why they arrived at the totals contained in the bill was given as the official reason for the adjournment. But since they were known to have studied the figures very thoroughly before arriving at them it was presumed the Germans wanted—and obtained—more time to study them.

Cobourg Lady Loses Hand Following Dundas Highway Accident.

BRIDGE COLLAPSES.

ISLINGTON, Ont., April 15. — (C.P.) — Under the weight of an automobile occupied by four persons, a bridge spanning the Etobicoke Creek, on the Dundas highway, at Summerville, buckled early yesterday morning, and the car and bridge crashed into the stream. The remainder of the bridge then toppled over on top of the car.

Miss May Schrum, Cobourg, a passenger on the car, received such injuries to her hand that it was found necessary to amputate it. The other three persons in the automobile, Miss C. Hildery, A. Mackinnon and J. C. Lount, all of Toronto, escaped with minor injuries and shock.

Special Motor Car Insurance Rates Offered To Drivers With Clean Record

TORONTO, Ont., April 15 (Canadian Press). — Special motor car insurance rates for drivers, who have clear records, regarding accidents and traffic law infractions, are at present in force, said H. B. Armstrong, duty inspector of insurance of the Ontario Government, before the inquiry into the reasonableness of proposed increased rates in motor car insurance, to-day.

This class of driver secures the insurance under a "merit rating plan," which has been introduced by one company since the probe opened, providing for a 10 per cent. credit under certain qualifications. Drivers must taken an affidavit that his license has not been suspended, that his brakes are kept in order, that he has not been in an accident, and that he has no connections with speeding.

Winston Churchill Makes no Changes In Income Taxes

Chancellor of the British Exchequer Announces Various Tax Reductions in His Annual Budget Address Before House of Commons.

TEA DUTY OF EIGHT CENTS A POUND IS REMOVED TAX ON BETTING AT TRACKS OR ELSEWHERE REPEALED

Twenty-five Per Cent. Reduction in Beer and Spirit Licenses Put Into Effect, Along With Tax of $200 a Year On Telephones in Bookmakers' Offices.

LONDON, April 15.—(Canadian Press).—The pre-election budget speech in the House of Commons of Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, today revealed him making a dramatic drive for the tea-drinkers friendship which means practically that of every man, woman and child in Great Britain.

Towards the end of his address which lasted 2½ hours he announced the immediate absolute abolition of the tea duty at a cost to the treasury of more than £6,000,000 or approximately $30,000,000.

This was the outstanding feature of his taxation announcements.

Budget Changes

LONDON, April 15 (C.P. Cable) —Various tax reductions were announced by Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill in his budget speech today. Taxation changes are as follows:

The tea duty of eight cents a pound is removed.

The betting tax, one per cent at the track or two per cent elsewhere, is repealed.

Certain harbor dues are removed.

A twenty-five per cent. reduction is effected in beer and spirit licenses.

A tax of $200 a year on telephones in bookmakers' offices is imposed.

The Chancellor, who was presenting his fifth budget to the House of Commons estimated the governments expenditures for 1929-1930 at 741, 964,000 pounds sterling, (approximately $3,709,820,000).

Revenue for 1929-1930 was estimated on the existing basis of taxation at 753,940,000 pounds sterling, (approximately $3,769,700,000). This would give a prospective surplus of 11,976,000 pounds, or roughly $59,835,000.

Debt Obligation Reduced

Dealing with the debt position he said the country's obligations under existing debt contracts had been reduced in four years by 175,000,000 pounds sterling which represented almost exactly what Premier Lloyd George proposed to spend in a couple of years in trying to win the general election. The nation's meagre savings were to be "butchered to make a showman's holiday" Mr. Churchill said amid ministerial cheers.

The Chancellor declared that the existing turnover tax on betting would be immediately repealed. He added that the betting tax for which he himself was responsible had been a failure and a fiasco and had caused more trouble than it was worth.

Big Save in Armaments

The government's greatest economies had been in armaments upon which savings of £7,500,000 (about $37,000,000) had been made since the Conservatives took over the government from the Laborites in 1924.

There was no room for large cuts in the social services said the Chancellor, while large cuts in armaments were dependent on international agreements which he feared would not be easy to reach as all could hope and even then were limited by the absolute requirements of safety to the British Isles and the unity of the Empire.

Large reductions in the navy could the air force development be safely held up.

He then proceeded to a defense of the return to the gold standard as offering lasting advantages.

As to arrest in development of Britain's airforces, Mr. Churchill said that this could not be safely done without placing the country largely at the mercy of that very neighbor toward whom we are constantly accused of being subservient and whom Mr. Lloyd George is never too busy to offend."

This was accepted by his hearers as a reference to France. The present bookmakers' license of £10 annually, would be continued, and a duty of £40 annually imposed on every telephone in the offices of bookmakers producing £500,000 annually.

There will be a manufacturers' brewers license to counterbalance the brewers benefits under the derating proposals.

The Chancellor said that there would be a 25 per cent. reduction

THREE DRIVES ON WAY DOWN

Logs Are Expected To Arrive in Little Lake Early in June.

LARGER THAN USUAL.

Peterborough's two lumber companies will likely have a nice lake-full of logs for Harold B. Rye's acquatic sports during Old Home Week. It will not be an intentional marring of the "water stuff," but just an accidental conjunction of business and pleasure.

There are now three drives setting out from Kawartha Lakes with Peterborough's Little Lake as their destination. The McDonald Lumber Company's drive was launched last Thursday from Nogie's Creek, near Bobcaygeon, and will be at least two months in reaching the city.

The Peterborough Lumber Company have two drives, one starting from Eel's Creek, near Apsley, and the other from Ketchecum Lake, by way of Gull Lake, the Massassauga River and Stoney Lake. These two floats are due here some time during the first two weeks in June. The lumber companies anticipated a busy construction season here this year and have come out of the woods with exceptionally large drives.

They have far more logs than last year in their respective booms, and from present indications their estimate of the building season here was correct.

The Peterborough Lumber Company expect that some of their cut will have to be held over until next year because the mill capacity will not be able to handle the two drives this summer, even with night and day shifts.

Clare McDonald of the McDonald Lumber Company, told The Examiner to-day that they were making an early start with their drive, and that it should be in the mill water by the middle of June. He expressed himself as being more than satisfied with the outlook for the lumber industry in Peterborough this year.

Congress Of United States Assembles To Fulfil Pre-Election Promises

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 15 (By D. Harold Oliver, Canadian Press Staff Writer). — In fulfillment of one of the pre-election promises of Herbert Hoover, the seventy-first Congress was called to meet in extraordinary session to-day to find the long-sought road to a solution of the vexing farm question.

The new chief executive's brief respite from the added responsibilities of having a national legislature with which to deal was over.

Although its program had been tentatively set to include farm relief, the related subject of farm revision, reapportionment of the House, and a measure setting a date for beginning the enumeration of the nation's population, no one would venture a prediction as to the life of the session.

TAXPAYERS HOPE FOR RELIEF; SECRET IS JEALOUSLY GUARDED BY CHANCELLOR OF EXCHEQUER

What Will Churchill Do With Budget Surplus People Are Asking.

REDUCTIONS EXPECTED.

To-day's Address Will Be the Fifth Budget Speech of Present Chancellor.

LONDON, April 15. — Great Britain during the week-end was passing through the critical stages of her annual attack of "Budget fever."

This year it is a fever of expectation of tax reduction. In other years, since the World War, millions of British subjects have worried mainly about the levying of new and heavier taxes, but when this afternoon Right Hon. Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, armed with notes, statistics, and tabulated figures, steps to the table of the House of Commons to unfold Budget secrets, the public will be hanging on his words to hear what cheering news he has for taxpayers.

When the national accounts were balanced on March 31, the close of the British financial year, the surplus remaining, with all expenses paid, amounted to £18,394,463 (about $91,000,000). If the Government is content to expect revenue at the same rate during the 1929-30 as during 1928-29, then Mr. Churchill, according to Government financial experts, will have about £15,000,000 to apply to the reduction of Britain's heavy tax burden.

Secret Well Guarded.

The Budget is the best-kept secret of the British Government. No hint of its contents will be forthcoming until Mr. Churchill lets the cat out of the Budget bag in the 15,000 to 20,000 word speech dealing in detail with the nation's balance sheet, its total estimated revenue, and expenditure for the forthcoming year.

It is taken for granted here by most people that the Chancellor, and through him the Baldwin Government, is preparing a pleasant surprise for the country. The Conservative Party's short campaign program for the general election on May 30 will, it is stated in political circles, be based largely on the Budget. Since the surplus on the national accounts was announced, persistent reports have circulated to the effect that the burden of the taxpayer is going to be lightened, and the reports have not been discredited.

Consequently the eyes of Britain will be on Westminster on Budget day. The man in the street may anticipate a penny off the beer tax, but he is likely to be disappointed.

Hopes for Relief.

The well-to-do may hope for a small relief on income tax, and their hopes may be well founded; certainly they are on firmer ground than the man who expects a "penny off beer," but Mr. Churchill, his Cabinet colleagues and the officials of the treasury are the only persons who really know.

It is a fact, however, that for the first time since Mr. Churchill took over British finances he is in a position to do something toward tax relief. Whether he will restore penny postage, reduce food taxes, give back sixpence in the pound to income taxpayers, relieve motorists of a portion of their high tax fees or cheapen food is the great Budget secret.

To-day Chancellor Churchill will be announcing his fifth Budget. The first two showed large deficits, with Great Britain falling behind more than £50,000,000. Then came a small surplus of about £4,000,000 for 1927-28, and then the generous £18,000,000 profit for the nancial year just closed.

Queen Mary Is Suffering From Slight Chill

BOGNOR, Sussex, England, April 15.—(C.P.) —Queen Mary was confined to Craigwell House yesterday with a slight chill and was unable to attend divine services at the South Bersted Parish Church, where a large crowd awaited her arrival.

Sir Stanley Hewett and Lord Dawson, the King's physicians, announced the Queen's condition was in no wise serious. The two physicians at the same time issued the following bulletin bearing on the condition of the King:

"His Majesty continues to make progress and the rehumatism in the right shoulder is yielding to treatment."

JANIS BROTHERS TO FACE TRIAL

Over Sixty Charges of Fraud, False Pretences and Receiving Are Laid.

FUGITIVE STOCK BROKERS.

TORONTO, Ont., April 15.—(C.P.) —Facing together 63 charges of fraud, false pretences and receiving stolen goods, Milton and Ira Janis of Dominion-wide reputation were brought back to Toronto yesterday. They came under police guard from Newark, N.J., after withdrawing an appeal from an adverse decision to a habeas corpus application which was entered following their being ordered extradited.

The Janis brothers were the operators of the defunct Toronto Securities Corporation. While no definite figure has yet been set, they are alleged to have swindled Canadians out of something in the neighborhood of a quarter of a million dollars by means of operations in Dominion land stock, a "security" of which it has been said that there was "not even a hole in the ground."

Since the collapse of the Janis Brothers' Company in October of 1927, the Department of the Attorney General has pursued the case to the end, carrying through to the High Federal courts of the United States the efforts to have the two accused men released into the hands of Ontario authorities to face trial.

Milton Janis, 31 years old, faces in all 30 charges and his brother Ira, 34 years old, faces 33. They are to appear in police court to-day for remand. They spent yesterday in the cells at Court Street station.

BIG FIRE IN TIMMINS

TIMMINS, April 15 (C.P.).—Fire breaking out, as yet from unknown causes, was responsible for a loss, estimated between $30,000 and $40,000 in the Goldfields Theatre building, on the southwest corner of third avenue and Cedar street Saturday. The heaviest loss is borne by the Goldfields Theatre Company, owners of the building and by A. J. Lapointe, a tenant who recently purchased the drug store business owned by the Timmins Drug Company. Both the building and the contents of the drug store were fully covered by insurance.

Laconic Police Report Of Ottawa Accident Tells of Premier King Rendering Assistance

OTTAWA, Ont., April 15 (Canadian Press). — "Mr. Mackenzie King was passing and conveyed the man to the Water Street Hospital." This laconic police report of an automobile accident here yesterday morning tells in a democratic manner of Canada's Prime Minister going to the rescue of an injured man.

Premier Mackenzie King had just wheeled away in his car from Laurier House when he noticed an automobile a short distance in front skid as it turned a street corner and its occupant thrown out on to the roadway. Germain Caron, the occupant of the car which rammed a telegraph pole after skidding, was badly stunned and suffering minor cuts to the head when the Premier reached his side. The injured man was rushed to the hospital in the Prime Minister's car. Last night his condition was reported as excellent.

TWO AIRMEN ARE DEAD AS RESULT OF PLANES COLLIDING IN MID-AIR

Crash Comes On Last Day of All-American Aircraft Show.

ENGINEER INJURED.

Both Airplanes Go Into a Spin and Fall to the Ground.

DETROIT, Mich., April 15 (C.P.).—Captain Alan E. T. Bruce of Akron, Ohio, died here Saturday night of injuries suffered in the crash of two planes which collided in the air above Ford Airport here Saturday afternoon.

E. H. Kreider, president of the Kreider-Reisner Aircraft Company of Hagerstown, Md., was killed instantly in the crash and William C. Naylor, chief engineer of the Stout Engineering Laboratories, Detroit, was seriously injured.

The crash came in sight of several hundred spectators assembled at the airport in connection with the last day of the All-American aircraft show. Naylor was piloting his ship west over the airport when Kreider took off in his Challenger, also in a westerly direction. Apparently neither pilot saw the other. The Challenger, climbing to get an altitude, came up under the Ranger's nose and the two planes locked together. They fell a short distance and then separated.

Kreider's plane went into a spinning nose-dive and crashed into the ground, killing him instantly. The Ranger looped to the ground, turned over and flattened out like a pancake, pinning Naylor and Bruce underneath about 100 yards from the other plane.

PANTS BURGLAR RUNS AMUCK

OTTAWA, Ont., April 15.—(C. P.) —The "Pants Burglar" must have panted with much gusto as he cleared backyard fences, dashed through dark lanes, and then did a three mile run along the railway tracks in the early hours of this morning. He easily outsped two pursuing officers, but overlooked the fact that he left behind a telltale trail of footprints in the newly-fallen snow. The result was that the Ottawa jail last night held John Melachuk, aged 43, and he was charged with a long list of robberies which the police lay at the door of the oddly-called thief.

In all, the loot of the "Pants burglar's" activities in this district amounts to approximately $700.

AUSTRALIANS ARE BANQUETED

PREMIER SPEAKS.

TORONTO, Ont., April 16 (Canadian Press).—Australia's unofficial ambassadors of Empire, the 160 stalwart young men of the Young Australia League, representing some 60 schools of that country, who are at present touring Canada, received a warm welcome from city and province on Saturday night in Hart House at the University of Toronto, when they were entertained at a dinner given by the Corporation of the City of Toronto. The young men were complimented on their smart and soldierly appearance by all the speakers. After receiving the official welcome to the city from Mayor MacBride, they heard of the splendors and wealth of Ontario from the Provincial Prime Minister, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, and a message of goodwill was given by Rev. Canon H. J. Cody, chairman of the Board of Governors of the University of Toronto.

Mayor MacBride, in extending the official welcome of the city to the visitors, complimented them on the rules of their organization, which demands that its members neither drink, smoke nor swear. He asked the young men to carry out their function of ambassadorship between the two sister dominions and hoped that they would carry with them their memories of Canada's forests, prairies and mountains.

CHICAGO CASE STARTS TO-DAY

Damage By Rising Waters Will Be Used As Argument By Defence.

LAKE LEVELS HIGHER.

CHICAGO, Ills., April 15 (Canadian Press). — Rising waters of Lake Michigan, which have destroyed breakwaters and washed out beaches along the Chicago shore, may be used as arguments in the Supreme Court water diversion hearing at Washington, starting on Monday, it was indicated here on Saturday.

Walter E. Beebe, attorney for the sanitary district of Chicago, announced that he was preparing data on recent high-water damage for presentation in support of his arguments for continued diversion by the district; and Samuel Ettelson, Chicago corporation counsel, left for Washington yesterday to file an intervening petition in behalf of the city in the Supreme Court.

Mr. Ettelson said he expected to show that some of the six states opposing diversion by Chicago have themselves suffered from the high lake level, although they had contended that diversion would be harmful to lake transportation and health in their regions.

The rise in the Chicago river level, consequent upon the high lake condition, caused orders to be issued that bridges, now closed during rush hours, must be opened at all times upon demand of tug boats which cannot clear at the present stage.

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

I was much interested in reading an article containing the address of a certain woman given at a Women's Institute meeting.

* * *

The paper was given on TRUE HOSPITALITY.

"Someone has said that hospitality is a divine gift and cannot be cultivated?"

* * *

Is this true?

One thing is certain; it is not necessary to live in a fine home where money and education abound, in order to be hospitable, for real hospitality oftentime dwells in the small cottage and passes by the large mansion.

* * *

True hospitality does not consist in the luxurious environment, but in the personal element which enters into the welcome which we receive in the homes we visit.

* * *

The hospitable home is the one in which we are made to feel at home and in which no matter when we drop in we are made welcome, even though the house may not be spick and span and an extra meal prepared on short notice in our honor!

* * *

But what a difference there is in some!

* * *

It is from such homes as these that we go away impressed with the thought that we have had such a good time and we look forward with happy anticipation to our next visit!

* * *

We are all familiar with the woman who goes to so much trouble when we visit her!

* * *

Upon our arrival we are escorted into the 'parlor' or living-room, as the case may be, and long before mealtime she disappears and we probably do not see her again until the meal is served.

* * *

Then upon our arrival at the table, we realize what a great amount of work our hostess has gone to in order to give us a splendid meal.

* * *

Would it not have been much better to have served the meal as planned for the day—touched or garnished probably a little with something from the 'emergency shelf?'

This would make the guest feel more free too, and I believe she would have enjoyed it even more had she been allowed to help prepare the meal!

* * *

One can always add a few extras to a plain meal, without a great deal of work, such as jelly or jam to a plain pudding, and relishes, pickles, or salad to the meat course.

I often think many women have a tendency to be too fussy in their housework.

There is a great tendency too, for our country neighbors in their very busy life on the farm, to become too self-centered and engrossed in their own home duties, that they are apt to forget that there are people in their neighborhood who long for friends and the friendly touch.

* * *

Let's earn the name of being a cheerful hostess!

* * *

Do not entertain your guests with an account of the wet or dry weather or of how hard it is to keep the house clean!

* * *

* * *

Maybe she has come on purpose to tell you all her troubles and when she leaves you will realize that other people have trouble as well as you, and you will feel better and more able to bear your own.

* * *

Is it not worthwhile then, to cultivate the art of true hospitality to such an extent that people will be glad to come to our home and sorry to leave?

* * *

"Dress drains our cellar dry,
And keep our larder lean; puts out our fires,
And introduces hunger, frost, and woe,
Where peace and hospitality might reign."

* * *

Oftentimes when you come home in a hurry and want to prepare a meal it is very convenient to have an apron handy. This week's help is instructions for the making of an apron for covering the whole of your frock.

* * *

Just now, when we are thinking so much of spring cleaning and seed planting, let me say that the painting of the garden fence, posts, lattice work, arbors and seats should be a forerunner to spring planting. Moreover brightly painted garden things give one the sense of blooming flowers long before they really bud!

FAIR PLAY IN SHOPPING

Fair play for both sides is a sound rule in trading. So let us take a minute or two once a week in this column and talk about a woman's method of getting the best out of life and out of the shops. When we buy the merchant has his standards of length and weight to see that we are given exactly so much for so much money. Let us, too, apply our measures to be sure we are given what we intend and wish to buy. Advertisements are our measure scales, our foot rules and our yard sticks. These words, written by an anonymous scribe, tell a plain, useful story.

The story of man's progress is written daily in the printed page in messages from all corners of the globe. Only history can measure it. Yet the history that concerns you most you can measure as you read. Advertisements are your local yard stick; they tell the new and the best your own dealers carry. Moreover, by helping you select the new, economical and best to-day the advertisements help you save for the new and best to-morrow.

In succeeding talks you may learn why the habitual reading of the advertisements should be made a part of every woman's daily life.

"Dear Marion:

Please don't think I've forgotten youand your circle. I have been real busy all the time and didn't find time to write. I really had to find time to write as I wanted to answer Pat's request for information on painting her furniture If you just wanted to paint your furniture Pat I'm sure you could find a light brown or fawn that would look nice with the light oak cabinet. But a nice result comes from painting furniture with white or cream and putting light oak over the paint Another pretty way is to put a dark brown paint on and if there is any carving, paint it a lighter brown, although this wouldn't match the cabinet. I have seen a lovely creation by painting the furniture a light grey and painting the carving a light blue. This may not be of any help to you, Pat, but I hope someone benefits by it.

I, for one, would certainly enjoy a teen age column and I know that you would help us all you can, won't you, Marion? Come on girls! Let us see if we can't beat the other columns!

Sally.

P.S—I am the first Sally, and would like to know Sally II personally."

Thank you for your help for 'Pat," and the rest of us, "Sally."

"Dear Marion:

I feel as if I were writing to someone I really knew. I have enjoyed your page and it has given The Examiner a new interest to me although I have subscribed for it thirteen years, ever since I left Peterborough as a girl in 1916. But I don't feel one bit older even though I have been married almost thirteen years and have three lovely boys. But in that many years so many new people come that often there is scarcely a name I know.

Here is a suggestion I would like to make; if they print a list of the old boys and girls' visitors they would publish the girls' maiden name as Mrs. John Jones (nee Elsie Brown). I read the lists with interest, but so many of the Mrs. So and So we would recognize when we don't know their married names.

I do love this Great West, the song, "Out Where the West Begins," describes it perfectly, but I shall always keep a wee corner of my heart for the Old Home Town.

I am enclosing coupon for helps if you have any left, also fifteen cents for fashion book.

You don't need to publish this letter, Marion; it is just for you, and my sincerest wishes for your page.

Thanks for the helps and books.

Crocus."

I'm glad to hear from a Peterborough old girl, "Crocus." The news department is running, every day, an "Old Home Week News," in which your idea is followed out—all the information available as to the former resident's family and address here is given. It is very interesting.

"Dear Marion:

By coming to you so soon again, you will think you will think I have garden on my brain.

How about a garden in the backyard, where the ground often seems so very hard? It will need hard work and that pretty steady, to mellow it up for the seeds to be ready. By the board fence, about six foot wide, in a space—all the yard can provide.

Put a row of carrots, first, as a fringy border; beets, with their rich and varied foliage, next in order; radishes and cress, onions and lettuce, will add to the usefulness, though of beautyless. One will scarcely want to plant any potatoes, but nearly anywhere will grow tomatoes. A bunch of sunflower with a squash vine in the corner, for the board fench will be quite an adorner. Early Wonder wax beans and scarlet runners at one end, nasturtiums and morning glory at the other, some color to lend. Cucumbers, too, can be made to crawl and hide that same old board wall. There are so many vines; both old and new, but without sweet peas, we could scarcely do. Some neighbor may say, "No common sense, it's a crazy thing" but even horse sense is conceded to be a stable thing. For bits of labor, seeds, love and planning for the swards, old mother earth is very lavish in her rewards.

Meta."

Dear Marion:

I have not written you before, but I think this late hour problem is a very vital one.

I am a mother of five children, two in their teens. Now I have heard even fathers say what a time they had to get their children home in reasonable time. What I want to say is this, if a father and mother are pulling together as they should be there should be no trouble in getting the children home on time, but in cases where the father spends his evenings away from his wife and family it is much more difficult for a mother to enforce rules singlehanded. My policy has been to warn the children a few years before what I expect them to do concerning wages, hours, etc., and try and get them to see that I only want what is just and right, and that some day when they are parents they can expect the same consideration for their children.

If the children rebel the first time or two it's up to the parents to take a firm stand and let the youngsters know that the law is on the parents' side and that while they are minors 'they can't get away with it. People who let teen age children make their own laws are lacking in backbone.

Don't get the idea that I'm one of these women who treat their big children like infants because I certainly don't. I encourage every manly and womanly quality I see developing in them and we are good pals, but they know how far they can go and would not think of going past the limit as regards hours or other things without consent.

I've noticed that young folks who have got into trouble through having too much of their own way, have turned around and blamed their over-indulgent parents.

Yours truly,

PRISCILLA."

Right! You show good common sense, "Priscilla", in my opinion. Two statements you make are worth remembering by every parent: "People who let teen age children make their own laws are lacking in backbone", and "young folks who have got into trouble through having too much their own way, turn around and blame their over-indulgent parents."

"Dear Marion:

Just a line enclosed with my coupon to say I am still enjoying your page. The neighbors' letters have been A1 lately. So full of news and new ideas too. They are always welcome. I wrote to you in February and mailed it to you on Valentine's day, along with a poem of praise for the returning health of the King, but it must have gone astray. As a rule I have dropped them in the office myself.

Isn't it just lovely out to-day? It sure is welcome after such a stormy week. Wishing you continued success. I remain,

Thank you for your letter and the enclosures, "Eleanor." I'm glad you like our pages.

"Dear Marion:

I am sending for pattern No..... if you will kindly order it for me. I would be glad to get it as it looks so easy to make up. I never received the boy's pattern I sent in for in February. I was disappointed, I sent the money for it. It was for a boy four years of age and I wanted to make him a suit for his birthday, but I suppose you have lots to see to, and lots to do.

MRS. F. P."

I guess I had better send you the money back. "Mrs. F. P.", as I have written the pattern firm twice about the missing pattern, without success. I'm sorry—I don't understand the holdup.

COTTAGE CHEESE

(Contributed by "Lonely Lady.")

This cheese is made from sour skim milk and may be made in a double boiler by putting the milk in the upper part and hot water in the lower part. Stir gently and heat the milk gradually until there is a separation of the curd from the whey. Pour the curd into a cotton bag and hang it up to drain, or drain it on a rack covered with two ply of cheesecloth. When the whey has all drained away mix the curd thoroughly and add to it about one teaspoon of salt and two tablespoons of cream for each pound of curd. Those who eat cottage cheese with sweets such as syrup or preserves prefer less salt than those who mix it with butter and pepper, chopped pimento or pickles. I like it best with carraway seeds and sugar.

Cottage cheese with jelly: ¼ cup cottage cheese, 1 tablespoon jelly. Pile cheese lightly on serving dish and garnish with bright jelly.

Cottage Cheese Salad: Mix cottage cheese with 1 teaspoon pimeeto and form into balls, roll in chopped parsley. Serve with salad dressing on lettuce leaf.

THE BELLS OF ST. MARY'S

The bells of St. Mary's at sweet eventide,
Shall call me, beloved, to come to your side,
And out in the valley in sound of the sea,
I know you'll be waiting, yes, waiting for me.

Chorus

The Bells of St. Mary's,
Ah, hear they are ringing,
The young loves, the true loves,
Who come from the sea.
And so my beloved,
When red leaves are falling
The love bells shall ring out,
For you and me.

At the Porch of St. Mary's
I'll be waiting there for (with) you.
In my (your) soft wedding dress
With its ribbons of blue.
In the church of St. Mary's
Sweet voices shall sing,
For you and me dearest,
The wedding bells ring.

Film Gone... Teeth regain sparkling whiteness

Film, too, is the source of serious tooth and gum disorders. Dentists urge special film-removing dentifrice.

DON'T be discouraged if teeth are not white and sparkling. You have 9 chances in 10 that they are merely coated with a dingy film.

Film absorbs the stains from food and smoking and gives that cloudy look. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays.

Film hardens into tartar. Germs by the millions breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. To remove film, use the special film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent. It acts to curdle film and easily remove it in gentle safety to enamel.

Don't expect the same results from old-time dentifrices. See for once and all how white and bright teeth really are. Get Pepsodent at any drug counter, or write for free 10-day supply to The Pepsodent Co., 191 George St., Toronto 2, Ont., Canada.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

Few mothers of today have to be told of the importance of providing a suitable diet for their children. Most mothers realize also the importance of providing their children with suitable books. They give them good food, they read to them, they give them suitable books, they see that they have bedrooms where there is plenty of ventilation, they realize the importance of outdoor exercise, they provide them with clothes that are hygienic and suitable, they take them to the doctor, have their eyes examined and send them to the dentist if they have defective teeth and they buy them toys endlessly. No mothers anywhere in the world are more conscientious in such matters than American mothers.

But how few mothers ever play with their children—or take time and thought directing their play!

The idea is, I suppose, that children play by instinct and that whatever direction they need in group games is provided in schools and clubs. When children at home are restless and don't know what to do mother gives them each five cents or ten cents and tells them to buy a new toy, or she wants to make them happy and buys them some more expensive plaything.

I have before me a number of books on games—Forbush and Allen's Book of Games and Jessie Bancroft's "Games" among them. Just to read such books makes one yearn to get a group of children together and spend an hour or so playing games with them. I am perfectly sure that almost any child would rather play "Old Woman from the Woods," "Marching Round the Valley," "On the Bridge at Avignon" or any of the old-time favorites than to have a new plaything.

SLEEPY DRIVERS.

Several coroner's juries recently have called attention to the long hours many truck drivers have to work and have recommended that the Government should regulate these hours as a safety measure.

A jury at Brighton the other day urged that ten hours should be the limit, and that the legal speed of trucks should be reduced to 25 miles per hour.

Both these recommendations deserve consideration, but the first is especially important.

A sleepy driver is probably a greater menace than a drunken one, and there is reason to believe that a number of fatal accidents recently have been caused by truck drivers "dozing off" for a moment.

When it is realized that some of these men are at the wheel day and night, working long hours at a time, the danger that sleep may overcome them is a very probable hazard, too probable in fact to justify drivers being kept so long at the wheel.

Railway crews are forbidden to work beyond a certain time limit; it would seem necessary that similar restrictions should be applied to the motor transport service.

The suggestion that the speed limit should also be reduced has much to commend it.

A huge truck travelling at 35 miles and handled by a driver who believes might is right and who therefore is not too careful as to what part of the highway he occupies, is an element of danger, and it might be a splendid thing all round to require such vehicles to be driven more slowly as well as more safely.

THE CRAYON INDUSTRY.

Discussion over tariff charges in the House of Commons on Friday centred largely around a Peterborough industry, the Canada Crayon Company, who appeared before the Tariff Board last year to press for increased protection in order that they might be able to compete successfully with United States firms.

The Government declined to place an increased tariff on crayons, but compromised by placing stearic acid, an ingredient used in crayon manufacture, on the free list.

The concession, it is understood, does not mean a great deal to the Canada Crayon Company, representing, it is said, a saving of only $40 a year, while the method adopted by the Government has been challenged by Hon. R. B. Bennett.

The Conservative leader objects to what he calls a "method of compromise" likely to have far-reaching results, and intimates that the Government, afraid of its lower tariff allies, has refused to give the needed protection to the Peterborough industry, and yet at the same time recognizes the justice of its claim by putting raw materials on the free list.

The Canada Crayon Company obviously falls in the class of industries that require the benefit of tariff protection.

With such assistance a flourishing industry can be built up in this country, and the Canadian market can be supplied with Canadian-made goods.

Otherwise Canadian expenditure on such products will go to swell the already far too huge total of United States goods purchased by the people of this country and to keep American workers employed.

WILL BENEFIT THE WHOLE COMMUNITY.

The Examiner hopes that there will be no great opposition to the proposal to spend $10,000 in converting Inverlea Park swimming beach into an adequate and modern recreation area.

Here is something that will benefit the whole community, an undertaking from which even the poorest family in Peterborough will be able to extract rich dividends of good health and wholesome fun.

It is not a proposition that helps only the privileged few, but one that provides proper bathing facilities and a picnic area for the whole city.

The improvements suggested are badly needed.

At present Inverlea Beach falls far short of what should be considered desirable in a live and alert community.

The beach itself requires to be improved and placed in a condition that will provide children with a chance to bathe without running the risk of cut feet or bruised limbs.

The present bathing-houses, small, dirty and not much better ventilated than the Black Hole of Calcutta, have long since passed their period of usefulness.

The sanitary—save the mark—conveniences in the park are such as would elicit a sharp order from the Board of Health were they to be maintained in such condition on private property.

To replace all this with a bathing beach provided with adequate dressing-rooms, a wading pool for children and modern sanitary conveniences would be the best investment the people of Peterborough have made in many a year.

In the interest of the whole community and with special consideration for those families who are confined to the city during the months of hot weather, The Examiner urges the passing of the Inverlea Park by-law.

THE PROBLEM OF THE AUTOMOBILE.

A point in regard to traffic regulations that is often overlooked is that the traffic problem is not static.

It grows worse each year as the number of cars in commission increases.

Already there are indications that hundreds of new automobiles will be in use in this city and district this year.

That means more cars, new drivers, added congestion at tifes and increased accident hazards.

In the face of such a condition the authorities would be justified in tightening the regulations rather than in going back to former systems of traffic regulation.

Instead of clearing up the problems associated with the handling of traffic and the parking of automobiles inevitably will grow worse, and if those in whose hands the regulation of these matters rests do not stand firmly behind measures designed to improve conditions and refuse to be swayed by considerations of secondary importance, the result is soon going to be confusion, worst confounded.

We have to assimilate the automobile on streets that were never intended for such heavy and rapid traffic, and we will have to learn to put up with a lot of inconveniences in regard to traffic rules and parking laws in the interest of greater general safety.

If councils are going to discard safety measures every time a deputation complains of personal inconvenience, communities will soon be fairly swamped by the automobile problem.

TWO VIEWS OF THE TARIFF.

It is worth noticing that there is a marked divergence of opinion in the United States concerning the advisability of increasing the tariff walls against Canada, a question which is to be decided in the course of the special session of Congress called to open on the 15th inst. for the purpose of discussing the tariff problem. While one section of the press of the United States inclines to the belief that that country should proceed to reorganize its tariff as it sees fit without thought of the consequences to its own trade or of the effect upon fithe hitherto friendly relationships existing with neighboring countries another and perhaps equally influential and well-informed section of the press considers that it would be a serious error to antagonize Canada, already the best of the United States foreign customers, by raising the tariff barrier, particularly against Canadian farm products.

Thus we have Dr. Albert Shaw, the editor of the well-known publication, "The Review of Reviews," declaring in its current issue that "clumsy tariff-making has more than once proved to be a boomerang. Our friends in Argentina, for example, are already very sensitive on tariff relations, and Congress should be careful not to sacrifice South American good-will. The growing market for American goods in the Latin-American republics might be seriously hurt by tariff changes only slightly beneficial to some class of producers seeking a complete monopoly of the domestic market. Most of all, it would be unstatesmanlike to build a higher trade wall than already exists between the United States and Canada. Relatively small as is the population of the Dominion, this next-door neighbor has become actually our largest customer. Until a year or two ago Great Britain stood first, with Canada a close second. But the average Canadian family now spends about four times as much on commodities produced in the United States as does the family in the United Kingdom. We are also importing far more goods from Canada than from any other country, but we buy much less from the Canadians than they buy from us. With no thought of mere palaver, it is literally true that no other country in the world is so fortunate in the sum total of its relations with a neighboring country as is the United States in its varied contacts and transactions—commercial, social and cultural—with the Dominion of Canada. Looking to the future, gradual lowering of tariff barriers, and a steady movement toward commercial reciprocity, would be advantageous to both countries. Certainly at this time it would be a short-sighted and unstatesmanlike performance to set up new tariff rates that our Canadian neighbors would regard as hostile to their interests. There are certain commodities the price of which is fixed in world markets. It is merely unintelligent to exclude such things from the United States by menacing tariff ramparts. Again, these are matters that Mr. Hoover understands. It is to be hoped that his message to Congress on the tariff question will not fail to emphasize broad principles of policy, as against extreme demands of localities of special interests."

This extract from the Review of Reviews, which is typical of other utterances being made in influential United States publications proves that many observers in that country who are taking a broad view of the tariff question view with a certain amount of misgiving the proposals which are being made that the United States place further restrictions upon imports from Canada. They realize that it is already difficult enough for the majority of Canadian products to find a market in the United States and that the sales which that country makes in Canada are largely in excess of those made by Canada in the United States. They realize, too, that in the cases of certain of the farm products which now do succeed in crossing the line and entering into United States consumption, imports are necessary to meet the demand and to retain prices at a suitable level. And they further realize that if the United States adds to the duties already placed upon such products, there will almost certainly be a reaction in this country against the purchase of American goods with the possibility of retaliatory legislation being adopted.

President Hoover is known to be a statesman of particularly broad outlook and keen foresight. During that period between his election to the presidency and the opening of the special tariff session he will have canvassed the situation thoroughly and arrived at some decision regarding the policy which he will apply. Those who have studied the question, with particular reference to trading relationships between Canada and the United States will hope, with the editor of the Review of Reviews, that his message "will not fail to emphasize broad principles of policy, as against extreme demands of localities or special interests."—Brockville Recorder and Times.

A Thought

LET'S CALL IT COMMON SENSE

In illness, any rational reasoning or good mental influence that will improve the morbid condition of the mind is a great help; but when some dangerous disease attacks your body, hang on to that "mental influence," but telephone for a conscientious and capable physician who will prescribe for that diseased body.

I do not know what to call this suggestion unless we call it common sense.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

WE NEED NOT TWICE

This is the virtue in our error
That takes from sinning half its terror;
Although we stumble now and then,
We need not stumble there again.
No man by error was defeated
Unless that error he repeated.
Although we sin, and pay the price,
Although we sin, we need not twice.

For many a soul in many a prison
Has farther flown and higher risen
Than in some freedom of the past
When some old evil held him fast.
For this is time for more than paying,
Yes, time for thinking and for praying,
When men may learn, afar from vice,
Although we sin, we need not twice.

Ah, yes, although we sin so gladly,
And drink so deeply, laugh so madly,
Ah, then indeed would hope be gone
If, having sinned, we must sin on.
For deeper than our sin our sorrow
If we who sinned must sin tomorrow.
But sin, thank God, pays no such price—
Although we sin, we need not twice.

"CLEAN UP"

To the Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir.—The editorial in Thursday's paper, taken from the Brockville paper is very much to the point. In a city as old as Peterborough there are bound to be places which have either become derelict or decrepit. Old barns, hen houses and such like could easily be torn down if no longer in use. Old fences are probably the worst offenders and there is really no excuse for any board fences on any street. I would suggest that the Old Home Week decoration committee or the horticultural society go round and see what can be done. A suggestion or help to destroy an old fence or hen house would be kindly received and at least the main part of the city and various entrances to the city would be improved. Now is the time to act.

Yours truly,
"Clean Up."

THE LEFT HAND TURN

To The Editor of the Examiner,

Dear Sir:—

I was told on Wednesday night that we are really going to have the "left turn" back at Charlotte street. Now, the only ones apparently wanting this are certain merchants on George street. I would hold them responsible for the accidents which are sure to happen. Pedestrians have now become used to the "no left turn" there, and there is much less confusion than formerly. Motorists also are used to it, and now when all that trouble was taken to educate the people in traffic laws at that corner, it is to be revoked. No wonder Peterborough is sneered at. The Chief of Police does his best, to keep down traffic accidents. The editor of the Examiner in his editorials points out the dangers which will arise if they change this law, but apparently some people think more of their pocket book than of human life.

If anyone wants to shop at a certain store on George street, it is easy to come back from Simcoe or Hunter streets. I say again, that those merchants, who for the sake of money or trade, pressed for this change to be made, should be held responsible for any accidents which occur there. It seems in Peterborough, we just get used to a thing when it's altered. It should be put to a vote of the people, as it involves motorists and pedestrians alike. Human life is more precious than money.

We have placards all over, "Safety First" but it seems a joke when a few, A VERY FEW, men, can step in and upset a law which protected human life.

I should be glad to know if the public can do anything in regard to this?

Yours for Sanity and Safety.
"Quo Vadis"?

GARRISON NOTES

Training of the Peterborough Rangers starts in earnest on Tuesday, and will follow every Tuesday and Thursday throughout the season. Some uniforms have been issued, and all men joining the ranks will receive outfits immediately.

Major M. H Park, officer commanding the Rangers, informed The Examiner to-day that there is still room for a few good recruits, who should apply on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, at the armouries.

Besides the interesting training syllabus, the Rangers will participate, with other local militia units, in many of the events of Old Home Week, so that the year's work will be more than usually attractive.

Smoker on Wednesday

The local company of the Machine Gun Corps will hold its annual smoker in the recreation room on Wednesday, at 8 o'clock. Civilian dress will be worn. Captain J. A. Dewart, M.C, will preside.

Nearly $6,000,000 worth of perfumery and toilet preparations were imported into the United States last year.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

They had not said much more. There had been no question of the future, no hope of happiness to come, not even a good-bye kiss. As they had both said—there was the General.

But now as Anthony sat at the table listening to Mollie's petulant voice his heart was hot with rebellion.

Life was unjust—why did it give a thing with one hand only to take it away with the other? Why did the mistakes of one's early youth always exact such heavy payment?

It had been almost easy to say to Ana:

"Nothing can ever make any difference. You will always know and I shall always know how much we love one another."

It would be poor consolation once they were separated. Easy enough to think of a parting while she was still near him—what would it be like when she had really gone?

"What are you thinking about?" Mollie asked sharply. "I've spoken to you twice and you haven't answered."

"I'm sorry. I was wondering about something. What did you do this morning?"

"What do you imagine I did? There isn't anything to do in this deadly hole. I just wandered about."

"It's a deadly hole of your own choosing," Hambledon said. To his amazement Mollie burst into tears.

"You're a brute, and I hate you," she said passionately and ran out of the room.

The General looked after his mother with wide eyes. He waited till she had slammed the door, then he turned to his father.

"Can I have some more pudding?" he asked in solemn whisper. Hambledon roused him elf with an effort and laughed.

"Lucky boy, to have nothing more than a second helping of pudding to worry about," he said.

Ana went back to London on the six o'clock train.

It was a glorious evening with wonderful sunset tints in the sky and the softest breeze stirring the surface of the sea.

Ana stood for a long time at the window of her little room, trying hard to keep up her courage and behave as if nothing unusual were happening. But every time she heard Anthony Hambledon's voice downstairs or his laugh or his step, something in her heart seemed to quiver as i with exquisite pain.

"You're doing the only possible and decent thing," she told herself again and again. "Don't be a fool and a cad. You'll get over it, and in a short time you'll be laughing to remember how sick you felt just because one man——"

And then the tears welled up into her eyes once more and she had to begin fighting the battle all over again.

There would never be a day when she could laugh when she thought of Anthony; there would never be a day when she felt less desolate and afraid of the future than she did now.

But she had got to go. Her box was already in the car at the gate, and the little room where she had slept for so many happy nights was stripped of her few possessions and looked painfully bare and unfriendly. Mollie came to the door.

"Are you ready? Anthony says we have only just time for the train."

"I'm quite ready." Ana took up her coat and handbag. "I won't wear it," she exclaimed incoherently. "It's so warm."

"You're an idiot to go," Mollie said impatiently. "It wouldn't matter at all if Miss Sawyer died! I should think it would be rather a relief, in fact."

Ana managed a laugh.

"Don't be so cruel! She's terrified of dying even though she's so religious."

She gave a last hurried look round the little room and went downstairs—the refrain of the song she had quoted to Hambledon only that morning running maddeningly in her head.

Dearest, the day is over; ended the light divine;
You must go back to your life, I must go back to mine.

"I shan't be a minute," Mollie called after her. "I must just powder my nose."

Hambledon was standing at the front door, and he turned round when he heard Ana's step.

"Ready?" he asked with an effort.

"Yes. Isn't it a lovely evening?"

She stood beside him looking out into the road.

"It looks as if I want a new trunk," she said, her eyes on the car and her own shabby box. "Not that it matters, as I never go anywhere."

She looked up and found his eyes bent upon her.

"I wonder if we are two very noble, self-sacrificing people or merely a couple of damned fools," he said bitterly.

Ana tried to laugh.

"Don't be melodramatic. It doesn't suit you," she said, but her own heart felt like breaking.

Another hour, half an hour, and it would all be over. To-morrow she would wake up in her bedroom at Wimbledon with its cotton blind and view over rows and rows of back gardens all exactly alike; to-morrow she would start once more listening to her aunt's grumblings and wearisome accounts of her neighbours' doings; to-morrow—oh, if only to-morrow need never come!

"Mollie sent the General down to the beach," Hambledon was saying. "she thought it would upset him if he saw you go."

"Yes, I'm glad." The treacherous tears welled again into Ana's eyes. "I wish Mollie had sent you too," she said, trying to laugh.

"Do you? I had to see the last of you."

"Yes."

"It hurts like the very devil," Hambledon said. He seized her hand and for a moment held it hard. "Nothing will ever make any difference," he said.

"Pooh!" She had to assume levity because she was so nearly breaking down. "Next time we meet—if we ever do—we shall probably feel most embarrassed and wonder why we were such idiots. Perhaps it's just midsummer madness."

"Is that what you really think, Ana?" he asked quietly.

"Of course; why not? Does anything ever last in life? I've never found anything that did," she insisted harshly, and then as she heard Mollie's step on the top of the stairs behind them her mood suddenly changed. She turned round, both hands clasping his arm with trembling fingers.

"Oh, I love you; I do love you," she whispered in anguish.

"And I love you too, my dear," Hambledon answered.

Then Mollie was with them, and they all went out to the car and drove away.

"It only seems yesterday that we came down to meet Anthony," Ana said, when they reached the station and were pacing up and down the little platform waiting for the train. She smiled up at Anthony, and remembered what her own absurd nervousness had been that evening, and how she had stared at the milk cans.

"Does it! It seems a lifetime ago to me," Mollie said. "Ana, you are a perfect pig to go and leave me. It will be horrid without you; won't it, Tony?"

"We shall miss you very much," Hambledon said.

"I shall miss you too, and the lovely bathing," Ana answered, then broke off. No more early morning walks down to the sea with Anthony—no races out to the little ledge of rocks—no timing one another to see who would be dressed first.

It had been the happiest time of her life and now it was over.

"You must go back to your life. I must go back to mine . . ."

"Hateful, hateful song!" Ana thought passionately and looked again at Hambledon. Only a few moments more now and she would not be able to see him.

"Here is the train," Mollie said. "If you like to change your mind and stay——"

"No, thank you. I can't. I'd love to, but I can't."

"I would if I wanted to," Mollie said. She kissed Ana effusively.

"Good-bye, you dear thing. I'll let you know when I come to London and we'll meet. Ana, you are a pig to go."

"I must. I've had such a lovely time."

And now she was in the train—thank Heaven she had a carriage to herself—and Anthony was putting her coat and bag up on the rack.

"If you sit this side you'll be out of the sun," he said.

"Thank you." She gave him her hand. She tried to say good-bye, but she could not. Anthony did not speak either, he just held he hand hard for a moment. Then he was back on the platform again and the train was moving slowly away.

Horoscope

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

TUESDAY, APRIL 16, 1929

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

Astrologers read this as rather a threatening day in planetary government, a time to exercise foresight and caution in all important activities.

The early morning is believed to be unfavorable to those who seek loans from banks or who solicit financial support.

The rule seems to presage for the newspapers sensational reports from foreign countries and records of strange crimes for the United States.

The seers point out that while firearms are within easy reach of depraved and reckless persons, murders will continue to be numerous and they foretell new laws preventing sales of weapons of every sort.

Authors now are subject to a rule of the stars that may be discouraging, but it should develop a few literary geniuses who have the courage to work and to wait.

There is a sign that seems to foreshadow more and more bank mergers and the accumulation of the greatest symbol of power that has ever existed in the world.

Money is to be managed by men of trained minds and wide vision, the seers explain, and the United States will gain undisputed supremacy.

Today there is a fairly lucky sign for traveling, and many long voyages will be in favor for the summer, it is prophesied.

Americans will penetrate into little traveled countries and among them scientists will make tremendous discoveries, if the stars are rightly interpreted.

For students who will be graduated from college this year there is promise of big achievements. Girls may expect to attain much in oldtime feminine fields of work.

Art and science will be applied to home-making in a way that assures new interest in domesticity, it is forecast.

While this configuration prevails it is well to guard the spoken word, since the temptation to utter scandalous criticisms may be strong.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a fairly prosperous year, but it will be wise to keep their own counsel regarding business matters.

Children born on this day probably will be enthusiastic and warm-hearted. The subjects of this sign usually succeed in their chosen vocations, but they may lack reticence and make mistakes because they confide their plans too impulsively.

Sir John Franklin, famous explorer was born on this date, 1786. Others who have claimed this as a birthday were Alexander Smith Taylor, 1817, distinguished ethnologist and Sir Hans Sloane, 1660, naturalist.

At this year's Spring Fair at Leipzig, Germany, were 720 exhibits of glassware and ceramics.

No. 15 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO April 15, 1929

J. C. Miller Is Coming

OLD BOYS ARE TURNING EYES TOWARD HOME

"We still call Peterborough 'home'," say Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Hill, Ridout street, Port Hope, who left their home at 563 Chamberlain street in 1925. Mr. Hill is agent for the Imperial Oil Co. Mrs. Hill was formerly Florence Sanderson.

"We Like Peterborough"

Joseph Thomas, who formerly resided at 577 Chamberlain street, left here in 1920, and is now millwright and fire inspector. "We like Peterborough very much," he says.

Formerly of Keene

It is eighteen years since William L. Clary left Keene to go to Gilbert Plains, where he engaged in farming. His wife was Margaret Hope, whose family still resides in Otonabee.

Left Here in 1892

J. W. Lang, Poplar Point, Manitoba, left here in 1892, but declares: 'I am always proud to speak of my old home town to anyone." Members of the family still reside at 544 Elm street.

From Toronto

Prefers Peterborough

'It can't compare with Peterborough," says G. R. Fair, of his present home at Paradise Hill, Sask. He left here in 1905. His wife, now deceased, was formerly Lillian A. Crowe.

From Manitoba.

Boosts Peterborough

"I have never lived in a community where the people were more friendly or hospitable than those of Peterborough city and county, nor in any place that has surpassed my old home town and county for beauty," says D. J. Sheehan, now of Rose Lodge, Regina, Sask., superintendent of Regina Seperate Schools. He left his home at Douro in 1916, and his mother, sister, and three brothers still reside there.

He Knows How to Do It!

THE Old Home Week Committee has achieved a distinct triumph in securing J. C. Miller, of Orillia, to tell a Peterborough audience about Old Home Week.

Mr. Miller has been through the mill in one of the most successful reunions Canada has known. He knows HOW and WHY—and it will be easier for Peterborough people to learn from his experience than to trust to their own fancies.

Everyone is interested in Old Home Week, and the meeting to be addressed by Mr. Miller offers the opportunity to everyone to learn what needs to be done, and how to go about doing it.

THERE IS STILL TIME!

To the Old Home Week Committee,
City Hall.

The following are the names of former Peterborough city or county old boys and girls with their present address:—

Meetings

Chairmen are invited to send in notices of meetings of their committees, for insertion in this column.

Dance Committee, Monday, City Hall, 7.30.

Publicity Committee, Tuesday, City Hall, 5 o'clock.

Water Sports Committee, Wednesday, City Hall, 8 o'clock.

Central Committee, Thursday, City Hall, 8 o'clock.

Send in your ideas for Old Home Week at once, so that the committees may work on them.

Did Mr. Dobbin get out the invitations to those 4,000 ex-pupils of the Normal School yet? "Holy smoke!" says he.

Keep May 2 open for the best address you ever had the opportunity of hearing.

Remember the committee meetings this week, please. Every day counts.

The man who is left out of the preparations will be disappointed when he is not included in the success.

It's not too late to send in names—do your share.

FRANK BROWNE IS TO RETURN TO OLD HOME

The following letter, from Frank Browne, R.R. No. 1, Penticon, B.C., indicates the enthusiasm that Old Home Week has awakened among old boys:

"Your invitation to the old boys' and girls' reunion duly received. My wife and two children intend going if all goes well between now and then. We are both natives of Peterborough and would enjoy seeing our old friends. It is forty-seven years since we left, but were back ten years ago and not for twenty before that. My brother R. C. Browne of Portage La Prairie is thinking of going down and will pick him up on the way down.

Having run across a few Peterborough folks, I will send in their names, any may hear of more before it is time to go. No doubt I will see many changes in the town, but I think I can find my way around. No doubt many I used to know have passed away since I left, many of them younger men than I am.

We have a beautiful country here, but I still think of the home where I first saw the light of day seventy-four years ago."

Recalls Old Days

W. J. Thurston, 126 John street, Stratford, recalls old days in a letter to one of the committee. He left here 24 years ago, and is now proprietor of a shoe business.

Among those with whom Mr. Thurston used to knock around, he mentions Ernie Best, the Warren boys, Les. Turner, Herman Grey, and R. Glover. Since then he has added weight, and fears no one will recognize him.

Mr. Thurston was formerly with the R. Neill Co. here.

From Saskatchewan

It was on March 30, 1909, that Walter J. Bell left Peterborough to make his home at Hazlet, Sask., where he is now engaged in farming. His father, John Bell, and brothers Bruce and Arthur, still live in this district.

NEWS FROM THE MINES

Through Solloway, Mills & Company

A. P. CONSOLIDATED

This Turner Valley issue is under heavy accumulation, doubtless due to its strong position and the fact that it holds a large block of Home.

MANDY

Reports are Mandy has met with some success in crosscutting on the 1,025 level. Recently Mandy cut two narrow copper zones on the 625. Full details awaited.

ONTARIO GOLD OUTPUT

March gold production Porcupine and Kirkland Lake $2,784,460, which is substantially above January and February and well above the 1928 average.

HOWEY

Manager Young revealed to Howey shareholders at the annual meeting that length of ore opened up on four levels is 2,764 lineal feet, average width 16 feet, average grade $7.25.

IMPROVES AT DEPTH

Manager Young of Howey informed shareholders that the 500 foot level shows an average width of 18ft. 6 inches, average grade $8.33, which is a substantial improvement over upper levels.

Eastern end of the 500 foot level shows average width 27 feet for 285 feet, values $9.85.

ALDERMAC

Aldermac crosscut on the 1125 level has entered section which showed in diamond drilling a mineralized zone of 140 feet in width. Crosscut is in ore for 15 feet which from appearance is best grade of ore yet developed at the property, says our field man.

NEWBEC

Newbec drift on the 125 foot level shows ore over a width from seven to ten feet. Drift on 250 foot level has still about 100 feet to go before getting in ore zone.

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

An addition to the Teck Hughes mill is being freely talked about in the town of Kirkland Lake and the general expectation is that an announcement will be made of a 300-ton unit to be added. It is rumored that perhaps the addition will amount to a 500-ton unit. It is expected that orders for machinery will be placed at an early date. Development work continues to give results and it is expected that this will continue.

It is understood that officials of the Premier Gold Mines are now in London, England, in conference with interests that control the P. C. Silver and Sebakwe Mines, British Columbia. To continue operating on its present basis, Premier must add to its holdings. In fact, some of its drives and tunnel are now up to it neighbors boundary.

Rouyn advice is to the effect that the No. 4 shaft at the Noranda is now down to 760 feet and that there remains only about 300 feet more to be sunk. The completion of the No. 4 shaft will mark an important step towards increasing capacity of the smelter to 2,000 tons daily. This is the plant's rated capacity but judging by past performances it can handle 3,000 tons without trouble.

Consolidated Smelters, it is reported, have started to diamond drill a lead-zinc showing on a group of claims they recently acquired in Black Township.

New equipment is now being delivered for the Lake Shore mill, according to advice from the north. The drift on the 1,000-foot level near the Wright-Hargreaves boundary is still said to be in high grade ore.

In answer to a question put forward by a shareholder at the annual meeting of tme Howey Gold Mines, H. C. Young, mine manager, stated that the mine had at least sufficient ore to date to supply the mill of 500 tons daily capacity for three years. Allowing 325 days a year on which the mill would operate, this would mean a minimum of at least 487,500 tons of ore developed. On a minimum valuation of $7 per ton, Howey would have $3,212,500 of ore developed to date.

The Newbec drift on the 125-foot level is said to show ore over a width of from seven to ten feet. The drift on the 250-foot horizon has still about 100 feet to go before reaching the ore zone.

The recrosscut on the 1,125-foot level of the Aldermac is said to have entered a section which showed in previous diamond drilling a mineralized zone of 140 feet in width. The crosscut is said to be in ore for about 15 feet which from appearance, the report states, is the best grade of ore ever opened up at the property.

A revival of interest among the smaller properties in the vicinity of the Aldermac and the Waite Montgomery is noted at present. One of the latest of these properties to commence development with hope of getting some of their larger neighbors ore is the Navarre Mines. Another which is carrying on operations is the Marclay. The Twin Lakes Mining Company will begin as soon as the ground is dry enough to permit of surface work being carried out.

FOUR NEW SHARES WILL PAY SAME DIVIDEND AS ONE OLD

Alteration in Capital Structure Not Expected Until June.

SHARE NO PAR VALUE.

Adjustment Will Leave 27,302,328 Shares Outstanding and 4,193,675 in Treasury.

TORONTO, Ont., April 15 (Canadian Press). — Shareholders of the Imperial Oil at a meeting to-day approved the by-law calling for a spit in the stock of the company, four to one. The four new shares of stock will pay the same dividend as one of the old shares, and the share will continue to be of no par value.

Of approximately 15,000 shareholders, 9,000 are registered shareholders. Of the old stock, there was 6,575,582 shares outstanding on an authorized capital of $8,000,000. The adjustment in capital will leave 27,302,328 shares outstanding and 4,193,675 in the treasury. Owing to the difficulty of transfer the alteration in the capital structure is not expected to be completed until June.

The shareholders approved the issue and allotment of unissued shares from time to time for such consideration as may be fixed by the board of directors.

LIST ADVANCES AFTER SETBACK

Food and Oil Shares Lead Trading On New York Exchange.

CALL MONEY FIRM.

(By Stanley W. Prenosil, Associated Press Financial Editor.)

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 15 — Mixed price movements in to-day's stock market reflected the play of opposing speculative forces, with the small amount of trading indicating that the general public was taking relatively little part in the day's proceedings. The market opened irregular, sold down rather sharply before midday, when heavy liquidation broke out in the coppers and a few specialties, and then started upward in the early afternoon under the leadership of the food and oil shares.

Call money renewed at 8 per cent, with only a nominal calling of loans. Heavy withdrawals against deposits are expected to cause a temporary stringency early this week as the treasury is paying out $150,000,000 in interest to-day, the state of New York is receiving large sums in the payment of income taxes, and there is an unusually large list of corporate dividend and interest payments. Bankers expected, however, that this week will witness the passing of the spring peak in commercial demands for funds.

FRESH UPTURNS WHEAT VALUES

Buying Based On Farm Legislation Prospects Accountable For Higher Prices.

CORN FIRMER.

CHICAGO, Ills., April 15 (C.P.).—Substantial fresh upturns in wheat values took place early to-day, owing for the most part to buying based on farm legislation prospects. Some of the buying was credited to foreigners. Opening at ¼ off to ⅝ up, wheat prices later scored a decided general advance. Corn, oats and provisions also displayed firmness, with corn starting ⅜ to ⅝ higher and subsequently showing additional gains.

Captain Roscoe Turner, Hollywood stunt flyer, piloted the craft, a biplane, which was landed gently in a field three miles from the Martin Airport, where he had taken off.

TORONTO, Ont., April 15.—(C.P.)—Oils monopolized trading to a great extent on the Standard Mising Exchange to-day, and with the exception of this group, little change was shown in prices. Noranda was quiet and eased off 33 cents to 52.25. Sherritt-Gordon weakened 10 to 8.40, while Teck Hughes was off 5 at 9.30, McIntyre 5 at 1850, and Hudson Bay 15 to 18.40.

Pend Oreille regained 15 cents to 7.90 and Falconbridge improved 25 cents to 11.25. Treadwell Yukon was 50 cents higher at 12.50 and Sudbury basin 5 at 9.00.

Home Oil led the group in point of activity, shooting up 1.50 to 23.75, while Mayland advanced 1.00 to 9.00, Foothills 75 to 8.25, Associated 45 to 5.50 and Baltac 20 to 3.95.

PRICES DROP AT NOON HOUR

Oils Receive Setback Due To Heavy Profit-taking On Toronto Curb.

GENERAL LIST INACTIVE.

TORONTO, Ont., April 15 (Canadian Press).—After opening in a bright, progressive manner, prices began to re-act toward the noon hour on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. The oils were generally subjected to profit-taking, which sent the prices well below the morning's high.

The general list was inactive and uninteresting. Trading, with the exception of oils, was very quiet and the list narrow. International Nickel held unchanged at 48½, in a turnover of only 2,600 shares.

International Petroleum was the morning feature, advancing in heavy trading to a high of 58, with the noon price of 57¼, showing a fractional increase. McColl and Home both improved a point to 31 and 23 respectively, while British American lost ⅜ to 51¼. International Petroleum New and Imperial New both showed slight losses. Service Stations opened at 80 and slumped to 77, off three points.

Gypsum and Alabastine advanced two points to 113, while Goodyear gained 1 to 108, and Walkers ⅜ to 71¾. Massey-Harris reached 72 and held at 70¾, up ¼, while Page Hersey was up the same amount to 129. Hayes Wheels was up one at 59½.

OPEN FIRE ON RUM RUNNERS

Coast Guardsmen Face Inquiry For Rash Act in Miami River.

CRAFT ABANDONED.

MIAMI, Fla., April 15 (Canadian Press). — Coastguardsmen who last night pursued a fleeing rum craft up the Miami River and startled riverside residents with a machine gun barrage, faced a prospective inquiry to-day by Commander R. L. Jack, of the United States coastguard base at Fort Lauderdale.

Under the fusilade of "tracer" bullets, several of which struck buildings ashore and a houseboat moored at the river's edge, the crew of the liquor laden rum boat abandoned the craft, which was captured by the coastguardsmen and given in charge of United States customs officials.

TOURIST TRAFFIC INCREASES 1,365 P.C.

In 1919 202,000 Cars Entered Ontario, While in 1928 There Were 2,700,000.

That there has been an increase of 1,365 per cent. in motor car traffic entering the Province during the past nine years, and that over the same period, motor car registrations in Ontario have increased 340 per cent. was the astounding statement of K. A. Cockburn, secretary of the Department of Public Highways, made recently at the Ohio's third annual Sportsmen's show in Cleveland, while in conversation with F. G. Stinson, secretary of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Cockburn pointed out that in 1919, the tourist cars entering Ontario numbered 202,000, while in 1928, the total of 2,700,000 vehicles had entered from the American side of the border.

NO CHANGES ARE MADE IN INCOME TAX

in beer and spirit licenses as from October 1.

Certain harbor dues would be reduced and improved telephone facilities accorded rural districts.

These concessions would reduce the estimated surplus to £10,546,000 (approximately $52,700,000).

Last year's budget, which Mr. Churchill also presented to the house, afforded an estimated surplus of £6,302,000 (roughly $31,510,000). This was based on an estimated expenditure of £806,195,000 (approximately $4,030,000,000) and an estimated revenue of £812,497,000 approximately $4,060,000,000).

The Chancellor announced that the tea duty would be immediately removed.

The income tax would remain unchanged under the budget.

To Improve Roads.

Asked what he was going to do with his surplus, Mr. Churchill said that there would be an increase in the percentage grant for road improvement and new construction up to a certain amount.

In the Government's view unemployment could be reduced to normal by a revival of industry as a whole and especially the basic industries.

Railway passengers' duties would be abolished on an undertaking of the companies to devote the savings to the modernization of equipment.

The Chancellor said that further relief for productive industry would be provided by bringing relief of rates for agricultural producers into immediate operation from April 1, instead of from October next. The manufacturers' relief must wait until October

Up to this point he estimated that the surplus would be reduced to £10,246,000 from which further relief would be provided for the taxpayers.

He then announced that the income tax would remain unchanged but that the tea duty would be immediately abolished. Coffee, cocoa and chicory would not be affected.

The cost to revenue of the tea tax repeal would be £6,150,000. He estimated the budget surplus on the new basis at £4,096,000 based on an estimated full revenue of £826,680,000 (about $4,133,000,000) with a total estimated expenditure of £822,584,000 ((about $4,112,922,000.)

DISARMAMENT IS DISCUSSED

To-day's proceedings were indicative of probably prolonged discussions. After suggesting various topics for discussion, President Loudon proposed an adjournment be made to-morrow. On this, Count Bernstoff, German delegate, observed that Germany might have reservations to propose regarding the agenda suggested in the opening speech. He asked for the text at the earliest possible moment, and the president promised he could have it by the afternoon.

The commission then adjourned till to-morrow.

LITTLE CHANGE IN CABINET

WARSAW, Poland, April 15. — (Canadian Press). —Poland has a new government, but it is very little different from that of Premier Casimir Bartel which resigned last week.

exists in all departments of the Underwriters' Association activities is one of the greatest factors in keeping down the cost of insurance to the public.

The second object is the equalization and distribution of the cost of fire insurance by the fixing of fair and equitable rates, and for this purpose schedule rating has been adopted and rates are based on the combined experience of all the companies over a long period of years.

Schedule rating is based on an analysis of the loss experience.

In the first place losses are classified according to the various types of business which produce them, so that the necessary premium may be secured from these individual classes and also so that the hazardous classes may contribute to the fire cost in the proportion that they produce losses, and so that the non-hazardous classes may not be penalized for losses occurring in classes of greater fire hazard.

Schedule rating goes further than this, and in analyzing the losses of the various classes of business, the inherent hazards of such businesses are charged for, and those things which form an integral part of the business and which have in the past been responsible for losses are charged for in the rates.

In other words, schedule rating is based upon common sense principles. Anything likely to start a fire or assist the fire to spread becomes a charge.

The basis of rating is the probability of loss, gauged from the experience of the past, and while the insurance companies have done everything to make their methods of rating scientific and fair to the public, they cannot control the losses upon which their findings are based.

The public is responsible for these losses and in the final analysis makes insurance rates.

While the underwriters' associations are necessarily the cost department of the insurance business, they are constantly advising architects and property owners as to the best methods of construction and fire prevention; are carrying on thorough inspections of city and town water supplies, fire protection, fire brigades, fire alarm and all parts of their fire fighting system and making full reports to the cities and towns, together with the recommendations for improvement; and all this work which leads to rate reduction is entirely in the interest of the public and given free of charge.

The efficiency of schedule rating is shown in the fact that the average cost of insurance in Canada has been consistently reduced. In 1913 the average cost of $100.00 of insurance was $1.21; in 1927, it was 90 cents, and the credit for this reduction must be placed almost entirely at the door of underwriters' associations for their work in promoting better construction and fire prevention methods.

The business of insurance is to provide protection in case of loss and to make certain that this protection is secure and for this reason it is necessary that the companies carry large liquid assets for the protection of their policyholders, and if those not done, such conflagrations as Toronto, Ottawa and San Francisco would have been national disasters, but the companies have kept faith with the public, in that they have not attempted to make large profits out of the business, as the government records show that the profit on the fire insurance business of Canada from 1869 to 1897 has been less than 5 per cent.

The speaker was jointly introduced by Rotarians Lou Potvin and W. J. Thompson, while a vote of thanks was proposed by Rotarian Thomas Barrie.

Among the guests to-day were Rev. William Allan, Rev. J. H. Dudgeon and Messrs Tom Mark and Alex. Weddell.

YOUNG PEOPLE HEAR INTERESTING TALKS

Three Papers Presented By Members of Warsaw Society.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, April 13. — For the meeting of the Warsaw Community Young People's Society held on Monday evening, Dr. Munro, who is in charge of the Citizenship Department, had three young people prepare papers. Miss Della Tucker prepared one on "Music and Art in Relation to Citizenship," "Commerce and Latitude as Affecting Citizenship," was taken by Ivan Drain. Miss Dorothy Hawthorne was unable to be present to give her paper on "The Effect of Literature on Citizenship," so Dr. Munro called on Fred Crowe to give a short talk on the subject. Dr. Munro summarized what had been given and added a little of general interest.

Patrons Meet.

Patrons of the Warsaw Cheese Factory, held their annual meeting on Monday afternoon. With a great deal of difficulty, Mr. Foster, who started from Peterborough about 9 o'clock in the morning reached Warsaw about 3 o'clock, going by way of Indian River. He was accompanied by B. Allan, who got stuck in a mudhole on the second line. William Forsythe walked all the way rather than start out in any vehicle. No one had the key, and the factory remained unopened until Henry Clements took off the hinges of the door.

It was not decided just when the cheese factory will commence the season's operations. The factory at Indian River may make some difference. Some of the largest milk producers could not promise to send milk by the first of May while others will send as soon as the factory opens. Cheese prices promise to be high.

Start Plowing.

Several farmers started plowing this week, but even on high places the ground is none too dry.

Many syrup makers have taken in their sap buckets. The season this year was not up to the average on account of the cold weather.

Fear Injury to Wheat.

The hard frosts on Wednesday and Thursday caused some fear for fall grains. On Wednesday the ground remained frozen all day where sheltered from the sun.

Roads Drying up.

The roads and fields are drying up quickly, although the roads are very rough. Many loads of gravel have been drawn for the holes between the first and second lines on the Dummer Road. After one passes the second line, the road to Peterborough is good.

District Churches

CHRIST CHURCH

CAMPBELLFORD, April 15 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—"And as His custom was, He went into the synagogue on the Sabbath Day," were the words which the Rev. N. Clarke Wallace selected as the text for his sermon yesterday evening. They are from the fourth chapter of Luke and the sixteenth verse. The rector's sermon was not a request to the members of the church that they attend church, but a complete explanation of why they should attend. He pointed out that there were only a few who attended regularly, the others found either reasons or excuses for their absence. There were also many other attractions for the Sabbath Day. He did not name them. There was, however, the possibility that the clergyman was a poor preacher or reader. This had frequently been put forward as a reason by some people in some places. There were those who did not believe in God or the church, they claimed. But this, said the rector, was not generally speaking. He did admit that there were a few non-believers. But in times of sickness, danger or trouble during the war times, people had prayed ardently and fervently for many things. This was, he believed, proof that they believed in God. It might not be wise, he thought, to accuse the first person we met with being an atheist.

Last summer there had been a decline in the church attendance during the Summer months. There had been a distinct falling off at the morning service, although the evening service showed an increase. The average attendance, however, had been smaller. This report had been sent to the officials of the church. It was the duty of the people, the rector said, to attend the church regularly. It was their duty to their God, themselves, and their neighbors. During the last few years, the word Duty had been largely replaced by "What I Like" which was a decided step down. Christ had considered it his duty to attend the church on the Sabbath Day. It should also be the duty of the churchmen of the present time. No club or lodge could possible continue to function if its members did not attend regularly. It could not be expected that the church would unless its members attended.

OBITUARY

MRS. ELIZABETH R. BOOTH

MARMORA, April 15.—An interesting personality was summoned from this life on Friday evening, Mrs. Elizabeth R. Booth, widow of the late John Booth, passing away at the residence of her son, James, in Rawdon Township, at the advanced age of 83 years. The late Mrs. Brook was known throughout Hastings County and beyond, because of her crystal gazing habits. If there was one thing she resented, it was that of being described as a fortune teller. Interviewed by the writer a few months ago, at the time of the last case which gave her wide publicity, she said that what powers she possessed had been placed within her by her Maker. She also declared that she believed in dreams and admitted that dreams had led up to her crystal gazing. She calmly stated too that all she had ever revealed had been for the purpose of helping those who solicited her assistance. It was never in her thoughts to charge anyone for information she might give. "I cannot do anything with unbelievers" was another statement vividly remembered as hers. She claimed that in her lifetime she had been instrumental in the discovery of several bodies of missing folk. Attached to her beliefs, was a professed respect for the Golden Rule. Though believing as she did in dreams and visions, she was no idler. Few of her age have done as much knitting and—in earlier years—as much spinning and carding—to say nothing of the duties of a farmer's helpmate and the mothering of ten children as was her lot. The late Mrs. Booth who came of Scotch descent, a matter which gave her pride, was born in Kingston, being the oldest of a family of ten children. Her maiden name was Sharp. Four brothers and a sister survive her. They are, Paul and James of Wellman's Corners, Allan of Stirling, Robert of Toronto and Mrs. Robert Totten of Rawdon Township.

The deceased had been widowed nine years, her husband, a native of Camden near Napanee, entering into rest February 15th, 1920, aged 79. For about forty years, Mrs. Booth had resided in Rawdon township, previous to which she had lived in Sterling. Five of her ten children survive to mourn her parting, oJhn of Campbellford ,William of Hamilton, James of Rawdon township, Alexander of Portland Oregon, and Mrs. James Stewart of Toronto. The funeral is arranged to take place on Monday afternoon ,service being held in Marmora United Church to be followed by interment in Mount Pleasant Cemetery in the Third Concession of Rawdon Township.

EMELINE GERTRUDE McLEAN.
(Contributed.)

MOUNT PLEASANT, April 15. — Relatives and friends in the community received the sad news late on Sunday evening, April 7, that Emeline Gertrude Lowe, widow of the late Herbert James McLean, had passed away in Lockwood Clinic, Toronto.

The late Mrs. McLean was born in Mount Pleasant on May 26, 1870, and was the daughter of Joseph Henry Lowe and the late Mrs. Lowe, whose maiden name was Eleanor Thexton. Deceased was of a quiet and kind disposition and was always ready to do a kindly act or help those who needed comfort. She was a fine Christian, having been converted when a young woman, and linked herself up with those things in life which count. She was a consistent member of the Presbyterian Church before union, and until recently, when health and strength failed, was always found at divine worship on the Sabbath Day.

In her home that spirit of warm-hearted hospitality was always shown, which was a marked trait of her character and where she spent a peaceable life as a good wife and loving mother and sister, and won the respect and affection of a wide circle of friends as her sterling worth and the many fine qualities of her disposition became generally known.

The largely attended funeral held on Wednesday afternoon, April 10, from the family residence testified to the sympathy aroused in the community by her death. Rev. R. S. Scott, of the Presbyterian Church, Cannington, a former minister of the deceased, conducted the service, and was assisted by Rev. Mr. Carpenter, of the United Church. The minister spoke very highly of the character of the deceased and of her wide influence for good in the community, "she being dead yet speaketh," by her example as a devoted Christian mother and by her goodness and kindliness to all with whom she came in contact. The many floral tributes were silent witnesses of the esteem in which she was held. She was a friend to all—young and old.

Left to mourn the loss of a loving mother are three sons, Herman and Gordon of Toronto, Eric at home, and one daughter, Helen, at home, also her aged father, Joseph H. Lowe, two sisters, Mrs. Joseph Thexton, of St. Thomas, M.D., and Mrs. Lloyd Sutton, Cavan, and four brothers, Fred of Omemee, Stanley of Peterborough, Harry and Ira, both of Mount Pleasant. Her husband predeceased her ten years ago, also one sister, Mrs. H. G. Keen, Toronto, who died on September 25, 1928.

The pall-bearers were her four brothers and two brothers-in-law, Messrs. W. J. McLean, Toronto, and W. Gregg.

The casket was banked in flowers, the floral tributes being as follows: Pillow from the family, wreaths from the brothers, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. McLean, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. McLean, the Mount Pleasant Women's Institute, the employees of the Bowes Company, Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Paterson, the Johnston and McPherson families, and the Misses Minnie MacNeily, Alma and Myrtle Hootan; crocs from the United Church; basket from the employees of Andrew Wilson & Company, Toronto; sprays from Bonar Presbyterian Church, Toronto, Bonar C.E. Society, Toronto, teachers of Bonar S.S. Junior Dept. Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McLean, Mr. R. J. McLean, and Mr. and Mrs. Haggen, the Kinsman family, Mrs. T. E. Morden, the Foster family, Mr. and Mrs. George Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Johnston, and Miss May Jamieson, Mr. John Kerr, the Keen family, Mrs. Louch and Alfred, the Gregg family, and the Misses Alberta Russell, Barbara Rae, Madge Elliott, Margaret McCamus, Bertha Curtis, and Evelyn Bland.

The sympathy of the whole community goes out to the bereaved ones in their sad loss. Interment was in Emily Presbyterian Cemetery.

To Hold Social

May 10 has been suggested as the date of the annual Ladies' Aid pie social and play. Should the condition of the roads improve the date will probably be moved ahead one week. At the present time while cars are going through nearly every road motoring is not a pleasant undertaking as some spots are still quite soft.

JUNIORS DISPLAY ABILITY.

TORONTO, April 15.—Jack Purcell of Guelph won the men's singles event in the annual open badminton tournament at the Granite Club, which came to a close on Saturday evening.

Before a large crowd which filled the spacious balcony, two large stands erected on either side of the match courts, and then overflowed on to the floor of the hall, Purcell clearly vindicated his right to the Canadian championship title, which he won last month in Vancouver, by administering a thorough trouncing to C. W. Aikman of Montreal, one of the leading players in the Dominion.

The first game was in the nature of a walk-over, Aikman scoring only 2 points. It was so one-sided that the Montreal man did not appear to be in the game during the first half. The second half produced a very fine brand of badminton, and the crowd excitedly applauded rally after rally. But even in this game Purcell's superiority was never in doubt. The Guelph man's very high service seemed to bother Aikman, and this was rather surprising, as Aikman's service has been known to worry his opponents for precisely the same reason, its great height. The score, 15-2, 15-12, while it may not represent the comparative strength of the two players, certainly tells an accurate story of Saturday's match.

In all the other events the finals were splendidly contested, and kept the crowd on its toes throughout the entire evening.

In the women's singles Miss N. Crossley of Oakville put up a sporting fight against the invincible Canadian women's champion, Mrs. E. F. Coke of the B. and R. Club. Miss Crosaley achieved the rare distinction of taking a game from Mrs. Coke, and she never allowed the champion to take things easily.

Juniors Display Ability.

The finals of the men's doubles produced an interesting encounter, in which two juniors from the B. and R. Club figured prominentlyl, one on each side. A. Henderson was partnered with the veteran, C. K. F. Andrewes, and they made a formidable pair. Notwithstanding this, however, they were defeated in straight games by Jack Taylor, B. and R., and T. B. Hayle of Oakville. The last-named put the climax to some fine exhibitions of badminton in both singles and doubles events during the tournament. He figured in the semi-finals of the singles, giving Aikman a fine game, and in the finals of the mixed doubles. In the latter he was ably partnered by Miss N. Crossley, who was also runner-up in the women's singles. The play of Hayle and Andrewes was outstanding, but the form shown by the two juniors stamp them both as coming champions.

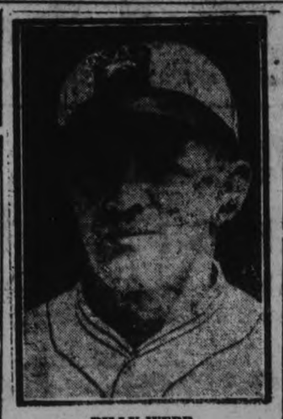
Mrs. E. F. Coke and Mrs. C. A. Boone, B. and R., many times Canadian champions, won the women's doubles, but were extended by Mrs. Whittington and Miss N. Crossley of Oakville. The Oakville players were, if anything, the more aggressive, but the fine partnership work of the winners was much in evidence, and they outgeneralled their opponents on many occasions.

Former Champions Triumph.

The mixed doubles also found former champions triumphing when Mrs. K. Archibald and C. W. Aikman of Montreal won the finals from Mrs. Whittington and Hayle of Oakville in a match that was replete with thrills and good plays. Hale matched Aikman stroke for stroke at the net, his drop shots being delicately played and beautifully placed, but his handicap proved to be lack of a powerful smash.

The tournament proved a complete success. Large galleries witnessed the games every day, while on Saturday afternoon, for the semi-finals, which were exciting in the extreme, the stands and balcony were almost filled, and on Saturday night they were filled to capacity. One very pleasing feature was the efficient umpiring, which made things better for players and spectators. Those who undertook the duties of umpiring were Messrs. Gray, Abblett, Purkis, Buchanan, Blackstock, Farquharson, Sedgwick and McKee. Mr. Roy Buchanan was official referee, and he presented prizes to the winners at the close of each final event Saturday evening.

There were many out-of-town competitors, and the quality of badminton was such as to render the tournament something in the nature of an unofficial Dominion championship. Every final match contained players who either hold or have their Canadian titles.



BILLY WEBB

It is going to be a hard matter to keep Billy Webb out of the regular line-up of the Leafs. This noble old veteran, who was given the cold shoulder last season when Bedore forged to the front, is back in the form which made him one of the standout performers of the league when he was with Buffalo.

"MICKY" MURRAY VISITS HOME TOWN

Former Peterborough Goalkeeper Has Had Great Year With Providence, R.I., Team.

"Mickey" Murray, the former Peterborough goalkeeper, who has had a great year with the Providence, R.I., professional hockey team, visited his home here over the week-end. "Mickey" reports the game taking on well in Providence, where there is not only great interest in professional hockey, but where the school boys are taking to the game, and some of them are showing signs of being comers.

Murray ran across several former Peterborough baseball celebrities across the line, including no other than the famous Jake Solomon, now residing in Philadelphia. Leo Comoli, the big Italian boy from Boston College, who played first base here one season and Army Pinette, who used to cover centre field like the morning dew. Jake Solomon, "Mickey" announces, will be in Peterborough for Old Home Week and he expects to be here himself.

Murray will spend the summer months in Galt.

TORONTO LEAFS BEATEN TWICE

Some 10,000 Fans Watch Contest With Detroit Tigers.

WINNERS OUTHIT.

DETROIT, April 15.—The Leafs took another beating from Detroit yesterday, the Tigers' victory being a more decisive one than Saturday's when they won by 6 to 5 in ten innings. The score yesterday was 10 to 3, although the O'Neill clan outhit the opposition by 12 to 10. Some 10,000 brave fans turned out for the two contests, 3,700 of them on Saturday.

As far as actual results go, the three-hour conference the Toronto men had with the Detroit officials might be described as a failure. President Navin did continue the promise made at the December meeting of the minor leagues at Toronto that the Leafs would be given two pitchers to close the Alexander - Prudhomme deal put through at that time.

The delay in naming the players to come to the Leafs can be attributed to the fact that "Bucky" Harris himself does not yet know just where he is at. The Tigers showed little on their training trip, winning but two games in 15 played with the Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh Pirates. And in those games there was little difference in the work of Harris's pitchers. With the exception of perhaps Owen Carroll and George Uhle, the latter with Cleveland last season, all were nothing more nor less than targets for the Chicago and Pittsburgh batsmen.

Poor Control.

That is, they were when they were able to get the ball over the plate. Even Carroll's control was anything but good, while Vic Sorrell, boasting more stuff than many of the other pitchers on the staff, was wild and then some.

John Prudhomme, Whitehill, Gibson, Barnes, Ganglider, Page and Stoner suffered from the same affliction, while George Smith and Haskell Billings are having trouble with sore arms and have had right along. Smith's ailment is of several years' standing.

Smith and Billings can be counted out as Toronto prospects, and of course so can Carroll, Sorrell, Prudhomme, Uhle and Yde. That leaves Barnes and Page, both left handers, and Stoner, Gibson and Vangilder, right handers.

It is believed, and with every reason, that Barnes or Page, likely the latter, will be one of the pitchers eventually turned over to the Toronto Club, while the other will be selected from Stoner, Gibson and Vangilder, much depending on the way waivers are taken by the clubs in the big leagues.

Waivers do not have to be asked on Page or Barnes. Page joined the Tigers from the Durham Club of the Piedmont League late last season and proved quite a sensation in the few games he pitched. Barnes was obtained from Houston of the Texas League, the Detroit Club paying out $35,000 for the pitcher and Shortstop Schuble.

Impresses Harris.

Bucky Harris said last night that Barnes had impressed him favorably on the training trip, and it could be taken from that that Barnes will be retained, which means that Page in all probability will wear a Torontq uniform this season.

As a matter of fact, Steve O'Neill expects to have a left-hander from the Tigers in the fold before he takes his team from this city on Sunday night. The other pitcher will come later when Harris finds out where he stands in a pitching way.

O'Neill and Dunn made a big play yesterday for Art Ruble, a left-handed hitting outfielder, who was with Seattle last season. Harris exposed his hand as far as his outfield is concerned when he announced yesterday morning that Heilmann, Fothergill and Rice would be doing the pastiming in the hinterlands when the American League campaign opens next Tuesday, while Johnson, the $75,000 beauty from the Coast League, and Stone would be held in reserve, and that he would carry but five outfielders this season.

Tough on Recruits.

The bid for Ruble means that none of the rookie outfielders with the Leafs will be kept. As a matter of fact of all the new talent tried out this spring, Sweeney and Naylor excepted, only Joe Samuels, a right-handed pitcher, and Price, a catcher, will stick. Frank Coleman has shown ability, but according to O'Neill, Burchell and Webb he is as green as grass and must undergo a course of seasoning in a league of lower classification than the International before he will be able to baffle double A clouters.

Outfielders Madsen, McHenry and Weigold are to be sent out on option, while Wise and Sexton already have drawn their release, as recently announced. Catcher Harry Davy will be farmed out, while Bernie Hungling will be second string backstop, and Price will be used for warming up the pitchers in the bull pen. O'Neill plans to do the bulk of the catching, and that should be a light task for him, the veteran appearing to be in better condition than he has been for seven years.

ENTERS FINALS.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 15 (Canadian Press).—Repeating their success of Friday night, the Windsor Collegiate Alumni basketball team, Dominion champions of 1928, Saturday night defeated Montreal in the second game of the Eastern championship series by 36 to 26, giving them the round by 26 points.

JUNIOR ENTRY FOR MILL TOWN

Campbellford Plans To Enter Team in O.H.A. Next Fall.

MANY NEW PLAYERS.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 15—(Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Unless present plans miscarry, Campbellford will have an entry in junior O.H.A. when the hockey season opens next fall. At the present time, it is doubtful whether the town will attempt to enter an intermediate team, but the Junior players are practically assured of a change. This was the decision reached by the local executive at a meeting held last Friday night.

Another feature of the meeting was the decision of the executive to do everything in its power to bring on the local players of junior age and younger in order that the town team will be made up of local men as soon as possible. For many years Campbellford has found it necessary to go far afield for players of some sports such as hockey and lacrosse and although a junior lacrosse team was started at one time, it was allowed to go by the board before long.

Last season the Campbellford Trent Valley League Team stayed in the running for practically the e the running until practically the bitter end. Honors were more than a little uncertain till the very last games were played and Stirling captured the cup for the second year in succession. Tweed, the team that enjoyed such a sensational line of victories, were the runners-up. Campbellford landed in fourth place with Frankford just above them.

While the senior team was playing out its schedule in Davidson's Arena and in the various towns of the league, A. J. Meyers was bringing along the younger set that, it is expected, will carry the Orange and Black in the hockey battles of the future. From their ranks, more than one player of local fame has graduated. Several years ago, Pat Shannon, hung up his skates and shin pads for keeps. Some of the older fans delight in recalling how the famous defense player first appeared on the ice with any old kind of broken hockey stick and a pair of spring skates. It is a case with them of "I knew him when." Since that time Pat Shannon's name has become famous, almost traditional, in local and district hockey circles. Last year, "Darky" Bunions stepped into the Trent Valley harness as left wing for Campbellford. There are many others.

There is every reason to suppose that the junior players will develop into first class intermediates and that Campbellford will have a team even more formidable than any of the strong aggregations that have represented the town in days gone by. For the development of these players of the future, the lion's share of the credit must be given to A. J. Meyers.

Bowling Alley Gossip

By Pin Boy

Five men's bowling teams and one ladies' team from the C.G.E. journeyed to Toronto on Saturday afternoon to take part in a bowling tournament with an equal number of bowlers from the Toronto Davenport works of the C.G.E.

On their arrival in Toronto the local bowlers were the guests of the Toronto teams at a banquet held in the Victoria House, after which the contest was staged at Karry's Alleys on Sheppard Street. A dance formed a pleasant finish to a perfect trip, and every member voted the whole affair a wonderful success.

The local girls had no chance with the Toronto bowlers, who started in with a determination that spelled success, and the C.G.E. team lost every game. Total pinnage in three games decided the winner in each of the duels, and the Davenport girls had a decisive margin. The girls who made the trip are as follows: N. Hardie, E. White, D. Seabrooke, M. Wallace, G. Condon and V. Creighton.

The K.R.B.'s of the City League locked horns with the Big Five last week to decide who owned fourth money in this league, and as usual Bill Prindible and his crowd had all the luck. Bill's gang toppled the pins for a total of 3102 in three games, winning by 130 pins. Dick Evans uncorked a dazzling brand of bowling that netted him 720 pins for high three and a high single of 267.

GOODYEAR TIRE TO ERECT WAREHOUSE

Addition Will Make Room for Larger Production at Toronto Plant.

Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Canada has under way plans for another major extension to its big plant at New Toronto. This will be a warehouse, which will be used for storing the company's materials and products, and is being erected so as to make room for the installation of more machinery at the main plant and enable the company to increase production of tires, tubes, and other rubber products materially.

While plans have not been completed in detail the structure will be a separate building but will be connected with the main building by passageways. It is understood that it will be four storeys, and have a capacity for approximately 300,000 tires.

The new warehouse will represent the third major extension that has been made at the New Toronto plant in about two years. The statement of President C. H. Carlisle to shareholders covering the operations of the first six months of the company's fiscal year indicated the high pressure under which the plants of the company were working and a further large step-up in production, sales and profits appear assured, when the new warehouse is completed.

The company produces and sells to other tire and rubber companies a product known as "Cap-Tax." This is used as an accelerator in the manufacture of products and also serves to harden and strengthen the products. Cap-Tax is the company's own invention.

SALE OF PLAYERS AT N.H.L. MEETING TO-DAY.

The National Hockey League magnates meet at Detroit to-day and it is likely that the old auction block will see more than one "Uncle Tom" offered for sale. Some of the players, who figured in the major circuit during the past season, will likely be sent down to the minor leagues, while some of the lads who starred in the minors are due for higher company. There will be the usual amount of lobbying with representatives from nearly all the minor league clubs on hand to try and sell their stars. To-day the draft season will go into effect and will last until May 15.

ALEXANDER DRAWS BACK THE VEIL.

Alexander, the great pitcher, is tiring of the publicity being thrust upon him as an ardent devotee of dark brown October ale, and various brands of corn liquor. He rises indignantly to assert that most of the stories about his fondness for an old noggin are libels. Alex. has been thrust upon the public as a sort of "Old Soak" of the diamond, which is hardly fair for one of his great record and capacity. He is twirling mighty effective ball around the forty-year mark. It isn't reasonable to suppose that he could do this if he consumed all the joy water accredited to him. The trouble with Alex. is that he has been good natured about the stories printed, and they have grown in the telling. One of the quaint and really fine characters of baseball, he has been much maligned, his fondness for distilled liquors has been magnified.

"I have seen a lot of young fellows come and go in my time and old Alex. is still out there pitching. As long as the boss is satisfied, I am, and you fellows ought to be," is his rebuttal to those who try to hang their alcoholic anecdotes on the good-natured St. Louis star.

ONE-SIDED RACE PREDICTED FOR THE AMERICAN LEAGUE

Nevertheless Club Owners and Officials Dispute Prophecies of Experts.

OPENING DAY SCHEDULE.

Four Clubs Outstanding Contenders For National League Pennant.

(By Paul R. Mickelson. Associated Press Sports Writer.)

CHICAGO, Ills., April 15.—(C.P.)—With the Yankee menace still casting its bulky shadow across the pennant horizon and chilling interest, the American League to-morrow launches what promises to be just another one-sided championship race.

Three years straight and six times in eight years have Babe Ruth and his Yankee mates blasted their way to the championship. American League officials and rival club owners and managers, who admit they and the box office receipts are a bit weary of this prolonged Yankee domination, dispute the "experts" by predicting a tight race from the first clarion call of "play ball" to-morrow to the last game in October. It is generally to Philadelphia, the team that gave the Yankees a scare last year; St. Louis, a combination of fair hitting strength and great defensive power; Washington, a great offensive team with Walter Johnson at its helm, and Detroit, with several heavy hitters and the brain of Bucky Harris, that they look for breakers in New York's pennant surge. The other entries—Chicago's weak hitting, erratic fielding White Sox, Cleveland's mysterious Indians, and Boston's mediocre team, are not expected to cause much trouble.

TIGHT RACE IN NATIONAL.

(By Herbert W. Barket, Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 15.—The National League starts a fight to-morrow that will not be decided one way or another for six months or so.

In a league as well-balanced as the National, experts forecast the eventual result only at their own risk. Most of them have contented themselves with stating that four clubs—the New York Giants, Chicago Cubs, St. Louis Cardinals and Pittsburgh Pirates — are the outstanding contenders, so closely matched that no one of them can be selected as a favorite. This quartette is almost unanimously picked to take the first four places. Differences of opinion creep in when an attempt is made to predict in what order they will finish.

OPENING DAY SCHEDULE.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 15.—(C.P.)—The schedule for the opening day of the major league season, to-morrow, with the probable pitching selections, follows:

National League.

Pittsburgh at Chicago—Grimes vs. Blake or Root.

St. Louis at Cincinnati—Alexander vs. Lucas.

New York at Philadelphia—Benton vs. Willoughby.

Brooklyn at Boston — Clark vs. Smith.

American League.

Boston at New York— Ruffing or Russell vs. Hoyt.

Philadelphia at Washington — Grove or Walberg vs. Jones.

Chicago at St. Louis—Thomas vs. Gray.

Detroit at Cleveland—Whitehill vs. Shaute.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

TWO SHOWS AT THE CAPITOL TO-NIGHT. ONE OF THE BIGGEST AND BEST ATTRACTIONS OF THE SEASON. THE WONDER KIDS OF VAUDEVILLE "THE BUTTERFLY KIDDIE CO." IN A BRAND NEW SHOW, AND THE MUSICAL SUCCESS "THE SHOPWORN ANGEL" ON THE SCREEN

For the first three days of this week there will be two performances each evening and the usual daily matinee at the Capitol. That brilliant little company of juvenile artists, The Butterfly Kiddie Co., who will be remembered by Capitol patrons as the clever little company which won their hearts on two different occasions last fall. For this engagement they will present an entirely new show from start to finish. They have just finished a most successful two weeks at Pantages Theatre in Toronto and Hamilton.

"The Shopworn Angel."

It is difficult to conceive Nancy Carroll as shopworn. She is too bright, too elusive, too lovely to give even the faintest suggestion of what the word connotes. Yet she is "The Shopworn Angel" in the absorbing new feature at the Capitol. Gary Cooper, the popular young player of the Paramount studio, is featured with her in this picture.

Nancy Carroll and Gary Cooper are a unique pair of screen lovers. Nancy is the dainty, super-sophisticated little chorine who has probed the heights and depths of Broadway and has sought and purchased its glittering luxury.

Gary is the shy, bashful, awkward boy from the West, who gets to New York for the first time, when his company mobilizes there on its way to France. These two meet, the clean-minded youth and the gilded Broadway beauty. These two love. Then Nancy realizes that he loves her for what he thinks she is, not for what she really is.

In addition to Nancy Carroll and Gary Cooper, Paul Lukas, the "John Barrymore of Hungary," who has won renown in a long series of important parts on the American screen, has a leading role. There are dancing girls galore and tender, thrilling scenes. It is a super-refined entertainment.

No Aches at 87!

Excellent Health due to Kruschen.

"I am in my 87th year, and am in excellent health, and it is due to the daily use of your Kruschen Salts, which I take every morning directly I get up. I have never an ache or pain about me. My friends are astonished when I tell them my age, and I do not forget to assure them that it is the daily use of your Kruschen Salts that have brought it about. With best wishes."—L. G. G.

Original letter on file for inspection.

What a lesson there for the younger folk. What Kruschen can do for a man of advanced age it can do ten times as surely for you. Start the "daily dimeful" to-morrow, and prove it for yourself.

TWO LIVES LOST IN BIG SEARCH

Searchers For Body of Nick Mitchell Drop Through Ice.

LITTLE GIRL KILLED.

CALGARY, Alta., April 15.—(C.P.)—In the course of efforts made to recover the body of Nick Mitchell, who was drowned in the Bow river on Friday, two other lives were lost over the week end.

Mitchell, a young boy, fell into the river when the ice on which he was walking gave way and his body was intrapped below the ice. On Saturday city employees placed charges of dynamite in the ice in an effort to blast it sufficiently to enable the searchers to determine whether there was hope of recovering the body. Peter J. Breen, a former city waterworks superintendent, who was voluntarily assisting in this task, slipped and fell while hastening away from a point where a charge of dynamite was about to be fired. He dropped through a hole in the ice and before he could be rescued the charge exploded close by and, within the range of its effects suffered injury: He was taken to hospital immediately, where he died within three hours.

On a bridge nearby the scene of the explosion were numbers of people, among them little Pearl Gillespie, aged 5 years. In the course of the excitement she was knocked down by an automobile, driven by James Stewart, of Drumheller. Her injuries were severe and she died on Sunday in hospital. The driver is detained pending investigation.

CITIZENS HOLD ROBBER AT BAY

Armed With a Rifle and Rolling Pins House Breaker Is Held.

UNTIL POLICE ARRIVE.

TORONTO, Ont., April 15.—(Canadian Press.)— Armed with a rifle and rolling pins, a group of citizens last night surrounded the house of William Jones, and held an alleged house-breaker at bay until police arrived on the scene to take him into custody. While the police were on the way the band of citizens fought off all attempts of the man to make his escape. Pretence of the cornered man that he was armed only strengthened the determination of the citizens to keep him captive. This was made apparent by the firing of a shot from the rifle over the man's head.

The man gave his name as James Templeton, 27. He is held on a charge of house-breaking. The credit for the capture of the man goes to A. S. Gardner, his wife and brother-in-law, Alfred Anger, who surprised the man in the house and kept him there until assistance arrived. They became aware of the man's presence in their neighbor's house when they heard breaking glass and upon investigation with a flashlight saw the man in the kitchen.

FOUL PLAY SUSPECTED

PARRY SOUND, Ont., April 15.—(Canadian Press).—The body of an unidentified man found at James Bay Junction, near here today. The head was bruised and showed evidence of knife wounds. Police suspect foul play and are investigating.

SECOND ARMOUR TROOP

After a special court of honor two weeks ago, the 2nd Armour Troop was reorganized. There is now four patrols, consisting of six boys, namely: Beavers, Raven, Woodpigeon, and the new patrol, the Wolf.

The new patrol is headed by the former second of Beavers. It also has two second class Scouts in it besides the patrol leader. A rough sketch map of a proposed camp site was shown by Patrol Leader Peters. The meeting last week was held in St. Luke's Parish Hall. There was a fair attendance in spite of the rain. After flag break and reports of the patrols, came a study period. In this period first aid, knots and signalling were studied. A game of deck tennis was played and John Hill, second of Beavers was declared winner of a hard fought elimination battle. This game is a new one and should prove popular.

RECORD CONGREGATIONS ATTEND SUNDAY SERVICES

Instructive Addresses Heard at Three Services in St. James' Church.

SPECIAL MUSIC.

Ambitious Program Arranged For the Present Week.

The Sunday services in St. James were exceptionally inspirational, both in song and message.

Mr. Dibble was the preacher in the morning, taking for his theme "The Holy Spirit." One of the greatest sins of the world, he said is discrediting the reality of the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit is not an influence, or an atmosphere, but a real Person whom some one has called "Jesus' Other Self". The chief purpose of the Holy Spirit is to reveal Jesus Christ to a lost world. A yielded will to Christ is the crux of the whole matter.

Three hindrances to our Knowledge of the Holy Spirit are, firstly, Iniquity in the heart, secondly. That we ask amiss, too much self, thirdly, Disobedience to His will."

Afternoon Service

The afternoon service for "Mothers and daughters" was in charge of Mrs. Dibble who addressed the largest assembly of women who had ever gathered in St. James United Church.

The opening song service was taken by Mr. Bibble as usual, with Mr. Mustain at the piano, and a full choir of junior members.

The quartette "Take your troubles all to Jesus" by Mesdames Robinson, Monk, McKinstrey and Kitney was a fitting opening to the splendid address which touched the heart of every mother and daughter present, giving to each an added sense of responsibility. The ministers' wives present were invited to a seat on the platform and Mrs. J. H. Dudgeon offered the opening prayer.

Mrs. Dibble took for her scripture lesson the third chapter of Genesis, speaking on the subject "Mother Eve and her daughters". She claimed that in the heart of every woman, high or low, good or bad, is a longing for the highest and best. Life is made up of decisions and it depends on the choices we make what that life is. In eating the forbidden fruit Eve thought it hurt no one but herself, but there is not a soul in the world but was touched by Eve's decision. Every woman, however small her circle, has the same power of influence. Bringing the application to the present, she said, "people to-day are selling their peace and happiness for their own selfish pleasure just as Eve had done."

Women have a great place to fill in the world today. No country, no community, no church, can rise higher than its womanhood. There is no task so wonderful as being a mother. No position so great as that of motherhood. It is above every other blessing and only a Christian mother can reach its true responsibility. "Mother" is the greatest illustration of love and patience in the world. "The hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that sways the world." No one can ever get entirely away from the influence of a Godly mother. It is tragically true that the influence of an ungodly mother is just as potent.

Napoleon, when questioned as to the greatest need of France, said it was "mothers."

Daughters' Responsibility.

The speaker then outlined the daughters' responsibility, first, to Jesus Christ, second to her mother, in offering confidence and love; third, in choice of companions and conduct. She strongly appealed to girls to set a high standard of conduct.

In closing, she said that Jesus is the answer to every problem in life, and challenged both mothers and daughters to accept Him as such.

Evening Service.

It was thought that the afternoon service had reached the zenith in attendance, but before seven o'clock every available seat was taken and standing room was at a premium, so that an overflow meeting had to be held in the Sunday School Hall.

A feast of song by Mr. Dibble and the choirs opened the first half-hour's service. The anthem, "The Roseate Hues of Early Dawn," was beautifully rendered by the senior choir.

"Life's Greatest Question" was the subject expounded by Mrs. Dibble, who took her lesson from the story of Christ's trial before Pilate. The question then was, "What shall I do with Jesus?" Just as it is to-day. For two thousand years men have been asking themselves this same question as to whether Jesus was really the Son of God as He claimed.

If He was not the Son of God, He was the greatest imposter the world has ever known. All through the Bible we find absolute proof of His Divinity, and every Christian feels this assurance in his own heart.

Upon your answer to this question hangs the hope of your salvation, your sonship and your eternal judgment. This is a wonderful day of opportunity. Nothing but our own will can keep us from Christ. "What shall I do with Jesus?"

Week's Program.

An ambitious program has been arranged for the coming week. As usual, Monday will be musical night, when the message will be given entirely in song. Mr. Dibble has promised to sing any song in reason by request.

Tuesday night's service is for adult Bible classes especially.

Wednesday is "every church member present" night.

Thursday is family night.

Friday night is "'teen age night," and the concluding services of this great revival will be held on Sunday, April 21.

A party was present last night who had motored over five hundred miles to visit these services, and several car loads from Toronto will be present to-day for the song service.

BROADCASTING NOVELTY.

Watson Tire and Radio Supply Company Provided Microphone For Show.

The very unique radio hook-up used in the "Listening In" scene of the "Kiwanis Kapers" show held in the Grand Opera House on Friday and Saturday nights, has brought many inquiries to J. W. Watson of the Watson Tire and Radio Supply Co., who made possible this novelty broadcasting.

A microphone was attached to a Stromberg-Carlson No. 633 all-electric Treasure Chest receiver, and the speakers voice passed through this to two large Stromberg-Carlson cone speakers hung one on either side of the stage. The broadcast was most successful. The announcer's (J. A. McNabb) voice, was reproduced with naturalness and exceptional fidelity of tone.

Severe Colds Always Ended in Bronchitis

Mrs. John Wilson, 143 Mamelon St., London, Ont., writes:—"I have always been troubled with severe colds which always ended in bronchitis, but since taking

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

I have no fear of this trouble, as it acted like magic, and the desire to cough was entirely gone. The soothing feeling it imparts to the bronchial tubes is simply wonderful.

"One day my husband came home with a heavy cold, but after a few doses he was entirely free of it."

COMMISSION ANSWERS QUERY

city, and extension to our street lighting system.

"We would point out that in the event of this surplus not having been available the only alternative would have been to issue debentures to pay for these necessary improvements.

Reduction In Rates

"The matter of reduction in rates has been actively under consideration for some time. Recommendations were forwarded to the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario early in March. Conferences have been held with the Commission's engineers and we hope to have something definite to announce in the very near future."

Manager R. L. Dobbin reported to the Commission that he had been in conference with the H. E. P. C. for the past several weeks and that he had been assured that the whole matter of reduction in power rates for Peterborough would be thoroughly investigated by the Ontario Commission.

It was unanimously carried the Utilities Commission would have a float in the Old Home Week parade on July 1. "The float will even be better than the one in 1927" said R. L. Dobbin.

It was announced the Commission has already begun the work of improving the street lighting on Edinburgh and Dublin streets.

A letter was read from the City Council requesting the removal of the hydrant at the corner of Townsend and Park streets. This was referred to R. L. Dobbin.

Expenditure of $15,000 Authorized

A letter was read from the Hydro Electrical Power Commission of Ontario authoriging the expenditure of $15,000 of the surplus money for rebuilding of street lines in the city. This money will be thus; $10,000 for construction; $2,000 for lighting and $3,000 for metres.

The Commissioners made a tour of all the property of the Commission including the Waterworks, Filtration plant and the Sub-station. Everything in these appeared to be in splendid condition, clean and kept running at the maximum of efficiency.

ESTATE VALUED AT $37,493.62

Former Inspector of North-West Mounted Police Leaves Large Estate.

INVESTMENTS RETAINED

The will of John Calwell Richards, former Chief Inspector of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, who died a few weeks ago at the Montgomery Hotel, where he had boarded for years, disposes of an estate of $37,493.62.

The executors are the Toronto General Trusts Corporation, who are directed to give "to my friend William Rudkins $3,000; to my nephew James Benson of Peterborough $4,000; and to divide the balance into four equal shares and to pay one share to each of my following nephews and nieces: Beryl Hawkins, wife of John Fletcher, now at Seattle; Josephine Hawkins, widow of Fred Hawkins, now of San Francisco; Irene Richards, daughter of my brother W. Richards; and Fred Hawkins son of John Hawkins of Keene, provided always that if any of my above mentioned nephews and nieces shall die in my lifetime leaving a child or children who shall survive me, then and in every such case the last mentioned child or children shall take (and if more than one, equally between them) the share which his or her or their parents should have taken.

I devise and bequeath all the residue of my estate both real and personal, and more particularly my personal effects, clothing, watch and chain, books—in four equal shares to my four nephews and nieces: Beryl Hawkins Fletcher, Josephine Hawkins, Irene Richards of Toronto and Fred Hawkins of Keene."

Mr. Richards' estate consists of $34,335.34 in Toronto Savings and Loan Company debentures, other funds of $1,715.93, cash $182.35 and a mortgage of $1,050.

The will further instructs the executors "to retain the investments made by me in debentures of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company until the first of January, 1933, and with the proceeds accumulated at that date to pay W. Rudkins $3,000; James Benson $4,000; Beryl Fletcher $7,623.40; Josephine Hawkins $7,623.40; Irene Richards $7,623.40; Fred Hawkins $7,623.40."

Voice of the People

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner Office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

REMEMBER

Commencing to-morrow (Tuesday) is the annual League of Nations membership campaign. Ottawa headquarters have again requested the Women's Canadian Club to sponsor the campaign in Peterborough, so on Tuesday and the succeeding days of this week, members of the club will call upon all the present members of the league, and they are also very hopeful of securing many new members.

Last year the work was made doubly hard by many forgetting to leave their dollar when going out, which entailed a second and sometimes a third call on the part of the lady collecting.

Those in charge would be very grateful indeed if the members will kindly help make the work as easy as possible by having their fee ready.

Every collector will have the official receipt card to give in return for the fee, which also entitles the subscriber to the League journal, "Interdependence," which is mailed from Ottawa each month. The inauguration of League of Nations Day throughout Canada last year had a wonderfully stimulating effect upon the whole society's work as well as largely increasing the membership.

Through its greater influence and numbers it was able to convince the Prime Minister of Canada that he should attend the council and assembly meetings of the League in Geneva and thus demonstrate to the nations of the world Canada's interest in and desire for world peace. In 1914 Great Britain was helpless to stay war. But 1929 is different, and we can all do something to prevent a return of those heart-breaking days, months and years. We can get behind our Government in its support of the League of nations, which provides in its organization at Geneva the means of conciliation which were absent in 1914.

The League has already stayed six minor wars, which if once started we know not where they would have stopped.

A strong and sound public opinion against war and in favor of peaceful methods can only be built up, if we men and women of Peterborough take a real interest in the League and see to it that our Government backs up all world efforts for peace.

Join the League of Nations Society in Canada, and let us do our part as individuals for the cause of world peace.

In 45 of the 55 countries belonging to the league, strong and vigorous branches of the League exist, ever growing in strength and influence. Canada, which now has a seat at the council, must be in the very forefront in its enthusiasm for peace and peaceful methods of settling all international disputes. So please be ready with your membership fee and the lady collecting will give you the official receipt for same.

Annie Forbes Allan.

today the perfect shortening — Tested and proved in thousands of homes

It took years of development and improvement, to produce perfect shortening.

Housewives throughout Canada have been putting Domestic Shortening to the real test of actual use in the home. Their verdict is that Domestic is the perfect all-purpose shortening.

It stands unchallenged! A pure vegetable product made by a special process. No animal fat. As a shortening, far superior to lard, as good as the best butter—and much less costly.

Domestic makes wonderful pastry—rich, smooth-textured cakes—and for frying—use Domestic over and over again—it carries no tastes or odours—and it does not smoke at the high temperatures required for good frying.

Domestic Shortening is homogenized to give added smoothness and finer texture.

Sold by grocers and butchers everywhere in 5-lb. and 3-lb. pails and in 1-lb. cartons.

Rich Flaky Pastry
1 cup Flour ½ teaspoon Salt
½ cup Domestic Shortening
¼ cup Ice Water

Mix and sift together the flour and salt. Reserve 2 tablespoons Domestic Shortening. Work in the remainder, with a fork or knife. Add only enough ice water to hold the ingredients together. Turn on slightly floured board, dust with flour. Lightly roll out the mixture into rectangular shape. Spread the remaining Domestic Shortening on this in pellets as large as peas, roll up like a jelly roll, and lightly roll out. Again roll up, repeat this twice, in order to obtain flaky pastry when it is baked. To line the plate, roll the pastry into a thin sheet, cut into a round that will extend 1 inch over the plate. Place this gently into the pan and fold the edge over to meet the plate. Plate this double edge of paste with the thumbs or fork. To prevent pastry from shrinking on the edge of the plate. Pour in the cooked filling. Bake for 15 minutes in a hot oven (375°) for ten minutes so that filling will not soak in. Then reduce the heat and bake 30 minutes.

Mr. F. N. Marrett is in Toronto on business for a few days.

Mr. G. W. Bond, of Toronto, is completing the installation of the Memorial block and it is expected that the hours and half hours will be chiming both by the end of the week.

The ice went out of Crowe Lake on Wednesday, this hapepning about three weeks earlier than usual.

MARMORA, April 15 (Examiner Correspondence).—Commencing this week the stores will again remain open on Tuesday and Thursday evenings in addition to Saturday evening.

Mrs. Clifford Anderson, of Campbellford, is visiting her sister, Mrs. John Reid, for a few days.

Mr. Phil Wright is moving to the farm recently occupied by Mr. M. Neal.

Dr. D. L. Curtis gave a party to a number of Deloro friends on Tuesday evening.

Around the City

The fire department made a run to 492 Elm street at 10.37 yesterday morning to take care of a chimney fire.

In the presentation of the Royal Humane Society certificate to Ross Davidson at Confederation school last week, it is interesting to note that the framed photograph of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, which was presented to the school on that occasion was taken by Fred L. Roy during the visit of the Prince in Toronto.

One of the features on the program of the benefit concert given in the Canadian Legion Hall were the songs by C. E. Coleman. Mr. Coleman sang in his own amusing way, "The Horse that the Missus Dried the Clothes On," and as an encore, "The Laughing Song."

That the employment situation in Peterborough has a bright outlook is the optimistic view taken by employees of the Ontario Employment Bureau here. Although there has been little change in conditions since January, it is expected that the big building program will cause a great deal of activity and give jobs to all those who are now out of work.

The employment office has many positions open for skilled mechanics, in fact there is a dearth of skilled laborers in the city, but jobs for the ordinary laborers are very scarce.

The wet weather is holding back work on the farm, and there are few openings there, yet.

Surplus Of $28,353.94 Includes Thirteenth Bill

The $28,353.94 surplus derived from the electrical department of the Utilities Commission for 1928 comes from two sources.

About $6,000 of the surplus is savings on operations by the Commission itself. The other $22,000 comes from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario under the ruling of the Thirteenth Bill.

The Hydro-Electric Power Commission provides power to the Peterborough Utilities Commission at cost since the city owns it sown electrical system. The Ontario Commission does not know just what the cost of the power for the year will be until the end of that year. Therefore the power is sold out at the rate of $32.00 per horse-power to the local Commission. If the actual cost is below this rate the surplus is returned, but if it should be above this rate, the deficit must be made up to the H.E.P.C.

F. P. O'CONNOR GIVES $125,000 TO COLLEGE

Three Million Dollars is Being Sought For St. Michael's.

TORONTO, April 15.—Three million dollars is the objective of the new fund of St. Michael's College, the Catholic college of the University of Toronto, which, it was announced yesterday, is being launched with the object of erecting new buildings for the college. The campaign, which is widespread, has been inaugurated with a donation of $125,000 by Frank P. O'Connor of this city. It is expected that other handsome contributions will be received, but a popular campaign is to be carried on among the Catholics of Ontario, and to some extent in Canada as a whole and in the United States.

In Police Court

In Police Court this morning, Magistrate O. A. Langley took them in bunches—and they totalled fourteen in number, and all with liquor as the contributing factor toward their presence.

Charlie Taylor, his brother Russell and Ivan Johnson are, most time, three peaceable young residents of the Curve Lake Indian Reserve. And when they set trail for Peterborough, which is on the banks of the Otonabee, last Saturday, it was on an entirely peace-time sache. Fire water was furthest from their thoughts. But heap big things began to happen—John McManus of Lakefield had cross words with one of the visiting braves and the scrap was on in a local hotel yard. Russell attempted to act as peace-maker, but only became involved the more when father James McManus came to the rescue. Young Ivan, up to this time a non-combatant, tossed in his lot and that made it 3-2 for the Red men. But William McCleggott of Peterborough felt the urge, and then there were even forces. The police got wise, and this morning, the standing armies paid dearly for their fracas. Charles Taylor was charged with being intoxicated in a public place. He flourished a somewhat disfigured nose, but grinned "sure" when the Magistrate asked him if he knew the difference between "guilty" and "not guilty." He pleaded the former and was fined $10.00 and costs, as did Ivan and Russell, who faced similar charges.

McCleggott, sporting a somewhat discolored optic, and the two McManus family, representatives in the scrap, all were charged with similar offences as their opposition and all pleading guilty, were fined $20.00 and costs each.

Company Number 2 comprised four local young men whose trail of whoopee making had led them through the city streets at a reckless rate of speed in a rented motor car, Saturday evening. Frank Willison, driver of the car, and apparently the oldest of the quartette, was charged with driving recklessly or negligently, pleaded guilty and was fined $50.00 and costs, or one month in the common jail—with an additional $10.00 fine for driving while not being the holder of an operator's permit. James Roach, a second member of the group, was charged with unlawfully keeping or consuming liquor in a place other than his own private residence, admitted his guilt and was fined $100.00 or one month in jail. Charles McLean and Neil Harrington, facing charges of disorderly conduct, paid fines of $10.00 and costs each.

It was pretty close to the noon hour when Harry Gassien, M. Steenberg, George Perry and Harry Wilson, the last three of North Monaghan, the first a resident of this city, filed into the box to plead guilty on charges of consuming liquor not acquired under Government permit. Ten-dollar fines with costs extra were paid by all four men.

INDIAN SCHOOL IS DESCRIBED TO W.A.

St. George's Women's Organization Holds Anniversary Services.

The regular monthly meeting of St. George's W. A. was held in the church basement on Thursday afternoon. There was a very large attendance. The president, Mrs. J. M. Brownlie, conducted the opening devotional exercises, which followed the singing of a hymn.

The roll call and usual business was gone through, and the matter of delegates to attend the annual meeting next month was discussed. The president announced the result of the recent paper collection as $11.28.

As this was the anniversary of the formation of St. George's W.A., a special speaker had been invited as in former years, Mrs. A. E. Minchin of St. John's Rectory, having kindly consented to speak on missionary work on this occasion. Mrs. Minchin gave a full and interesting account of the work in an Indian boarding school at The Pas, where she was a W. A. worker five years ago. In a graphic and interesting manner, the speaker described the journey to The Pas, and an imaginary trip was made to the school. A vivid word picture was painted of each day's proceedings, showing how the 89 children (40 girls and 40 boys) were cared for and educated. Several humorous incidents were recorded. The speaker made special mention of the fondness of the children for the brightly-colored quilts and spoke of the value of the W. A. quilts.

A hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Minchin for her very interesting talk was moved by Mrs. Hughes and Mrs. Tucker.

Mrs. W. McWilliams contributed a vocal solo, "My Dearest Child," the piano accompaniments being played by Mrs. R. Ross. The meeting closed with the members' prayer. Dainty refreshments were afterwards served by the ladies and a social time enjoyed.

SHERIFF ATTACHES CLYDE PYLE'S EQUIPMENT

Cross Country Race Promoter Negotiates With Chevrolet Company For Settlement.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 15.—(Canadian Press)—Peripatetic pavement pounders of C. C. Pyle's Bunion Brigade were free to continue their crosscountry jaunt as far as Springfield, Ohio, to-day, but writs of attachment held in Columbus three automobiles and a van with much of the artistic talent of the side shows, while the promoter strove with financial problems.

Sheriff's deputies to-day kept unwavering eyes on the Pyle equipment in the interest of the Chevrolet Motor Car Company of New York. There was no explanation of the difficulty except Pyle's announcement that the concern had objected to his arrangement with one of its agents to pay for the vehicles in weekly installments. "Overtures were opened for a settlement," said Pyle.

The runners had a forty-mile gallop to Springfield, with no attachment about them whatever but their bunions. Peter Gavuzzi, of Southampton, Eng., was at the head of the pack. He finished first with Ed. Gardner, Seattle negro, in the 54-mile run from Zanesville here yesterday and retained his lead in elapsed time.

POWER REPORT

An indirect rumor intimated that the Department's report was more or less favorable to the project that has been outlined locally as a municipally owned source of power. However the council has no news whatever, but it is hoped that the publication of the report will not be unnecessarily delayed.

Following the reading of the minutes and treasurer's report, which were approved and adopted, the program opened with the singing in Spanish of "Jesus Loves Me," by Mrs. Haddow, which was very pleasing to everyone. A solo followed by Mrs. Hohner, who sang "Alone" in a beautiful tone and voice.

Mrs. Haddow, the speaker for the afternoon then gave her talk on "Life in Bolivia," their manners and customs, which was heartily enjoyed. Mrs. Curvin also gave a solo in her usual pleasing manner.

Men Miss Largest Sum

Three Armed Bandits Enter Bank While Comrades Wait Outside.

BOYS GIVE ALARM.

Firing of Shots Outside Frighten Bandits, Who Rush From Building.

HAMILTON, Ont., April 16. — (Canadian Press).—While two of their comrades waited outside in a stolen car three armed bandits entered the branch of the Bank of Commerce at Beamsville near here, shortly before two o'clock this afternoon and held up the staff.

According to early reports, the men secured several hundred dollars, but missed the largest sums of currency in the building.

Boys passing the bank gave the alarm, and when shots were fired by the men in the car, the bandits in the bank rushed out, and leaped into the vehicle, driving away at a rapid pace.

Their car took a southerly direction, and is believed to be speeding along the mountain top in the direction of Buffalo.

Police declare, from the description, that the car was that which was stolen from Thomas Hyland on Hamilton Beach last night. Hyland was held up by armed men, and robbed of his valuables.

The bandits were masked with black handkerchiefs, and carried sawed-off shot guns. The men who entered the bank scooped up the money off the teller's counter, but neglected to seize a parcel on a chair nearby. This package contained several thousand dollars which was believed to be the loot the thieves were after.

The alarm given by the small boys on the street brought Constable Julke out of a drug store nearby, and he was in time to see the car start to move away. He drew his revolver and fired on the fugitives, who returned a fusilade which did not injure him.

A rural mail carrier saw the incident, and pursued the retreating car along Mountain street, but finally lost sight of it.

It has since been established by the police that the car was actually the one stolen from Mr. Hyland. The license number of the bandit car is given as 95-297.

WELLAND, Ont., April 16.—(Canadian Press.)—Two armed bandits—one white and one negro—held up and robbed fourteen Chinamen of between $800 and $1,000 in the combined grocery and boarding-house, operated by Yuen Hang and Lee last night. The bandits lined the occupants against the wall of the boarding house forcing them to hand over their money and then walked into the adjoining store and helped themselves to the contents of the till, finally departing with a courteous "good-bye boys."

Three-quarters of an hour later Provincial Police at Bridgeburg arrested a white man and a colored man in connection with a motor accident. Two of the victims of the hold-up were taken to Bridgeburg to see the prisoners, but were convinced that they were not the bandits.

TORY PARTY FEARS MORE FROM GRITS

Commentors On Budget Speech Note With Emphasis Winston Churchill's Sallies.

VINDICATION OF RECORD.

Repeal of Duty on Tea Is Being Regarded as "Bull Point."

LONDON, April 16 (By Thos. T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).— Commentators on every side of politics note with some emphasis to-day the sallies at the opposition made by Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill in his budget speech, which were directed much more frequently and pointedly at Mr. Lloyd George than at Ramsay Macdonald. This impression naturally arouses the belief the government apprehend they have much more to fear from the Liberals than from Labor at the polling booths.

It is also generally remarked that the speech was more a vindication of the government's record over the whole four years of its existence than a comparison of the financial results of the past year with those expected in the year to come.

Regard as Bull Point

The repeal of the duty on tea is naturally regarded by Conservatives as a "bull point" for the coming campaign. In some quarters it is regarded as a rather clever little bid for the new flapper vote, but observers of present-day social customs would perhaps declare the young women of to-day were more concerned with cigarettes than with teacups.

Conservatives who have to seek election in rural districts are heartened by the immediate relief granted to agriculture from local taxes and the promise to extend telephonic and telegraphic facilities in the country districts.

Not Influential Factor

The repeal of the betting tax does not appear to be regarded as a very influential factor either way, for those who either bet themselves or are concerned with the moral and social effects of betting are inclined to hold that state regulation should go deeper than has yet been attempted.

Liberal and Labor critics of the budget declare the abolition of the tea duty has been urged by them for years and has until now been rejected by the Conservatives. From the same quarters the Chancellor's concession to agriculture is described as an attempt to placate the agricultural interests, especially the National Farmers' Union, which has for some time been openly in disagreement with the present government.

The Budget speech of Winston Churchill, Chancelor of the Exchequer, to Parliament yesterday afternoon, had only a light effect on the stock exchange in the matter of price movements to-day.

Although the Liberals and Laborites had characterized Mr Churchill's budget as an electioneering weapon, effect of its publication was to drive down Conservative stock four points to-day on the unofficial market of the stock exchange Both Liberal and Labor stock rose one point in election "majorities"

Burmese Magistrate Shot In Open Court

MANDALAY, Burma, April 16 (C.P.)—A Burmese magistrate, U Po Ku, was shot dead in open court to-day by a Burmese sub-inspector of police, Tha Din, who immediately committed suicide.

Tha Din and two other sub-inspectors had been charged with criminal breach of trust in connection with 5,000 rupees seized during a gambling raid. The magistrate found only Tha Din guilty and sentenced him to fifteen months' rigorous imprisonment. Thereupon Tha Din drew his revolver and fired three shots at the magistrate, then turning the weapon upon himself.

CLOSE CHECK-UP ON CITY CAFES

Decided Decrease is Shown in Number of Cases of Measles in City.

BOARD OF HEALTH MEETS.

"At the present time there are only six cases of measles, six cases of whooping cough and three of mumps officially designated by placards, and only one case of scarlet fever, confined in the Queen Mary Hospital," Dr. T. W. H. Young, City Medical Health Officer, told The Examiner this morning prior to a regular meeting of the Board of Health, which took place in the Council Chamber at ten o'clock. The decrease in measles, following the startling outbreak which swept the city a month or so ago was a most encouraging feature indicated by his statement, while details of the Isolation Hospital report for the month of March only emphasized a rapid return to normal of Peterborough's bill of health.

With a comparatively light slate of business scheduled for attention, discussion during the meeting turned, as on a former occasion, to the lack of sanitary conveniences so evident in some local restaurants, as well as private residences which have not, as yet, been connected with the city sewage system.

Will Notify Tenants.

A close check having been kept on the latter, the City Clerk was instructed to notify tenants of the Board's request for immediate action, while the City Sanitary Inspector and the City Plumbing Inspector were authorized to inspect all of the restaurants and prepare a report on the conveniences now available to their patrons. According to a letter from City Solicitor Joseph Wearing regarding this matter, all restaurants and eating houses operated in this municipality are required to have washrooms and toilets, one for males and one for females, for the accommodation of the public. Chairman J. J. Turner read Mr. Wearing's letter, as well as an extract from a Toronto newspaper dealing with a clean-up being sponsored in that city by the Restaurant Owners' Association.

Matters pertaining to the Queen Mary Isolation Hospital shared the honors of discussion with the restaurants, the first item being a request for increase in salaries to Mr. and Mrs. Clarke, who are caretakers of

OPENING DAY BALL PROGRAM IS WASHED OUT

American and National League Games Scheduled in Eastern States Postponed.

STAR EVENT AT CHICAGO.

Clear But Cold Weather Reported Along the Western Battlefront.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 16 (Canadian Press).—The entire opening day program of major league baseball in the east was washed out to-day by a driving rainstorm, backed by a cold north-easterly gale that dissipated all enthusiasm for inaugural ceremonies and base hits.

Three of the games scheduled in the east were postponed early in the day, with no sign of let up in the storm. Only official announcement was required to do away with the fourth game, at Boston, where there was no indication that the Braves and Brooklyn would be able to play.

Meanwhile it seemed probable the western half of the schedule would escape the main attack of the elements, including the all-star National League event at Chicago, featuring the Cubs and Pirates. It was clear but cool there.

Clear weather also was reported at Cincinnati for the Cardinals and Reds and at St. Louis for the White Sox and Browns. It was cloudy, however, at Cleveland for the game between Detroit and the Indians.

Baseball schedule for to-day:

National League.

New York at Philadelphia, rain, 3 p.m., standard (postponed).

Brooklyn at Boston, rain, 3 p.m., standard.

St. Louis at Cincinnati, cloudy, 2.30 p.m., standard.

American League.

Eleven thousand are said to be affected, most of them in the cotton mills of the federal district and states of Puebla Tlaxcala, Guana Juato, and Michoacan.

The strike order grew out of dismissal of several union men by a Mexico City Milk owner.

GAS WARFARE PROHIBITED

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, April 16.—(Canadian Press).—King Alexander to-day signed an International Convention prohibiting gas warfare. A special courier will take the document to the Quai D'Orsay in Paris where it will be deposited.

FIVE YOUTHS FEARED LOST IN LAKE ERIE

Authorities Give Up All Hope of Rescue of Amherstburg Boys.

HAD OUTBOARD MOTOR.

Five Were Last Seen in Dangerous Channel Near Sugar Island.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 16. — (Canadian Press). —Amherstburg and Wyandotte, Michigan, authorities to-day abandoned hope for the five youths who set out in a row boat from Sugar Island, 12 days ago and have not been seen since. Their death by drowning in Lake Erie is conceded.

Two of the boys were residents of Amherstburg, Howard Lester 19, and Otto Baltzer, 16. When they left home they were in two boats. Inquiry to-day revealed they had borrowed an outboard motor and crossed to Grosse Isle where they were joined by David Truedell, 18 of Grosse Isle.

One Reported Found

Amherstburg was stirred by a report this morning that the boat had been recovered last night near Grosse Isle with the body of one of the boys lashed to the seat. Investigation, however, proved the body to be that of a Detroit rum-runner who had been lost three days ago.

The Lester boy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lester and his chum is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harper Baltzer. Although the youths did not carry any luggage with them when they left, their parents were not alarmed until reports of the missing party had been received Saturday.

The five boys were seen last in the Amherstburg boat off Hickory Island, near Grosse Isle. Between Hickory and the American shore in a dangerous channel in rough weather and it is believed that the boys lost control of their craft in that part of the river and were swept out into the lake.

DOG CATCHER IS APPOINTED

Mark Pengelley Will Start War On City's Canine Population in Morning.

DOG TAGS AVAILABLE.

To-morrow morning, rather than on May 1, as in other years, the official city dog catcher will begin his duties, owing to numerous complaints which have been reaching the City Council and the Police Department of troublesome canines.

While the sale of dog tags for the year 1929 has not been as rapid as the police would like, the main reason for the dog catcher beginning earlier than usual is that a number of dog owners have allowed their pets to run at large, and in some cases people have been attacked by larger dogs. One large dog, whose owner resides in the vicinity of the C.G.E., has been particularly bothersome, according to complaints sent in, while a number of ownerless dogs have been causing trouble in a like manner. "Owners who prize their animals will do well to restrict their movements," declared Chief Newhall this morning.

ITALIAN ARRESTED ON MURDER CHARGE

Provincial Officers Take Man Off Train at Sudbury—Awaits Investigation.

SUDBURY, Ont., April 16 (C.P.).—Answering the description of the men wanted by police in connection with the murder of an Italian whose body was found in the Canadian National Railway yards at South Parry, yesterday, John Lazarko was arrested on a train at Sudbury, by Sergeant Knight and Constable Taylor of the Provincial Police force.

Lazarko, who is a man well over six feet in height and about 45 years of age, was dressed shabily and told police he came to Sudbury in search of employment. He said he boarded the train at Nobel, after walking from Parry Sound.

Provincial officers took him back to Parry Sound to-day, where police are still attempting to establish the identity of the body found in the yards.

President Suggests Re-organization of Tariff Commission

Address of Herbert Hoover To United States' Congress Is Of Unusual Brevity and Direct and Recommends Federal Farm Board To Aid Agriculturists.

NO DISCRIMINATION AGAINST FOREIGN INDUSTRY; PLACE TARIFF COMMISSION ON HIGHER SALARIED BASIS

After Seven Years' Experience President Asserts That the Principle of Flexible Tariff is Practical— Interests of Country Must Be Taken As a Whole.

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 16 (Canadian Press). — President Hoover's message to the extra session of the seventy-first Congress, which was read to both Houses to-day, was pondered over with particular care by those interested in tariff revision, as well as farm relief.

The President's language on the tariff was viewed as meaning that he will back up the movement in both Houses to put agricultural rates up to a high level. Predictions are that in a number of instances farm tariff rates will be practically prohibitive.

While the President's language seems to favor a more or less restricted revision of the manufacturing schedules and schedules other than agricultural, it was viewed by high tariff advocates as sufficiently elastic as not to interfere with their plans for a revision. In other words, high tariff advocates do not think the President will veto a bill which is practically a general revision measure.

In proposing a re-organization of the tariff commission, Mr. Hoover said it should be placed upon a basis of higher salaries "in order that we may at all times command men of the broadest attainments."

Flexible Tariff Practicable.

He asserted that seven years of experience had proved the principle of flexible tariff to be practical, but that the basis upon which the commission makes its recommendations to the President for administrative changes in the rates of duty should be made more automatic and more comprehensive, to the end that the time required for determinations by the commission be greatly shortened.

The President's comment on the tariff follows in part:

"An effective tariff upon Agricultural products that will compensate the farmer's higher costs and higher standards of living has a dual purpose. Such a tariff not only protects the farmer in our domestic market, but it also stimulates him to diversify his crops and to grow products that he could not otherwise produce, and thus lessens his dependence upon exports to foreign markets. The great expansion of production abroad renders foreign competition in our export markets increasingly serious. It seems but natural therefore that the American farmer, having been greatly handicapped in his foreign market by such competition from the younger, expanding countries, should ask that foreign access to our domestic market should be regulated by taking into account the differences in our costs of production.

Many Economic Shifts.

"In considering the tariff for other industries than agriculture, we find that there have been economic shifts necessitating a readjustment of some of the tariff schedules. Seven years of experience under the tariff bill enacted in 1922 have demonstrated the wisdom of Congress in the enactment of that measure. On the whole it has worked well. In the main our wages have been maintained at high levels; our exports and imports have steadily increased; with some exceptions, our manufacturing industries have been prosperous. Nevertheless, economic changes have taken place during that time, which have placed certain domestic products at a disadvantage, and new industries have come into being, all of which creates the necessity for some limited changes in the schedules and in the administrative clauses of the laws as written in 1922.

Test for Revision.

"It would seem to be that the test of necessity for revision is in the main whether there has been a substantial slackening of activity in an industry during the past few years, and a consequent decrease of employment due to insurmountable competition in the

Woman's Scream Scares 18 Year Old Girl Bandit

ALLIED PLAN IS REJECTED

Reparations Figures, As Submitted By Allies, Fail To Receive German Approval.

PERIOD OF BARGAINING.

PARIS, April 16 (C.P.).—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, chief of the German reparations experts, was reported late to-day to have definitely rejected the recent Allied reparations figures as being beyond Germany's capacity to pay.

It was announced that he will appear before a plenary session to-morrow afternoon to submit German counter-proposals with a complete schedule of annuities.

To-day's session opened with the distribution of a table of figures, showing how the creditor nations had arrived at the proposed figures. This table had been requested yesterday by Dr. Schacht who, without discussing the total, asked for more light on the individual items.

Period of Bargaining

After the tables were distributed there arose a general discussion, in which Dr. Schacht took the lead as to the ability of Germany to meet the proposed payments.

Thus began the period of real bargaining which will probably result in more or less whittling down of the proposed annuities. As the discussion went on, the atmosphere around the lobbies of the Hotel George V. was more optimistic. There was a general feeling in expert circles that some sort of an agreement was now certain.

There was also less expectation in German circles as to the failure of the conference in view of the fact that unless experts reach an agreement the Allies will certainly fall back on the Dawes Plan, which requires greater effort from the Reich than any new arrangement likely to be adopted.

Babe Ruth Obtains a Marriage License; Home-Run King Will Be Married This Week

ALBANY, N. Y., April 16. — (C.P.) — Governor Roosevelt announced last night he had vetoed bills whose ultimate purpose was the construction of a bridge spanning the St. Lawrence. One measure would have provided for the incorporation of a company to construct the bridge, and the other would have created a commission to contract with a Canadian company by which procedure the bridge would have been constructed, according to the Governor, by both private and public corporations.

The Governor disapproved the first bill as contrary to a policy of state not to grant franchises for toll bridges on main highways, and the second, original public and private enterprises cannot be combined successfully.

Skipper Of The Ill-Fated "I'm Alone" Intends To Organize Moving Picture Outfit

NEW YORK, N.Y. April 16.—(Canadian Press).—Capt. John T. Randall of the Canadian Schooner I'm Alone, which was sunk by United States coastguard gunfire in the Gulf of Mexico, arrived here to-day on his way to Montreal, where he plans to confer on the question of possible claims against the United States Government.

Capt. Randall who plans to leave to-morrow for the Canadian city to discuss the case with his attorneys, said that "the entire matter of how much the claims will be and other details will be decided by the attorneys and the Canadian government."

The skipper said he was through with the rum-running business and intended to organize a moving picture outfit to sail on a steamer for South America, where drama and travelogue films would be taken.

Measure Is Held Up

Principle of Dealing With Divorce Legislation in House Opposed.

45 BILLS WAITING.

J. S. Woodsworth Forces Vote On the First Bill Read.

OTTAWA, April 16. — (C.P.) — Threatened opposition to the present methods of handling divorce bills in the House of Commons became a reality yesterday. It developed early in the afternoon when the members found themselves confronted with a list of forty-five of these measures, all standing for a second reading. In the past the House might have run through the list as quickly as possible and sent the bills on to the Private Bills Committee. By unanimous consent it might even have saved itself the trouble of reading the title of each separate bill. The bills might have been passed en bloc.

But yesterday saw a most decided change in this procedure. From the moment the first of these bills came up for second reading, opposition of the most strenuous character developed. J. S. Woodsworth, Labor member for Winnipeg, North Centre, led the fight against passage of the first bill, as well as of the subsequent measures. He made it clear that he was not opposing divorce. Still less was he opposing the individual applications because, he declared, members of the Commons could not be expected to familiarize themselves with the details of all divorce bills. He was opposing the principle of dealing with legislation which the members knew little or nothing about.

Vote Recorded.

Finally the first bill was put through on a recorded vote which resulted in the approval of second reading by a majority of 35. Party lines were ignored in the division and the number of votes recorded were small, an appreciable proportion of members not being in the chamber.

But again the Opposition broke out when the House took up the second bill for which the sponsor was present. An effort to prevent discussion on this bill, which consisted in moving "that the question be now put" met with defeat by the narrow majority of seven votes. The discussion went on. At times it waxed hot. From the treasury benches, Hon. C. A. Dunning, Minister of Railways, speaking as a private member, asserted that the place for enquiry into divorce bills was in the Private Bills Committee. From Hon. R. B. Bennett, Opposition leader, came a suggestion that such debate did not add to the dignity of Parliament.

Two Bills Pass.

Finally, the second bill which was discussed got second reading also. The vote in this case was 68 to 47, a majority for second reading of 21. After an entire day spent in debate on these bills, the net result is that two out of forty-five have moved forward one stage in their progress. The discussion will proceed to-morrow evening between 8 and 9 o'clock, when an hour is devoted to consideration of private legislation.

An effort was made earlier in the session to obtain divorce courts for Ontario, when Mr. Woodsworth sponsored a Senate bill for this purpose in the House of Commons. The bill was defeated. Consequently divorce applications from three provinces where there are no divorce courts (Ontario, Quebec and Prince Edward Island).

Miss Agnes MacPhail (Progressive, South-West Grey) said it must be realized a divorce court would soon have to be established in Ontario. The establishment of such a court would not increase or decrease divorce. In her opinion, one of the causes for divorce to-day was the greater freedom of women, who formerly had no choice in the treatment often accorded them, and who now

JOINT DELEGATION SEEKS AMENDMENT TO CRIMINAL CODE

Retail Merchants Ask Minister of Justice For More Protection.

AGAINST FALSE CHEQUES.

Spokesman This Morning Claims Merchants Lose Thousands of Dollars Annually.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 16.—(Canadian Press).—Amendment of the criminal code which at present makes it necessary to prove that a person issuing a worthless cheque knows, at the time it was issued there were not sufficient funds to protect it upon presentation at the bank, was requested by a joint delegation representing the Retail Merchants Association of Canada, the Canadian Hotelmen's Association, Canadian Creditmen's Trust Association before Hon. E. Lapointe, Minister of Justice, this morning.

It was set forth that retail merchants throughout the dominion sustain losses running into thousands of dollars annually which are not recoverable because of the present provisions of the Criminal Code. The proposed amendment would afford ample opportunity to the "honest person" to meet the obligation which he assumed when issuing the cheque, said G. S. Hougham, Secretary for the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, who was spokesman for the delegation. He said the courts are "prone to assume that the cheque was issued in good faith" under the present law.

Proposed Amendment

The proposed amendment follows: "Everyone is guilty of a misdemeanor and liable to not more than one year's imprisonment or to a fine not exceeding $1,000 or both who with intent to defraud makes and delivers any cheque for the payment of money, knowing at the time of such making and delivery that he has not sufficient money or funds or credit for payment in full of such cheque.

"There shall be prima facie evidence of the intent to defraud and of the knowledge of insufficient money, funds or credit, if payment is refused by the drawee because of insufficient money, funds or credit, provided that the maker or drawer shall not have paid the holder of the cheque the amount stated thereon, together with the amount of protest fees, if any, after receiving notice in person or in writing that such cheque has not been paid.

"Cheque, as used herein, means any cheque, draft or order drawn by any person, firm or corporation on a bank or depository of money or funds, for payment of the amount stated in the cheque."

Other members of the delegation were Dan Johnson, president of the Ottawa and Eastern Ontario District, Retail Merchants' Association; J. F. Carland, Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association, and Major H. L. Robbins, secretary-manager, Canadian Hotelmen's Association.

SUFFERS FROM HEART ATTACK

Dr. Edwards Is Seized With Attack While in House of Commons.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 16.—(By the Canadian Press.) — Within a few minutes after the conclusion of his speech the subject of a number of divorce bills under consideration at the time in the House of Commons, Hon J. W. Edwards, (Cons., Frontenac-Addington), was seized with a heart attack late last night as he was leaving the Chamber.

While proceeding slowly to his room, Dr. Edwards' condition was immediately noticed and a number of medical members of his party rushed to his assistance. The necessary medical attention was promptly administered and shortly after midnight Dr. Edwards was moved to Ottawa Civic Hospital. His condition is reported to have considerably improved. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative Leader, was among the first of the members of the Opposition to enquire as to Dr. Edwards' condition.

JURY NAMES BABY'S MOTHER

Inquest is Held in Roseneath Into Body of Baby Found in Well.

WRITTEN STATEMENT.

(By Staff Reporter.)

ROSENEATH, Ont., April 15.—To determine the identity of the baby's body which was discovered in the well on the property of James A. Brown, Alnwick Township farmer, required little more than an hour yesterday afternoon. The inquest was conducted by Dr. Ferris, Coroner of Cobourg, with W. F. Kerr, K. C., the County Crown Attorney, questioning the witnesses. The court was well filled, but with men forming the larger part of the spectators. A few women were seated here and there, and not a few Indians from Alderville Reserve were noticeable in the rows of spectators. When the evidence of the witnesses had been taken the jury retired, and in less than ten minutes returned with their verdict.

The Verdict.

"We find that the body is that of a still born baby, born to Bernice Brown, township of Alnwick, in the City of Toronto, on or about December 13, 1928." This brief verdict was signed by Alex. Shearer, foreman, and the other members of the Jury: William Arnold, Lewis Nixon, Archie Muncey, Harold Blodgett, Joseph Down and John Murphy.

Bernice Brown did not give evidence; she remained outside in the family car during the entire hearing. Her written statement acknowledging the child to be her own was submitted by Inspector Ward of Toronto.

Provincial Officer Storey, of Cobourg, was the first to give evidence. He said he had been present when the jury had viewed the body found on the premises of James Brown near an old well used as a drinking water supply for cattle. The body was wrapped in a copy of the Toronto Telegram, and in what appeared to be an old coat.

James A. Brown, father of the girl, said that he had cleaned the well some time during the month of February and had removed several sticks of wood, which seemed to be interfering with the action of the pump. He saw no parcel, but learned of its discovery from his hired man during the month of March.

Trouble Pumping Water.

Lebon Kirkorian, 16, a Roumanian youth of small stature, and dark complexion, took his oath and answered the questions of the Crown in broken English. He said he was the hired man at the Brown farm and that he had been there for about seven months. He had had trouble pumping water for the cattle, and his employer had cleaned out the well. He found the parcel but thought it was a piece of ice, since it was covered with ice. It was thrown aside with the debris taken from the

SEWERS HAVE BEEN SEARCHED FOR GIRL'S BODY

Rumor Gains Currency in Montreal That Parents Have Heard From Girl.

EMPHATICALLY DENIED.

City Workmen Open All Sewers Without Securing Shred of Evidence.

MONTREAL, April 16.—(Special to The Examiner). — Barbara Pitcher's disappearance is still an unsolved mystery. On the chance that the latest theory in the case, namely, that the girl had inadvertantly stumbled into an open man-hole, might possibly lead to something more definite than the thousands of false clues received from Peterborough and elsewhere, that have been followed up without result, the police during the past week have had the sewers in the vicinity of McGill University searched from man-holes to outlets, without discovering a shred of evidence to help them in their search. In any case, declares W. Bracken, city roads superintendent, after consulting his books and sheets, none of the sewer covers on Sherbrooke street, which faces McGill University, were open on the day Miss Pitcher disappeared from sight.

Despite repeated denials from the parents of the missing co-ed, a rumor which gained currency last week still persists, to the effect that Mr. and Mrs. Pitcher and some officials are in receipt of information as to what actually happened to the girl and as to her present whereabouts. Several members of the Montreal Press Club also claim to have the information which is said to be withheld from the public for reasons known only to those most concerned. Whether true or not, the fact remains that activity in the search has considerably slackened.

CASE DISMISSED AGAINST LEGION HEAD IN WINDSOR

Magistrate Finds Man May Supply Liquor To Guests in Hotel Room.

JUDGE CASE ON MERITS.

Declares Does Not Follow That Liquor May Be Served At Banquets.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 16.—(Canadian Press).—A charge against Harry J. Bohne, commander of Border Cities post, American Legion, of having liquor in a place other than a private dwelling, was dismissed yesterday by Magistrate D. M. Brodie.

The case arose out of a raid carried out on the night of April 6 by Provincial Police of an American Legion dinner being held in the private parlors of the Prince Edward Hotel. A quantity of beer was seized in jugs.

In the judgment of Magistrate D. M. Brodie, a person registered in a room or suite of rooms in a hotel, with baggage, who intends to occupy that room and purchases liquor legally on his permit, may within the precincts of that room supply liquor to guests without breaking the Ontario Liquor Control Act.

Declaring he did not want it to go abroad that he had decreed that liquor could be served at banquets in hotel rooms, Magistrate Brodie said every case of this nature must stand on its own legs.

"I say this to disabuse the minds of those who may be going to stage banquets and serve liquor and who think they may go forth and sell tickets for such functon and be within the law just because they are holding them in a hotel room," he said. "That is against the law."

Falls Worth Seeing.

The Indian River falls near Warminster factory is a sight well worth seeing, even though not as high as usual. In summer when the river is normal, there is no sign of a falls, and one can almost cross using the rocks as stepping stones. In the spring it is generally a roaring torrent, which may be heard two miles or more away. This spring water has been coming down gradually and for some time, so that there is not now the vast quantity of water rushing down at once, as there usually is.

Roads Improving.

Those who travel the Dummer road daily, report it to be in much better condition. The road is not in good condition yet, however, and within the last few days a few more places have become soft.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, April 16.—The trading in cattle at the opening yesterday was slow, with 600 more heads offered than last week. There were 4,753 heads offered for trading.

The bidding on steers and heafers was reported lower, but early sales for choice cattle were steady at 9½ to 10¼ cents. Cows were selling at 2½ and 2 1-8 cents per lb., but medium cows were slow and a shade easier. Butcher bulls were steady at 7½ to 8 cents, bologna at 6½ to 7 cents. Baby beeves were a shade stronger, the choice ones selling at 11 to 12 cents per lb. One lot of good feeders went at 9½ cents.

The demand for store cattle, however, showed improvement. Stockers sold at 7½ to 8¼ cents per lb. Milkers and springers were down with very little outside buyers offering. Plain cows were not wanted. The calf supply was considerably heavier than a week ago. The best veal sold at 14½ and 15 cents, and common as low as 7 cents.

Yearling lambs were scarce, but steady. The best sold at 14 cents. Spring lambs sold at $10 to $16 each. Lambs under 50 lbs. were not wanted. Sheep were steady, the best selling at 9 cents.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, April 16.—Wheat had a range of 1 cent on yesterday's market, and final quotations were 1-8c to ¼c lower for the day. Trading was not heavy, and mostly local in character. Cash wheat trading was slow, with prices on grades Nos. 4, 5 and 6, ¼c to ½c lower.

Oats advanced fractionally when a good quantity of the high grades was bought for export. Trading in barley was of good volume, but very little interest was shown in rye and flax.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 16.—Grain price upturns based on farm legislation prospects amounted to 1⅝c a bushel in many cases yesterday, but increased selling led afterward to setbacks. Uncertainty among traders was apparent regarding the market effect of several clauses of the farm bill introduced in the House yesterday at Washington, especially the clauses which referred to minimizing of speculation and made mention of insurance against price declines.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled the same as Saturday's finish up to ⅝c higher. Corn finished ⅝c to ⅝c up, oats at ¼c to 1⅛c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10c.

Highest prices of the day in the wheat market were reached soon after the opening. Purchases of future deliveries atttained considerable volume at this stage, and a good share of the buying orders which sent values upward were ascribed to foreign sources. This circumstance attracted special notice on account of the fact that Liverpool quotations were lower than had been looked for. The advances were scored, too, in the face of reports of beneficial rains in Canada and in domestic wheat territory southwest.

Selling on the "Bulge"

Selling of wheat future deliveries broadened out, however, on the bulge in price. During the dips which ensued, numerous transactions were made at well below Saturday's finish. Detailed examination of the text of the House Committee farm bill had meanwhile been made, and misgivings been aroused over the advisability of various features. As a result, much less unanimity was in evidence that the proposed legislation should be regarded as an immediate bullish factor. Furthermore, export demand yesterday for wheat from North America was slack, and a decrease of 869,000 bushels in the United States visible supply was smaller than had been noted a year ago. Under such circumstances, trade sentiment at the last was more bearish than of late, and the day's net gains were only fractional.

Corn Undertone is Firm

With corn-laden vessels already outbound from Chicago, and with stocks of corn here expected to show a big reduction in next week's statement, the corn market yesterday had a firm undertone.

Besides, Washington estimates were current that the Argentine corn crop promises a yield of but 190,000,000 to 235,000,000 bushels, compared with 306,000,000 bushels last year. Scarcity of cash oats was a strengthening influence in the oats market.

Provisions were slightly firmer on account of commission house buying, with the East taking September lard.

Entertaining Program Provided By Members of Bailieboro Church Society.

TAKE PARTS WELL.

BAILIEBORO, April 16 (Examiner Correspondence).—The Young People's League of the Bailieboro United Church presented the play, "Assisted by Sadie," on Friday evening.

The play, a comedy of mysteries, in four acts, was splendidly given, every member of the cast taking his part to perfection.

The receipts amounted to seventy dollars.

The entertainment between acts was exceedingly good. It consisted of piano solos by Mrs. Harold Dawson, and vocal solos by Eldridge White and Marine Fisher. Although only five years old, Marine delighted the audience with remarkable singing ability. Lorona Hanbridge gave two huorous recitations.

Rev. E. F. Swayne acted as chairman introducing the play and cast.

The cast of characters was: Alonzo Dow, the mystery, Fred Barnard; Michael Cameron, the detective, Archie Deyell; Colonel Jenniver, the hotel manager, Meredith Perrin; Reginald Mill, the millionaire, Joseph Barnard; Doctor Beedle, the professor, Harold Dawson; Bunch, the bellboy, Melville Johnston; Sadie Brady, the stenographer, Mae Earl; Mrs. C. Christopher Carley, the dowager, Mrs. H. Dawson; Harriet Carley, the stepdaughter, Lillian Ball; Senora Gonzales, the adventuress, Lorna McColl; Vicky Vaughan, the debutante, Esthem Lang; Mrs. Quinn, the maid, Mrs. N. Thompson.

The young people intend to repeat the play in the near future.

WEDDING SHOWER.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Hutt Honored By Friends At Social Gathering.

LAKEFIELD, April 16.—(Examiner Correspondence).—On Wednesday evening a shower was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Riel in Douro for Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Hutt formerly Miss Mary Riel. The bride received many handsome gifts for her new home including a beautiful china tea set from the staff of the Lakefield post office, for which the bride's father is courier of rural route number four. The remainder of the evening was spent in games and dancing, excellent music for the latter being provided by T. Sullivan, D. Millar and Cyril Lee. Old and young had a delightful time and dancing continued till the wee sma' hours. The bride and groom were the recipients, not only of a large number of gifts, but an equally large number of good wishes for many years of happy married life.

The regular meeting of the Junior Institute was held on Wednesday afternoon, when J. B. Nelson, the agricultural representative in Peterborough County, addressed the girls on the value of the value of the coaching classes and the judging contests which aim at even a higher standard still and each year sees great strides made along these lines. It is education which follows a practical and useful line, is interesting and elevating to those who take advantage of the opportunities provided by the department.

There is to be a girls' conference held in Guelph early in May, when special attention will be given to the problems and aims of the Junior Institutes and Mr. Nelson urged the girls to send delegates. Miss Edna Frankish and Mabel Mullen were appointed to go to Guelph as delegates from the Junior Institute.

AMBULANCE MEN MEET

Good response has been received to the circularization decided upon a week ago, and success promises to crown this volunteer effort for Old Home Week. Qualified men interested are invited to attend to-night's meeting.

MR. MILLER'S VISIT.

The visit next week of the well-known John C. Miller, of Orillia, who was the man behind the guns in Orillia's most successful old boys reunion, should supply the final momentum to Peterborough's Old Home Week celebration.

Mr. Miller is being brought down to discuss the various features of old home week demonstration, particularly the events that in Orillia proved the most interesting and the most successful, and his address will be a real inspiration to local workers and to the citizens generally.

The public is invited to hear the Orillian, who is an eloquent and lively speaker, saying worth-while things in a worth-while manner.

There should be a capacity audience for this address, which will enlighten the citizens of Peterborough on many important points in connection with Old Home Week, and put them in possession of information that will be valuable when the great week arrives.

Any one who is inclined to be the least bit pessimistic in regard to old boys' reunions in general and the Peterborough celebration in particular would be well advised to hear John C. Miller, who is optimism personified.

RE-PUBLISHED ARTICLES.

The fact that objection is raised by a local citizen to statements made in an editorial from an Ottawa paper re-published in The Examiner serves as an opportunity to set forth what we thought was generally understood, i. e., that The Examiner does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed in re-published articles.

It has been our policy for many years to print a number of editorials each day from Canadian and American papers to which our readers have not ready access, believing that the views of other journals are of value and interest to the district served by The Examiner.

For the opinions given in such articles we accept no responsibility; sometimes we see eye to eye with what is said therein; often, on the other hand, we quote views with which we do not agree.

We endeavor to select what is interesting and instructive, feeling that our readers should have an opportunity to learn what outside papers have to say on important issues, but beyond that we are not concerned with their contents.

The explanation is made not only for the benefit of the citizen who finds fault with this particular article, but of Examiner readers generally.

CANADIAN WAR STORIES.

In another article on this page to-day The Examiner urges support for a movement aimed at promoting world peace.

To welcome at the same time the advent of a new Canadian magazine that is to set forth stories of Canada's participation in the World War may at first blush seem inconsistent—but is not necessarily so.

There is no reason why the valor of Canadians in the World War should be forgotten because there is a movement on foot to make war impossible.

And so Canadian War Stories, an all fiction magazine, edited by a Canadian war veteran, W. Clayton Lamarsh, a Chatham lawyer, should be enthusiastically received by the reading public in this country.

Mr. Lamarsh says that his chief reason for starting such a publication is the fact that Canada is so flooded with American publications full of the exploits of Uncle Sam's soldiers that there is grave danger that some people here may think the whole war centred around Chateau Thierry.

Canadian War Stories will serve as an antidote to this condition, and if the splendid standard reached in the first volume is maintained the publication should have an extensive sale in Canada.

The first instalment of stories is distinctly worth while.

PROMOTING WORLD PEACE.

To-day is League of Nations Day throughout this country, and in all parts of Canada a special drive is being conducted with a view to increasing the membership of the League of Nations Society in Canada.

Reasons why Canadians should ally themselves with such an organization are not hard to find.

They should join the League of Nations Society because it, in its efforts to promote international peace and understanding, can keep its members informed and up to date in League of Nations affairs.

Because the League of Nations, if it is to succeed in preventing another war, must have the support of public opinion, which the League of Nations Society in Canada is striving to gain.

Because the League of Nations is working to prevent war.

Because the League of Nations Society in Canada needs every man and woman, old and young, to swell the volume of the society, and by this means secure the Government's support so that it may be strong to avoid the dangers that still threaten the world.

Peterborough membership in the organization is nothing like it should be, but it is hoped that the present campaign will do much to enlist interest in a movement that should have general backing.

If this and every other Canadian community were as unanimous in working for peace as they were enthusiastic in helping the Empire's war efforts, there would be a tremendous force of public opinion behind the League of Nations in this country, a development devoutly to be wished.

PLAYING WITH FIRE.

A wealthy New Yorker with an eighteen-year-old daughter has what he thinks a splendid scheme to keep her from the night club habit with all its attendant evils.

Having been in cabarets himself and seen all the awful "goings-on" which characterize the smarter type of New York joints, he hit upon the idea of establishing a cabaret of his own in the basement of his house, with his daughter as hostess.

And so he had one modelled on the correct lines that appeal to the night-hawks of Broadway, even with a bar, he acting as bartender in a smart uniform, with real Scotch whiskey and other drinks which he doles out as he deems discreet.

Daughter invites her own friends, the dance music comes over the radio or per gramophone when static is too bad, and those who have been privileged to go there say it is just about the swellest affair in town.

Dad's idea is that daughter, having her own night club at home, will never be sucked into the vortex of night club life outside where there is synthetic hooch and synthetic gentlemen.

Well, perhaps he's right, according to his views on the correct entertainment for the ultra-modern miss, but it is more likely he is wasting his money and playing with fire at the same time.

A daughter who is brought up the right way will not get the cabaret craze, no matter how many of them there are in the city. A daughter who is introduced to cabaret life at home is just as likely to tire of that toy as she did of her other toys when younger.

A daughter who has an imitation cabaret at home will most likely be found in the real thing ere long.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

A FRIEND AND ADVISER OF CHINA.

China, like Mexico, is a land which enjoys little political repose. A year which does not witness a revolution of some sort within its boundaries is counted by its military chiefs as a year without a history. No sooner is one uprising suppressed than it is followed by another. We read from time to time of movements led by generals with unpronounceable names; of attacks and counter-attacks in territory, which nobody takes the trouble to define; of battles that never seem to end decisively; of executions that dispose in wholesale fashion of rebel leaders, whose places are immediately taken by others, and of the danger that periodically threatens foreign settlements and missionary outposts. And, noting the headings in the press relating to the latest ferment in China, a somewhat blase world keeps on wondering what all the trouble is about.

When, after the North and South war, a National government was established at Nanking, it seemed as if at last a new era had dawned with a promise of peace and stability. The leaders of the new government were represented as men, not only pledged to reform, but possessing the capacity and power to carry out a program of reconstruction and development that would ensure for the republic tranquillity and progress. Recent despatches from Nanking indicate, however, that the forces of anarchy have still to be reckoned with, and that the task of conciliation and readjustment undertaken by the National executive will not be free from difficulty.

What lends interest to a situation, which, to an outsider, suggests little more than a case of Chinese history repeating itself, is the introduction of an element altogether new in Oriental administration. The fact that "East is East, and West is West" has nowhere found clearer demonstration than in the land of Confucius. Receptive though it has proved to western ideas with respect to some things, notably education and industry, the Chinese mind has remained resolutely closed against European constitutional concepts and political influences.

But the advent of a government with democratic sympathies and a desire to establish and maintain responsible rule has brought about a change of outlook. To its leaders has come the realization that in the science of government there are more things to be learned than are dreamt of in Chinese political philosophy. And so they have broken with the tradition of their race to the extent of inviting a Britisher to assist them in the work of administration, a step which, more than anything else connected with their assumption of power, would seem to indicate a genuine resolve to bring order and progress out of chaos.

It may be that in some quarters the policy of the National Government, in turning to Britain for political guidance, will not be favorably interpreted. With so many foreign interests concerned in the solution of China's problems it is perhaps too much to expect general approval of what might be regarded as a concession to one particular sphere of influence. But whatever criticism may be evoked by the appointment of a British subject as political adviser of the National Government, there can be no question as to the judgment shown in the selection of the man to fill the position.

Sir Frederick Whyte is numbered among Britain's most distinguished public servants. Those who met him, or heard him speak, in Ottawa, when he visited the Capital a year or two ago, will remember the impression he created by his grasp of Imperial problems, and particularly of those affecting the colored races. A Scot, a son of the manse, and the inheritor of an honored name in the Presbyterian Church, Sir Frederick, after a brilliant career as a student at Edinburgh University, entered the political arena and gave promise of attainment to a position of eminence in the Liberal party.

But he is of the type of British publicist that believes that he best serves the state who serves it far afield. India gave him his opportunity. As President for five years of the Indian Legislative Assembly he displayed qualities of statesmanship and an insight and understanding of native questions which raised him high in the estimation of the government and people alike. Since then he has made a special study of the political and economic problems of China, and has established himself as an authority whose advice and assistance the National Government has been pleased to solicit and to accept with gratitude. Nor is the honor rendered less remarkable by the fact that, Scot though he is, Sir Frederick is giving his services as political guide, philosopher and friend to the Chinese republic without fee or reward.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

What are you doing to make Old Home Week in Peterborough a success?

The contention of the Boston police that they don't know how to handle jaywalkers is explained perhaps by a lack of ambulances.

Mr. Justice Wright's action would seem to be undermining the jury system—a very dangerous development in the opinion of most laymen, if not of most jurists.

The big leagues get under way to-day, and our friends over the border will now have something besides the Volstead Act to talk about.

This bulletin from the Ontario Safety League must have been issued especially for Peterborough; "Pedestrians, you are not privileged to cross against the red 'stop' signal and impede the progress of automotive vehicles. For safety, cross with the green 'go' signal."

A Thought

THE DAY IS OURS.

This day is ours, the yesterdays
Are gone with all their good and ill;
No need their failures or delays
Should handicap or vex us still.
No need or use to brood or fret
Or in repining waste our powers.
Life still has duties to be met;
Press on, press on, this day is ours.

This day is ours, its message plain,
The thing we do to-day endures;
This day alone holds loss or gain,
To-morrow is not mine or yours
Not ours to choose the tasks that pay,
Not ours to bask in summer bowers,
Ours to be armoured for the fray,
To win or lose, this day is ours.

This day is ours for noble deeds
For strenuous toil, for conquests won,
For larger love and broader creeds
And stronger hearts at set of sun.
The time and place are now and here,
Unscaled the height above us towers;
And if our goal be far or near,
Press on, press on, this day is ours.

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 17, 1929

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

Benefic and adverse aspects contend today, according to astrology, which finds the planetary government rather uncertain. The morning may be most unfavorable for women who easily lose poise while this rule prevails.

Small worries may loom large while this configuration continues, and for this reason it is important not to indulge in useless reflections.

The temper should be safeguarded today, for men as well as women may be easily provoked. Husbands may be especially trying, especially regarding financial matters.

Under this sway intellectual work of every sort should benefit. Creative writers should be decidedly stimulated, the seers declare.

Literature is to receive a decided impetus toward higher standards of work, it is foretold, and the year will stand out for at least one noteworthy achievement.

Farmers today may be more or less concerned because of bad weather and consequent threatened losses.

The direction of the stars is not favorable to workers who are likely to voice discontent and even to start strikes. Household employees may be especially difficult to deal with at this time.

Neptune is in an aspect supposed to presage extraordinary conditions affecting the production and sale of oil and other fuels.

Under this sway many absurd rumors and unfounded reports may be circulated regarding persons conspicuous in the world of commerce and finance.

There is a sign read as indicating confusion and cross purposes in many diplomatic relations affecting business as well as the government.

One American ambassador is to gain great fame within the year by his wise official service, it is foretold.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have a year of much change and excitement. Business should be carefully watched. There is good luck foreseen from journeys and change.

Children born on this day probably will have much personal magnetism and charm. The subjects of this sign often are imitative and many actors are indebted to its good influences. Financiers as well as artists belong to the Aries-Tauru cusp.

J. Pierpont Morgan was born on this date, 1837. William Gilmore Simms, 1806, author also claimed this as his birthday.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE REMEMBER TO FORGET

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.
(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

Without memory there would be no mind. Our whole mental life depends upon remembering. If in learning to take one step we should forget it before we could take another, the second step would be no easier than the first.

Thinking consists in perceiving the relation between ideas; but if we were unable to remember the ideas, we could not perceive the relation between them. Thinking would be impossible.

On the other hand, a certain amount of forgetting is as important as remembering. If we were unable to drop out of sight (to forget) the events that have occurred between this moment and yesterday, it would take as long for us to recall an event of yesterday as it has taken for all the intervening events to happen.

To think at all we need sufficient memory to be able to hold the pertinent ideas long enough to draw an inference. This is the part that remembering plays. Forgetting is also important in that it eliminates the unnecessary details or the related materials that would clutter up the machine and gum up the works.

Poor thinking is due to getting these two processes mixed up, by forgetting what you should remember and remembering what you should forget. The able thinker and the effective reasoner is one who has the knack of using his memory and forgetting appropriately and in due balance.

It is a good thing to remember to forget the right sort of things. If you emphasize everything you emphasize nothing. You cannot have mountains without plains or valleys without mountains. If all the dry land on the earth were mountain you would have no mountain, but an elevated plain.

Thus mountains and valleys are relative terms and imply each other. Similarly, you need both remembering and forgetting to do any effective thinking, and the effectiveness of your thinking will depend on the balance you strike between the two.

Why do you do what you do? Ask Dr. Thomson. Write him care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

Ana looked out of the window, but the sun and the tears blinded her eyes and she could see nothing.

The little cottage seemed so empty without her.

"And now what do we do?" Mollie asked peevishly when they got home.

"I'll just put the car away, and then we might go for a walk," Anthony said.

"A walk! No, thank you. I've walked enough for one day. You go if you like."

So Anthony went alone. He said he should go down to the beach to look for the General, but when he got there he wandered off in the opposite direction instead.

Ana had gone.

She would never walk with him through the sunshine again—never tease him and laugh at what she called his "childish ways"—he felt as if someone had drawn a curtain over the face of the sun.

Ana had pretended that soon they would both be able to laugh at their foolishness; their "midsummer madness" as she had called it, but she had known better even as he knew better.

This thing was too deep for forgetfulness; its roots had grown in both their hearts long before they had realized it.

He walked a long way, until the sunset colours had all faded and the air had grown chilly, then he turned and went back up the hill.

He tried to believe that when he got to the cottage he would find Ana there; he tried to believe that it was all nonsense that she had gone away; like a child he kept up the game of pretence till he was right at the gate, then he gave it up.

What was the use of cheating himself? She had gone.

He had lifted the little latch when someone touched his arm.

"Sir!" and he looked down into the face of one of the small village boys. "A letter for you, sir."

"Thanks." Anthony took it absently, and felt in his pocket for a coin. Something in the boy's eyes reminded him vaguely of the General. He went into the cottage. Supper was ready but the sitting room was empty. It was getting dark very apidly. Anthony went over to the window for more light and broke open the envelope. There was only half a sheet of notepaper inside—rather rough, common paper. The few lines it contained were written in pencil in a not very cultured hand.

Are you blind, or don't you care about what is happening between your wife and the man who comes to your house as a friend?

Anthony blinked his eyes and stared. "Are you blind, or don't you care?" Was it a joke, or had the letter reached him by mistake? He looked at the envelope, but there was no name on it—it was just blank.

'Are you blind?"

Then suddenly he understood.

This was that abominable thing, an anonymous letter; an abominable insinuation about his wife and——

"The man who comes to your house as a friend."

Only one man ever came to the cottage, and that man was not his friend, it was Ralph Mahon.

CHAPTER XV.

It was raining hard when Ana reached London. As she drove away from Waterloo the streets looked an unbroken weariness.

"Why did I come back?" she asked herself wildly. "I was a fool. Why couldn't I take the only chance of happiness which has come my way?"

It was late when she reached home. Something had happened on the Inner Circle and all the trains were disorganized.

Miss Sawyer greeted her ungraciously.

"This is not very convenient hour at which to arrive," she began, even before she kissed her niece. "You know I like going to bed early. It's eleven o'clock now."

"There was a breakdown somewhere," Ana explained. She was tired and heartsick. The little suburban house looked neater and less homelike than ever.

"I suppose you have had supper," Miss Sawyer said, and Ana answered untruthfully that she had. There was a little break in her voice and her aunt looked at her with sudden suspicion.

"I can't say you look any the better for your holiday," she said tartly. "I suppose Mollie is as selfish as ever, and has made you do all the work while she gads about."

"I have had a wonderful time," Ana said. "I am sorry I kept you up, but I couldn't help it."

What a welcome!

She went up to her own room and shut the door. Then she groped through the darkness and lit the gas jet. Miss Sawyer would not have electric light installed in the house because she was afraid Ana and the little maid would be careless and leave it on. Gas was cheaper and more trouble to light, therefore less likely to be wasted.

Outside in the darkness the rain lashed the windows and the casements rattled in the wind.

Ana unpacked her suitcase and looked at herself in the glass. She wondered what Anthony was doing, and if he was thinking of her.

"If only Mollie would be nicer to him," she thought. But she knew that Mollie was only nice to anybody when she wanted her own way or when it suited her. Mollie was thoroughly spoiled.

Ana undressed and crept into bed. It was a more comfortable bed than she had had at the cottage, but she could not sleep. She shut her eyes and tried to pretend it was the sound of the sea she could hear instead of the rain. When she heard her aunt come upstairs she tried to pretend it was Anthony's heavy step; she tried to lull herself to sleep with the pretence that in the morning she would be awakened by his tap on her door and his cheery voice demanding if she was coming down to bathe.

But in the morning it was still raining hard and the bacon was terribly salt at breakfast time, and Miss Sawyer was more acid than usual.

"I can't say you have improved your appearance," she began. "Oh, yes, you're sunburned, I admit, but your skin is ruined. I am sure Mollie does not allow her skin to get such a colour."

"No, she does not," Ana agreed, and laughed. Mollie had a horror of sunburn.

"And how long are the Hambledons to be in England?" Miss Sawyer inquired.

"I don't know. There is nothing settled."

"And what sort of a man is the husband? You never mentioned him in your letters."

"Didn't I? He's nice. I like him."

"And now, I suppose, having made a convenience of you, you will hear no more of them?" Miss Sawyer pursued.

Ana coloured.

"Yes, I shall. Mollie is going to let me know when she comes to London so that we can meet."

To change the conversation she told of her meeting with Drake and of their accident.

Miss Sawyer found fresh cause for complaint in this.

"I do not approve of that young man as a friend for you," she said. "His sister is not a nice woman at all. If I remember correctly she is divorced."

"I believe she is, but surely that is better than living with a man who makes your life intolerable?"

"A bargain is a bargain," Miss Sawyer averred. "What does the marriage service say—'Those whom God has joined together let no man put asunder'."

"God doesn't join all the people who get married," Ana said bluntly. "I am sure God must entirely disapprove of some marriages."

Miss Sawyer gasped. "Really, Diana——"

"It's all such humbug," Ana said fiercely. "Isn't it much more honest to recognize a mistake than to try and cover it up? If you've finished breakfast I'll go and help with the work."

Anything was preferable to conversation with Aunt Hilda. Ana kept busy all the morning, trying not to think. But every moment her thoughts were down by the sea; every moment she was saying to herself: "Now he is doing this—now he is doing that. Oh, God, if I were only with him."

She wrote to Mollie in the afternoon, thanking her for her visit, and telling her what wretched weather it was in London. Then she wrote to Drake in hospital. She had promised him to write every other day; she had promised to see him in London as soon as he was able to travel. The days dragged by. A post card came from Mollie saying how much she missed her; saying how dull Lyme was. "A is like a bear with a sore head," she added in a postscript.

Ana smiled and sighed together. Poor Anthony!

The first week seemed like a year.

"If I don't get something to do I shall go mad," Ana told herself hopelessly. One could not keep on dusting and polishing all day long. There was nobody in the house to disturb its order.

"If you want occupation, take up parish work," Miss Sawyer advised. "Visit the sick and teach in the Sunday School like Miss Lee does."

Ana thought of Miss Lee and shuddered.

"I'd rather die," she thought. "Once I let myself get into that groove I shall never get out of it. I shall turn into a real old maid, dusty and dry and critical."

Then a letter came from Drake.

He was so much better they were allowing him to be moved to London in an ambulance.

"My sister has come back from France," he wrote, "and I shall stay with her in Chelsea. You will come and see us, won't you?"

Ana had already heard from Miss Sawyer that Drake's sister had given up her home at Wimbledon.

"A good thing for Wimbledon," Miss Sawyer declared. "I am sure she is far better suited to Chelsea. Isn't that where artists and all the peculiar people live?"

Ana sincerely hoped that it was. She felt that she would rather spend the rest of her life among thieves and vagabonds than among her aunt's friends.

Drake wrote again in a few days later.

"I am coming up on Thursday Hambledon called to see me yesterday. He's a decent sort of fellow, isn't he?".

Foolish tears welled into Ana's eyes at the mention of Anthony's name. Someone else had seen him, although she might not; she felt bitterly envious of Drake.

"Come over to my sister's place to tea on Sunday if you have no other engagement," he went on in his letter. "She will be delighted to see you, and I want you to be friends."

"No other engagement," Ana thought drily. Did she ever have any engagements at all except down at the Parish Hall?

She told her aunt of the invitation and Miss Sawyer instantly froze.

"Sunday! When there are six other days in the week to go out to tea with people?".

"I have been asked for Sunday," Ana said firmly.

"And you will of course refuse," Miss Sawyer answered.

"No, I shall go." Ana read battle in her aunt's eyes. "I am not a child and I shall go," she said again. "I am sorry if you disapprove."

"I disapprove utterly and entirely," Aunt Hilda stormed, angry red spots appearing on either of her cheek bones. "And as you are living in my house I shall expect you to conform to my wishes."

Ana seized desperately upon the opportunity.

"I have been thinking that perhaps it would be better for me to live somewhere else now," she said. "I have a little money of my own, and if I get some work to do——"

"Work!"

"People with far less education than I have get quite good jobs," Ana broke in. "Anyway, I am tired of being treated as a child."

Miss Sawyer resorted to tears.

"And all his because for your own sake I ask you not to break the Sabbath," she wailed. "It is cruel ingratitude!"

She watched her niece from behind her perfectly dry handkerchief, and saw the new resolution in Ana's pale face.

As far as the girl herself went Miss Sawyer would gladly have parted with her, but Ana's money paid for a maid, and a maid had distinct advantages.

"It is most unkind of you, Ana," she reproached her niece more gently. "I am lonely enough, goodness knows; but if you leave me——"

"I am quite willing to stay if you will allow me more freedom."

"I am powerless to chain you against your will," Miss Sawyer said dramatically.

Ana smiled. "Very well," he said quietly. "Then I will go to tea with Mrs. Ingis on Sunday."

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S ALARM CLOCK

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

"Look here, my dear!" Uncle Wiggily's wife called to him one morning as he was hopping out of the hollow stump bungalow to go fishing. "You simply will have to do something about it!"

"About what, my love?" asked the rabbit gentleman. "Do you mean my pink nose? Why, I can't help it because it twinkles."

"Oh, I'm not talking about your nose!" laughed Mrs. Longears. "I am speaking of the alarm clock. Something is wrong with it."

"Won't it wash its hands or face?" asked Uncle Wiggil in a low voice. "Surely that is very wrong! But perhaps if you speak kindly——"

"Nonsense!" interrupted the rabbit lady. "You know the alarm clock doesn't need to wash its hands or face. I am speaking of its bell. It rings at the wrong time. More than once Nurse Jane or I have thought the alarm clock bell, jingling at the wrong time, was the front door bell. And when we go there——"

"The cupboard is bare!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily, speaking like Old Mother Hubbard.

"Oh, will you be sensible!" cried

"Ah, ha! I have caught you at last!"

Mrs. Longears. 'What I mean is that the alarm clock bell rings when it ought not to. Instead of going off early in the morning to awaken Nurse Jane so she will get your breakfast, the clock goes off at 10, or maybe 12. And, as I said, half the time it sounds like the doorbell. You should take the alarm clock to the shoemaker's and have it fixed."

"Very well, my dear, I will—tomorrow—after I come back from looking for adventures," promised the rabbit and away he hopped out of his bungalow, over the fields and through the woods.

Uncle Wiggily had a nice adventure of finding a new dandelion plant growing beside a brook and he took it up and carried it home and put it in the tin can that Taddy, the little baby frog, once swam in. I mean Uncle Wiggily took up the dandelion flower, not the brook.

"Oh, thank you, so much!" said Mrs. Longears when her husband hopped home with the dandelion. "It is lovely! But I wish you could get the old alarm clock fixed. It rang again and we thought it was the doorbell."

"I'll get it fixed tomorrow," promised the rabbit gentleman.

That night, very late, there was the sudden ringing of a bell in the hollow stump bungalow. Uncle Wiggily awakened.

"I wonder who is at the door this late?" he said as he slid down the banister railing.

"It's the alarm clock, very likely," said Mrs. Longears. And so it was. The bell kept on jingling until Uncle Wiggily shook the clock and that stopped it for a time. He went back to bed but, about an hour later, the bell rang again.

"Dear me!" said Mr. Longears. "I wish I had taken the clock to be fixed yesterday. I'll do it the first thing in the morning."

"I hope so," murmured his wife.

So early next morning Uncle Wiggily put the alarm clock in his coat pocket and ran to catch a trolley car to ride to the drug store where he could have the funny ringing stopped. He sat in the trolley to read his morning paper and, all of a sudden, there was a loud jingling.

It was the alarm clock, going off in Uncle Wiggily's pocket. So all the other animal passengers—a rooster gentleman, and a dog gentleman and a pig lady—looked at Mr. Longears and laughed. Uncle Wiggily got off the car as soon as he could for the alarm clock kept ringing all the while and he started to walk to the baker's where he was going to get it fixed.

But, as often as your tooth will stop aching as soon as you get to the dentist's, so the alarm clock stopped ringing as soon as Uncle Wiggily got off the car. He was hopping through the woods, taking a short cut to the butcher store where he thought he could get the clock fixed, when, all of a sudden, out of the bushes jumped the Fuzzy Fox.

"Ah ha! I have caught you at last!" howled the fox and, grabbing the poor rabbit gentleman around the neck the Bad Chap began to drag him off to a den in the woods.

"Oh, stop! Let me go! Please let me go!" begged the bunny.

"No! I'm going to have you in for lunch!" barked the Fuzzy Fox.

Poor Uncle Wiggily didn't know what to do. He was wishing the Police Dog would come along, and the fox was dragging the bunny over the rough place when, all of a sudden, there was the loud ringing of a bell.

"What's that?" howled the fox.

"Fire! Fire! Fire" cried Uncle Wiggily as the bell rang louder and louder.

"Oh, maybe my den is on fire!" howled the fox. "I'd better run and put it out. I'll catch you another time!" And, dropping the rabbit, away ran the Bad Chap. Then Uncle Wiggily laughed, took the alarm clock out of his pocket and said:

"Thank you, Mr. Clock! You ran just in time. But I'll soon have you fixed." So he did and after that the clock only rang when it should.

ROAD CONDITIONS

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear sir:

Regarding a former item in The Examiner with reference to the claim that the graders had so much to do with keeping the roads in good condition this spring. I have a different opinion on this question, and if they did away with so much grading and put on more gravel, the grading would be alright. But as it is, they have nothing to work on, and it seems foolishness to grade without putting on first a good bedding of gravel. If this was tried out, I am sure we would have much better roads, which we are in need of greatly.

HEAVY DECLINE CANADIAN OIL

Irregularity in Price List Characterizes Morning Session At Toronto.

TRADING DECREASE.

TORONTO, Ont., April 16 (Canadian Press).—A sharp decline in Canadian Oil, a heavy decrease in trading and irregularity in general prices, which at times extended throughout the entire list, characterized the morning's trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. The list was very narrow, a number of the well-known issues failing to appear at all. Canadian Oil, after opening at a low of 65, recovered to 67¾, where it still showed a net loss of 5¾ points. British American re-acted to 50 7-8, off 1-8, while Imperial was fractionally higher at 117¼. Royalite was up 2 at 157, while Home lost 75 to 22.25, and International Petroleum ½ to 55¾.

International Nickel was very inactive, holding fractionally stronger at 47¼. Bell Telephone came out 2 points higher at 162, while Standard Steel advanced 2½ to 41½ and De Forest was up 2 at 57.

Chicago Grain List Receives Setback

CHICAGO, Ills., April 16.—(C.P.)—General selling and dearth of buying brought about a sharp early break in grain prices to-day. Talk that farm legislation uncertainties would lead to prolonged argument and that the bill was not up to trade expectations, was an outstanding bearish factor. Opening 3-8 to 1 3-8 off, wheat later showed a break of more than 3 cents from yesterday's finish. Corn, oats and provisions were also weak, with corn starting 1-4 and 3-8 off to 1-8 up and subsequently undergoing a general drop.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, April 16. (C.P.) — Foreign exchange steady; demand rates in cents: Great Britain 484 15-16; Canadian dollars at 13-16 of one per cent. discount.

WATCH TURNER VALLEY

More than score of high class wells drilling Turner Valley, with half dozen at a position in limestone formation that they may develop as producers any minute.

LOWERY PETROLEUM

Lowery Petroleum will be listed Montreal Curb today; 475,000 no par value common shares.

ILLINOIS-ALBERTA

Cementing the bottom of No. 2 well at Illinois-Alberta to cut off gas flow has been partly successful. The cement has now been drilled through and when the remainder of the gas is controlled the well will be deepened.

OKALTA NO. 3

A bad hole around 2,500 feet seriously interfered with further drilling on Okalta No. 3. The well was filled up for 300 feet with concrete and it is now proposed to proceed with drilling.

OKALTA SHARE SPLIT

Calgary press reports say that Dominion Legislature has granted Okalta permission to split its $100 shares ten for one. This will be done as soon as possible. The trouble seems to be that Okalta preferred was issued with a guarantee of a return of $100 before any profits were distributed among common shareholders.

CALMONT

Calmont Oil is awaiting delivery of a large rotary drilling outfit to handle its No. 2 well and expects to be drilling by the end of the month. The ground has been prepared and a derrick is being erected on the property adjoining Home Oils on the west and south in Southern Turner Valley.

LINDSLEY GROUP LEADS TRADING

General Softer Trend Evidenced On Standard Mining Exchange.

QUIET SESSION.

TORONTO, April 16. — (C.P.) — A generally softer trend was evidenced on the local mining market to-day, with practically all the well-known leaders being forced down for light losses. Trading was again very quiet with the bulk of the local sales being centred on the Lindsley group and the oil issues. Noranda continued to lose ground selling off 75 to 51.00, while Pend Oreille broke to 6.75 for a loss of 50c.

Sherritt-Gordon was ten cents easier at 8.15, and Sudbury held at 8.90, unchanged. Falconbridge was off 5 at 11.05, while Ventures dipped 20 to 10.05. Arno Weakened to 20 and then recovered to 27, off 3.

MEETING APPROVES OF COMPANY PLAN

HOBOKEN, N.J. April 16—James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel corporation, addressing the annual meeting of stockholders here yesterday, told them $1,500,000,000 of business would be handled by the corporation this year. Sales last year were $1,374,443,433. Mr. Farrell's remarks followed the stockholders' approval of an increase in common stock to 12,500,000 shares from 7,533,210 shares of which 7,116,235 shares are now outstanding.

Although the thousand shareholders present unanimously voted for the capital increase —thereby insuring the sale of new stock, proceeds of which will be used to retire about 271,385,000 bonds— they heard no official intimation as to the terms on which the additional stock is to be issued. Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the finance committee, merely told stockholders that the directors at their meeting to-morrow afternoon would discuss further details of the plan for redeeming the corporation's funded debt with the money obtained from the stock subscriptions.

The financial district keeping one eye on the news tickers and the other on the stock tape, passed around a few figures in the absence of official information. The street guessed that new shares would be offered at $110 each on the basis of two new shares for each seven now held.

Earlier estimates had put the new stock offering at $150 a share, in the ratio of one new for each six shares held. The stock tape neither approved nor disapproved of these guesses. About 80,000 shares of U.S. Steel common changed hands to-day at a range from 187 to 189½, finishing with a net loss for the day of 1½ points.

Sun Life Reports Increase In Earnings

March figures also record an advance. March business in the States showed a 90 per cent. increase over March of 1928, and up to date the 1929 returns register a 100 per cent. increase for the three months.

CALL MONEY FIRM.

NEW YORK, April 16.—(C.P.) — The market behaved in better fashion in the late forenoon after absorbing liberal offerings of the Coppers and other stocks of wide public interest. Extensive accumulation of American Can, which rose 12 points, induced tracers to pick up other shares at lower levels and at mid-day many of the 1 to 2 point declines had been recovered. International Harvester was up 2 and Case Threshing Machine recovered half of a 10 point drop. Call money renewed at 8 per cent.

the hospital. It was decided, in view of the satisfactory service which they have given, to grant a bonus of $50.00 each annually to be forwarded in half-yearly payments.

Tenders having been called, the Board approved Chairman Turner's action in awarding the contract to Stewart Finnie for painting, replastering and other renovations to be made at the Queen Mary Hospital, while Dr. Young, who, at a previous meeting, had been instructed to investigate the expense of a sterilizing apparatus for the hospital, reported that he had had the matter in mind and had already secured the prices of one firm which could supply the desired equipment.

Hospital's Monthly Report.

One of the most encouraging reports that has been submitted on matters around the Queen Mary Hospital in several months, was that received from the matron, Miss Price, regarding the month of March. That there had been considerable activity during that period was indicated by the fact that on March 1, four cases of measles and one of diphtheria were confined to that institution, while during the month three cases of measles, one of whooping cough, one for mastoid operation, two for double mastoid operations, one for suspected mastoid and one which required an appendicitis operation were admitted, making a total of fourteen, all of which were discharged by the end of the month. Accounts for the hospital showed a collection of $200.21.

products of that industry. It is not as if we were setting up a new basis of protective duties. We did that seven years ago. What we need to remedy now is whatever substantial loss of employment may have results from shifts since that time.

"No discrimination against any foreign industry is involved in equalizing the difference in costs of production at home and abroad and thus taking from foreign producers the advantages they derive from paying lower wages to labor. Indeed, such equalization is not only a measure of social justice at home, but by the lift it gives to our standards of living we increase the demand for those goods from abroad that we do not ourselves produce. In a large sense we have learned that the cheapening of the toiler decreases rather than promotes permanent prosperity because it reduces the consuming power of the people.

"In determining changes in our tariff we must not fail to take into account the broad interests of the country as a whole, and such interests include our trade relations with other countries."

BEAUTIES OF CANADIAN ROCKIES DESCRIBED TO CANADIAN CLUB

Dan McGowan Shows On the Screen Many of Beauties of the Great West.

INDIAN LIFE SHOW.

Speaker Reveals the Dry Sentiment and Sentimental Pathos of True Scotsman.

The eyes and the ears of the two hundred or more people who listened to Dan McCowan of Banff, Alberta, yesterday afternoon, in the auditorium of the Public Library, were transported many hundreds of miles away to scenes and things unfamiliar to Eastern dwellers. They saw the nest of the Golden Eagle of the Rockies, high up in rocky pockets of almost inaccessible crags. They saw the big-horned sheep and the cougar, or mountain lion, and they watched the light of evening gather around the peaks that tower over Lake O'Hara, that green jewel of the Western mountain fastnesses.

Dan McCowan is a Scotchman who has lived for a quarter of a century in the Canadian West, but he brought the dry humour and the sentimental pathos of the true Scotsman along with him, when he lectured on "A Naturalist in the Canadian Rockies," at the free meeting, open to the public, held yesterday afternoon in the Public Library auditorium under the auspices of the Women's Canadian Club. The lecture was offered through the courtesy of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, the local agent, James Skinner, accompanying the speaker. Mr. McCowan illustrated his talk with many slides which were beautifully colored. These are the work of his wife, who uses transparent water colors, and the glowing tints made the pictures exceptionally beautiful.

The colorful flowers of the West were first shown. Mr. McCowan confined his attention to the scenery of the Bow River Valley and its environs, finding there so much of the natural beauty of the Canadian West that his audience often gasped in admiration at the majesty of the snow-clad peaks.

Animal Life Pictured.

The animal life of the region was pictured also, in glimpses which told a story of courage and hardihood in the snapping of such "camera shots." There were big-horned sheep, their companions, the White Rocky Mountain goats, "quaint creatures with not a relative in the world and they look like it"; porcupines, "whistling and whining their way through the woods," and the bushy-tailed woodrats, which Mr. McCowan described as the only animals in the world with a hobby. Collecting small household objects, such as knives, or plates or forks, is the hobby of this little animal. "But the woodrat is not a thief. He always returns something, in the way of a piece of rock or a bit of timber. They call him a pack rat because he is always carrying something, and again they name him a trade rat because he always brings something in place of what he takes."

The Rocky Mountain grizzly, a cougar or mountain lion, safe in the Banff Zoo, with the tiny, black-mountached, funny kittens of the lion family, were other interesting bits of Western animal life.

Mr. McCowan showed view of the Bow Valley with the Cascade Mountain in the rear and the Banff Springs Hotel in the foreground. "Banff" he said, "has a winter population of 2,500 and a summer population of about 15,000 people. Its chief exports are Christmas trees and its chief imports are honeymoon couples."

Beauty Spots

Here was the famous Simpson Pass, named after a former Governor of the Hudson Bay Company, with its towers and bastions and battlements, Marble Canyon with its white rock, Sinclair Canyon, its walls tinged with red from the iron in their composition, Mount Temple 11,600 feet high, Paradise Valley and the Giant's Step Waterfall, the valley of the ten peaks which are each 10,000 high, Lake Moraine and the beautiful Lake O'Hara in a region where the whitetailed ptarmigan fly above moors rich with heather. Mount Cathedral was shown, towering high above the valley below, and Lake McArthur, that tiny cameo of beauty among the upper hills, which the speaker said always made him think of the Taj Mahal at Agra and the 23rd Psalm.

FOUR TEAMS IN LEAGUE

Pre-Season Business Matters Discussed at Executivte Meeting of E. P. L.

NEW SCORE BOARD.

A meeting of the East Peterborough Baseball league executive was held last evening for the purpose of deciding several main points preparatory to the main business meetings which will follow in the near future.

Contrary to report that an additional team would be taken into the city section of the league this year it was decided at the executive meeting to maintain the old limit of four teams, namely, Bethany, Raybestos, Cognawagas and the Crescents. It was also decided to erect a new back-stop and a new score-board at Exhibition park and these improvements will be in place by the opening of the season date of which has not yet been decided. At an early date, attention will be given to the County section of the league.

ONTARIO

Loads Must Be Cut in Half During April

Truck Owners and Drivers Must Obey the Law or Suffer Severe Penalties

The Ontario Highway Traffic Act is designed to protect the roads, both paved and unpaved, during the early spring months. Those who use trucks should be familiar with the law during periods when moisture makes road foundations less secure, and when surfaces may be easily ruined by excessive loadings or high speeds.

Summary of the Law

The Highway Traffic Act declares that during March and April, on roads outside cities and towns:

Solid tired trucks and trailers shall be limited to half a load;

Pneumatic tired trucks and trailers, with a carrying capacity exceeding three tons, shall be limited to half a load;

Horse drawn vehicles with a carrying capacity exceeding one ton shall be limited to half a load.

Speed limits all the year round are: 15 miles an hour for solid tired vehicles and 20 miles an hour for pneumatic tired vehicles of more than 6 tons gross.

Officers on the Lookout

The penalty for overloading during March and April is a fine, imprisonment or both. Licenses also may be suspended. Highway traffic officers have been directed to be especially vigilant in apprehending all who disobey.

The Department of Highways desires to impress upon truck and team owners and drivers the provisions of the law. It seeks their co-operation in seeing that the law is obeyed in all circumstances. Ontario's investment in good roads, now amounting to many millions of dollars, must be protected.

Ontario Department of Highways

When Pain Comes

Two hours after eating

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of this harmless, tastless alkali in water will neutralize instantly many times as much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—and drug store.

Queen Elizabeth witnessing an experiment in chemistry by her physician, William Gilbert

The GROWTH OF A SCIENTIFIC IDEAL

SIMPLE as were the experiments by which William Gilbert, the Queen's physician, astounded the court of Elizabeth, they earned for him a knighthood and interested the sovereign in the scientific experiments of her learned men.

To-day, the kings of industry are vitally interested in the discoveries of the chemical engineer, for chemistry is the foundation of modern manufacture.

Nowhere is the commercial scientist of greater value than in Canada, where vast potential wealth awaits its fullest development.

Canadian Industries Limited brings to this field not only the services of its own chemical engineers, but those of two of the greatest chemical organizations in the world—Imperial Chemical Industries Limited, of Great Britain, and E. I. duPont de Nemours & Company Inc., of the United States.

The C.I.L. oval on any product represents the utmost in reliability and is a guarantee of the best Canadian workmanship based upon the world's latest chemical engineering knowledge.

This is No. 4 of a series of illustrated talks on scientific research and modern industry.

GRANT DONATED TO SCHOOL FAIR

Warsaw Women's Institute Hears Interesting Address On Poultry.

MUCH BUSINESS DISCUSSED.

WARSAW, April 15 (Examiner (Correspondence). — Mrs. J. A. Crowe gave a very interesting paper on Poultry at the meeting of the Women's Institute held on Thursday afternoon.

Several matters of business were brought up, most of them being left over from last meeting. After some discussion it was decided to donate $10.00 to the School Fair. The summer series meeting provisional list is at hand and Warsaw's date is June 6. The president of the W.M.S. decided it would be easier for the W. M.S. to change its date than the Institute to ask the Department to change the date.

Mrs. Weller reported the cost of painting the Warsaw signs, and it was decided that the committee get the lowest cost of making and painting the signs and if they could be made and painted for a certain set sum, to have them done as soon as possible, otherwise report at the next meeting. Mrs. Henry Clements gave the report of the result of the inquiries regarding property which could be rented or bought, and which would be suitable for all purposes. The room at present occupied is nice in every way, but too small for classes, demonstrations, and for storing needed supplies. Several places were examined, but there was but one which the committee thought at all desirable. John Rose kindly offered to give a piece of land, but it was decided not to attempt to build. John Crowe is willing for the Institute to rent the present room at the present rate until such time as it finds permanent quarters.

Mrs. Crowe, in her address, gave a short history of the domestic hen in general and a good deal on the present day care of fowl. Some of her main points were that a uniform flock can be much more profitably fed than one of mixed types of birds Uniformity is necessary for the successful marketing of poultry products. Uniform stock will do no better than mongrel stock if not intelligently cared for and skilfully fed, with proper attention to the raising of the young.

There are four essentials to the poultry house—dryness, good ventilation, sunlight, and plenty of room. Agricultural experts say that a 1,000 pound cow breathes 2,800 cubic feet of air in 24 hours, a 1,000 pound horse breathes 3,400 cubic feet, and 1,000 pounds of hens require 8,200 cubic feet of air in 24 hours.

The louse and the mite are two troublesome parasites. In any case, a hen house should be sprayed twice a year and a good supply of road dust or coal ashes always kept in the hen house. Mites live in crevices and bother the hens only for food. To get rid of them, spray well with coal oil and kill all the mites, but it does not kill the eggs. Another spraying is necessary from four to twelve days according to the temperature. Hens require concentrated food made up chiefly of grain and grain by-products. They also require a rather large amount of protein.

In summer they get this in the grubs and other live food. In winter it must be supplied in meat scrap or milk. Oyster shell will supply the needed ash. Charcoal should be kept on hand to regulate the digestive process. Food grinding is done in the gizzard by means of pebbles, but hens do better if part of this grinding is done for them and a dry or wet mash may be fed.

In summer, if hens are allowed to run at large, they eat a lot of tender green grass, and in winter this may be supplied in the form of cabbage or sprouted oats. Steamed alfalfa or clover is also good.

A typical ration for laying hens is 3 parts wheat, 2 parts cracked corn, and 1 part oats. This should be fed with a dry mash—60 pounds of corn meal, 60 pounds of shorts, 50 pounds of meat scrap, 30 pounds of wheat bran, 10 pounds of alfalfa meal, and 10 pounds of linseed oil meal. In the morning a light feed of whole and cracked grain should be scattered over litter of straw. At noon the mash hoppers should be opened and left so during the afternoon, and a light feed of grain in the evening Fresh water should be placed before the fowl morning and evening. Grain feed may be given at noon. The skilful feeder keeps the appetite stimulated and the birds thrifty and hustling by never feeding quite as much as they would like to eat, yet always sending them to roost with full crops

Eggs for hatching should be put under the hen or into the incubator as soon as possible after they are laid. If necessary to keep, put in a cool, dry place, and turn every day. Male birds should be removed after hatching eggs have been secured.

During the first two days, young chicks require no food. Then feed at least five times daily a ration of hard-boiled eggs pulverized, shell and all, thoroughly mixed with about six times the bulk of oatmeal, adding one teaspoon cod liver oil for every fifty chicks.

Beginning about the sixth day they may be given a grain mixture of cracked wheat, corn, peas, fine grit, and charcoal. As soon as they can eat whole wheat and cracked corn, they should have it. As soon as they can run at large they may be fed entirely from the hopper

DATE SET FOR W.M.S. SUNDAY

Routine Business Discussed At Meeting of Millbrook United Church Society.

DISTRICT NEWS.

MILLBROOK, April 16 (Examiner Correspondence).—The April meeting of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of the United Church, was held at the home of Mrs. E. L. Burnham, Main street, on Wednesday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, the president, Mrs. W. W. Jones, taking the chair for the business period.

After the opening worship period the president announced that Sunday, April 14, would be the special W.M.S. Sunday, with Mrs. Carscallen, wife of the President of the Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby, as the speaker for the morning service. Mrs. Carscallen has spent several years as a missionary in China, she and her husband being obliged to leave their field on account of the uprising in that empire.

The treasurer, Miss M. E. Hetherington, reported twenty-three members having paid their fees so far this years; practically all of them paying the one dollar instead of the fifty cents, which is the annual fee since the United Church came into being; the extra fifty cents is counted as a donation. At present there is a little more than sixty dollars in the bank, and this amount will undoubtedly be materially increased.

A special conference for Mission Band workers is to be held in Trinity Hall, Cobourg, on April 26, Mrs. Jones announced, the Presbyterial secretary, Mrs. F. D. McKee, of Baltimore, who is the head of the Mission and Baby Bands, having given notice of this gathering. Mrs. C A. Chant, of the Dominion Board, will be leader for the day, and in response to the urgent request that local workers be represented, on motion it was decided to appoint the two superintendents of the Sunshine Mission Band, Mrs. M. McDowell and Mrs. V. C. Lambert, as delegates, the Auxiliary to be responsible for their expenses.

Miss Estelle Hetherington, superintendent of the Department of Christian Stewardship, took charge of the formal program, Mrs. David Lunn reading the leaflet, "Money Talks, founded on Ephesians 4:28, "He should work with his hands, so that he may have something of which he can give the needy a share" (Weymouth's translation), and also on Matthew 6:20, "Lay up for yourselves treasure in heaven."

A solo, "He Remembers You," by Mrs. H. W. Johnston, was very much enjoyed, and the theme of "Stewardship" was continued with a reading. "Mrs. Cantafford's Mite-Box," by Mrs. J. Albert Brown, and address by the leader, featuring especially the responsibility of their home in connection with this important, and practical, topic.

The Easter responsive service was used for the devotional period, and on two clauses of the concluding prayer, "Give us grace to arise with Thee, and to follow Thee whithersoever Thou goest." Miss Hetherington based her very instructive remarks.

Mrs. W. West, and her group, will be responsible for the May meeting.

The executive assisted the hostess in serving lunch during the social hour at the close of Wednesday's meeting, and the usual votes of thanks were passed before the gathering dispersed.

C.G.I.T. Group Meets

The weekly meeting of the Wide Awakes C.G.I.T. group was held on Thursday evening, at the leader's home.

The chair was taken by the president, Miss Wilma Fallis, and the discussion of business items included the sending of a box of fruit, etc., to two of the members who are ill, as a tangible token for the sympathy extended by the follow-members of the group.

The matter of appointing delegates to a provincial, or county C.G.I.T. camp this summer, or as an alternative, the taking of a cottage for the whole group and having a local camp, was left for later decision.

Jessie McPherson, expressing her pleasure in the report sent in covering the activities of the past six months, preceded the reading, in turn, of "Cooking, as a Hobby," from the new Girls' Own Book.

After the ritual for the opening of the devotional period, a responsive service was used, and a number led in prayer. The scripture lesson was from Number 9: 15-23, and the president read Miss Havergal's poem, "The Unfailing One."

The leader's talk was on "Guidance," based on Psalm 23:2, "He Leadeth Me," emphasizing the fact that "Guidance is by steps; Guidance is by stops as well as steps; Guidance is cumulative; Beware of short cuts in guidance; Guidance is not wholly by flesh and blood; and Guidance is sure if we wait, and watch, and pray."

During the social hour at the close there was a drawing contest which created much merriment, and candy and cake served.

The special collection for the National Girls' Work Board is not yet complete, as the group wishes to equal its contribution of six dollars last year, and through illness some members have not yet sent in their offering for this purpose.

JUGOSLAVIA FEARS MILITARY UPRISING

King Alexander Retires 36 Army Officers of High Rank.

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, April 15. (Canadian Press). — Fear of an eventual military uprising in Jugoslavia growing out of retirement by King Alexander of 36 army officers was expressed in some circles here.

The officers retired included General P. Pesitch, Chief of the General Staff and the highest military officer of the kingdom, three army corps commanders, and 33 other officers. It was given as a reason that they had reached the age of retirement but others saw in the move evidence of the King's intention to rid his government of elements dissenting with his dictatorship.

Burnbrae

BURNBRAE, April 15.—(Examiner Correspondence.)— Following the agricultural short course in Campbellford last February, a junior farmers' organization was started and on Wednesday evening the first meeting was held in Ferris Hall, Campbellford. The following resolutions wer approved by the meeting: "That the organization be known as the Trent Valley District Junior Farmers; that the membership include all junior farmers in the township and the annual fee be 25 cents; that, as it was deemed inadvisable to hold meetings during the summer, the next regular meeting be held on Wednesday, October 2, at 8 p.m., at which meeting the annual dues will be collected and plans laid for the judging competition for the Royal Fair team; that John W. Rannie be appointed as captain of the softball team to compete for the right to represent Northumberland at the annual Central Ontario Junior Farmers' picnic at Presqu'ile; that in an endeavor to make the fall and winter meetings as interesting as possible the executives arrange for special speakers, social evenings and debates, etc., when the members of the Junior Institute can be invited to join in the proceedings."

Apsley

(Examiner Correspondence.)

APSLEY, April 16. — Apsley was fortunate in escaping the worst of the big storm on Friday night, the rainfall amounting to only .67 of an inch. The thermometer rose to 75 degrees on Saturday afternoon.

Roads in Bad Condition.

The best evidence of the frightful condition of the roads is the fact that Geohge Stephens was unable to make Apsley on Saturday, on his scheduled trip from Peterborough. After a gruelling journey the car finally succumbed in the mud about five miles south of Apsley. His passengers, the Misses Wagar, teachers at Chandos and Apsley found hospitality for the night at Mrs. John McColl's, and it was three o'clock on Sunday afternoon before they arrived with the car at Apsley. Brown's car, also carrying local teachers, did not start from Peterborough until Sunday, and it also shared the same fate on Sunday evening. Mr. Brown sent his team to the rescue and brought the teachers into Apsley about 11 a.m. His truck, with the mail, got through on Saturday after a hard struggle.

Became Seriously Ill.

Mrs. Frank Tanner was taken seriously ill on Tuesday morning and was removed to the Red Cross Hospital. It was found necessary to send for a doctor from Lakefield, and as the telephone line to Mount Julian is out of commission since the storm a week ago, it was necessary to send to Mount Julian to telephone to Lakefield. Dr. Smith with Mr. Webster set out but their car became mired about eight miles from Apsley, and they had to leave it and walk three miles to Mrs. Norman Wilson's. A car from Apsley brought them from there, and Dr. Smith arrived at the patient's bedside about 11 p.m. He returned to Lakefield Wednesday afternoon, leaving Mrs. Tanner progressing favorably.

The reeve of Chandos was taken violently ill on his return from the County Council session in Peterborough on Wednesday on his arrival at Apsley, but is recovering. Travelling the Burleigh Road in its present condition is a trying ordeal.

JURY NAMES BABY'S MOTHER

depths of the well. One Sunday afternoon during the month of March, he and a friend, Jack Webb, had gone to see what had been taken from the well. They discovered the object where it had been discarded, and when they found the nature of its contents reported their find to Mr. Brown. The body was left where they found it till the arrival of the two doctors, who took charge of it.

Jack Webb, aged 16, told the same story as Kirkorian.

Inspector Albert Ward, Toronto, stated that he had been sent to investigate the case. He had conferred with Officer Storey and then returned to Toronto to interview Bernice Brown. In answer to his questions she had given him a statement which names Jack Lillie as the father of the child. She says she had been keeping company with him for several months. She had confided her trouble to him as soon as she was sure that her condition was such. The baby was born in her room in her boarding-house on the evening of December 13, 1928. It was still-born. When she and her sister returned to their father's farm for the Christmas vacation, they took the baby with them and dropped it in the well where the cattle were watered. The statement said that no one but herself and her sister knew of the situation she was in. Valda Brown, sister of Bernice, and her room mate in the city was given the protection of the Court before she was asked to answer any questions. She said she was not aware of her sister's condition till the last moment. The child had been born in the evening, and she was certain that it had been born dead. During the time Bernice had been confined to her bed, she had looked after her. She knew that her sister had been going out with Jack Lillie, but thought the affair had ended some time before.

Kept in Box.

The baby, she said, was kept in a box in their room till it was time for them to come home for Christmas. Then it was placed in a suit case, later dropping it in the well. The arms and legs had been broken to make the parcel smaller.

Dr. W. W. Hershey, Roseneath physician, admits that he had performed the post-mortem examination at the request of Dr. Ferris, the coroner. His report was handed to the coroner, who read it to the Court. The child was described as male, with black hair. Its lungs were collapsed, the body was decomposed. Dr. Hershey says he believed the child was still-born. Dr. Ferris, who had been present at the examination, had agreed with him.

Jack Lillie, 17, of 21 Triller Avenue, Toronto, asked for the protection of the Court. His request was granted. He said he had been a student at the Central Technical School at the same time as Bernice Brown. He had met her about the middle of February last year. They had gone out together, and he had learned of her condition in June. At the time he had let the matter go, but in October he had given the girl the address of a doctor and told her that he would give her the proper attention. He had not seen her then for some time. He was married on January 28 of this year. He had had a letter from Bernice telling that she had gone through her confinement and asking him for thirty dollars to pay for some things which she claimed had been destroyed. He had paid no attention to the letter, and the day after he was married the girl 'phoned him and he had gone to see her. His parents had objected to girls calling him after he was married. He also claimed that Bernice told her mother of her condition.

This concluded the evidence to be taken as the jury filed out to arrive at their verdict, which formally identified the child and allowed the case to proceed. The next step will be the hearing before Magistrate Floyd in Cobourg on Saturday afternoon at half-past two. The case will be heard in camera. F. M. Field, K.C., Cobourg, will appear in the interests of the girl.

WEDDING BELLS

CLEMENT—HARDWICK

OMEMEE, April 16.— (Examiner Correspondence). — A very quiet wedding was solemnized on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock in St. Peter's rectory, Toronto, when Wilbert Clemett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Clemett was united in marriage to Lillian Hardwick, of Toronto. They were unattended. Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of Mrs. Sexsmith, 331 Sherbrooke street, Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Clemett have taken up residence on James Street, Cobourg.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOSEPH BRADLEY.

OMEMEE, April 16 (Examiner Correspondence).—Death has claimed another well-known and highly respected resident in the person of Mary A. Blocksom, beloved wife of Joseph Bradley, who departed this life on Monday, April 8, at her home on the farm, about one mile west of the village, at the age of 57 years.

Several months ago, the late Mrs. Bradley received a paralytic stroke, and it was of such a severe type that almost immediate death was expected. Her constitution, however, seemed strong, and she lingered until her reserve strength gave way and death finally relieved her of her sufferings. The late Mrs. Bradley was born in Cavan Township, the daughter of the late Richard and Sarah Bloxsom. Practically all of her married life she resided in the vicinity of Omemee, where she had a wide circle of friends.

Mrs. Bradley was a member and a regular worshipper of the Methodist Churrch, and later the United Church. She was a member of the Ladies' Aid and Women's Missionary Societies, and although the duties on the farm prevented her from attending the meetings, she was always willing and ready to give of her substance to help along the good cause.

A loving, devoted wife and mother, a kind, sympathetic neighbor has passed to her eternal reward.

The funeral took place from her late home on Wednesday afternoon, April 10, and was largely attended by many friends and neighbors, who were eager to pay their last tribute of respect to the deceased. The service was conducted by Rev. J. T. E. Blanchard, her pastor, and Rev. E. W. Rowland, of Stirling, a former pastor, who paid a glowing tribute to the life of the deceased.

The funeral cortege wended its way to Emily Cemetery, where the remains were tenderly laid to rest by four sons: Fred, Harry, Gordon and Orville, a son-in-law, Harold Graham, and a nephew, Harry Sanderson.

The floral tributes were beautiful and numerous, testifying to the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

The late Mrs. Bradley is survived by her husband, one daughter, Mrs. Harold Graham of Emily, four sons: Fred of Brighton, Dr. Harry of Wheatley, Orville of Detroit, Gordon at home; two sisters: Mrs. Joseph Sanderson of Emily and Mrs. Martin of British Columbia, and two brothers: Robert and George, in Manitoba.

Those from a distance who attended the funeral, besides the members of the family, were Robert Bradley and daughter, Mrs. Willison of Bothwell, Mr. Thomas Bradley of Millbrook, Mrs. John Spence of Millbrook, Mrs. Fred Bradley of Brighton and Harold Bradley of Lansdowne.

MRS. FREDERICK LANG

OMEMEE, April 1 .—(Examiner Correspondence).—The news of the sudden death of Mrs. Fred Lang in Cobourg on Saturday morning, April 13, came as a shock to the relatives and friends in Omemee. Mrs. Lang was being cared for in an institution in Cobourg, for over three years and a short time previous to her death contracted a cold which developed into pneumonia and she passed away following a brief illness.

The late Mrs. Lang, formerly Jennie Windrim, was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Windrim and was born in the township of Ops, near Salem. Since her marriage to Fred Lang she has been a resident of Emily and lived a short distance south of Omemee. Over three years ago, she had a severe illness and although all that medical skill could do and the care of kind loving friends it was of little avail, she never fully recovered.

The late Mrs. Lang was very highly respected and a good neighbor. She was a member of the former Methodist Church.

The funeral was held on Monday morning upon the arrival of the 9 o'clock C.N.R. train and was attended by many former friends and neighbors.

Interment was made in Emily cemetery. A short service was held in the new chapel, and was conducted by Rev. J. T. E. Blanchard, of Trinity United church. Messrs. William Rehill, A. Lang, R. Poast, T. Connell, J. Bushnell, and William Connell acted as pall-bearers.

The late Mrs. Lang is survived by her husband, two sisters, Mrs. John Connell of Lakefield, and Mrs. Brock, of Verulam, and one brother, George Windrim, of Lindsay. A step-daughter, Mrs. Walter Thompson, pre-deceased her about nine months ago and a sister, Mrs. Irwin, of Toronto, passed away quite recently.

George Windrim and daughter, of Lindsay, Mr. Martin, of Red Rock, and Mr. Sidney Connell, of Fairmount, attended the funeral.

MRS. TIMOTHY PIGGOTT.

DOWNEYVILLE, April 16—(Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral of the late Mrs. Timothy Piggott who died on Saturday evening after a long illness was held from her late residence on Monday morning to St. Luke's Church, where Requim High Mass was sung by Rev. Father Galvin, thence to St. Luke's Cemetery.

The late Mrs. Piggott, whose maiden name was Teresa Murphy, was in her 70th year. She was a daughter of the late James Murphy and was born and raised in Ops. The late Mrs. Piggott was of a kind and lovable disposition and was loved and esteemed by all who knew her, as was shown by the numerous floral and spiritual bouquets placed on the casket.

She was married to the late Timothy Piggott, who died seven years ago. She was a faithful member of St. Luke's Church, Downeyville, and belonged to the Catholic Women's League and the Altar Society.

Left to mourn her loss are one daughter, Mrs. Stanley O'Neil, and one son, James, both of Emily; five grandchildren, four brothers, Dennis, Daniel, Edward and Patrick Murphy, Ops. and four sisters, Mrs. Thomas Hickey, Mrs. James Byrne, the Misses Julia and Annie, also of Ops.

The pall-bearers were four brothers, Patrick, Dennis, Edward and Daniel Murphy, of Ops, T. J. Morrissey and Bernard Murray, of Emily.

TEX RICKARD

It is now some months since "Tex" Rickard, the famous fight promoter passed away, following an operation for appendicitis.

The late Dr. John B. Murphy, the famous surgeon, once made the statement that "In every death from appendicitis somebody is to blame."

Who is the somebody?

Rickard's illness came suddenly on New Year's Eve.

Physicians pronounced it appendicitis and stated that an immediate operation was necessary.

Rickard, however, determined to force himself to recover from what he believed to be an attack of "acute indigestion."

Five physicians the next day advised immediate operation, but Rickard laughingly told them that if the pain persisted another two hours he would undergo the operation.

At the end of that time, at the earnest pleading of his wife and the physicians, he consented to be rushed to the hospital.

Although the appendix was removed so much gangrenous infection developed that the amount of poisoning was more than could be combatted. As Dr. Jno. B. Deaver says "in acute appendicitis the ideal treatment is to take out the appendix before peritonitis (inflammation of surrounding tissue) takes place."

The danger in appendicitis is the danger of peritonitis, therefore if the appendix is taken out before this occurs, the risk of the operation is very small.

"Peritonitis renders the outcome uncertain and makes for trials and tribulations in the surgeon's life, and too often for the death of the patient."

You can see how the physicians and surgeons are handicapped when a strong vigorous man determines that he'll fight off the attack.

That it is possible to have an attack of appendicitis and recover without an operation is of course true. In fact it is possible, but not probable, that no further attacks will occur.

However, when there is an acute attack, the pain persists, and the symptoms grow progressively worse, immediate operation is indicated.

Remember, less than one in a hundred die when operation is performed the first day and the death rate increases with delay in operating.

No one likes the idea of undergoing an operation if it can possibly be avoided, but it is a dangerous thing to delay operation in appendicitis. If your physician and surgeon advise immediate operation, don't try to "fight it out." It is too dangerous.

IN WOMAN'S REALM.

By JEANETTE.

"There are two elements that go to the composition of friendship, each so sovereign that I can detect no superiority in either, no reason why either should be first named. One is Truth. A friend is a person with whom I can be sincere. Before him I can think aloud. . . The other element of friendship is Tenderness.

—EMERSON.

An event of this week that will probably be of much interest to women generally in the city is the presentation on Wednesday evening in the hall of the Collegiate Institute of the play entitled "The Bride Breezes In," by Trinity Dramatic Club, under the auspices of the Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham.

This society is the owner of a larger amount of real estate than any other women's society in the city, and it is doubtful if any of the men's organization can approach it in the way of such ownership. Some years ago, the Ashburnham Society purchased Armour's Hill and turned it into an East City Park. They also purchased a large number of trees which in due time will help to make it one of the city's beauty spots.

At present, they are interested in a project to have a road formed from Hunter street up over the hill. President J. J. Turner of the Kiwanis Club, speaking at the Saturday evening performance of the Kiwanis "Kapers", referred to this project as a very worthy one. It would enable citizens to make their way easily to the brow of the big hill and see what the city looks like from such an eminence. Very few of the people of Peterborough have looked at it from this vantage point.

The projected roadway has been planned for the member by Mr. Moore, expert landscape planner, of Toronto, and it is their wish, if possible, to have the road under way, at least, by Old Home Week. They are asking the public to patronize the production of their play on Wednesday evening, for this purpose.

* * *

The way in which the Jewish dwellers in Jerusalem allow their women folk to entertain themselves is to build a bay window out over the street, on an upper floor. Here the women sit and observe the passing show and make comments on it which are often audible to the wayfarers, although the ladies are screened from view by sliding shutter.

So the Rev. Mr. McLean, of St. Andrew's Church, told his audience last week when he spoke on Palestine under the auspices of the Women's Missionary Society.

Various little bits of interesting information trickled through the talk, which was illustrated by pictures. The Koran, it seems, the holy book of the Mohammedans, allows several deviations to be made from the truth. For instance, a man may tell a lie to his wife, without fear of the wrath to come, and he may also lie to an enemy or to save the life of a friend.

The manner in which a follower of the Prophet signifies his unmarried state, and says, figuratively, to fathers of pretty daughters: "Look me over," is to don a blue or red scarf, which is worn over his fez or arbouche. The father of a family wears a white scarf and the one who has made a pilgrimage to Mecca is permitted hereafter to wear a green scarf.

The most terrible insult that one Mohammedan can offer to another is to say: "Cursed be you mother!" The second most awful oath is "Cursed be your religion!"

To the door of the housewives of ancient Israel is laid the condition of modern Palestine. It seems that the women of olden times in that Biblical and did not bother about sweeping out the accumulated debris in their homes. They allowed it to rise higher and higher, and, when necessity arose, merely raised the roof. So that modern excavators are compelled to dig down as far as one hundred feet to find the streets where David walked.

"You find what you are looking for in the Holy Land, as elsewhere," said the Rev. Mr. McLean, quoting the case of the man who went to Palestine to look for different varieties of snakes. He found thirty-six types of these reptiles. Then he held an exhibition of them and invited his friends to attend. Lacking other utensils, he used his landlady's dinner-plates for the exhibits!

The Mirror of the Mode

By Mary Marshall

The ring shown on the hand is a sapphire in oblong shape with crystals at each side; below this a rose quartz set in silver with jade, onyx and diamonds; above at the left a large carnelian set in gold, and at the lower left hand a modernistic ring of gold.

Not without some difficulty have the older women of the day been taught that fashions in jewelry moved almost as rapidly as fashions in frocks and hats and that it was not really smart to wear the same collection of finger rings in season and out for twenty years and more. Really good rings, they felt, were like really good furniture—something you expected to use for a lifetime. And there was also the feeling with some of them that the safest place to keep a ring was on one's fingers. The idea of having precious gems reset every season or so or of wearing a really valuable ring only when it was particularly appropriate to the costume was not at all to their liking.

But the idea has at length been accepted and one sees far fewer women with fingers laden with rings whose sole recommendation is that they contain diamonds of the first water than was the case a few years ago. And while it is the fashion to wear a solid phalanx of bracelets several inches up the arm it certainly is not in keeping with present good taste to wear a miscellaneous collection of diamond rings at the same time.

Some very well-dressed women wear no rings whatever save wedding or engagement rings and the number of married women who are willing to leave off their engagement diamonds for sportswear is increasing. A ring to be really becoming and to flatter the hand has to be rather large—and to be smart it has to be rather striking. Pretty little rings look well on very few hands.

OLD SONGS

WAIT TILL THE SUN SHINES, NELLIE

(Contributed by "Marion's Mother.")

On a holiday morn sat a maid forlorn,
With her sweetheart by her side,
Through the window pane she looked at the rain.
"We must stay at home," she cried;
There's a picnic too, at the Old Point View!
It's a shame it rained to-day."
Then her lover drew near, kissed away each tear,
And she heard him softly say:

Chorus:

"Wait till the sun shines, Nellie,
When the clouds go drifting by;
We will be happy, Nellie,
Don't you sigh!
Down love's lane we'll wander
Sweetheart you and I,
Wait till the sun shines, Nellie,
By and by!"

"How I long," she sighed, "for a pleasant ride,
Just to show my nice new gown!"
Then she gazed on high with a gladsome cry,
For the sun came shining down;
And she looked so sweet on the big green seat
As the car sped on its way,
And she whispered low, "Now, it's all right, Joe,
You have won my heart to-day."

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion:—

It is a long time since I have written to your page but nevertheless I have not forgotten you or the neighbors. Your page is so wonderful, I never miss a word on it.

Well you see we all had the flu and colds and then I lost my dear father which I felt keenly. I have not felt much like writing but, however, no matter what our loss is it is the Lord's will and we just have to go on as before.

I am so glad Marion you got the old songs started. It brings back memories of bygone days, and those were the happiest of our lives. I wonder if anyone has the words of the following: Jim Blake, I am a poor old Tramp, Stay in your own backyard, The Red River Valley, and one containing the words:

"It was out of prison I got,
Half starved, I staggared home.
I scarcely reached the latch of the door,
When she met me with the broom,
And with her jest she blackened my eye."

These are some of my old favorite ones. I wonder if any of the neighbors would spare me some slips of house plants. I have not been able to get any since moving. You're a dear Marion, I know you will ask for me.

I like your talks on gardening. I am a lover of a good garden and lots of flowers. My garden was a mass of bloom last summer and I am living in hopes of having lots this summer.

Thanking you in advance, I will ring off for another time.

Alley."

I'm glad that you like our page, with the varied helps, "Alley". I'm going to start a special gardening series soon, outside the Whatnot. I notice many people are cleaning up the lawns and back gardens—which is the first step toward beauty. I DO wish every neighbor would join the circle and make Peterborough really beautiful.

I hope some neighbors answer your requests.

"Dear Marion:—

Will you please send me your pattern for child's rompers. I am enclosing coupon and two cent stamp. I am an interested reader of your page and wish for its continued success. I remain, gratefully yours in advance,

Mrs. H. N."

Thank you for your good wishes, "Mrs. H. N."

PARIS CHIC

A smart wearable type with perfect lines, becoming to the average figure. It's one-sided too! For today every truly smart woman appears at her best for general daytime occasions in a frock of sleek one-sidedness. Style No. 3383 will particularly appeal to the amateur at dressmaking, for it is simply a two-piece skirt attached to bodice in three sections, for the flattering jabot frill is part of right front. The separate shirred inset of skirt, which gives such graceful animation to hemline, is stiched in place following performations provided for same. All you have to do now is to set sleeves into armhole and bind neckline. But most interesting is the small amount of material it takes to make it. In the 36-inch size, 3 yards of 40-inch with 1½ yards of 3-inch ribbon is sufficient. Pattern is designed in sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. It is sketched in novelty silk crepe, with plain faille silk ribbon, which all the debutantes are now wearing beneath their fur wraps, in rather bright shades of Paquin red, almond green, purple and blue-violet.

It also makes up beautifully in lustrous crepe satin in black or cocoa brown, canton-faille crepe in light chocolate brown, navy blue wool crepe, bright red georgette crepe, Royal blue sheer velvet, printed sheer rayon velvet, black chiffon velvet and featherweight tweed, which is quite as thin as silk, in lovely beige and brown tones. Pattern price 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred). Our patterns are made by the leading Fashion Designers of New York City and are guaranteed to fit perfectly.

NEW FASHION BOOK containing all the Spring styles is 15 cents, but may be obtained for 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

A Large Order

By JOHN SMITH

Henry had brains, but he was a blunderbuss. He was a blunderbuss, but he had brains. Some people said it one way, some the other, and they were all right. His stenographer, Mary Crocker, didn't remark on it at all, but she believed in keeping her eye on him, and when his brains won him a promotion in the foundry, she kept to herself the suspicion that the blunderbuss part of him would sooner or later get him into trouble.

There were two factors hostile to his success. One was a natural antipathy to the efficiency methods of minutely subdivided bookkeeping and cost accounting as practised in the general office. The other was a rival in another department, one of the few other departments which had not yet been put under his charge so far as such matters as the routing of material was concerned. In this department, by the way, Mary's brother Jim also worked.

The rival's name was Peter Revere and he was unmitigatedly jealous of Henry's promotion, not taking into account the fact that Henry had brains, while Peter used his head chiefly as a place in which to stable a mean disposition.

The fifth person concerned in this little drama was familiarly known as the "boss." Spoken of, that was his title. Spoken to, he was Mr. Stockbridge. Stockbridge, Wallace M., in the telephone book. He owned the foundry, was inordinately fond of it and indefatigably interested in its least important activities. At times he was badly bitten by the efficiency bug, but so far the effects of such a bite had not been felt personally by Henry.

Recently, however, there had been a bit of trouble somewhere. A vast supply—enough to last for years—of European thread had been accumulating without rhyme or reason. Henry was frankly puzzled. While most of the routing of material was in his hands there was one department which he had not taken over, and he surmised that someone there was acting according to orders from higher up.

But there was another little rift in his lute which for the moment was causing a greater discord and drowning out other harsh sounds.

His stenographer had something else up her sleeve besides a plump well-rounded arm. Henry had caught glimpses of filing cards of a color and size which he knew had no meaning in his department. Caught studying them, Mary had flushed uncomfortably and thrust them out of sight in a pigeonhole in her desk. Now, what the deuce, ruminated Henry, was Mary up to?

Then everything happened at once. To begin with, it started on a back page of a popular magazine. W. M. Stockbridge, pursuing a story through the advertisements, happened instead on an efficiency blurb and took it all in, as he periodically did.

Next morning he set out on a tour of the foundry, resolved to find something which needed correction. Running into Peter Revere, he soon discovered quite as much as, if not more than, he had hoped for. In the course of conversation the fact leaked out that there were enough three-quarter-inch European threaded couplings to connect the desert of Sahara with the canals of Mars.

"Who ordered them?" demanded the boss.

Peter shrugged his shoulders and remained discreetly silent.

"Hm!" grunted Stockbridge, and strode into Henry's sanctum, where Henry was paternally watching the soft curve of Mary's cheek as she bent above his dictation.

"I'd like to know who is responsible for those ten tons of couplings," he bellowed at Henry. "Show me just how much you've ordered made up in the past year!" He threw a choleric glance at the filing cabinets.

Henry swallowed bravely, and looked hopefully at Mary. He didn't recall having gone on record for any particular order, come to think of it. Had just had it done, and that was the end of it.

But Mary turned obediently. Only strange to say, what she handed over to Henry was that bunch of cards he had once caught her examining. Surprised, he looked them through.

Then he cleared his throat. "Mr. Stockbridge, you probably won't be interested in what I've had made up," he said briskly. "But here's what's been sent in from another department and accounts for about nine tons."

He handed them over to the boss, who gave them a short scrutiny and then stalked out to blow up Peter Revere.

"How in time for the love of Mike did you collect all that data?" asked Henry curiously when he and Mary were alone.

"Oh, I had a bit of an idea that that Revere was trying to put something over on you," said Mary demurely. "My brother Jim's in his department and I got him to make copies of the orders. They were spread over some time and in small lots, but Revere probably knows how careless—that is, I mean how you don't keep records, and thought he saw a chance to get even with you for your promotion over him."

"I see. Thank you, Mary," said Henry soberly.

He took first one slender hand and then the other tenderly in his. "Mary," he said, "you are just the person I need to keep me out of trouble. How about undertaking the job for life?"

Mary threw him a roguish glance from beneath her curly lashes.

"Rather a large order, Henry," she said. "But—I'll try!"

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

Here is a quiet outdoor game that even adults like to play. The place for the game is an open field, a country roadside or a stretch of woodland. All the players are instructed to spend five or ten minutes gathering flowers, grasses or leaves—as many of each sort as they choose, any sort of bloom or foliage they can find. At a signal from the leader everyone stops gathering specimens and players seat themselves in a circle.

The leader, who has also gathered a bunch of "specimens," closes her eyes and picks out some leaf, grass or blossom from her collection, and at the same time names one of the group. Everyone in the circle then has to take from his collection all similar specimens and the one named takes them all and keeps them in his winning pile. The leader then closes her eyes and picks another specimen naming the next one in the circle and all similar specimens go to him. And so round the circle until the leader has selected all the different sorts of things in her pile. Then each player in turn puts out any one specimen he has that has not been put out by the leader and gets all like specimens. Players who have single specimens keep these for their winnings. The player who has the greatest number of flowers, leaves or grasses in his winning pile at the end wins the game.

Another interesting outdoor game that is enjoyed by nature lovers is played as follows. The leader—who should know a good deal about wild flowers and plants—gathers a number of blossoms and leaves—a violet, a maple leaf, a maiden-hair fern, the young shoot of a daisy plant, etc. These are placed in a row in some place where they may be examined freely. Each specimen has a number. Players then write the numbers on a piece of paper with the name of each specimen beside it. The one who identifies the greatest number of specimens wins the game.

WHEN TEA WAS SOLD FOR 20 SHILLINGS

In Eighteenth Century Tea Drinking Was Considered Fashionable.

Tea-drinking is now so universal a custom that it is hard to believe that at one time tea was an epicurean luxury, and sold at from ten to twenty-five shillings a pound. Nevertheless, as late as the mid-Victoria era a tea caddy filled with a pound of tea was a very handsome present. In the eighteenth century tea-drinking was considered a fashionable pastime, and Sydney Smith, in "Lady Holland's Memoirs" quotes her as saying:

"Thank God for tea! What would the world do without tea?—how did it exist? I am glad I was not born before tea."

It was the custom then to keep tea in handsome tea caddies. In a recent article in the "London Daily Express" sent to the Salada Tea Company, the following interesting account is given of the origin and importance of the tea caddy.

The old-fashioned tea caddy was invariably beautiful in its proportions and intimate in its associations. It is, moreover, a rare thing today to find two tea caddies alike. The prettiest and most charming were made between 1775 and 1801. At first they were made of mahogany or of satinwood, inlaid with other choice woods, and sometimes painted with flowers or scrolls. Later on they were made of lacquer, of tortoiseshell, of silver, or of ivory, sometimes inlaid with silver and gold and mother-of-pearl, and with borders of tortoiseshell—caddies fit for King Solomon had known the blessing of tea. Some of the finest cabinet-makers of the period, including Chippendale and Hepplewhite, exercised their talents to design tea caddies.

Besides these treasures, some were made of neatly-cut straw work, laid in geometrical patterns, over a wooden box, for such straw work was a hobby of the day. Some stand on little feet, some have a tiny handle on the lid, and all have dainty keyholes. Delicious little cabinets, indeed!

The word "caddy" comes from a Chinese word, "catty" meaning a parcel of tea weighing about one pound and a third, for so the Chinese merchants were accustomed to make up their tea.

The possessor of an old-fashioned caddy should treasure it and use it for its original purpose. The collecting of old tea caddies has become quite a hobby in the United States, Great Britain and Canada.

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

HAVE YOU in your possession a rather old piano, which you do not know how to make attractive again?

• • • • • • •

Perhaps you would scorn what I am going to say, but nevertheless it was done. Friends of this particular woman scorned her for it, but I think it was an excellent idea.

• • • • • • •

A rather battered piano and one whose tone was not perfect, was kept in the living-room of a certain home, where the piano was very, very seldom used.

• • • • • • •

This housewife was economical and she decided to "dress up" the old piano. She painted it, but not with the brown enamel finish as before, but instead she gave it a foundation coat of beige paint.

• • • • • • •

Then she used the same color paint with a glossy finish. By this time it looked much better than before, but her neighbors were shocked at the idea of painting the piano. Perhaps they thought the tone of the piano was impaired by this act.

• • • • • • •

By means of stencils, a number of fairy tale pictures were put on the front of the piano. There were Mother Goose pictures, pictures of Tom the Piper, and many others.

• • • • • • •

Of course there was a good reason for painting the piano in this way. It was taken from the living-room where it was seldom used and put in the children's play-room, where it was convenient for the children to practice on.

• • • • • • •

Had the piano not been painted and left in its original color, it would not have made a very attractive addition to the children's room, but after being painted, it added a great deal to the attractiveness of it.

• • • • • • •

When the practice hour came round, the pictures on the piano of musical creatures such as Tom the Piper and the musical cat that played the fiddle were inviting to the young players, and the pictures on the piano made the hour pass swiftly.

• • • • • • •

If you wish to make one of those durable pinafore aprons for yourself or little girl, do not forget to send for this week's help which gives instructions for making it.

• • • • • • •

Whether you do any housework or not, you need a few pretty aprons, and the one described in this week's help protects the frock both back and front. From the same pattern you can make a charming pinafore for the little girl.

• • • • • • •

Have you dosed your plants for spring yet? Every fern, palm and other green plant should have a teaspoonful of castor oil in spring.

• • • • • • •

It really is a good thing to give them this about once every three months. Pour it against the root and stir the earth around it. Try this and see if your plants derive any benefit from the oil.

• • • • • • •

Summertime is fast approaching, and it is at this time of the year that Peterborough housewives can do a great deal of work out of doors, in the fresh air.

• • • • • • •

No doubt many take advantage to go outdoors to do the work, where the air is invigorating, but there are some sorts of work that cannot be done outside.

• • • • • • •

If any of the readers have been in France, I am sure they have noticed the peasant women there working outside. It is done a great deal more frequently there than it is in Peterborough.

• • • • • • •

The peasant women do practically everything outside. Even vegetables are prepared for meals outside. It is a very common sight to see peasant women sitting on their doorsteps, shelling peas and peeling vegetables.

• • • • • • •

Of course Peterborough housewives would not be expected to go this far, although it certainly could be done on the back verandah, where there would be few onlookers.

• • • • • • •

It is very common, too, to see young mothers doing needlework in the parks, while their children play about the park. The parks in France are very, very beautiful, or at least they used to be before the war.

• • • • • • •

There were waterfalls and streams galore and in these streams were many goldfish. Just as many, in fact, as there are minnows in our streams. Then, too, there were large white swans. These were tame and real pets, for many people used to feed them.

• • • • • • •

So you see the French people would not mind doing work in such a lovely place as this. Women in France who do needlework for a living, sit in the open, enjoying the fresh air while their fingers fly back and forth.

• • • • • • •

These people do not seem to find it inconvenient, either. I think perhaps they arrange their work so that there is always something that may be done conveniently in the breeze.

• • • • • • •

I suppose the most convenient of all outdoor handwork would be knitting or crochetting, and now that fine lace is used so much, it would be a good plan to arrange to do some of this work outdoors this summer.

• • • • • • •

Doylies and runners finished with fine thread lace done with knitting needles are worth while. However, do not make the mistake which is often done, of attaching the lace to the cloth as you work.

• • • • • • •

No doubt this saves time in not having to sew the lace on later, but if you do the work in this way, there is certain to be pulling or bulging of some sort.

• • • • • • •

The better plan would be to do the knitting or crochetting outside under the trees or on the verandah, but sew the lace on indoors where it will not be blown by the wind.

HOME HELPS

MAPLE SYRUP.

The praises of this product of our beloved tree need not be sung. All who have tasted it know its incomparable flavor; those who haven't would not understand anyway. Enough has been said when we recall its delicious freshness—an intriguing something which seems to characterize all "first fruits of the season"—strawberries, new potatoes, harvest apples all have it. And it is real—not merely the result (more or less imaginary) of a whetted appetite and a long-drawn-out period of waiting.

Four teaspoonfuls of maple syrup provide one hundred calories—all carbohydrate calories. This raises the question: With what do we serve maple syrup? Bread—a carbohydrate food, plain cake or griddle cakes—carbohydrate again. For the seeker after well-balanced menus the inference is obvious: we must serve foods having a good protein and fat content at the same meal. There are some very well-balanced maple syrup dessert recipes in which the protein and fat are supplied by other ingredients. Here are a few:

Maple Charlotte.

One pound gelatine; ¾ c. cold water; ¼ c. maple syrup; ¾ c. milk; 1 c. cream, whipped.

1. Soften gelatine in cold water, dissolve with hot maple syrup.
2. Add milk, strain.
3. Chill, stirring occasionally.
4. When partly set, beat until foamy, then beat in a little of the whipped cream and fold in the remainder.
5. Turn into a mould or serving dish which has been lined with lady fingers or slices of sponge cake.

Maple Parfait.

One cup maple syrup; 4 egg yolks; 2 c. cream, whipped.

1. Heat syrup to boiling; add gradually to egg yolks, slightly beaten; cook over hot water as a soft custard.
2. Chill; fold in whipped cream.
4. Pour into mould, pack, let stand 4 to 6 hours.

A friend of mine who was science master and much-loved baseball coach in a collegiate institute whil awarding the medals for proficiency in sport at the commencement exercises, used to say a word of appreciation of the "also rans." Though they failed to carry off the honors, it was their spirit and sportsmanship that made the honors possible for others and often their effort was most praiseworthy. The analogy may seem far fetched, but not all of us may be able to procure genuine maple syrup. For those who are not, there is a recipe which may be of use. I don't like its name. It is a very good syrup for serving with griddle cakes, etc., but why call it Mock Maple? Usually mocks and imitations—whether in cooking, complexion or character—are things to be shunned; and this very good little syrup, it seems to me, would be more happily named Genuine Sugar Syrup than

Mock Maple Syrup.

One cup brown sugar; 1 c. boiling water; ½ c. white sugar; 1 tsp. butter; ½ tsp. vanilla.

1. Make syrup of brown sugar and water.
2. Caramelize white sugar.
3. Slowly add hot syrup to caramel.
4. Stir until smooth.
5. Remove from heat; add butter and flavoring.

BABY NOT GAINING? LOOK TO HIS DIGESTON

Babies can't gain when souring waste in a clogged digestive tract is forming gas, making them colicky, constipated and miserable. Just try the method doctors endorse, and millions of mothers know, and see how your baby improves. A few drops of purely-vegetable, harmless Fletcher's Castoria makes the most fretful, feverish baby or child comfortable in a jiffy. A few doses and he's digesting perfectly and gaining as he should. To get genuine Castoria, look for the Fletcher signature on the wrapper.

Miss P. B. Lamont Addresses Members of Ivanhoe Church Society.

IVANHOE, April 16.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Miss P. B. Lamont, Field Secretary of the W.M.S. of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, gave a very interesting address to members of W.M.S. of St. Andrew's Church, West Huntingdon, at the meeting held on Tuesday evening. The address was very much enjoyed and a vote of thanks was tendered Miss Lamont by Rev. A. N. Reid. A solo "That Sweet Story of Old" by Mrs. A. Fleming was much enjoyed.

During her stay in this community Miss Lamont was entertained at the home of Mrs. S. Donnan, president of the local W.M.S.

There are no bargains in health

To safeguard precious health and preserve your teeth, avail yourself of the best skill and knowledge of dental science. It is economy. It is the only reasonably sure means of preventing disease that attacks neglected gums, thus ravaging the system, robbing youth, and often causing loss of teeth. This disease is the more serious for only dental care can stem its advance once it is contracted.

See your dentist at least every six months.

Brush your teeth regularly. But don't forget that teeth are only as healthy as the gums. So brush gums vigorously, morning and night, with the dentifrice made for the purpose, Forhan's for the Gums. It helps to keep them firm and sound.

After you have used Forhan's for a few days you'll notice a vast improvement in the way your gums look and feel—firmer, sounder—thus strong enough to resist disease. Also you'll find that Forhan's cleans teeth and helps to protect them from decay.

There are no bargains in health. Get a tube of Forhan's from your druggist and start using it today.

Local Soccer Season Opens On Saturday

ASSOCIATION DRAWS SCHEDULE; MANY NEW PLAYERS ON ROSTERS

C. G. E. and Brinton Clash in Opening Game On Saturday.

"A REAL SPORTSMAN."

Advice To Players and Spectators—Let Referee Rule Game.

From time immemorial the beginning of the soccer season has always been associated with the formation of good resolutions, and at the dawn of the 1929 season we should like to see every football enthusiast and follower resolving to be a sportsman—not merely a supporter of any particular club or even the game in general, but a real sportsman. A little brochure issued recently by one of the associations connected with H. M. Forces, gives an excellent description of what might be considered "a real sportsman."

The Eight Points

Like the late President Wilson's now famous "fourteen points" this definition is given under eight heads, viz:

(1) Plays the game for the game's sake;

(2) Plays for his side and not for himself;

(3) Is a good winner and a good loser; i.e., modest in victory and generous in defeat.

(4) Accepts all decisons in a proper spirit;

(5) Is chivalrous towards a defeated opponent;

(6) Is unselfish and always ready to help others to become proficient;

(7) As a spectator applauds good play on both sides;

(8) Never interferes with referees or judges, no matter what the decision.

Be Keen—But Fair

Such then are the true tenets of the ideal sportsman. It must be admitted that the author of these eight points has shown an intimate knowledge of the failings of football players and spectators. It is the wish of the player to give of the best in him in a clean and proper manner, without stooping to shady tactics, which inevitably bring punishment and disgrace on both players and clubs. That is the meaning of the initial clause, and it is not beyond compliance, even in the very keenest matches.

The Curse of Selfishness

During last season, many a game would have had a different result if the player had not been a little bit too selfish. The warning against selfishness is a timely one. How often do players bring execrations on their heads by clinging to the ball when a pass to a colleague might prove more profitable? The selfish player invariably succeeds in beating two or three opponents, only to be pulled up by the fourth, and thus all his work goes for nought. No one desires to see the clever individualist eliminated from the game, but the real clever player knows when to hold on and when to part with the ball, and he never allows the machinery of the team to be upset by his individualism. It has been amply proved that in present-day football, team work is absolutely essential, and this will never be achieved unless the players sink "self" for "team."

Let the Referee Rule

It does not harm to this old topic to keep it before the fans and players every season, and it is given in a very concise form—Questioning of Decisions—and this applies to both players and spectators. Of the players who have come under the ban of the referees during past seasons, most of them have been reported for disagreement with the ruling officials. No doubt many of those players have afterwards regretted their action, but if they trained thmselves to take and accept all decisions of the referee, they would make that official's task much lighter, and gain more respect for themselves.

And again it is likewise with spectators. What a howl is set up if a referee gives a decision which they cannot understand They forget that the referee is in close touch with the play, and is therefore in a position to see many things which are not obvious to spectators. Followers have used abusive language against him and it is considered the work of cowards, which cannot be too strongly condemned.

Opening Saturday

Next Saturday afternoon, on King Edward Park, at 3 o'clock, the local soccer season will be opened with an exhibition game between Canadian General versus Brinton Peterborough A. A. Kick off at 3 o'clock. Referee A. McKinley.

A very appropriate schedule was drawn up last night at the meeting of the association, when no less than six teams that will participate in the soccer code this season. The players all know what will be the prize for their endeavors at the end of the playing season and this has been something that has not been done before and it is hoped that all the players will play the game and demonstrate that Peterborough has a live organization in soccer.

The teams were put in the hat and the result of the draw for the first schedule games an Saturday, April 27th, were as follows: Deloro versus Brinton Peterborough A. A. in Deloro, and Canadian General versus Canadian Packing at King Edward Park.

Grabbing for Players

Again another soccer season has come along with the usual activity of team building and the excitement of signing on players for the year's business has been going a merry pace since the last meeting night when the official forms were distributed amongst the representatives present.

Many of the old players will don a different sweater this year, and the "inside pull" has developed to perfection so that they may get the "player" that they are after, while some have been a little late in getting after certain players, to find that they had signed for another team.

Each team is allowed sixteen players up to and including a specified date which has been set by the association, although Deloro has been granted a concession in that matter so as to facilitate players getting away from business at certain periods.

Players Registered

Canadian General registered the following players: Alexander Robb Mitchell, George Blowers, Wilfred Rankin, James Bruce, Archibald McPhate, A. Burgess, Robert Murphy, Alfred Wilson, Harry Mann, George Lovatt, George Wassell, Henry Figg, Joseph Bolton, Frank E. Wade—14 players.

Canadian Packing teams registered the following players: Art Bromley, R. Carmichael, Newt Downer, Bert Dorris, J Buchan, Art O'Halloran, A. Downer, A. Beggs, C. Griffine, W. Beggs, T. Foster and T. Westwood.—12 players.

Brinton, Peterborough, A. A. registered the following players: T. Monks, Walter E. James, A. Bishop, W. Jones, Fred Jones, Edward Bayliss, William Curtiss, H. Cherrill, Alex. Robertson, Jim Hawthorne, William Tait, Robert Creighton.—12 players.

Dominion Woollens F. C. — J. Gore, W. Pickering, W. Stead, D. Whitley, Arthur B. Read.—5 players.

A lively discussion ensued as the result of the players not getting enough games through the schedule drawn up, and a motion was passed—"That the schedule remain as drawn up as to May 4, and that the club representatives report with suggestions relative to evening games at the next meeting; also must abide by the Board of Directors' decision."

Then immediately thereafter, the "signing on" argument caused a lot of excitement, and was held in abeyance as to the previous ruling.

Colors Declared.

The local teams intimated that the colors of their equipment would be as follows: Dominion Woollens, green and white; C.P.C., mauve; Deloro, blue and white square; Brinton A. A., blue and Green; C.G.E., red, and Quaker Oats, black and white.

NEW SOCCER TROPHY GIVEN TO ASSOCIATION

A beautiful cup was presented to the Peterborough and District Football Association last evening by a well-known athletic company, for annual competition, under their jurisdiction.

It stands 24 inches high and is of an elongated pattern which rests on a black ebony base. Plates can be attached to the bottom with the winners' names thereon. The first round will be played on Victoria Day, May 24th, 1929, between the Brinton A. A. and the Dominion Woollens.

CANADIAN TURF KING

A sure sign of spring is the awakening interest in horse racing, and especially, in Canada, in the running of the Kings Plate at the Woodbine track, Toronto.

Of stables with prospective winners of the King's Plate, Edward F. Seagram's is the largest in Canada. The Seagram stables has 50 horses in training for this year's racing, by long odds the largest string in Canada E. F. Seagram is the chief owner of the stable, with his brothers, Norman and Thomas, as his associates.

There are 19 of these horses at Bowie in charge of Trainer Jack Whyte and 15 a Pimlico in charge of Trainer W. J. Donohue.

Head Trainer Wm. Bringloe is at Waterloo looking after the training of the King's Platers, the provincebred 2-year-olds, and Sir Harry and Gaffsman. He has just returned from Maryland where he looked over the other horses.

The stable jockeys are Leslie Pichon and Paul McGinnis with another to be engaged.

The King's Platers are the 3-year-olds, Irish Sphere, Circulet and Dance Circle.

MAROONS BUY TWO BULLDOGS

Montreal Team Purchases Mike Neville and Jack Arbour From Mitchell.

MUST MAKE GOOD.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 16.—(C.P.)—Manager Herb Mitchell, of the Windsor Bulldogs, announced yesterday at the meeting of the National Hockey League in the Hotel Statler, Detroit, that he had sold Jack Arbor, defence man, and Mike Neville, centre, to the Montreal Maroons. The deal was completed yesterday afternoon with James Strachan, president of the Maroons. No price was made public, but the sale was made with the provision that, should the two players not make good with the Major League Club, they will reutrn to the Bulldogs.

Eddie Rodden, sub centre player, will return to Boston Bruins, whose property he is, next season, and it is also probable that Johnny Sorrell, sub wingman, will return to his legal masters, the Canadiens.

GRANVILLE RETAINS SEVENTH PLACE

Canadian Runner Has Been Suffering From Stomach Trouble.

SPRINGFIELD, O., April 16. (C. P.) — Phil Granville of Hamilton, Ont., retained his hold on seventh place in C. C. Pyle's transcontinental foot race yesterday when he finished fifth in the sixteenth leg of the long journey, covering 43.4 miles, between Columbus, Ohio, and Springfield, O., in 8.06.50. His elapsed time is 121.-09.07.

The Canadian runner has suffered from stomach trouble for the past several days, but is regaining his form.

LARRY GAINS EASILY WINS FROM COOK

Toronto Fighter Victor in Every Round With Even Break in Ninth.

TEN ROUND BOUT.

Australian Absorbs Plenty of Punishment From Canadian Heavyweight Champion.

COLISEUM, TORONTO, April 16.—(C.P.)—Larry Gains of Toronto, the Canadian heavyweight champion, clearly outclassed George Cook, Australian heavyweight title holder, in a ten round bout here last night. Gains led all the way over the Australian, having height and reach advantage, but giving away five pounds in weight.

Cook absorbed plenty of punishment from the rapier left and hard overhand right of the Toronto negro, but always came back for more. A lunging right and left proved Cook's best offensive, but it came infrequently, and most of the time he was busy covering up or leaning his weight against Gains.

Gains took every round, with possibly the ninth, a toss up.

In the fifth the Canadian negro drove the "Aussie," all over the ring with a series of right smashes flash to the face; but Cook failed to weaken much under the bombardment, and easily went the distance. He bled freely from the nose from the fifth on.

Last night's bout was Cook's premiere in his latest North American invasion. He weiged 194 1-2, while Gains came in at 189 1-2.

Gains tried hard for a knock-out but the rugged Australian refused to cave under. He was clearly outpointed, and Gains' superiority was marked throughout.

Miss MacPhail thought it was a farce for members to vote on divorce bills concerning which they knew nothing. While she did not know what the member for Winnipeg North Centre (Mr. Woodsworth) had in mind, Miss MacPhail did think to-day's treatment of divorce bills would make members of the House tired and sick of the situation and bring them about to take a different view when the bill for the establishment of a divorce court in Ontario came up again.

VANCOUVER LAD EQUALS RECORD IN MONTREAL

Percy Williams Steps the 50 Yards in 5 1-5 Seconds.

FITZPATRICK RUNS WELL.

Miss Myrtle Cook Breaks the World's Record in 50 Yard Dash.

MONTREAL, Que., April 16. — (Canadian Press).—Percy Williams, headliner of all current indoor athletic attractions, made his initial appearance in Montreal last night at the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association's indoor carnival, and gave local fans the satisfaction of seeing the "fastest human" equal the world's record for the 50 yards dash. The Vancouver lad equalled the Canadian record of 5 3-5 seconds in his heat, and in the final stepped the distance in 5 1-5 seconds to match the world's mark.

The Vancouver flash was closely pressed in the final by Johnny Fitzpatrick of Hamilton, an Olympic team-mate. The latter led at the 30-yard mark, but Williams' famous final sprint carried him across the line with about a foot to spare. In winning his heat of the event Fitzpatrick also equalled the Canadian record of 5 3-5 seconds.

One world's record was broken during a night of sterling performances, and that honor went to a woman, Miss Myrtle Cook of Toronto, captain of the Canadian Ladies' Olympic team, who won the women's 50-yard dash in 6 seconds flat, breaking the old mark of 6 1-5 seconds. A Canadian record fell to Miss Ethel Catherwood of Toronto, who also holds the world's outdoor record in the event, when she leaped 4 feet 11⅜ inches in an exhibition high jump.

ROTARY MEMBERS ENTERTAIN WIVES

Entertaining Program Provided By Members of Campbellford Club.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 16 (Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Last night the local Rotarians entertained the ladies in the dining-room of the St. Lawrence Hotel. There were more than fifty Rotarians and their wives seated at the tables. Excellent food and efficient service, together with the fall vases of flowers as decorations, served to start the evening off with a bang. W. L. Arnott, the talkative trickster and magician from Toronto, with Little Percy, were the chief entertainers. The soloists were Miss Emma Meiklejohn, Mrs. Fred Free, Walter Henson, and Albert Hazel. E. C. Dolman played the accompaniments for the evening.

The Rotarians were in fine trim to enjoy a most pleasant evening. From the very first number right down the line to the closing, applause was generous and encores a part of the regular routine. The toast list was a brief one, but the entertainment was of sufficient length to round out the evening. Between the special numbers, Rotary songs and jokes were quite in order. A couple of fake telegrams afforded more than a little merriment.

W. L. Arnott and Little Percy, Toronto, were warmly received by their audience. As a magician, Arnott is easily ranked among the masters of the art at least in so far as his demonstrations last night were concerned. The Rotarians and their guests listened and watched with such rapt attention that they forgot to applaud when the magician performed a particularly pleasing bit of magic. Cards were his first attempt. Later he did some work with coins. The room was in an uproar when Arnott held a hat under E. H Greig's chin and brushed a shower of coins into it that suddenly appeared by magic on the High School principal's head. The magician's hand went under G. A. Kingston's coat and produced a milk bottle. These and a hundred other slight of hand tricks opposed the magician's entertainment. He was well assisted in his line of humorous chatter by Little Percy, his seven-year-old son, who appeared at intervals with his father.

The banquet began with the singing of the Canadian National Anthem. After dinner His Majesty the King was duly honored. The next toast was to Rotary International proposed by the Rev. "Bob" Tait, and responded to by George Kingston. Earl Greig proposed the toast to the ladies, and Alexander McCall responded. A feature of all the addresses was their brevity. It might also be truly said that many a true word was spoken in jest. The Rotarians were not going in for a solemn evening, and were obliged to dress their remarks with humor.

Walter Henson was the first soloist of the evening. He sang "On the Road to Mandalay." As Henson got up to walk to the piano, the Rotarians sang lustily the old favorite "For he's a jolly good fellow." Miss Emma Meiklejohn saig "Leetle Bateese," the words by Dr. Drummond the setting by O'Hara, and as an encore Rossetti's "A Birthday." Albert Hazel's solo was "I Did Not Know" (Trotere) and his encore "Marchetta" (O'Hara). Mrs. Free sang "Tommy Lad" (Margetson), and as an encore Lehmann's arrangement of "Annie Laurie."

BEAVER CAUGHT IN NET

ST. THOMAS, Ont., April 16. — (Canadian Press).— While fishing for suckers at the St. Thomas Waterworks department dam yesterday a man named Rowland caught a large beaver in his net. The animal was subsequently released in the creek above the dam and disappeared with a splash of its tail. This is the first time that a beaver has been reported in this district.

LEAGUE EXECUTIVE PLANS BUMPER SOFTBALL SEASON; LARGER ENTRY IS EXPECTED

Actvities and Rules Fully Discussed At Meeting Held in Plant.

LACK SUITABLE GROUNDS.

New Loop May Be Formed For Older Players—Will Enter City League.

Despite the fact that already the ties of a railroad track have been laid through the centre of old C.G.E. softball grounds, the preparations for a bumper softball season at the electric plant are well under way. Several department representatives met last week in the employment bureau and elected the following officers for the season of 1929: President, Roy Pilling; vice-president, Bruce Munroe; recording sec., Max Wilson, and an executive consisting of four men, William Bolam, Tool department; Bud Weese, Store department; Les. Calladine, Coil winding department, and Jack Cameron, Engineering. These officers held a meeting on Monday, April 15, to decide on a set of rules for the season and to iron out any difficulties which were brought to their notice. It was decided to send a notice to all the departments requesting all those who wish to enter a team, to send their entries to Max Wilson, Production department, not later than Saturday, April 20. The rules for this season will be the same as last year with a few slight changes which will be explained to all the team captains who are present at the next meetng to be held on Monday, April 22.

Lack Suitable Grounds

The only obstacle which looms in the path of the organizers is the lack of suitable grounds on which to play, as the old diamond north of the punch press building is no longer available. Space at King Edward park and other places some distance from the plant have been suggested as suitable for ball grounds, but the executive fully realizes that a great many of the players would balk at having to walk so far and a committee has been detailed to try and secure some spot convenient to the factory.

May Form New League

This year the older ball players, that is, all those over thirty-five, may enjoy a league of their own, if enough entries are received to warrant the forming of such a league.

Bruce Munro is to represent the C.G.E. at the City League Softball meeting to be held to-night in the Belmont club rooms at 5.15 p.m., and it is more than likely that the Electrics will enter this loop.

Last year 18 teams entered the shop league, which had a very successful season, and afforded over 200 employes a great deal of worthwhile exercise and enjoyment. The outlook this season promises one of the best softball leagues so far as their is considerable enthusiasm being shown throughout the factory which will undoubtedly result in over 25 entries this year.

SPARKLING BOUTS AT AMATEUR SHOW

New 105 Lbs. Class Makes Hit at Ontario Boxing Tourney.

TORONTO, Ont., April 16.—(Canadian Press.)—Featuring the inauguration of a promising special class of 105-pounders, the Ontario boxing championships opened under the auspices of the Ontario Amateur Athletic Union of Canada at the Arena Gardens here last night.

Fourteen bouts narrowed the classes down to the semi-final and final stages.

Under the new system of sectional elimination tourneys only the winner and runner-up in each class—with the exception of the special set—qualified for the Ontario tests last night and to-night.

Results of last night's bouts:

105 Pound Class.

Crawford, Toronto, defeated Yakobowitz, Toronto.

Hutchison, Toronto, defeated Ley, Toronto.

M. Wright, Toronto, defeated H. Singer, Toronto.

Johnny Chris, Toronto, defeated D. Belanger, Oshawa.

112 Pound Class.

M. Mathieson, Toronto, defeated B. Eastwood, London, Ont.

J. Palmer, Toronto, defeated L. Green, Hamilton, Ont.

118 Pound Class.

M. Gifford, St. Catharines, defeated P. Cavigan, Toronto.

126 Pound Class.

T. Bland, Toronto, defeated L. Bear, London, Ont.

135 Pound Class.

R. Ripley, Oshawa, Ont., defeated R. Binns, Toronto.

147 Pound Class.

J Taylor, St. Catharines, Ont., defeated H. Williams, Kirkland Lake.

D. Raby, London, Ont., defeated D. Casey, Kirkland Lake, Ont.

175 Pound Class.

C. Carere, Guelph, Ont., defeated A. Kosley, Toronto.

105 Pound Class—Semi-finals.

Crawford, Toronto, defeated Abramovitch, Toronto.

Hutchison, Toronto, defeated Genovese, Toronto

The preliminaries resulted as follows:

Joe Brown, of Montreal, won a six-round decision over Doug. Lewis, Toronto, in the curtain raiser.

Brown took the first three rounds easily, scoring a knockdown in the second round. Lewis took a nine count in the first round. Brown weighed 156½ and Lewis 153.

Ebber weighed 125½ and Sweeney 126½.

Jackie Johnston, Toronto, outpointed Mike Marcelles, Rochester, over the six round route.

Johnston was the better practically throughout, Marcelles' last round rally falling short. Johnston weighed 126 and Marcelles 121.

Tony Tozzo, Buffalo, N.Y., took a six round decision over George Fifield, Toronto, in a slugging semi-final.

Tozzo was the harder hitter and handed out lots of punishment in the early rounds. Fifield fought back gamely and tried desperately for a knock-out in the last two rounds. Tozzo was staggered by a hard overhand right in the fifth but Fifield failed to follow up and Tony shook off the daze. The affair provided a continuous flurry of action.

NEW YORK, April 16.—George Herman ("Babe") Ruth yesterday obtained a license to marry Mrs. Clair Hodgson, aged 26, New York actress, and a widow.

City Clerk Michael J. Cruise, who issued the license shortly before the bureau closed, asked Ruth when he would be married, and the baseball star replied, "Some day this week." Then he added, "The season opens tomorrow."

Ruth said he was 35 years old, and gave his address as the Hotel Alamas, this city. Mrs. Hodgson said she was born in Jefferson, Georgia, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Merrit.

Reports that Ruth was to be married to-day were circulated yesterday, but at Ebbs Field, where the Yankees were playing, Ruth denied them.

ESTIMATED 230,000 FANS WILL SEE THE OPENING CEREMONIES OF SIXTEEN BIG LEAGUE TEAMS

Bad weather Conditions Predicted Along Eastern Half of Battlefront.

REVIEW OF ENTRIES.

New York Teams Listed Among Favorites As Pennant Winners.

(By Alan J. Gould, Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 16.— The dope sheets can now be wrapped up and it will be just as well if Old Man Fan and his youhtful companion wrap themselves up comfortably, too.

The prospect is there will be as many chills as there are thrills when the 16 Major League teams take the field to-day for the grand and gala opening of the 1929 pennant festivals.

If the weather does not deal too harshly with ceremonials, approximately 230,000 spectators probably will turn out, not only to see the flag-raising, the parades and notables, but to determine for themselves how close the experts have come to the facts in picking the New York Yankees to win the American League race in a romp once more or the New York Giants and Cubs to set the hottest pace in the National League.

The teams dodged a lot of bad weather by putting off the 1929 start a week, but not all of it. The prospect is for cold and probably rainy conditions along the entire eastern half of the big league battle front to-day. With only slightly more favorable reports from the western trenches, it seems that six of the eight opening games are threatened by poor weather.

Here are how the contenders size up:

American League.

Yankees—No apparent loss in terrific batting power, but questionable pitching strength and a problem at short, with Durocher the choice over Larry for the get-away, and Koenig at third.

Athletics — Handicapped by ailments of such stars as Simmons, Grove, Earnshaw and Boley, but packing plenty of reserve power and pitching strength.

Browns—Third place club of 1928, seasoned and snappier, with fine pitching prospects, and strong outfield.

Senators — In brilliant form, on basis of spring training, with fine twirling, but prospects hinging on success of newcomers.

Tigers—Prospects doubtful, as result of several shake-ups, but club has real punch, if Heilmann has customary "odd-year" batting spree.

Indians—Infield shifted, with Joe Sewell at third and hopes also pinned on two new outfielders, Averill and Porter.

White Six—Lack hitting, but defence and pitching good.

Red Sox— Improved but not yet dangerous.

National League.

Cubs—Great attack, with Hornsby setting pace, and pitching prospects good enough to keep club in thick of any race.

Giants— Better than team that finished second in 1928, particularly in pitching and probably the outfield.

Cardinals—Another club hoping for success of infield shifts; Alexander and other pitching veterans apparently as good as ever.

Pirates—Warner act on again and better pitching prospects with Petty added to Dremer, Grimes, etc., but infield doubtful.

Reds—Regarded as class of second division, dangerous but no outstanding advance in prospect over last year.

VIEWS ON SPORTS

The Church Hockey League will banquet the winners of its respective groups at the Y.M.C.A. tomorrow evening.

BASEBALL FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The pupils of the Public Schools will play hardball this season. This decision was reached at a recent meeting of the men teachers, who coach and manage the games. This means that the youth of Peterborough will learn to play and admire the more virile game, and that in a few years to come the Central League team will have a crop of good ball players from which to choose. Some of the stars of the local diamonds learned all their baseball in the public schools, and the same can be truly said for hockey.

Softball was introduced into the schools not because it was desired, but because of necessity. The playgrounds for many of the schools are too small for baseball games. To practise it was found necessary to clear the playground of all the smaller children to allow only sufficient room for hardball. The home games for several of the schools are to be played on city parks or the Oval. Despite these hindrances and difficulties, the teachers have voted to teach the boys the real summer game.

Another ruling that the teachers want to point out for the benefit of midget and juvenile City League team managers, is the one dealing wth players. No member of any public school team can be used by any other team until the Public School League is completed. In the past, it is said, some of the best players developed by the school teams were immediately signed by outside teams, and the players were forced to play two games on one night, and sometimes they had to forego playing the Public School game in order to play in a City League fixture the same night.

SAME IN HIGH SCHOOLS AND UNIVERSITIES.

The same applies to High School and University sports. City teams are only to anxious to snatch off some of the stars, and play them. In the universities there is a strict rule that must be adhered to. The student desiring to play for any team outside of the university, must get permission from the athletic committee, elected by the students to direct sports. Another interesting rule prevailing at most universities in Canada is the one that practically compels a student to play on the rugby, hockey, or any other team, if the coach of that team thinks that the student would aid the team. Also the senior team has the first choice, and can bring up any player desired from the junior ranks.

MORE ABOUT BOXING.

Fans who saw the boxing tourney at the "Y" last week are still voicing their praise. The sportsmanship shown by the boxers, and the pep displayed in the ring met the approval of every spectator. There is not another sport that develops the well-built physique, and feeling of self confidence, to just the same extent as amateur boxing. The fans are looking forward to the promised tournament for April 26.

LOOKING OVER THE CHANCES OF THE LEAFS.

The Toronto Leafs will open the league season in Baltimore tomorrow afternoon, weather permitting. The Leafs did not have luck in uncovering diamonds in the rough, although they played on a lot of rough diamonds during their spring trainings trips. However the Leafs have pretty much the same team that threatened to grab off the pennant last year. Sport writers do not rate the Birds very high, and it is expected that the Leafs will get a flying start in the opening games. However, they will sadly miss "Big Boy", Alexander, the clouting first baseman, who appeared in the clean-up position, and generally cleaned up. Besides Alexander, the Leafs will be short two of their star twirlers of last year's team, Prudholme and Collins, who are up for a whirl in the American League. Cantrell looms up as a dependable box performer, and they may be able to bolster up the pitching with the addition of the two twirlers yet to come from Detroit in the $100,000 deal. Certainly the Leafs appear no better than last year, and perhap may prove to be quite a bit weaker. But time will tell.

WHO WILL SUCCEED TOOLE?

The International League has been on the hunt to find some one capable of filling the shoes of John Conway Toole, in the office of President of the league. The club owners are holding a meeting in New York to-day for that very purpose. It was announced Saturday through the Associated Press that Patrick J. Donnelly, president of the Jersey City Baseball Club, will bring forth the name of William L. Dill, New Jersey Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

About thirty years ago, Dill was secretary of the Paterson club in the old Atlantic League. Hans Wagner, former shortstop of the Pirates, was a member of Dill's team before he went to the Pittsburgh club.

THE FACTS ABOUT THE "SEMI-PROFESSIONAL."

John Kieran says, "A correspondent inquires about the term 'semi-professional,' as used in baseball. It's really a misnomer. Technically, there is no such a thing, but the term is loosely used to designate ball players who play for side bets, stakes or salaries, outside of organized baseball. Most 'semi-pro' players have work-a day jobs at something else."

CANADA'S NATIONAL MARATHON

The first National championship marathon to be held in Canada will be run in Toronto on May 24th. Different Canadian cities and organizations stage marathons from year to year and these races are watched with a great deal of interest but never before has an attempt been made to organize a race to decide a Canadian marathon champion.

In the West Regina holds a Christmas Day marathon which has been called the greatest running classic west of the Great Lakes, while in Eastern Canada races are held each year in Toronto, Hamilton, and other large cities.

Among running stars in Canada who will probably be on deck on the 24th are Cliff Bricker, Billy Reynolds, Frank Hughes, Percy Wyer and Johnny Miles.

In the recent Toronto marathon, Tom Dick, of Galt, one of the lesser known runners, was right at the veteran, Cliff Bricker's heels, and if he keeps on improving he should hold a prominent place in the National Marathon.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

THE BUTTERFLY KIDDIES AND THE "SHOPWORN ANGEL"

The two evening performances at the Capitol theatre last evening had capacity audiences in both cases, the chief attraction being the return engagement of the charming little "Butterfly Kiddies" company that delighted local theatrical patrons last Fall. This is a very clever aggregation of young musicians, acrobats and dancers. Several of them are startlingly good in their acts, one young girl in particular emulating a rubber doll in her acrobatic perfection. She turned cartwheels and did handsprings in lightning style last night that brought her the dazzled attention of the house and a burst of enthusiastic applause at the conclusion of her act. Another of the junior ladies has a very fine voice which is heard in several solo numbers and a small tot is one of the best minor actresses seen here in many moons. She has plenty of vivacity and histrionic ability and skill in the way she put over her comical numbers, one, in particular, a hobo song, getting her renewed appreciation.

They are brightly costumed youngsters who come on singing "O Susanna!" and they have a succession of brisk and vivid songs, dances and acrobatic stunts that make them a brilliant addition to the program. Three of the girls in the act are Canadian girls from Toronto, Marian Marsden, possessor of a lovely voice, Marjorie Clay, acrobat and dancer, and Annie Clegg, dancer and singer.

The program opens with some very interesting Pathe News bits and Billy Dooley has a nut comedy entitled "Sea Food."

The feature picture has a very appropriate title. The "Shopworn Angel" was in inspiration and described the principal lady perfectly. Nancy Carroll is Daisy Heath, the front row dancer in a musical comedy and enjoys the friendship and patronage of "Mr. Bailey," who showers multitudinous gifts upon her. Gary Cooper is a tall Texan doughboy who is getting ready to embark for France with the A. E. F. He falls madly in love with Daisy, through a chance encounter, and comes early next morning to salute his divinity with flowers and bonbons. Daisy is recovering from a late party and is not in the best of humour. "Mr. Bailey" regards the visitor with amusement.

Undaunted, the Texan, William Tyler, pursues the lady of his dreams and finally she falls for him just as badly as he has done for her. Absent without leave, on the eve of embarking for France, the two go off to Coney Island and then Tyler proposes that they get married. The lady faints during the ceremony and Bill is forcibly removed by military police, who have been looking for late arrivals. The last bit shows Daisy back in the musical comedy, this time in the back row, for lack of the friendship of "Mr. Bailey."

The interest of the production lies in the demonstration of the way two men regard a woman, and the manner in which the woman reacts to their regard.—Jeanette.

SOW BARLEY AS LATE GRAIN

Recent Weather Points to a Reduction in Wheat and Oats.

CONTROL OF WEEDS

Recent weather conditions which have resulted in serious flooding of farm lands over the most important agricultural sections of Ontario will probably result in a marked tendency to reduce the seeding of wheat and oats. On this account, it seems likely that barley may be used to good advantage as a substitute on a considerable proportion of the acreage which was originally set aside for the other grains. It is noteworthy in this connection that, according to the experiments with various dates of seeding which have been carried out at the Ontario Agricultural College for over forty years, barley suffers less than either oats or wheat as the result of a late Spring.

Apart from the physical condition of the soil resulting from the floods, there is another factor which would seem to strongly suggest the wisdom of using barley as a main grain crop wherever practicable this year. This is the weed menace which invariably follows floods at this time of year. In the control of weeds, barley offers the farmer a good deal of help, as it ripens ahead of most of these serious pests, thereby giving an opportunity of cutting the weeds before they have a chance to ripen and scatter their seeds on the land.

Two Smut Diseases.

Like wheat, barley is attacked by two different types of smut diseases, —loose smut and covered or ball smut. In the control of the former, little can be done by seed treatment, the best safeguard being to provide, as far as possible, conditions which will assist towards the most rapid germination and growth of the grain. This calls for a well-prepared seed bed, and care should be taken not to sow the seed too deeply. Authorities are agreed that, other things being equal, deeply sown barley suffers most from loose smut. Hence, it is suggested that after preparation of the barley seed bed, the same be just lightly packed by the use of a roller once over the field before the drill. In the case of clay soils, the danger of surface baking can be greatly lessened by running a light harrow over the field following the drill. Ball or covered smut is fairly easily controlled. Dipping the seed in a solution made up of one pint of formalin mixed with forty gallons of water is all that is necessary. After treating, the seed is allowed to dry by being shovelled over on a clean barn floor which has been disinfected with the formalin solution.

LENGTH OF LIFE DEPENDS ON DIET TO LARGE EXTENT

Noted Food Expert Makes Startling Statements

Lecturing, last week, one of the country's greatest food experts remarked that few people realize the importance of food in their daily life. "We can add years to our lives," he said, "increase our strength and vitality, ward off our most dreaded diseases by what we eat.

"Old age diseases," he continued, "breaking down of the heart, hardening of the arteries, diseases of the kidneys, nervous and digestive disorders—are developing in younger people more and more.

"Our food is one of the most important factors contributing to this condition—depending on whether it does, or does not supply the elements our bodies need. I consider Grape-Nuts an excellent food for supplying these elements."

SIOUX INDIANS' LIFETIME TEETH SOFT DIET PREY

Change to Civilized Foods Brings Trouble

The North American Indians, in their primitive state, possessed remarkably fine teeth. One historian who examined great numbers of skulls of the Sioux tribe, says: "I was forcibly struck with the exceptional completeness and soundness (and total absence of malformation), of their beautiful sets of teeth. The teeth do not decay, but preserve their soundness and enamel and powers of mastication to old age."

But experience has proven that the poor Indian fares no better than other races when civilization brings him a soft, deficient diet. His teeth rapidly become inferior and decay. He suffers much from rheumatism and other troubles which result from teeth infections.

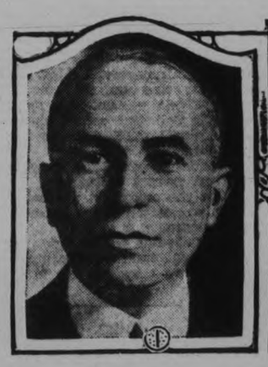
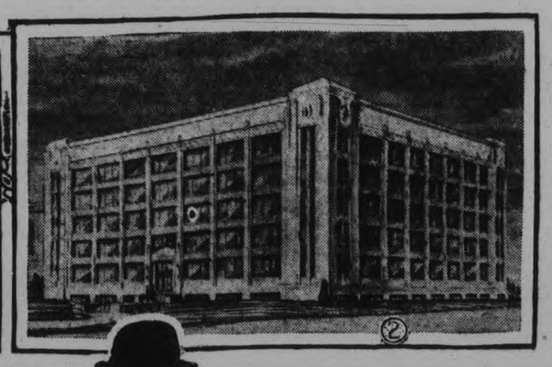
TIP-TOP TAILORS $700,000 PLANT





Mayor Sam McBride of Toronto recently turned the first sod on the site of the new Tip Top Tailors' $700,000 plant on the Lake Shore Boulevard, just west of the Maple Leaf Stadium, Toronto. It will be a six-story steel and concrete structure, with a frontage of 220 feet and a depth of 180 feet, and will stand on a 3½ acre land parcel purchased from the Toronto Harbor Commission for $125,000. No other enterprise will be located to the west of this site, as the adjoining land belongs to the Parks Commission.

During January engineers, architects and company officials toured Canada and the United States inspecting many plants, that all the latest improvements might be incorporated in the new structure. This has been done by Roy H. Bishop, architect, who has embodied several special features, particularly the lighting and ventilation, sparing nothing for the comforts of the 1,200 to 1,500 employees, while on the roof there will be a cafeteria and gymnasium. The building will be served by five elevators. Tennis courts and a bowling alley will be provided at the rear of the building, overlooking Lake Ontario.

The architectural motif is intensely modernistic and the new structure, possessing as it does, such an ideal location at the western entranceway to the city with its attendant proximity to the Canadian National Exhibition Grounds, will be the largest one-price tailoring organization in the British Empire and should prove a valuable contribution to the many magnificent buildings heralding the birth of a greater Toronto. (1) Shows David Dunkelman, founder and president of the company, who eighteen years ago started the business in a small loft building on Adelaide Street, now the site of the Canada Permanent Building, (2) an architectural drawing by Roy H. Bishop showing the strong modernistic motif embodied in the new structure, and (3) shows His Worship turning the first sod on the proposed site.

POWER OF SONG DEMONSTRATED

Seating Capacity of St. James' Church Fully Utilized For "Music Night."

OLD TIME HYMNS.

The power of song, as a Gospel message, has been demonstrated in high degree in Peterborough through the singing revival being held in St. James United Church under the direction of the Dibble party.

"Music Night" was widely announced as an all musical program given by Rev. George Dibble and M. Mustaine and succeeded in drawing the largest crowd yet gathered together at these splendid services. The seating capacity was fully utilized and still hundreds were left standing, throughout the two-hour service.

After a half-hour in congregational singing of the sweet old Gospel songs, Rev. Mr. Totten of Bridgenorth offered the opening prayer, and Mrs. Dibble made the announcements for the coming week.

Quartette Sings

A male quartette consisting of Messrs. Worrall, Baldry, Lee and Turner, sang "Lead Me to the Saviour's Side."

The "Sunshine Song" used by Mr. Dibble in opening his radio program, was his selection, last night.

As promised, Mr. Dibble sang at least one stanza of each of the many requests given him. A few of these were: "Come, Ye Blessed", "When they ring the golden bells", "Peace, Peace, Sweet Peace", "Shadows" and Paul Rader's sacred words to "Mother Machree". In memory of his own fourteen-year-old boy, far away, Mr. Dibble sang the favourite popular song "Sonny Boy."

Harold Mustaine the accomplished pianist of the Dibble party gave several musical numbers, translating a familiar Gospel air into the particular manner of different nationalities: the soft, graceful mood of Spain, the more sonorous tones of Germany, the tinkling sweetness of Switzerland, the deep-toned bells of Russia and the choppy rhythm of China.

Glimpse of Own Life

In introducing some of his melodies, Mr. Dibble gave his hearers a glimpse into his own home life and boyhood days, his simple forceful testimony giving an added power to his musical message.

After a short prayer by Mrs. Dibble, the radio closing song "We'll never say good-bye" was used to bring to a conclusion this wonderfully inspiring service.

To-night will be "Adult Bible Class night" and an invitation is extended to these bodies to come in their respective groups, from other churches as well as from St. James'. If desired, on account of the congregation, reservations may be made by such classes, through the pastor of the church, Rev. J. H. Dudgeon.

GLORIOUS TRADITION OF EMPIRE RELATED

160 Australian Boys Are Banqueted By Empire and Canadian Clubs.

TORONTO, Ont., April 16 (C.P.).—The ties of Empire and the glorious tradition that is the heritage of every Britisher were emphasized when Major J. J. Simons and the 160 visiting members of the Young Australian League were the guests of honor at a joint meeting of the Empire Club and the Canadian Club here yesterday.

Major Simons was the speaker of the occasion. He declared it was a great tribute to colonization and statesmanship that such a gathering should be possible. "Though," said he, "we are thousands of miles from home we meet you together here with the common link of parentage and feel we have lived with each other all our lives," he said.

The young Australians will leave Toronto on Wednesday. From here they will go to Niagara Falls and then to London, Ont.

HON. J. A. ROBB ANSWERS QUERY

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., Inquires About Australian Butter Shipments to Canada.

PROBLEM OF PRODUCTION

A few days ago, the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K. C., at the request of a well known Douro farmer, wrote to the Hon. James A. Robb, Minister of Finance, to ascertain the extent of the importation of New Zealand butter under the Australian Treaty into Canada, as it was suggested that the large importation of butter from Australia was maintaining a low price for Canadian butter, and affecting the dairy interests.

The letter from the Minister of Finance shows the true conditions existing in Canada under this treaty. Mr. Robb's letter is as follows:

"On my return to Ottawa, I find your letter of the 30th, regarding butter prices, and note your representations. The matter is one that interests me, but looking at the question from a national viewpoint the problem would not appear to be one of price, but of production.

"Butter prices in Canada are continuing to go up, and various authorities (non-political) have stated that last year Canadian butter was frequently above world prices. Mr. Bark, Produce Editor of the Montreal Gazette, for instance, in the last annual review of that paper, said:

"In 1924 there was every prospect that the volume of exports would show a considerable increase and some disappointment has been expressed at the subsequent decline, but the progress of the dairy industry should not be judged by its exports. It is the production of milk that counts, and there is more milk produced in Canada now than ever before. On account of having no export surplus of butter, the price in Canada is not regulated by the world's market, as it is when there is a surplus, and while we have been importing butter the price here has been from five to twelve cents per pound above the price the producers would have received if they had been obliged to export a surplus."

"At the present moment, butter is being imported from Great Britain at the general rate of duty, the reason being that there is a butter shortage in Canada. Canadians are consuming such large quantities of butter that we have now the greatest per capita consumption in the world. In addition we are utilizing so much milk in the fluid form and converting so much into ice cream that there is a general shortage for butter manufacture. The production in the East is well maintained, but good wheat crops in the West are causing farmers out there to devote all their attention to wheat growing.

"As you know the Advisory Board on Tariff and Taxation was set up for the purpose of investigating all complaints on tariff matters. Frequently when representations have been made to me by dairying interests I have asked them to make an application to the Tariff Board. One and all, they have either refused to do so, or have not taken any action."

SOCIAL EVENING IN ST. ANDREW'S

Rev. C. V. McLean, Pastor, Gives Address On Friendship.

MUSICAL PROGRAM.

The congregation of St. Andrew's church enjoyed a happy get-together meeting in the Sunday school last evening. The meeting was featured by a talk on the meaning and benefits of friendship by the pastor, Rev. C. V. McLean, a musical program, and refreshments served by the ladies.

Friendship is a great asset in the life of a congregation, Mr. McLean pointed out. Often friendship has, however, proved fickle and people are sometimes suspicious and afraid to allow themselves friendships. In this way the habit of qualifying friends has grown, said the speaker, we speak of business friends and political friends. But true friendship must be without any qualifications.

Friendship is life's greatest asset, and pity must be bestowed on the man who in the crisis of life has no friends. People are too apt to look only for the faults and flaws in their neighbors. But where friendship enters into the opinion the outlook has an optimistic glow. Illustrating this, the speaker said that a mother's child plays on the piano, she remarks the quality of the music, and talent of the child, but often in the case of a neighbor's child who comes in and plays the piano she notices only the noise.

The musical program included: a piano solo by Miss M. Harstone; selection by the male quartette, composed of John Crane, E. Humpage, T. H. Gillespie and John Smith; violin solo by Grant Breckenbridge; a number, "The Vanishing Canadians," by W. T. and J. R. Auld; and selections by the Sunday school orchestra.

V. S. oster was chairman of the meeting, and made a hospitable host for the evening.

Dainty refreshments were served by the ladies of the congregation.

LEGION PLANS CARNIVAL.

Evenings of May 15, 16 and 17 Are Booked For Big Show.

At the general meeting of the Canadian Legion last night, it was decided to hold a big carnival on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, May 15, 16, 17, to raise funds for Legion objects. This will, of course, be presented in the Legion Hall, and the members present went on record, unanimously, as offering their support and work.

One of the points insisted upon by the president is that all the work shall be done by Legionnaires, so that expense may be kept down to a minimum.

At the same meeting, a new code of by-laws was adopted, copies of which may be seen at the Legion Hall.

Volunteers Needed

The president is calling for volunteers to work in the carnival week. Men will be needed to manage booths, do carpentry work, take part in the ministrel show, and in many other ways giving opportunity for brain and brawn.

Shipping Is Held Up

Atlantic Coast Is Swept By the Worst Wind Storm of Season.

SMALL CRAFT DISABLED.

Wind Reaches Velocity of 50 Miles An Hour Carrying Rain and Snow.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 17. — (Canadian Press). —The Atlantic coast from Maine to Virginia was strewn with wreckage to-day, piled up under the battering of a north-east storm.

While winds and waves sank small craft, demoralizing shipping and damaged shore structures along the coast, the storm swept inland carrying rain and snow as far as western New York and Pennsylvania.

In New York harbor a tug and two barges were sunk. The crew of 18 was rescued from the tug just before it went down off Staten Island. One of the barges lost carried a $250,000 cargo of whale oil pumped out of the whaler Sir James Clark Ross recently arrived from the Antarctic.

Six Liners Held Up

Six liners were held outside the harbor waiting for the weather to moderate before proceeding to their piers. The tide in the harbor rose to within a foot of the top of the battery wall and was close to the record, being four feet above normal.

Brooklyn and other communities on Long Island suffered severely. At Bell Harbor in the Rockaway district a three store, frame dwelling collapsed when the tide brought the high waves within reach of it. Trees blown down endangered the lives of pedestrians in several sections of Brooklyn during the height of the storm.

The wind reached a velocity of 50 miles along the main coast. A five masted schooner in Casco Bay was torn from her moorings and thrown on the rocks. Ships in port were lashed to their wharves with every available line to prevent the wind and seas tearing them adrift. Communication lines throughout the

JANIS BROTHERS SENTENCED TO THREE AND ONE-HALF YEARS IMPRISONMENT AT KINGSTON

Pleaded Guilty To Charges of Fraud in York County Police Court.

SENTENCE DATED BACK.

Restitution of $38,000 Has Been Made Declared Assistant Crown Attorney.

TORONTO, Ont., April 17 (C.P.)—Milton and Ira Janis, brokers who operated the defunct Toronto Securities Corporation, pleaded guilty to charges of fraud in county court here to-day and were sentenced by Judge Denton to three and a half years' imprisonment, their sentences to date back to March 11, 1928. The balance of their terms will be served in Portsmouth.

The term was imposed after J. McFadden, assistant Crown-Attorney had declared that in consideration of the fact that the men had pleaded guilty and that restitution of $38,000 had been made, the Crown would be content with a two-year sentence. They were charged with theft and fraud of more than $250,000.

Two Years Not Enough

To this suggestion, the judge said, "With all due respect, I do not think that a sentence of two years is enough. I have decided to impose a sentence of three and a half years on these men. The time will run, however, from March, 1928, when they were arrested in the United States."

Judge Denton then turned to R. H. Greer, defense counsel, and said: "I was greatly surprised, Mr. Greer, at the report of a statement made by you on Monday, referring to an arrangement with the Attorney-General, whereby if these men pleaded guilty, they would only receive a sentence of two years.

"May I point out to you that the Attorney-General has nothing whatever to do with sentencing prisoners. The responsibility rests on the court, and no order of the Attorney-General's Department can tie our hands."

No Inducement Made.

The Judge said he had read the correspondence in regard to the surrender of the Janis Brothers and could find no inducement made for the surrender of these men.

When the brothers left Toronto in 1927, they sold out their business, the bill of sale being made out to F. Maclean Smith, and Associates, who also stand indicted at present on charges of fraud and theft. A separate trial was granted them, on request of defense counsel, and will be heard during the present session of the court.

The Janis Brothers operated here for about 10 months, having come from New Rochelle, N.Y. Offices were opened in Montreal, Winnipeg, Windsor and London. According to police, the company dealt in good securities, selling on margin and, at the same time, sold outright large blocks of stock of the Dominion Land Company, which was supposed to own valuable mining property. After an inspection, police raided the various offices and arrested the employees. Police failed to locate the heads of the firm until March, 1928.

GERMAN PLAN IS SUBMITTED

Offer is Believed To Be Billion Marks Less Than Creditors Demanded.

37 YEARLY PAYMENTS.

PARIS, April 17 (Canadian Press). —Germany's counter plan for paying her Great War reparations, presented to the allied experts by Dr. Schacht, chief of the German delegation, this afternoon, is understood to offer about one billion marks less per year than the creditors demanded.

Payments would continue 37 years instead of the 58 years proposed by the allies in their memorandum. The German offer envisaged annuities beginning at 1,000,000,000 marks, and rising to 1,450,000,000 marks.

Dr. Schacht seemed in an affable humor when he arrrived at the Hotel George V., where the committee has been meeting. He submitted with good grace and smiles to being photographed.

NEW ARMAMENT REDUCING PLAN GETS COOL RECEPTION IN GENEVA

Japan, Chile and France Reject Soviet Project As Impracticable.

PRINCIPLES APPROVED.

Germans May Suggest Appointment of Special Naval Sub-Committee.

GENEVA, Switzerland, April 17 — (Canadian Press).—The Soviet plan for reducing world armaments, presented to the Preparatory Disarmament Commission by Maxim Lintvinoff, vice commissar for Foreign Affairs, got a chilly reception to-day.

Even Germany which has constantly protested that she has been disarmed by treaty and that other nations are not living up to their promises to lessen their own superior armaments, felt that it was unwise to endorse the Russian idea of agreeing now upon the figures of reduction.

Count Von Bernstorff thought that this should be left to a later International Conference. At the same time however, giving hearty approval of the principles of the Russian plan.

Japan, Chile and France all rejected the Soviet project as impracticable because they contended it failed to take into consideration realties.

The Germans are hesitating about suggesting the appointment of a special sub-committee to discuss the naval problem though it may do so later, one idea is that this committee should meet in Geneva on June 15.

TO ATTEMPT ATLANTIC FLIGHT.

ORLY, France, April 17.—(C.P.)—The French aviators, Jean Assolant and Rene Lefevre left the aerodrome here in their 600 horse power Bernard plane for Southampton, Eng. There they will load the plane aboard the Leviathan and embark themselves for New York. Their plan now is to attempt a non-stop New York-to-Moscow flight early in June.

Three Women Inmates Escape From Jail Farm

TORONTO, Ont., April 17.—(C.P.)—Three young inmates of the Women's Jail Farm at Concord, near here, escaped from the institution last night. The three made their escape by ripping wire screening from a window of the recreation room on the first floor. The escaped prisoners are Marion De Forest, Mary Quinn, and Margaret Beemer. An immediate search of the surrounding district was made as soon as the escape was found out but late last night no trace of the escaped prisoners had been found.

SEVEN MILLION FROM GAS TAX

Department Expects An Extra $225,000 For Month of April.

CENT YIELDS $1,250,000.

TORONTO, Ont., April 16.—(C.P.)—Approximately $225,000 is expected in additional revenue from the increase in the gasoline tax from three cents to five cents during the month of April, the first full month for the increase to be in effect. The total yield from the gas levy for the month, it is believed, will amount to approximately $550,000. Definite figures will not be available until the end of May it was announced.

Each cent of the tax is worth between $1.250,000 and $1,500,000 to the Department of Highways annually, according to calculations based on figures of previous years. The tax of five cents a gallon, therefore, will yield about $7,000,000 annually, a boost of approximately $3,000,000 over the former levy.

ROBBERS SHOOT POLICE OFFICER

Gang Gets Away With Payroll Estimated at $38,000 in New York.

MESSENGER KILLED.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 17 (Canadian Press).—A band of robbers in an automobile to-day held up and shot a policeman and a bank messenger who were guarding a payroll and escaped with a sum estimated at $38,000.

The money was in several bags and was being taken to the Bell Telephone Laboratories in Bethune Street.

Police Commissioner Whalen and other high officials of the department personally took charge of the case.

McKane is a guard for the Chatham Phenix Bank Branch at 14th Street and Eighth Avenue, a short distance uptown from where the hold up occurred.

EVACUATION POSTPONED.

TOKYO, April 17.— (C.P.) —The commander of the Japanese garrison in Shantung, China, was instructed telegraphically to-day to postpone evacuation of Japanese forces from the railroad zone in that province.

PHILIP SNOWDEN ATTACKS BALFOUR REPARATION NOTE IN BRITISH HOUSE OF COMMONS

Answer of Government Is Anxiously Awaited Throughout British Isles.

REPUDIATE CONDITIONS.

Labor Party Opposed Debt Agreement Between Britain and Creditor Nations.

LONDON, April 17 (C.P.).—The British general election campaign was enlivened to-day as it had not been since its inception with repercussions of Philip Snowden's attack on the Balfour note, which fixed the status of Britain's war debtors.

Snowden, who was Chancellor of the Exchequor in the Labor government of Ramsay Macdonald, said the Labor party had never subscribed to the principles of the Balfour note, and would hold itself open, if circumstances arose, to repudiate its conditions.

The answer of the government and an expected affirmation or disavowal by Ramsay Macdonald were anticipated with extreme interest today, since the admittedly strong poston of the Labor party made its views on such an integral part of Europe's war debt structure as the Balfour note of extreme importance.

Little Comment Is Made

Few of to-day's papers commented on Snowden's speech, which was made in the Commons yesterday in the course of an attack on the budget proposals of Winston Churchill, present Chancellor of the Exchequer. The Independent Daily Express, however, congratulated him "on daring to speak the truth about the Anglo-French debt terms," and called his speech "courageous and entirely justifiable."

The Independent Conservative Telegraph, while admitting the former Labor exchequer head was not alone in thinking "Great Britain had not been fortunate in her settlements with the creditor United States or her numerous debtors," endorsed the fears of Mr. Churchill, that his statement might endanger the French-Italian payments. It added that if faith in Great Britain's acceptance of the Balfour principle was shaken the national credit would also be shaken in every sense to its foundations.

Cover Own Payments to U. S.

The Balfour note to Britain's war debtors in 1922, stated that while Great Britain would have been willing to forego all claims for reparations and payment of inter-Allied debts in a universal settlement, she would be content with collecting from her Allies and Germany sufficent to cover her own payments to the United States. This was equivalent to only a quarter of the sum due her.

Mr. Snowden was particularly bitter in his criticism of France, who, he said, had repudiated four-fifths of her obligations to England.

Chinese Open Fire On Foreign Vessels

PARIS, April 17 (C.P.).—The Ministry of Marine to-day announced that Chinese soldiers had fired upon the French gunboat Balny on Monday near Ichang on the Yangtse-Kiang River, wounding one officer and two sailors. The announcement added that two United States commercial steamers and a British gunboat were also fired upon in the same district.

MEXICAN REBELS ARE DIGGING IN Unemployed Men in Nogales, Sonora, Are Placed Under Rebel Guards.

FORCED TO DIG TRENCHES.

NOGALES, Ariz., April 17 (C.P.).—Mexican rebel fortifications at Nogales and Agua Prieta, Sonora, were being strengthened to-day as Federal armies crept nearer the last strongholds of the revolutionary movement.

Agua Prieta which has been occupied by about 1,800 rebels from Chihuahua under General Martin Barcenas, apparently was being made ready to repulse an attack from Federals reported to be moving toward Sonora from Pulpito Pass, or from the loyal garrison at Naco, Sonora.

Unemployed men in Nogales, Sonora, were placed under rebel guards and put to work digging trenches. Trenches more than half a mile long were being constructed.

Rebel soldiers were being concentrated at two other points in Sonora. The main revolutionary force was said to have gathered at Navojoa, in the southern part of the State, after withdrawing from San Blas, Northern Sinaloa. Federal forces were said to have occupied San Blas. The fourth rebel camp, with a nucleus of 1,300 men under General Ramon Yucupicio, was being maintained in the hills south of Naco. About 1,500 Federals were reported in the Naco garrison.

LA JUNTA, Colo., April 17 (C.P.).—Willie Ritzutto, 23, a boxer, knocked out by Marvin Williams, a sparring partner, while training for a bout last week, died yesterday without regaining consciousness. Authorities took no action against Williams, saying it was clear the knockout blow was delivered in a friendly training bout.

Called to Cabinet In First Laurier Government, 1896

One of Canada's Outstanding Public Men Dies Very Suddenly in New York, Where He Had Gone To Consult a Specialist in Heart Trouble.

WAS A GREAT POWER IN PRAIRIE PROVINCES SERVED IN BOTH FEDERAL AND PROVINCIAL CABINETS

A Man of Great Wealth and Varied Financial Interests, He Owned the Manitoba Free Press and Other Western Canadian Papers.

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 17. — (C.P.) — Death came suddenly at ten o'clock this morning to Sir Clifford Sifton, one of Canada's outstanding public men, while he was in New York to consult a specialist in heart trouble, a disease from which he had been suffering for about two years.

Accompanied by members of his family, Sir Clifford had just arrived in New York this week from his winter home in Florida. He had an appointment with the heart specialist at the Roosevelt Hospital this morning, and soon after his arrival there he grew suddenly weak and expired in a few minutes. His youngest son, Harry Sifton, of Toronto, was with him when he died. Heart failure was given as the cause of death.

Sir Clifford in recent years has had his home in Toronto and there the funeral will be held and interment will take place. The funeral arrangements are not yet complete.

Major J. W. Sifton of Winnipeg, and son of the deceased told the Canadian Press this afternoon that the family would leave for Toronto with the body as soon as possible but a definite time for the departure had not yet been fixed.

Lady Sifton Died 4 Years Ago

Lady Sifton died about four years ago. Surviving sons of Sir Clifford are John W., of the Manitoba Free Press, Winnipeg, Manitoba; Harry A., financier, of Toronto; Clifford, Jr., barrister, of Toronto; and W. Victoran, of the Regina Leader and Post, Regina, Sask. Another son, Winfield, died last June.

Sir Clifford was a man of great wealth, with wide and varied financial interests. During his political career in Manitoba he acquired ownership of the Manitoba Free Press, which wielded a great influence throughout the prairie provinces. More recently with his sons he purchased a group of Saskatchewan daily papers, the Regina Leader, and Post, and Saskatoon Star and Phoenix.

Hon. Sir Clifford Sifton, K.C.M.G., K.C., of Toronto, Privy Councillor, former Minister of the Interior, lawyer and statesman, was for many years one of the most prominent public men of Canada. Of surpassing business ability, and possessing exceptional courage and independence of character, he towered above the average politician at Ottawa. Few men were better known in Canada than Sir Clifford Sifton. During his political activity he was regarded as one of the leaders of the Liberal party, and one of its best fighters.

Sir Clifford was called by Sir Wilfrid Laurier to the Federal Cabinet on Nov. 17, 1895, as Minister of the Interior and Superintendent-General of Indian Affairs. As Minister of the Interior he carried out a vigorous immigration policy, which added largely to the population of the Dominion. In the earlier period of his ministry he was specially charged with matters relating to the government of the Northwest Territories (now Saskatchewan and Alberta) and Yukon Territory and all unorganized and outlying territories of the Dominion. He introduced and carried through legislation at Ottawa giving responsible government to the Northwest Territories, 1898.

Resigned in 1905

On account of a difference of opinion with the Premier, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, over educational clauses of the Northwest Territory Autonomy Bill, Sir Clifford resigned from the Government, Feb. 27, 1905. He con-

BUS COLLIDES WITH TRUCK

Eight Passengers Received Severe Shaking Up Near Brantford To-day.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL.

BRANTFORD, Ont., April 17 (C.P.)—Eight passengers received a severe shaking up and one, a Mr. Long, who gave his address as Brantford, sustained cuts to his face and other minor injuries when a Nagara Safety Lines bus crashed into a parked truck alleged to be without light, on the highway two miles east of Princeton at 3.30 this morning. The passengers were taken to the Willett Hospital at Paris, where first aid was administered. All were discharged, however, after a brief stay. The bus driver was unnjured.

The bus was proceeding toward Buffalo on the Detroit-Buffalo run and a view of what lay ahead was momentarily obscured by the headlights of an automombile approaching from the opposite directon. The bus driver said he was thus unable to see a parked truck on his side of the road alleging that the vehicle carried no lights. Highway Traffic Officer Archer was soon at the scene of the mishap and has the case in hand. The bus was not badly damaged and was taken to Princeton for repairs. The passengers were sent on to Buffalo.

MACHINE GUN WAS NOT USED

Holes in Beamsville Windows Believed Caused By Sawed Off Shot Guns.

AMERICAN GANG.

HAMILTON, Ont., April 17.—(C.P.)—Police in charge of the Beamsville bank robbery are inclined to discredit the report that a machine gun was used by the bandits. The thieves may have had such a weapon in their car but it was not fired, the bullet holes in shop windows, etc., being caused by buck-shot from the sawed-off guns that were brought into action.

Inspectors Stringer, Ward and Gurnett are in charge of the case, and it is believed that the robbers were an American gang familiar with the Niagara district.

An amusing sidelight in connection with the affair was the adventure of Ted Brough, who was bringing his days receipts to the bank for deposit. He was waved back by a gunman, who prevented him from innocently entering to give the money to the teller.

The package of currency, which was wrapped up in the bank ready for mail, and overlooked by the bandits, was to-day stated to have contained $3,000

Premier King probably will want to postpone publication until he has tabled the correspondence in Parliament.

Original Breeches Bible Is Found In London

LONDON, Ont., April 17 (Canadian Press). — An original Breeches Bible, printed by Christopher Barker in London, England, in 1599, has been found in the Dr. P. D. Barnett collection now being catalogued by Prof. Fred London, librarian at the University of Western Ontario. The Breeches Bible gains its name from the rendering of Genesis: "They sewed fig leaves together and made themselves breeches."

A note in the fly leaf by Dr. Barnett says he bought the Bible in 1917 as one of a bundle of nine books, for which he paid 50 cents. It carries genealogical data for the Carmichael family from about 1768 to 1807.

James A. Robb, Finance Minister, in the House of Commons yesterday.

Opposition Censure Lost

Conservatives and Progressives Urge Action Upon the Government.

WANT OF CONFIDENCE VOTE.

Vote On Present Contract System is Defeated By 106 To 70.

OTTAWA, Ont, April 17.—(By the Canadian Press.)—The first attempt of the government, during the present session, to consider departmental estimates, met with a check in the House of Commons yesterday. A motion of Hon. James A. Robb, Minister of Finance, that the House go into committee of supply, was met with an amendment moved by Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Conservative member for South Wellington, calling for increased remuneration of rural mail carriers. Mr. Guthrie informed the House that the amendment to a supply motion implied want of confidence in the government.

The House divided on the amendment shortly before eleven o'clock. It was defeated by 36 votes. Votes cast against amendment numbered 106, and for 70. Support of the amendment came from all the Conservatives in the House and Messrs. Spencer, Vardiner, Kennedy, Speakman, Irvine and Luchkovich, of the U.F.A. group; Miss Agnes Macphail, Progressive, and Messrs. Woodsworth and Heaps, Labor. All the Liberals and Liberal-Progressives opposed the amendment, and also Messrs. Bourassa and Neill, Independents, Messrs Jelliff, B. W. Fansher, W. R. Fansher, and Carmichael, Progressives, and Adshead, Labor. As soon as the amendment was defeated, the House proceeded to consideration of Post Office Department estimates in committee of supply.

Present System Unfair.

The present system of awarding contracts for the delivery of rural mail by tender, was "unfair, burdensome and unsatisfactory," Mr. Guthrie declared in his amendment. He demanded that rural mail carriers be appointed by the Civil Service Commission upon a permanent basis with a definite rate of pay. There were approximately 4,000 rural mail routes in Canada, and the men working them had suffered grave injustice for years.

Other members from the Conservative side of the House supported Mr. Guthrie's case on behalf of the mail carriers. But C. G. Power (Liberal-Quebec South) saw in the action of the member for South Wellington a "good political maneuvre." In the evening, Hon. P. J. Veniot, Postmaster-General, defended his department. If the method of paying rural mail carriers recommended by Mr. Guthrie was carried out, the cost would rise from $2,825,317 to $4,977,905 he pointed out.

Cater To Employees.

There were carriers, declared Mr. Veniot, who received $1,000 a year, and others who had a trip of about forty-five miles were paid as much as $5,000 for their service. Ninety per cent of the contractors were farmers who used their own farm rigs for the rural mail work, so they did not have to pay anything for special equipment. The Conservatives, who had been in office from 1912 to 1921, and done nothing to improve the condition of the rural mail carriers, Mr. Veniot remarked. Now, however, they felt it necessary to lay down a policy in order to cater to those post office employees.

DIVISION ON DIVORCE BILL

Little Progress Is Made By House In Dealing With its Divorce Cases.

VOTE RECORDED.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 17 (Canadian Press). — One more Divorce Bill received second reading during the hour devoted to consideration of private bills, in the House of Commons last night. As in the case of the two bills which received second reading yesterday, a recorded vote was demanded. It resulted in the approval of the motion for second reading by 99 to 56, a majority of 43. The taking of the division combined with the debate which had preceded it exhausted the entire hour for private legislation.

Debate followed lines already laid down. Henri Bourassa (Independent, Labelle) complained that members had not time to read the record of evidence in these cases. The Senate committee, according to information given in the House yesterday, disposed of a divorce case in 25 minutes.

To this statement, Col. O. H. Geary (Conservative, Toronto South) replied that while some cases might be proved in 25 minutes, he had known of others which occupied an entire week before the Senate committee finally disposed of them.

NAVY EXISTS FOR EMPIRE

Sir Alfred Morine Asks Why Canada Does Not Contribute To British Fleet.

IS THERE HONEST REASON?

TORONTO, Ont., April 17.—(Canadian Press).—"Are the people of Canada so lost to all proper sense of their dignity that they will continue to let the British taxpayer pay for the entire cost of the navy?" demanded Sir Alfred Morine, formerly acting Premier of Newfoundland, before the Hydro Club here yesterday.

"The cost and control of the navy is entirely borne and exercised by Great Britain, and yet it clearly and almost solely exists for the protection and advantage of the Empire at large. Canada contributes nothing to its constitution or upkeep, and, of course, has no share in its control. It has, or had, the rudiments of a Canadian navy, and in some small degree such a navy might be of advantage to the empire at large" said Mr. Morine. He remarked, however, that such a Canadian navy could be of no benefit in time of war, owing to its size.

"Meanwhile, it is dignified that Canada should profit by a navy to the cost of which it does not contribute?" asked the speaker.

"Is there any honest and sufficient reason why Canada should not make a generous contribution annually to the cost of the British navy?" demanded Sir Alfred.

Advocating the institution of an Empire Parliament, to discuss imperial matters in an imperial spirit, Sir Alfred said 'each part of the Empire is thinking chiefly of its own domestic interests, and only remotely of Empire concern.

WINTER CROPS ARE HEALTHY

Prospects Are Bright This Spring On Farms in Ontario.

LITTLE HEAVING.

TORONTO, Ont., April 17.—(Canadian Press).—The month of April is the best in years for winter crops seems to express the feeling throughout the province according to the weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture made public yesterday.

There has been little "heaving" and cool moist weather is encouraging strong root growth. After several seasons of very severe winter and spring killing of alfalfa and clovers this favorable turn is of great economic importance. Some areas have been badly flooded but the total loss will not be great.

Seeding has commenced on high dry soils in central and western Ontario and as far east as Frontenac, Ont., but owing to the excess rain little progress has been made.

At Lambton cattle have been turned out to grass. The apple orchards of the district are at the stage of the pre-pink spray but the recent cold weather delayed the spraying.

The continued rainy and cool weather at Lincoln has been a great aid to the growth of fall wheat and clovers. In some cases fruit buds have advanced too far to apply with safety the dormant spray for scale.

Halton and Frontenac both report increased milk production. Cheese factories in the southern part of the country are running.

GANANOQUE TO HAVE OLD BOYS' RE-UNION

Old Home Week Will Be Staged From August 3 to 10.

Peterborough and Gananoque will have something in common this summer—an Old Home Week—for already, preparations are well under way in the latter town for the biggest Old Boys' and Girls' Reunion that has ever been held in that district.

Invitations have been sent out on neatly-prepared folders with a strong appeal to former Gananoque residents to come home for the week of August 3 to 10, and it is likely that the few who reside in Peterborough will regulate their holidays so as to be in the St. Lawrence town during that week.

BANK BANDITS SECURE $2,000 AT BEAMSVILLE

Attempts of Local Constable To Arrest Are Fought Off By Four Robbers.

UNITED STATES GANG.

Constables' Fire Halts Men From Looting Vault Where Large Sum Was.

BEAMSVILLE, Ont., April 17. — (C. P.) — Four bandits, armed with revolvers, a sawed off shot gun and with a machine gun mounted in a stolen automobile, raided the branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce here yesterday, and escaped with two thousand dollars. The bandits fought off the attempts of a local constable to halt them by returning his fire, and after changing to a second automobile some miles from the scene of the robbery were lost track of by the pursuers.

The second automobile bore a New York State license number, and a cap lost by one of the bandits had been purchased in Niagara Falls, N.Y.

With these clues to go on the police were convinced the robbery was the work of a gang from south of the border and all border points were being closely watched last night.

One Believed Wounded.

A blood stained handkerchief was found in the automobile which the robbers abandoned, and it is believed one of them was wounded in the exchange of shots with the constable.

After escaping from Beamsville the bandits drove five miles south to the Dunnville-Niagara Falls highway, discarded khaki trousers they were wearing and speeded off in the second machine which had been parked beside the road.

The robbery was carried out at 1.30 p.m. Three of the men entered the bank with the fourth acting as lookout man in the automobile parked across the street. A. B. Henderson, manager, R. L. Milne, teller, and E. W. Groff, junior, were in the bank. Mr. Henderson looked up to find himself looking into the barrel of a revolver. The others of the bank staff were similarly covered. The bandits wore handkerchiefs across their faces. Two jumped over the counter.

Funds Locked in Vault.

The manager and members of his staff were ordered to place their backs against the wall. One of the men entered the teller's cage and grabbed a package of bills containing $2,000. No other money was in sight, the greater part of the bank funds being locked in the vault. Apparently the robbers were aware of this and ordered the manager to open the vault.

It was at this point that Constable Juhlks made a dramatic appearance on the scene. A shot halted the bandit leader's command to the bank manager.

Constable Juhlks had noticed one of the bandits on guard near the doorway and opened fire. The bandits dashed to the door and fire flashed from their guns. Constable Juhlks, outnumbered, and in danger of fire from both the band and the lookout automobile, dashed into a store for cover. The look-out man used the sawed off shotgun in an attempt to bring the officer down. When the constable gained the shelter of the store the bandits dashed to their car and sped down the street.

Mail Carrier Gives Chase

O. S. Taft, a rural mail carrier, and Dr. Alexander Fairfield, Beamsville, gave chase, but warning shots were fired in their direction. As they were unarmed they were forced to keep a safe distance.

Later armed parties of citizens and police took up the pursuit.

The police have determined that the car used by the bandits in the raid was stolen from T. A. Hyman, Saltfleet, Ont. Hyman was sitting in the car at Hamilton Beach, at midnight last night, when two men ordered him to get out. They were armed and after robbing him of $43, returned 20 as "taxi fare" and drove off with his automobile.

Inspectors Miller and Stringer of the provincial police have taken charge of the search for the men, who were last reported heading toward Welland, Ont.

SOVIET WOULD LIMIT WARSHIPS TO 10,000 TONS

Soviet Proposal is Placed Before Commission On Disarmament.

PROPOSALS EXPLAINED.

Proposition Would Mean the Scrapping of 800,000 Tons of American Ships.

GENEVA, April 17 (C.P.).—Soviet disarmament proposals which would entail scrapping of 800,000 tons of American warships were explained today to the session of the preparatory commission on disarmament of the League of Nations.

General Alexander Langovov, Russian military expert, in defending and explaining his country's proposals, pleaded for a maximum of 10,000 tons displacement for warships as against 35,000 tons fixed by the Washington conference. He charged that the 10,000 cruisers being constructed now when they take the sea will have a displacement of 14,000 tons.

The Soviet proposals he explained as having four points:

First, Reduction instead of mere limitation of armaments.

Second, Extensive reduction of the armaments of larger countries but lesser reductions for smaller nations.

Third, Destruction of offensive armame... while purely defensive armaments are left untouched.

He called attention to the limit of 10,000 tons set for German warships by the Allies and said their action proved that size was as large as was needed for defense, and small enough to restrain owners from aggressive warfare.

Pickhard, president of the International Fumigators, Registered, was in his office in Buffalo yesterday, but he is now charged with manslaughter in connection with a local accident fatality which occurred Monday. Albert C. Field.

JUDGMENT IS RESERVED IN NORWOOD CASE

O'Conor - Fenton Appeal is Heard in Second Divisional Court.

F. D. KERR, K.C., APPEARS

Application is Result of Judgmen of Mr. Justice Rose Last Summer.

TORONTO, April 17.—(Special to The Examiner).—Second Divisional Court at Osgoode Hall yesterday reserved judgment on the appeal of Sophia and Nigel O'Connor-Fenton, of Norwood, Ont., taken from the judgment of Justice Rose, awarding $1,350 damages in favor of Fannie H. Ruttan in respect of injuries sustained when she was struck by a motor car driven by Nigel O'Conor-Fenton, who is described as a theological student. Sophia O'Connor-Fenton is his mother. Appellants pleaded that plaintiff stepped suddenly off the side of the road on the travelled part of the road and was consequently guilty of negligence. Discussing the speed at which the motor car was travelling, Justice Riddell said that he had travelled at 75 miles an hour and thought he was going at 30 miles an hour. F. D. Kerr, K.C., Peterborough, counsel for respondent, said that life and limb was far more important than pleasure and speed.

Justice Riddell, "jocularly": "What an antiquated idea, Mr. Kerr, I have got to that age where I think so." Justice Masten: "I don't think you need press that point, you have a pedestrian court here." Justice Orde: "I don't think these observations help, we are here to administer the law." Chief Justice Latchford: "The court is not unanimously pedestrian." "Laughter."

The one function of a dentifrice is to clean the teeth. No dentifrice can cure pyorrhea; no dentifrice can permanently correct an acid condition of the saliva. Any claim that any dentifrice can do them is false and misleading.

Why Colgate's has become CANADA'S FAVORITE TOOTHPASTE

The amazing story of Penetrating Foam . . . that cleans where the toothbrush cannot reach

The reason why more people use Colgate's than any other toothpaste is simply that it cleans teeth better.

Cleaning the teeth, say dentists, doesn't mean merely scrubbing the outer smooth surfaces. It means penetrating down into the thousands of tiny crevices in normal teeth and gums where food particles and mucin collect and where decay starts.

No toothbrush can reach these hard-to-clean places. They must be cleansed by the dentifrice.

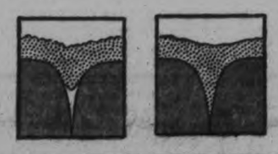
Hence the real test of your toothpaste is its ability to get down into these crevices and cleanse them thoroughly.

A recent scientific test proved that Colgate's has a greater penetrating power than any of the leading toothpastes on the market today. Colgate's superior penetrating power is due to the fact that it contains the world's greatest cleansing agent. When brushed, this cleansing agent bursts into a sparkling snow-white foam that sweeps over teeth and gums. This foam possesses a remarkable property (low "surface-tension") which enables it to go deep down into the tiny tooth crevices where decay starts. There, it dislodges clinging food particles and mucin, washing away these impurities in a detergent wave. In this foam is carried a fine chalk-powder—a polishing material used by dentists—which polishes the enamel safely, brilliantly.

Thus Colgates cleans and beautifies; purifies and refreshes the entire mouth, restoring natural loveliness of teeth and gums. If you have never used Colgate's, please try it.

How Colgate's Cleans Crevices Where Tooth Decay May Start

Greatly magnified picture of tiny tooth crevice. Note how ordinary, sluggish toothpaste (having high "surface-tension") fails to penetrate down where causes of decay lurk.



This diagram shows how Colgate's active foam (having low "surface-tension") penetrates deep down into the crevice, cleansing it completely where toothbrush cannot reach.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 17.—Selling orders flooded the wheat market yesterday, and prices broke 3½c to 3 7-8c. The local market followed Chicago's decline at the opening, and, despite a flood of buying at mid-season which brought the market up somewhat, weakness cropped up again, and the market struck low marks. Bearish news from the South-West States, where a large surplus of wheat is awaiting export, was responsible for the break. Cash wheat was in poor demand, with trading confined to grades Nos. 4, 5 and 6. The latter grades advanced about 1c, but the others held unchanged.

Oats and barley were active. The former eased slightly, but barley moved forward a fraction. Very little interest was taken in rye and flax, and the former broke to lower levels, in sympathy with wheat. Flax was unchanged.

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO, April 17. — Prices held steady on the local wholesale egg market yesterday in the face of very heavy receipts from country shippers. Dealers didn't expect heavy supplies to reach the market on account of the colder weather throughout the country checking production temporarily at least. Quotations appear to be firm and dealers were quoting country shippers for ungraded eggs, delivered, cases returned, as follows: Fresh extras, 26c per dozen; firsts, 24c; and seconds, 21c per dozen.

AGRICULTURE in Canada...

CANADA'S greatest industry undoubtedly is farming. Man still finds one of his greatest rewards in planting seed and reaping grain. The farmer is now recognized by all classes of Canadians as the most important producer Canada possesses.

But, this recognition has come only after years of the most heart-breaking toil, and a personal and individual struggle with nature in her varying moods that has made the farmer the truly noble figure he is today.

Life on the farm has been rendered more agreeable since the introduction of electricity. This great force lights the house, the barn and the stables; runs the churns, thrashes the wheat, milks the cows and makes possible the telephone.

Electricity is the servant that never loses its temper, never resigns and never has to be discharged.

The Northern Electric Company manufactures and sells many of the adjuncts that lighten the work of farm life—cables, wires, telephones, electric ranges, electric washers, electric irons and many other units that make possible the application of electricity.

Information...

The area of occupied field crops in 1918 was 51,427,190 acres, and in 1928 57,796,226 acres. Dominion Government estimates that there are approximately 2½ times the present acreage still available for agricultural purposes. This includes grazing lands and all lands possible of devotion to similar purposes.

THE BRITISH BUDGET.

The spectacular feature of the British budget and the one that will receive the largest measure of popular acclaim is the proposal to abolish the tax on tea.

The British people are a tea-drinking nation, and the relief afforded by the lifting of this 8-cents-per-pound tax on their favorite beverage will be appreciated by almost every one in the British Isles.

In that respect Winston Churchill has undoubtedly produced an election budget.

Beyond this concession the abolition of the turnover tax on betting and some revision of the liquor trade taxes there is nothing of outstanding importance.

Mr. Churchill's figures tell their own story of an honest British facing of huge financial obligations, the meeting of the nation's foreign war debts and substantial reduction in the national debt.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer was able to announce a balanced budget, with an estimated expenditure of £822,584,000 and estimated revenue of £826,680,000, leaving a probable surplus of £4,096,000.

WHY NOT THE INTEREST?

The appeal prepared by James R. Dixon of Ottawa, urging the payment of interest on all refunds made from time to time by the Dominion Government, while designed primarily to secure this right for automotive dealers who suffered as a result of sales tax charges, is so manifestly based on common sense and common fairness that it will be difficult to refuse it.

The principle of Governments paying interest on all moneys held by them and refundable to citizens has long since been adopted by the United States, and there seems no logical reason why it should not apply to Canadian practice.

It is surely evident that, as was pointed out several years ago by Right Honorable Arthur Meighen, that where there is a claim for principal there is an equally strong claim for interest.

If the Government believes it fair to refund money that it has no right to hold, there is no reason why it should not pay the interest that accrued on that money; it does not belong to anybody, surely, but to the rightful owners of the sums that had been withheld.

THE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

W. H. Young, president of the Peterborough Horticultural Society, advances a new reason why the membership of the organization should be greater.

"I have heard it remarked," he says, "that there are many people who do not care to do gardening, and that is the reason why they don't join the society. But they are the people we want, because we who love flowers and gardening are willing to take the trouble to make beauty spots round the city, but need financial assistance to do so. Their dollars would help us, and they could enjoy the beauty without any trouble to themselves."

Thus the Horticultural Society appeals both to active amateur gardeners and to those who have no particular liking for the work involved in horticulture.

Both classes should have much greater representation in the organization.

There is something lacking here when centres with smaller population than Peterborough can show a membership of over 1,000, while the local society had less than 200 last year.

In this Old Home Week year there is a special incentive for citizens to ally themselves with the Peterborough Horticultural Society and help to make the city beautiful and attractive for our visitors.

THE TARIFF WILL GO UP.

President Hoover's message at the opening of the extra session of Congress gives Canadian farmers little ground for hoping that pre-election promises of higher tariff on farm products entering the United States will not be carried out.

The President's references to the tariff indicate that he is prepared to support the movement to raise agricultural rates—in fact, it is predicted that in the case of some products the United States tariff will be so high as to be prohibitive.

Mr. Hoover declares that an effective tariff upon agricultural products will not only protect the farmer in the domestic market but also stimulate him to diversify his crops and grow products that he could not otherwise produce, and that the American farmer, having been handicapped in his foreign market by competition from foreign countries, it is but fair that he should ask to have access to the American market made difficult for such countries.

If that does not mean higher tariff on agricultural products, it means nothing.

The hope expressed in some quarters that Mr. Hoover would hesitate to support an upward revision of the farm products tariff for fear of offending Canada has been shown to be a vain one.

The American market is to be kept for the American producer—and Canada will have to seek some other outlet for her exportable farm surplus.

MAKE THEM WORK.

(From the Border Cities Star)

Not long ago Mr. Justice Raney suggested that prisoners in county jails should be employed at some useful occupation. His proposal was that proceeds from their work be applied to maintenance of the institutions in which they were incarcerated. It might be better, however, to hand over their earnings to those dependent upon them because many a family is destitute when the breadwinner is behind prison bars.

In police court yesterday a prisoner was sent to jail for 30 days when convicted of drunkenness. About the middle of January an order was issued by the magistrate instructing the man in question to support his wife and three children. Twice, during the time the mandate was in effect, he was charged with intoxication and convicted. The third time was the charm, in his case, and he will be a ward of the county for the next month.

There was no course open to the magistrate but to impose a jail sentence in this case. The wife and family of the offender have done no wrong, but under our penal system they must share in his punishment. While he is cared for at the county's expense, the woman and her little ones may lack food, clothes and a proper shelter. Prison reform in Ontario has made rapid strides in the past twenty years, but until the Government works out some scheme whereby prisoners are made to support those dependent upon them, our punitive machinery will remain a long way short of perfection.

"PATRIOTISM IS NOT ENOUGH."

On this page on Wednesday, Bishop Brent of New York, who is Canadian-born, was quoted as saying:

"As a boy, I looked on every people but those of the land of my birth with unbelievable arrogance. Patriotism was loud shouting—the exaltation of our own national life to the disadvantage and humiliation of our national neighbors. Times are slowly changing. We are slowly but inevitably beginning to view mankind as intended by God to be a family."

The Bishop's observations drive one "furiously to think." Most people will recognize the first stage of his experience at least. Whatever was different from that to which we were accustomed in our native land was bound to be inferior. It may, of course, only have been different, but because it was that, it must be properly despised.

As for those who had not the good fortune to have been born within the same national boundaries as ourselves, well, they were just foreigners, that's all. They belonged to those "lesser breeds without the law," to use Kipling's hard phrase.

Emerson in one of his essays told of an English lady travelling on the Rhine and who overheard a German speaking of her party as foreigners. "No; we are not foreigners," she exclaimed, "we are English; it is you that are foreigners." Had that lady been warned by someone that such an attitude was "unbelievable arrogance" she would probably have been most surprised. Perhaps as much surprised as the old lady in the story with which Hon. Vincent Massey, now Canada's minister to the United States, convulsed members of the Canadian Club of Ottawa in his last address to them when he said that, not until she was on her deathbed, did she realize that the term "Damyankee" comprised two words. To such good souls things just naturally were so, that was all, and the surprising thing was that anybody should see anything offensive in such an attitude.

This sort of thing had its humorous side, of course. Spencer Leigh Hughes, that sprightly soul whose witticisms once contributed so freely to the gaiety of nations, used to say that in England there were some who took the simple line that "all foreigners are fools," and that everything that was good was necessarily English in origin.

To such people the Bible was really an English publication, even as Christmas was an English festival established by Charles Dickens. He told of an old lady who protested against the Lamentations of Jeremiah being translated into French. She declared there was something positively indecent in trying to convey these melancholy reflections to the reader through so lively a medium.

It used to be the fashion to characterize everything as "quite English," or "un-English," as the case may be, he said, and gave an amusing instance of this sort of thing from a newspaper report of an engagement in the Boer War. In the same column there was a scornful allusion to the Boers for "skulking and sneaking behind rocks," while later on an English regiment called on to advance, did so, "cleverly taking advantage of cover." The fact was, he commented, that both sides were sheltering themselves as much as possible but that which was sneaking and skulking on the other side was proof of intelligence on one's own.

"My country, right or wrong," seemed to be the attitude of many. But as G. K. Chesterton once remarked: "One might as well say: 'My mother, drunk or sober.'"

Exactly 21 years ago this month Hon. Alfred Lyttleton, one of the kindliest souls who ever attained to high political office, and who was Colonial Secretary in the Balfour Government, caused something of a flutter by a speech he made on the pretensions of Western nations. These were, he said, that they should freely complete throughout the whole East upon terms of absolute equality with the inhabitants of those lands, while the Easterns were to have no access whatever to the West, or to those portions of it where their competition was likely to be formidable. That pretension brought them into a strange and rather serious region of thought, he said. "Free competition in your land; monopoly in ours," that was the doctrine. And such a principle could only be maintained and asserted by force.

It would be a tremendous thing, said Lyttleton, if all other races united to combat "pretensions so paradoxical."

As Bishop Brent remarked: "Times are slowly changing." For one thing the Great War has forced men to consider diligently. And if it be true, as the Bishop says: "that we are slowly but inevitably beginning to view mankind as intended by God to be a family," it simply means we are coming a little nearer to a proper appreciation of the great truth with which Paul startled the philosophers of Greece in his address on Mars' Hill, when he said: "He (God) hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times appointed, and the bounds of their habitation."

Nurse Cavell of revered and poignant memory, as she went to execution, refused malediction on her murderers, but said: "I realize that patriotism is not enough."—Ottawa Journal.

GOOD STUFF.

Combine seriousness of right purposes with a little sense of humor; give frequent evidences of genuine happiness, then a little sincere sympathy; engage in some intelligent and commendable service, then take a little time to play; save something every week for sickness, and some day you will say this was good advice.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

MOTHERS-IN-LAW

There's a legend of old, there's a slanderous tale,
That a mother-in-law is the curse of the male—
At the wedding she weeps, as f daughter had died, W
Then she comes to the house where you carry your bride,
And she finds it is wrong, and in various ways,
Yet she stays and she stays and she stays and he stays,
And you find you are wed, but you never oresaw
It was not to the bride, but your mother-in-law.
But you'll learn in good time, as all married men do,
If she wept at the wedding, the tears were for you.
If she comes to the house, with the wedding complete,
It's to see that you get something decent to eat.
If she didn't drop in now and then, I'm afraid,
Not a room would be swept, no a bed would be made.
And the time isn't far when you'll give an hurrah
When you come home at night and find mother-in-law.
When the babies arrive, then the married man's curse
Is the cook and the maid and the doctor and nurse.
There is gray in her hair, but the mother endures;
She has raised all her own, now she helps to raise yours.
And the world runs along without jolting or jar,
Thanks to mothers-in-law and the help that they are.
In the gamble of love, then the prize that you draw
Often isn't the wife but the mother-in-law.
There are songs to our mothers, the good that they do,
But a fellow will find God ha given him two.
One one of his mothers he hasn't a claim,
But she helps him and serves and loves him the same.
Though she mothered her own in the days that have been,
There is room in her heart for what daughter brings in.
And the er best friend that a man ever sa
Ful many a time is his mother-in-law.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE TAKE OATH

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.
(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

From the President of the United States to the constable of a small town, every public servant takes his oath of office. The administration of the oath to the president is made the occasion of great pomp and elaborate ceremony. The eyes of the nation and of the world are focused on Washington during the day of the inaugural.

The oath is also administered by the court to all witnesses. "Cross my heart and hope to die," we say in private conversation when there is necessity of assuring some one that we are serious and mean to do as we say without evasion or equivocation.

In a certain sense all oaths are a reflection on common honesty. In taking oath one is virtually saying "I don't ordinarily tell the truth, but this time I'm going to make an exception."

The official oath, however, adds to the solemnity of the occasion. It is a public declaration of honest intent. The oath makes it easier to remain loyal and harder to do otherwise. The evangelist makes effective use of this principle to keep his convert in the straight and narrow path. Every convert is asked to come forward and make a public confession of his faith before the whole congregation. After the emotional excitement of the service the tendency is to slip back into his old ways of living. But the fact that he has taken a public stand serves as an extra stimulus to try to live up to expectations. He knows that others are watching him and will ridicule him in case he breaks his word.

The religious element plays an important part in all oaths. The fact that a Bible is used in the ceremony proves this. The religious sanction adds weight and dignity. Respect for the deity serves to reinforce respect for the law.

Common ordinary swearing is also called an oath because it resembles the official type in that the name of the deity is called upon. This is considered sacrilegious because the occasion is usually trivial and the motive anything but religious. The oath as a curse and a swear word is so cheap and common that it fails to impress. It is decidedly vulgar. The official oath is reserved for special occasions. It is emphatic and carries conviction. One who has the habit of swearing does it often that it is more emphatic for him when he does not use an oath.

The important thing in any oath is the motive. We take oaths of office to impress others and to confirm our own resolution to live up to the obligations imposed by the oath.

Why do you do what you do? Ask Dr. Thomson. Write him care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

It was like escaping from prison she thought as she shut the door against her aunt's silent disapproval on Sunday afternoon and hurried to the corner to catch an omnibus.

She had put on her best clothes which were simple enough, and she wondered vaguely how smart Mrs. Inglis would be, and if there would be any other people there besides herself.

Chelsea always sounded to Ana like another world.

It was half-past four when she reached the address Drake had given her, and found it was a flat.

There were peculiar coloured curtains at the windows, shot with sunset colours, and when the door was opened to her she heard the chatter of several voices and much laughter.

The girl who admitted her was obviously a maid, but she wore no cap or apron, and she was rather inclined to be friendly. Her eyes were critical too, as she looked Ana up and down.

"I should like to box her ears," Ana thought indignantly. And the next moment she was shaking hands with Drake's sister.

Mrs. Inglis was very smartly dressed as Ana had expected, and she had changed the colour of her hair since the days when Miss Sawyer's circle in Wimbledon had been so shocked by the lurid stories of her past life. But she was cheery and smiling, and Ana felt at home with her at once.

"So romantic, your meeting with Tom," she said. She was puffing away at a cigarette all the time, and she wore long blue earrings which jingled pleasantly as she moved. "Poor lamb! he's a frightful cripple still, but ever so cheery. Here he is!"

She led the way across the big room to a couch where Drake was sprawling inelegantly, with a lot of expensive cushions rumpled disgracefully beneath his head.

He looked very pleased to see Ana; he squeezed her hand hard.

"Arm all right again?" he asked. "Jove, we had a narrow escape, didn't we?"

"I'm quite all right," Ana said. "And you?"

"I shall be driving a car again soon," he told her.

There were two other women in the room whom Mrs. Inglis introduced.

"We're all Bohemians," she said with a careless wave of her hand. "This is Roy Summers—she's by way of being an artist—and this is Jessica—we call her the 'First Prayer'—she dabbles in poetry."

Ana looked at the two women shyly. They were both rather made-up and flashily dressed, but instinctively she liked them. They had friendly eyes and an easy manner.

"I suppose you'll have tea," Drake's sister said. "Tom said you would. We're swilling cocktails. I hope you're not shocked, but there is tea on the table over there. Help yourself, will you?"

"This is what is called the 'Free and easy life'," Drake said with a twinkle. "And I'll have tea too, if you'll pour me a cup."

Ana obeyed. She felt rather as if she were in a dream. The room was quite different to any room she had seen before. It had a polished floor with a few bright coloured rugs here and there, and it was barely furnished save for the big divan on which Tom Drake was sprawled, and a few little tables and chairs. There were no pictures, but two tall lamps with peacock-coloured shades stood at opposite ends, and there was a small oak dresser laden with bottles and glasses and a box of cigarettes.

"So you still live in Wimbledon, you poor dear!" Drake's sister said. "I cleared out. It was too much for me. I hate respectability as much as a cat hates water."

"It is rather an awful place," Ana agreed. She wondered what Miss Sawyer would say if she could see her. She wondered what she would think of Roy Summers and the First Prayer. It struck her as all being intensely funny. Drake himself was the only ordinary-looking one in the room—besides herself, Ana thought, catching a sudden glimpse of her reflection in a small mirror on the wall. She knew that she looked ordinary enough, in her plain inexpensive frock and uninteresting hat. And yet she had worn that hat the first time Anthony looked at her as if he loved her—to him she had been neither plain nor ordinary.

She stifled a sigh and carried Drake his tea.

"I was glad to get out of hospital, I can tell you," he was saying. "Next time I get smashed up, no hospitals for me. I'll come home if I have to walk on two broken legs."

"Meaning my home!" Mrs. Inglis explained. "Poor lamb! it's the best he's got. Not much comfort about the place, is there? But you ought to have seen the sublime joy in his face when he saw me."

"You're better than the walking bottle of vinegar who looked after me in hospital," Drake said emphatically. "She had a face like a——"

"She couldn't help her face," Roy Summers said with a chuckle.

"No; but she might have tried to improve it," Drake answered.

"And that reminds me," his sister interrupted. "Who do you think I saw in town yesterday, Roy? I forgot to tell you. Why, that pig Ralph Mahon."

Ana started and flushed. She moved her lips to speak, then kept silent.

"He was with a jolly pretty girl, too," Mrs. Inglis went on. "He didn't see me, and I'm glad of it. I didn't want to speak to him."

"I should think not," Roy agreed.

Ana spoke for the first time.

"Ralph Mahon! I think I know him. Hasn't he an invalid wife?"

"Yes; poor devil!" Roy said.

"He's got a house at Lyme Regis where I've been staying," Ana said. "The people I stayed with are friends of his."

"Oh, are they!" Mrs. Inglis spoke with a faint sneer. "Well, he's a man I can't stand. He makes me creep."

"I wonder who the girl was?" Roy said reflectively.

Ana's heart gave a little throb. She thought she knew.

"Tall, slim, well-dressed, very pretty but rather discontented looking," Drake's sister described her. "I daresay she was wishing she was with somebody more attractive than Ralph. She was pretty enough to have had the most topping man in the world with her."

"So she could have had," Ana thought.

"So you know him, Miss Fabian?" Roy Summers said interestedly.

"Not very well. I've only met him through the Hambledons."

"I met him in Monte Carlo—at least we did, didn't we, Tom?" Florrie Inglis said.

"Yes. I didn't think he was such a bad chap," Drake said, with a man's tolerance.

"My lamb, you think all geese are swans," his sister told him witheringly. "She'll be saying that about you as soon as you've gone," Drake said to Ana with a grin.

Ana laughed.

"I don't mind. She won't mean it unkindly."

She liked Florrie Inglis. Divorced or not, there was something about her that greatly attracted one.

"Ana and I are going to be friends," Mrs. Inglis declared. "You see I call you Ana—we all call one another by our Christian names, don't we, girls?"

"You don't call me by mine," the First Prayer said. It was the first time she had spoken, and her voice was startlingly deep, almost like a man's.

"If First Prayer isn't a Christian name I don't know what is!" Roy protested.

"Do you live with your sister?" Ana asked Drake.

"It's my official address," he answered; "but I wander about."

"He's the curse that invariably comes home to roost," Florrie explained. "Only when I'm broke," Drake declared. "Florrie's the wealthy one in this family, you see, and it's up to her to support her poor relatives."

"Yes; Inglis certainly did you one good turn," Roy said.

"And what was that?" Mrs. Inglis demanded.

"Giving you that marriage settlement."

"Oh, that! If I'd known half I know now when it was made, it would have been twenty times as much," Florrie declared. But there was nothing vindictive in the words; she was quite cheery and laughing.

"Poor old Inglis!" she said. "He was quite nice at first, too."

"They all are," the First Prayer said sententiously. She looked at Ana. She had big, solemn eyes that were set like jewels in her painted face.

"Are you engaged or anything funny like that?" she asked.

Ana shook her head.

"Oh, no."

"That's right; keep clear of the men," Roy advised cheerily. "As the First Prayer says, they're all right to start with, but once they've got you they change, poor dears; it's human nature not to value the thing that is yours for keeps."

"Anthony wouldn't be like that," Ana thought with a pang.

It was late when she got home. Roy Summers had a car—an extravagant two-seater, painted white and upholstered in red morocco—and she insisted on driving Ana out to Wimbledon.

"But Wimbledon's off the earth for you," Ana protested. "I really cannot allow it."

But Roy overruled her. "My time's my own and life is long," she declared.

She drove at a terrific rate. She told Ana she had been had twice for speeding.

"Next time I shan't get off so lightly," she said with a chuckle. She stopped at Miss Sawyer's gate with a jerk.

"This where you live?" she asked.

"Yes; with an aunt," Ana told her.

"I live in a top attic not far from Florrie's," Roy explained. "Come and see me some day. Bye-bye," and she was gone.

Ana let herself into the house quietly. She had insisted on bringing the latch key, though as a rule she was not allowed to have it.

"You will not have to wait up for me if I am late," she told her aunt.

"Wait up! I thought it was to be merely a tea party," Miss Sawyer said.

But Ana knew enough to know that sometimes tea parties go on well into the night, and in this case she had been right.

It was not far from midnight when she took off her shoes in the hall and tiptoed up to bed.

She felt quite guilty at such unusual dissipation, and on a Sunday of all days! And yet she had enjoyed herself immensely.

"As much as I shall ever enjoy myself again," she sighed as she undressed.

And she thought of the little cottage on the hill by the sea. Tom Drake was a nice man, but compared with Anthony Hambledon——"

"I love him—every bit of me loves him," Ana thought achingly. "And oh, why need Life step in and spoil a thing that might have been so perfect."

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS— by John Hix

CANADIAN LEGION B.E.S.L.

Peterborough Branch

Monday's meeting transacted a great deal of business—probably the biggest slate the local branch has had, and the most varied in interest. The enthusiasm shown by members was encouraging, and no subject passed without a share of discussion.

The new code of by-laws was adopted, with amendments. Copies will be displayed in the Legion Hall as soon as possible, and these by-laws are effective at once.

With the increasing work due to new cases requiring attention more money is needed for the Legion. It is believed that the people of Peterborough desire to see justice, and maybe a little better than justice, given war veterans, and another opportunity will be given for practical support in May.

It is planned to hold a three-day carnival, on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, May 15, 16 and 17, with many attractions. Full value will be given the public, and a real good time is promised.

Those present at the meeting volunteered unanimously to give every assistance possible. It is planned to do all the work by volunteer effort, so that the expense of hiring outside help may be eliminated.

There will be booths to erect, decorations to put up, booths to man every evening, and a minstrel concert to plan and arrange. The concert, it is planned, will last half an hour, and will be repeated four times every evening.

Volunteers are needed, and members are invited to notify the president, who was last night appointed chairman of the special committee, what they are willing to do.

The president was instructed by the meeting to name a special committee of management and announces the following: J. F. Strickland, J. A. McNabb, I. P. McNabb, J. F. H. Wallace, F. Hills, F. T. Hart, Dr. H. M. Yelland, H. J. Boyle, R. M. Glover, R. Haddow, C. E. Jamieson, G. R. Melton, M. H. Park, C. H. Rogers, W. R. Turner, and R. H. Turner.

Dr. N. H. Sutton, first vice-president of the Legion, will be second-in-command, and the Legion treasurer, R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne will also be treasurer for the show.

This committee will meet in the Legion office on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock to make a preliminary survey of the plans.

Sub-committees will then be appointed, one for each booth and attraction, and the Ladies' Auxiliary will be invited to assist in a very practical way.

This is a big effort, and the help of every member is positively necessary if it is to succeed.

Voice of the People

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner Office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Are you helping the Horticultural Society to put Peterborough on the map? Do you know that some places with a much smaller population can boast of a membership exceeding 1,000, while last year we had less than 200. Do you prefer seeing unsightly, untidy places or would you rather have shrubs or flowers kept neat and tidy. I have heard it remarked that there are not many people who care to do gardening and that is the reason they don't join the society. But they are the people we want, because we who love our flowers and gardening are willing to take the trouble of making beauty spots around the city, but we need financial aid to do so, and their dollar would help us and they can enjoy the beauty without any trouble to themselves. I am very much pleased with the campaign which the Examiner is sponsoring, and although I have not sent in my name on their coupon I am with them and will do all I can to have beautiful surroundings. I also read with pleasure Marion's hints on beautifying ones home which appeared in the Whatnot. Surely some good will be the reward of all this effort. Now a word or two about the Lilium Auratum bulbs which the society is giving this year. This is the handsomest of all lilies, has been grown almost 8 feet tall with blooms 12 inches in diameter, but we may not be able to attain that size here. Grown in pots we will do well to get them four or five feet. Bulbs, if planted in the garden, must be put down about 8 inches and to do well should be in a well drained spot. Some sand placed around the bulb is beneficial, but on no account place manure, new or old, in contact with the bulb. In the fall cover the ground with a mulch of straw or old cut-down plants. They may also be grown in pots of from 6 to 8 inch diameter. Place a crack over the hole in the bottom. Half fill the pot with good soil, press the bulb well in. After growth is well started you will notice rootlets sprouting from the stem. It is then time to fill up the pot to within an inch of the rim. Weak stimulants may be used when signs of bloom appear. Stand the pot outdoors, placing something under the pot to keep out worms. Placing the pots behind some tall growing plant is best, so that it does not get the direct rays from the sun. Bring indoors when blooms are nearly developed. Now see who can grow the best lily. Prizes will be awarded at blooming time for cut blooms, also for pot plants. Join the Peterborough Horticultural Society by paying $1.00 and receive 2 bulbs of this beautiful lily. Send your subscription to S. T. Harris, Secretary, 139 Simcoe street.

W. H. YOUNG, President.

LEFT HAND TURN.

Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—I have just read the letter printed in the Voice of the People column concerning the left hand turn on George Street.

I wish to say that the person who wrote that letter did not have much of an idea of safety. The people in this city are no more educated to the use of that sign than the person who wrote the article on Monday night.

People do not wait for the green sign to flash. If there is any doubt about that, watch the corner after the shows get out or on Saturday at noon. He also mentioned about merchants profiting by this left hand turn.

If a stranger comes into town and sees the sign with no left hand turn under it, and one of the busses turns into him, what is he to think about the two laws for the same corner? And if it comes down to law, who is right? Accidents will always happen. Take at Belleville, where there is twice the traffic and you can make a left hand turn. There are no more accidents here with the present law.

Every truck driver in this city will agree with me about the left hand turn.

Yours very truly,

A TRUCK DRIVER.

RE LEFT HAND TURN.

Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—As every car driver knows, the left hand turn at Charlotte and George Streets can be taken nine times out of ten without any hazard whatever. Why then unnecessarily force a driver to negotiate a difficult corner at Charlotte and Water, another corner at Simcoe and Water, and in order to get back on the main street, another corner at Simcoe and George, thereby increasing your street congestion, and making three hazards where none existed?

By allowing a left hand turn does not necessarily mean one has to take it, if traffic conditions do not warrant. Why, then, force a driver to take the above mentioned hazards when they could be avoided with a left hand turn?

SAFETY.

NOT FOUNDED ON BIBLE.

To the Editor: A former Methodist minister of our city stated if "trinity" was not in the Bible, it ought to be there. What a wonderful man he is—knowing more than the Author of the Bible. Possibly he might have suggested an improvement on creation—if he had been on hand.

Some people would like to persuade others that their erroneous and absurd theories are substantiated by the Bible. The doctrine of the Trinity, as taught by the clergy, is not only false but confusing, and of course is not found in the Bible.

In the beginning of the fourth century the doctrine of the trinity was formulated, and an endeavor made to reconcile it with the belief in one God. If Jesus was God, and that it was God that died to redeem mankind, then for three days the universe was without a God.

The trinitarians practically deny the redemption of the human race, for a divine being could not be a ransom price for a human being. A ransom must be an exact corresponding price, nothing more and nothing less.

The life of Jesus, who was a perfect man, was the ransom price paid to redeem the perfect life lost by Adam.

Jesus and the Father are not the same in being, nor in substance, nor in individuality. John 5:30, 36, 37; John 12:49; John 11:41, 42; John 16:27; Luke 22:29; John 5:26; Rev. 1:18; John 17::1; John 14:28; I Tim. 2:5, 6.—M. T. Butcher.

TRADING QUIET ON MINE CURB

Irregularity in Higher-Priced Stocks Features Session On Standard.

OIL GROUP STEADY.

TORONTO, Ont., April 17 (C.P.).—Irregularity marked the trading in the higher-priced stocks on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day, but aside from this little change was shown in the list. Trading was very quiet and the list very narrow. Noranda regained 60 cents to 51.60, while Pend Oreille broke to 6.10, for a loss of 65 cents. Hollinger was up 20 at 7.25, as McIntyre at 19.00 and Ventures at 10.25.

The oils were inclined to steady toward the noon-hour, with Home showing a net advance of 50 cents to 22.25, Associated 55 to 5.25, and Southwest Petroleum 40 to 4.90. oFothills was off 50 at 7.50.

Falconbridge Nickel came out 40 cents higher at 11.00, while Sudbury strengthened 5 to 8.90.

Chicago Wheat Prices Take Early Declines

CHICAGO, Ill., April 17. (C.P.) — Fresh downturns in wheat values took place early to-day owing to continued selling out of holdings purchased on prospects of advances because of farm legislation. Relative steadiness of the Liverpool wheat market however, helped to check declines here.

Opening 1-8 to 1-4c off Chicago wheat afterward rallied somewhat. Corn developed strength starting at 7-8c decline to 5-8c advance, and subsequently rising all around. Oats were easy. Provisions tended downward.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 17.—(C.P.)— Foreign exchange steady; demand rates, (in cents): Great Britain 844 15-16; Canadian Dollars at 13-16 of one per cent. discount

OIL SECTION HOLDS STEADY

Unlisted Issues Are Especially Quiet On Toronto Exchange.

MASSEY-HARRIS GAINS.

TORONTO, Ont., April 17 (Canadian Press).—With the exception of the industrial stocks, which showed a general improvement prices continued to hesitate on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. The unlisted section was especially quiet, where, with the exception of the oils, only about 15 stocks appeared, many of these having a turnover of only 10 and 15 shares. International Nickel was quiet and held ¼ point higher at 48¼, while British American Oil was the only active member of its section and was fractionally stronger at 51½.

Led by a substantial advance in Massey-Harris, the industrial group all showed improvement. Massey-Harris held close to the morning's high at 74 3-8, up 2 3-8 points. Standard Steel came out 4 points stronger at 46, while the Preferred moved up 2 to 40. Cockshutt Plow was two points higher at 41, and Page Hersey 1 7-8 at 129 7-8. Gypsum and Alabastine advanced 2 to 115, and City Dairy the same amount to 41.

MANY ISSUES SET RECORDS

New York List Becomes Firmer Under Fresh Buying Operations.

CALL MONEY PLENTIFUL.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 17 (Canadian Press). — Trading in to-day's stock market continued relatively light in volume but prices displayed a firmer undertone as fresh buying operations appeared in the oils, coppers, foods, Chemicals, and an assortment of specialties. At least 15 issues moved into new high ground for the year, many of the extreme gains running from 3 to 12 points.

Call money renewed at 3 per cent. and appeared to be in plentiful supply at that figure, with no calling of loans reported up to early afternoon.

Lifting of selling pressure from U. S. Steel Common, which had sagged 2 points to 182¾ on liquidation by holders, disappointed at the terms of the new stock offering and then regained its loss, had a bullish effect on sentiment. Further weakness also cropped out in Superior Steel, which sold down to 53 as against a recent high of 75¾, but the other independents received good buying support.

Threats of a further drastic cutting of cigarette prices brought fresh selling into the tobacco stocks.

Heavy buying of Sinclair featured the revival of speculative activity in the oil group.

New peak prices for the year also were registered by Adams Express, American Can., Belding-Hemingway, Marine Preferred, Crex Carpet, Glidden, Marmon Motors, and Phillips-Jones.

Without Causing Any Undue Disturbance Josephine Disappears From Police Station

Little has been said, and less has been done by way of solving the mysterious disappearance from the headquarters of city police, on Easter Monday of "Josephine" alias "Joe" well known to local civic authorities through her frequent appearance in the police station and court room. The city police are frankly puzzled.

Taking advantage of unusual freedom of the corridors, and without having given any hint of her rash intentions, Josephine departed, apparently unescorted, sometime over the Easter week-end, and only one fleeting glimpse of her vanishing figure has since been seen. That was on Easter Monday morning when a constable is said to have noted her passing, neatly garbed in grey fur, and oblivious to the concern that she must have known to be occasioned by her disappearance. The police matron feels most keenly the loss of her affections, and her sorrow is shared by most of the female members of the city offices—for Josephine was a comely kitten and a loveable cat.

Toronto Industrials In Favor Of O.B.A.A.

TORONTO, April 17.—At its annual meeting last night at the West End Y.M.C.A. the Toronto Industrial Association Senior Baseball League voted in favor of the O.B.A.A.'s method of raising funds—that of taxing intermediate and senior clubs 25 cents for every player's certificate signed. The discussion at the meeting showed that the O.B.A.A. had spent most of its revenue in transporting minor teams throughout the province in their play-off series, and as this was decidedly beneficial in the promotion of amateur baseball, the T.I.A. felt that the O.B.A.A. was justified in seeking this way to replenish its treasury.

SPEAKER WANTS TO RESIGN CHAIR

Canadian House Holds Secret Session—Wants Rulings Sustained.

ASKS FOR CONFIDENCE VOTE

OTTAWA, Ont., April 17 (Canadian Press).—Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux will retain the speakership, messengers will not visit the vendors for thirsty commoners, and the police will continue to patrol the corridors. This was the outcome of the secret session of 90 minutes yesterday. There may be some relaxation of the edict on messengers and police, but Mr. Lemieux's sonorous tones will continue to call the members to order.

When the Commons met in secret session, Speaker Lemieux made an impassioned address, calling upon the commoners to sustain him in his rulings, and his position, which he declared he would resign if there was not a strong expression of confidence given by the commoners.

MAY APPEAL WINDSOR CASE

Attorney-General Asks For Complete Report On Bohme Case.

TRIED ON MONDAY.

TORONTO, Ont., April 17 (Canadian Press).—It is possible the Attorney-General's Department will appeal the decision of Magistrate Brodie at Windsor, Ont., who on Monday last dismissed a Liquor Control Act charge based on a complaint that beer was served a ta banquet held in a Windsor hotel.

Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General, announced yesterday he had ordered a complete report of the case. After reading the report he will decide whether or not an appeal will be entered.

The charge which Magistrate Brodie dismissed was laid against Harry H. Bohme, president of the Border Cities Post of the American Legion. Bohme claimed he was a temporary resident of the rooms in which the drinking occurred, and although tickets were sold to the banquetters, he had bought the liquor himself.

SOVIET PLAN IS BEFORE LEAGUE

Russian Commissar Makes Dramatic Disarmament Speech to League.

LESSEN MENACE OF WAR

GENEVA, April 17.—(Canadian Press).—Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet vice-commissar for foreign affairs, renewed his appeal for extensive world-wide partial disarmament in a dramatic speech before the preparatory commission on disarmament of the League of Nations yesterday.

The Russian spoke in English, another of his delegation sitting beside him and handing him sheets of his manuscript as he needed them. He held everyone's rapt attention as he argued that rejection of the Soviet scheme meant a dashing of peoples' hope for reduction of armament burdens.

He expressed his disapproval of "repeated attempts of certain statesmen to minimize the importance of the Kellogg Pact renouncing war and said he even feared that the attempts to minimize the pact were made with a view to creating extenuating circumstances for possible infringements or to weaken its importance as a starting point for a demand for disarmament.

He declared the Kellogg Pact was no less binding for its participants and presented no newer guarantees of security than, for instance, the Locarno agreements. On the other hand, he declared acceptance of the Soviet scheme for partial disarmament would immediately diminish the menace of war.

He argued that the consideration of a technical draft could lead nowhere and then made a particular allusion to the naval problem. Remarking that the differences it represented not only had been softened but actually had become more active and rendered more complicated by new questions."

FARCE COMEDY WELL RECEIVED

Modern Version of "Arabian Nights" Presented in St. John's Parish Hall.

REPEATED TO-NIGHT.

A modern version of "The Arabian Nights" was presented to a good-sized audience in St. John's Church Parish Hall last evening, in a three-act farce comedy given under the auspices of the A.Y.P.A. of St. John's, and directed by Mrs. W. McKee Bingham.

"The Arabian Nights" has plenty of fun and merriment in the tangled situations which arise out of the efforts of Arthur Hummingtop to play the part of a modern Haroun al Raschid. During his wife's absence, he takes an innocent little flyer in adventure which later on involves his entire household, including the servants, in a disturbing mixup. While prowling about near Buckingham Palace, wearing a disguise which has appealed to his sense of adventure, he encounters a young lady in the fog, bent on visiting the Aquarium. Later, squiring her in gallant fashion, he inadvertently makes her acquainted with his name and address, and the young person, who turns out later to be the "Gutta Percha Girl" from a neighboring show, visits him next day and refuses to be removed from his abode. As his wife is absent and he possesses a resident mother-in-law with an eagle eye, the complications which ensue are disagreeable in the extreme for the adventurous-minded gentleman. The three acts of the farce-comedy are filled with comical situations and conversation. The "Arabian Nights" carries plenty of laughs in its rendering.

Parts Played Well.

The youthful actors play their parts well and enter heartily into the farcical spirit of the piece. David Batchelor is Arthur Hummingtop, the bewildered young man who is "put upon" by his irritating mother-in-law and suspected of all sorts of intrigues. This dominant lady, Mrs. Gillibrand, is enacted by Miss Mary Thornton in a very impressive fashion, and Miss Lillian Gregory is her amiable daughter, Georgie (Mrs. Hummington), whose refusal to believe the worst of her husband helps to get him out of a difficult hole.

Two very attractive young ladies have the roles of the real and the "artificial" niece. They are Miss Margaret Guthrie, as Daisy Maitland, whose arrival on a visit coincides with the descent on the luckless Hummingtop of his inamorata of the Aquarium. The adventuress of the piece is a zippy young thing whose acting gives a decided tang to the portrayal. Miss Winnifred Melton is the "Gutta Percha Girl," Rosa Colombier, and her admirer is Joshua Gillibrand (Ormie Heap), brother-in-law to the harassed Hummington and a youth with an eye for the ladies.

Add To Atmosphere of Play.

Two minor characters whose portrayals add to the brisk atmosphere of the farce are the butler and the maid, the part of Dobson being taken by Ted Rigby, and that of Barbara by Miss Norah Pinn.

It is a likeable farce and is well handled by the actors and their directress, Mrs. W. McKee Bingham, who has spared no pains in looking after all the little details which mean so much to an amateur production.. The setting is charming, in a living-room suite with soft lighting and attractive furnishings. The costumes also are all in strict keeping with the idea of an English gentleman's establishment. Others taking part in the presentation (off stage) are Roy H. Young, as stage manager; Miss F. G. Hutchinson, as business manager; Bert C. Graham, as electrician; Miss Aloha L. Horn, as costume mistress, and William S. Gore, in charge of properties.

During intermissions last evening, pleasing piano duetts were given by Miss Aloha Horn and Miss Florence Hutchinson.

"The Arabian Nights" will have its second presentation in St. John's Parish Hall this evening.

FIRST AID LECTURE.

Dr. Murray Fraser To Give Address in Canadian Legion Hall.

Another small but enthusiastic meeting of the men interested in the formation of a Peterborough division of the St. John's Ambulance Brigade was held in the Canadian Legion Hall last evening. Dr. Murray Fraser attended the meeting and stated that he would lend his support to the movement.

The first lecture on first aid and the care of the injured will be held in the Legion Hall on Wednesday, April 24, at 8 p.m. All those who are interested in first aid and those who are qualified in the work and would like to get back into it are invited to attend and here Dr. Fraser's lecture.

The aim of the St. John's Ambulance Brigade is to be of permanent service in the community. The co-operation of the manufacturers in the city is being sought and it is hoped that each factory will send up a least one man so that he may be trained in first aid.

More than 900,000 square miles, or 28 per cent. of the area of Canada, exclusive of the Arctic islands, is still unexplored.

STUNT NIGHTS BIG SUCCESS

George Street United Church Young People Hold Social Evening.

SEVENTY ATTEND.

The newly formed United Young Peoples' Association of George Street Church held its second meeting last night. It was Stunt Night, and was in charge of Miss Helen Burns' group. About seventy enjoyed the evening thoroughly. The meeting began with good mixing games led by Walter Outram. These were called "Hot Potato" and "How do you like your neighbor?" After a short sing-song, consisting of "Love's Old Sweet Song," "I Passed by Your Window," and 'Smile," the hymn "O Worship the King" was sung heartily. After a short business session Helen Burns read a well received paper on the social aspect of the Legion problem. Aileen Clark led in two games, "Trans-Atlantic Relay" and "Animated Alphabets,' for which purpose the crowd was divided into two groups. These games provided a wonderful amount of fun. Next on the program were two contests — "Doublets" proved itself a very difficult one and no group completely finished it. But at the same time a number of clever solutions were handed in. "Reversible Words" was entertaining, Ralph Cox's group being first to finish. Then came the stunts of the evening. First of all was "Hiram and Mirandy" or 'No Trains to-day." This was a skit put on by Helen Burns, Russel Lewis, and Claire Northey. The acting was fine and promoted a great deal of merriment. "The Supreme Sacrifice" was a movie pantomime in three struggles. It was a western drama of the old days when Indians were on the war path. Aileen Clark read the story which was well acted by the cast—Myrtle Burns, Evelyn Routley, Grace Cunningham, Russel Lewis, Clarie Northey, and Andy Rutter. While making necessary changes in between these two stunts the assembly sang "Follow the Gleam," a comparatively new hymn. The Clash and Clatter Band, which closed the program was largely a kitchen affair. The bass violin was made of a clothes basket and a broom, played by a yardstick. The other instruments were similarly arranged. The music supplied by the artists assisted by kazoos was really marvellous. They opened with "Jingle Bells," then the "Desert Song," and ended with "Beloved,' 'and then led the entire assembly in "God Save the King." Musa Cox played the piano accompaniments during the evening. The president, Homer Borland, occupied the chair and the executive, Esther Thornton, Mary Squire and Cecil Wasson assisted in various ways. Altogether a splendid evening was enjoyed by all, which gives great promise for future meetings, the next one of which is on Tuesday, in charge of Ralph Cox' group.

CONTRACTORS GIVE EVIDENCE IN CHICAGO CASE

Witnesses Claim Work Can Be Done Within Six Years.

ORDER EXPECTED.

Chicago's Engineers Estimate That It Will Take 16 Years.

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 17.—(Canadian Press).—Attorneys for the six complainant states in the Chicago Lake diversion cases before the Supreme Court set yesterday aside for testimony by contractors who would assume responsibility to complete by 1935 a program to provide sewage disposal by Chicago by other means then diversion of water from Lake Michigan.

This testimony, before Chas. Evans Hughes, Special Master in Chancery for the Court, was intended to sustain previous contentions by the states—Wisconsin, Minnesota, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York—that the program can be executed within five or six years. Engineers of the sanitary district of Chicago have proposed virtually the same sanitary works, but they declare it would require 12 or 16 years for completion.

Mr. Hughes is expected to complete the hearing of evidence, on which he will base recommendations to the court, within a week or 10 days. On his findings the court will base an order providing for cessation of diversion of the waters of Lake Michigan by the sanitary district and the State of Illinois.

Newton D. Baker, former war secretary, today joined the counsel for the complaint states, which brought the suit to the Supreme Court, seeking an injunction to restrain lake diversion at Chicago. Attorney General Ward and Assistant Attorney General Albert J. Danaher of New York, also were here to assist today in the presentation of evidence by the states.

The body, which had been hidden beneath a wooden scraper, had been decomposed to such a degree, the authorities said, as to handicap the medical officers in their effort to determine if the child had died a natural death or had been injured.

The dog responsible for the discovery is owned by Provincial Police Constable H. Noakes of Amhersburg.

The trio will go on tral in Sandwich court Friday.

MERIT RATING IS DISAPPROVED

Witness Says Intelligent Plan On Such Basis Cannot Be Worked Out.

FAVORABLE TO ONTARIO.

TORONTO, April 17. (C.P.) — Disapproval of the merit-rating plan of automobile insurance, now in operation in the States, was expressed by Otto Patterson, assistant secretary of the American Automobile Insurance Company, St. Louis, yesterday afternoon, before the Royal Commission here investigating automobile insurance rates.

"I dare not tell it in the words I would like to," said Mr. Patterson. "In certain territories in the United States we have adopted the plan in order to protect our business, hoping it will be abolished."

An intelligent merit-rating plan, said Mr. Patterson, cannot be done at all times, although he agreed with the principle that a careful driver is entitled to a reduced premium over the reckless driver. Companies, he declared, will "sour" on the plan. In cities, he said, the traffic problem had been solved to a certain degree but in the country he believed conditions are becoming worse. Although the plan has already been introduced in the State of New York, he declared the State department is not entirely favorable to it.

Donald G. Overman, assistant manager of the Underwriting Department of the General Exchange Insurance Corporation, New York, informed the commission his company had found conditions in Ontario generally favorable.

INSTITUTE ACCEPTS McNAUGHT TENDER

Much Business Discussed By Members of Fenella Branch of Society.

FENELLA, April 17. — (Examiner Correspondence).—At the meeting of the Fenella Women's Institute held at the home of Mrs. Vernon Brenton, C. McNaught's tender for caretaker of Bethany Cemetery was the only one received, and was accepted, provided the members of the Cemetery Board are in favor of accepting it.

On motion, it was decided that the Fenella sign-boards be varnished and put up again as soon as possible. After much discussion regarding different methods of raising funds for the coming year, it was decided to lay the matter over until a later date.

During the meeting a telephone call from G. A. Putnam, superintendent of Women's Institutes, was received, promising the branch to arrange a summer meeting early in May or the latter part of June, the date to be arranged later. Through an error, Fenella branch was omitted from the provisional list of meetings.

A letter was read regarding the girls' conference to be held in Guelph in June, and on motion, it was decided not to send a delegate. A short program followed, when Mrs. N. C. Leach gave a reading, entitled "Old Friends," and Mrs. I. C. Montgomery read some very interesting literature from the League of Nations Society in Canada, followed by community singing.

At the close of the meeting, Mrs. Brenton, assisted by her daughters, Mrs. James Waldie and Miss Teresa Brenton, served lunch and a social half-hour was enjoyed. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mrs Brenton for her hospitality.

Horoscope

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

THURSDAY, APRIL 18, 1929

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

Except in the early morning this should be a fortunate day, according to astrology.

It is preeminently a lucky sway for women who should make the most of all business opportunities while this configuration prevails.

Theatres and all places of amusement benefit under this rule which will bring into prominence many young players.

The trend of books and dramas is to be light and clever, making for comedy and satire, if the stars are rightly read.

This is not a propitious day for trying any sort of business experiment and rather unfavorable for most initiative, even though it may be ordinarily practical.

All through the spring there is likely to be a tendency toward wrong thinking or super-criticism regarding persons who have been successful.

Envy and jealousy may be prevalent as new leaders suddenly rise to prominence.

A woman legislator now comes into the limelight because of poise and ability, astrologers foretell.

Late today there is a promising sign for those who seek employment, particularly for all who have brains and training to sell.

Health conservation will continue to be much discussed and the life span will be lengthened.

Sudden deaths which will increase in number as the year grows older are to teach widson in the use of physical energy after middle age, the seers prophesy.

This evening is a time when lovers should be wary as it is easy to deceive under the aspect that dominates after sundown.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of success along lines most pleasant and desirable. They should not lend money.

Children born on this day probably will have great talent along artistic lines. The subjects of this sign achieve success if they work with big corporations such as motion picture organizations.

Charles M. Schwab, capitalist, was born on this date, 1862.

AUSTIN O'LEARY AWARDED HONORS

Former King's Wharf Boy Wins Fellowship in Columbia University.

KING'S WHARF, April 17.—(Examiner Correspondence). — Austin O'Leary, son of Mr. and Mrs. John O'Leary, of Lindsay, has received word of his winning additional honors. He has been awarded a Fellowship in Columbia University, New York, valued at $1,500. Last year he was awarded the degree of Bachelor of Science, with honors. Mr. O'Leary is a student at Queen's University.

Austin O'Leary, a former King's Wharf boy, had a brilliant career as a student. At eleven years of age he entered the Lindsay Collegiate Institute and graduated from there at sixteen years of age. At Queen's University, he has been very successful in all his studies.

In addition to these awards, he was awarded a scholarship of $1,000 by the National Research Council of Canada, to continue his studies at any Canadian college and last year he won a Bursary of $150, also given by the National Council of Canada.

Mr. O'Leary, in accepting the Columbia scholarship, will not be able to accept the $1,000 scholarship offered by the Canadian National Research Council. He will represent Queen's University at Columbia University and will devote all his time and study for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, the highest degree to be given in the United States.

This young man has been a hard worker. During holiday time he has always secured employment which meant hard work and sacrifice. He has worked in the mines at Timmins, where he took his place digging and shovelling.

Mr. O'Leary's numerous friends at King's Wharf offer congratulations to a former boy, who was born at King's Wharf, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John O'Leary, the former being blacksmith in the district until about eight years ago, when the family moved to Lindsay. Austin O'Leary is the grandson of J. C. O'Leary, a veteran of King's Wharf.

POTASH KETTLE CRUMBLING AWAY

Admirers of Wonder of Nature Near Warsaw Regret Loss.

WARSAW, April 17.— (Examiner Correspondence).—Those who admire the wonders of nature feel that the crumbling away of the "Potash Kettle" so called on the east side of Indian River, a little east of Warminster factory is a loss. Twenty years ago the double pot hole had a small crack in the bottom. The upper pot hole is about six feet in diameter and four feet in depth, while the second and lower one is about 4 feet in diameter and 4 ft. deep. The whole is at the point of a limestone promontory about eight-five feet above the river. The position is more wonderful than the size. In the limestone not far from this large one are several smaller holes, two at least, about two feet in diameter.

Within the last twenty years the bottom has gradually been cracked away, probably by the action of frost. It may have been aided by stones being thrown to see how much the bottom would stand, as the kettle jutted beyond the main rock. This spring large cracks may be seen in the side of the hole, and it appears that there may soon be no kettle left. Any one visiting this wonder of nature, when the water is high as it is now may look down many feet between rocks, some distance from the river and see water rushing.

Unexplored Cave.

On the opposite side a little further north is a cave, which has never been fully explored. Some years ago two young girls went into it, and it is reported that two men went as far in as the length of a ball of binder twine. There are some places where openings are quite narrow, and others where there is quite a drop in the floor.

This "Potash Kettle" and the scarp on the east of the river, the falls in the river itself, during the spring freshets, a roaring torrent, in summer stepping stones, and the cave on the west side are interesting features.

The river itself is beautiful and there are several good bathing places. Quarry Lake is a good place for fishing and boating.

One may travel many miles and fail to see so much natural beauty as there is within a very short distance of Warsaw. From almost any point near the village the view is wonderful, and somewhat mystifying at times.

The village itself is not visible until one is almost upon it.

Has Beautiful Monument.

One of the most beautiful monuments erected to the men who gave their lives in the Great War in any small place is in Warsaw, in the centre of the village. Many, who travel widely see it, return to view it again, and tell that in point of beauty, if not in size, it holds its own with any.

The main roads out of the village are one to the north, over which there is in summer a heavy traffic to the lake, the Norwood road, and the Dummer road.

Serve Public Well.

The stores in the village are operated by men who wish to serve the public. What they do not carry they make every effort to obtain. If an order is entrusted to them. Farmers and their wives can take their produce there and obtain goods or cash and every courtesy is shown. There are several gas stations, two garages, a harness shop, two blacksmith shops, a grist mill, planing factory, cheese factory, bank business on Tuesday and Fridays, a telephone centre, a post office with two rural route deliveries and four churches.

Opens Shop.

Mr. Gallagher has opened a blacksmith shop in the building which has been standing idle since Hugh Kidd vacated it.

OLD LANDMARK PULLED DOWN

Nicely Levelled Plot All That is Left Where Court Office Stood.

CONSTRUCTED IN 1855

Another familiar landmark that the old boys and girls returning here for Old Home Week will look vainly for is the old building containing the offices of the County Surrogate Court. This old structure which stood on the southwest corner of the Court House property has been razed within the last month, and only a nicely levelled plot already for grass seed remains to mark its place.

This building was constructed in 1855. Built of solid brick and containing huge brick vaults it was the pride of the bricklayers skill of those days. It served as the offices of the County Surrogate Court until the recnt addition to Court House building, when these offices were moved into the north wing.

BOYS ARE FINED FOR R. R. THEFT

Seventeen Defendants in C.P.R. Action in Bowmanville Enter Pleas of Guilty.

EACH PAYS $16.

BOWMANVILLE, Ont., April 17 (Canadian Press). — A sequel to the heavy rains of April 6, in which the Canadian Pacific Railway main line east of here was washed out and a freight train wrecked, came in Bowmanville Police Court yesterday afternoon, when 17 youths, all of Bowmanville, Newcastle, and Port Whitby, admitted breaking into and stealing from a box car of the wrecked train. They were each fined $5.00, and costs, or 30 days plus 10 days' suspended sentence. In passing sentence, Magistrate W. Fitzgerald Ward warned the lads they were liable to fourteen years in penitentiary.

The 17 defendants were also assessed $5.00 each as damage for the Canadian Pacific Railway, bringing their total loss to $16.00 each.

FRENCH ORDER IS SUSPENDED

British Government Sends Note To Paris Regarding Smallpox Vaccination.

EPIDEMIC IS ALLEGED.

PARIS, April 17 (C.P.). The French Government to-day temporarily suspended regulations invoked yesterday requiring travellers entering France from England, to have been vaccinated for smallpox within two months past.

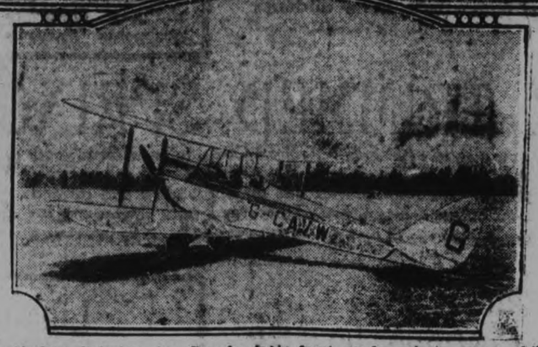
The government announced that the French and British health authorities would confer soon as to the best methods of protecting French citizens from an epidemic of smallpox which was alleged to exist in England.

The British Embassy handed the French Foreign Office early to-day a note on the subject of yesterday's order of vaccination for travelers entering France. Its contents were not revealed, but it was understood it asked that the order be rescinded or temporarily suspended.

Temporary suspension, it was believed to have been pointed out, would give an opportunity for thorough study of the matter before invoking such a stringent regulation.

The subject was discussion in a cabinet meeting this morning, but the decision of the government was not announced.

AEROPLANE INDUSTRY IN CANADA PROGRESSING



Airplane industry in Canada is based on something more substantial than mere paper, as is attested by the pictures shown here of 14 light airplanes at the de Havilland aerodrome, Weston, Ontario. The seven in front are for private owners while the others are for the Royal Canadian Air Force, Camp Borden. The lower picture shows G. N. Irwin of Whitby, seated in the rear seat of his Moth machine prior to his leaving for home.

In Police Court

When police court opened this morning, the stage was apparently all set for final disposal of the George Gauthier case in which judgment was reserved a week ago following hearing of a charge of supplying liquor to a man not the holder of a liquor permit. However, the Magistrate saw fit to enlarge the case to next Thursday.

A local young man whom both defense and crown counsel, as well as his former employer believed to have been pressed by circumstance into committing the offense, was charged with theft of accessories as well as some money from his employer. He pleaded guilty, and was allowed to go on suspended sentence on the accessories charge and with a $5.00 fine on the second charge of stealing the money.

This decison was reached by Magistrate Langley after hearing a strong plea on the part of the defense counsel, who relater the circumstances of sickness and financial worries which had contributed to his act. The Crown concurred in what was said. A new job awaited the young man elsewhere. His former employer spoke optimistically regarding his character, and capabilities as a workman and stated that restitution had been made in full.

Joseph Dunne, aged 59 years, of Belmont township, was charged with receiving goods which he knew to have been stolen. He elected summary trial and pleaded not guilty, but since neither Crown nor defense were prepared to go on, the case was adjourned to be heard in Havelock next Wednesday.

DIRECTORS SET MEETING DATE

Matters Pertaining To Summer Camp By Y.W.C.A. Board.

The April meeting of the Young Women's Christian Association Board of Directors was held Monday afternoon, with Mrs. E. E. Harvey presiding and conducting the opening devotion. Minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. G. E. Porter and also the correspondence. In response to a request from the parade committee for Old Home Week it was decided to arrange for a Y. W. C. A. float and Mrs. R. Turner, Mrs. Wightman, Mrs. Drummond and Mrs. Yelland were appointed the committee in charge.

Correspondence in connection with the Y.W.C.A. Biennial Conference this June was read and members planning a trip west were reminded to include the conference in their itinerary. Financial reports were read by Miss E. Morrow treasurer, showing an Association deficit of $388.08. This was encouraging compared with last year's deficit at the end of March of $982.48. It is hoped that by the end of the Association year, April 30, with the help of the pageant and residence department the Association will be able to present a splendid year's report.

On motion of Mrs. R. Turner and Mrs. B. Gardiner the following nominating committee was appointed: Miss E. Morrow, Mrs. G. Macdonald, Mrs. A. A. Moir. May 28th was decided as the date of the annual meeting and this year if possible the meeting to take the form of a banquet.

A splendid camp report was presented by Mrs. V. Eastwood including a list of contributers to the Camp Shower which will be of great service during the summer. The committee have secured the services of a good cook and man to assist, also to look after garden, boats, wood, ice, repairs and etc. Posters with picture of the cottage have been printed and are ready for display. The rates will be $7.00 per week and all girls will be most welcomed. Special rate of $6.50 for groups of 5 or more. The committee are now arranging for a Camp Director who will have charge of Camp arrangements, sports and programs

The Physical Director reported Gymnasium activities for the month including practices, sewing and advertising for the Pageant May 10 and 11. Members of the Kiwanis Club, I.O.D.E. Chapters and Y. W.C.A. Board have kindly taken the box tickets. The sewing and advertising committees are still very busy and the pupils are practising faithfully so that, with new and intricate drills and special flower ballet for the second part of program, this year's Pageant will be even better than preceeding years. An interesting banquet closed the basket ball league season when cups were presented to the winning teams.

Encouraging Reports

The General Secretary gave an encouraging report of the Religious Education and Club Work Departments. The World Study Class was taken during the month by Miss E. Thomlinson, Rev. Sutcliffe and Rev. McLean and Ensign Green. Sunday evening Sing Songs continued until March 17 with a splendid attendance and the monthly friendly hour and tea was much appreciated. As a conclusion to the Y.W. C.A. Foreign Campaign a moving picture evening arranged through the kindness of R. Dobbin was given when Y.W.C.A. clubs and classes brought in $175.22 for the promotion of "Y" work in China and Japan.

In the Educational Department the following classes completed their course the end of March with a social hour and presentations to their voluntary leaders, the Basketry class, Saturday Story Hour, Junior Cooking class and Home Nursing Class.

The Association clubs have all had a successful month and have contributed to the service of the Y. W.C.A. by sewing for the Pageant, helping the Well Babies Clinic, contributing to the Camp Shower and Foreign Work.

Arrangements for Pageant Opening of Camp and Swimming Pool. Repairs to Building and the Annual Meeting will be the extra Association events for the next month's program at the Y.W.C.A.

The meeting closed with prayer, after which tea was served by Mrs. E. Morrison, Residence Superintendent.

LONDON YOUTHS CONQUER GREAT PUZZLE OF AGES

Claim They Have Discovered Method of Tempering Copper.

CANNOT BE FILED.

Boys Carried On Their Experiments in Old Two Car Garage.

LONDON, Ont., April 17 (C.P.).—Hugh Webster, youthful bank clerk, and John Cameron, motor mechanic, who yesterday announced that they had conquered one of the scientific puzzles of the ages, were up in the clouds last night.

"We have done what no one else has been able to do since the Egyptians did it 2,700 years ago," said Webster, in an interview last night.

"We have tempered copper so hard that it cannot be filed with a steel file. We have used the best and purest copper that we could get; usualy strands of heavy gauge copper electric wire. We have taken pieces of pure copper that you could bend in your fingers and by a quick and cheap process have made it so hard that we have not been able to work it to put a keen edge on it, without special equipment, and we have no such equipment for the purpose."

Webster, whose home is at 158 John street, is a teller in the Bank of Toronto at Adelaide and Dundas streets. He says that while he was taking his matriculation at the Central Collegiate where physics and chemistry were his favorite subject, he learned that edged tools made of copper and been found in Egyptian ruins, and that no one since had been able to re-discover the means by which the tempering had been accomplished. He talked it over with Cameron, a former Ohioan who has lived here for the past three years, and six months ago they began their experiments in the two-car garage at the rear of Cameron's home at 661 Hamilton road. A week ago, after scores of tests, they believed they were within sight of their goal.

DELORO BOY SCOUTS

MARMORA, April 1 (Examiner Correspondence).—Until Jupiter Pluvius is willing to allow some dry weather over the week-ends the troop will have to content itself with indoor activities, but with any sign of a fair day Saturday a patrol treasure hunt will be held. As the junior patrol should have just as good a chance as the other two, the hunt will be lots of fun, especially towards the close.

Next week the court of honor will line up the list of prospective badge hunters and this will be presented to the troop committee for their attention, which will mean the obtaining of suitable examiners in each badge. Jimmy Rice of Marmora has been granted permission to join the troop with the idea that he and perhaps one other will form the nucleus of a troop to be started in Marmora. Much progressive scout work could be accomplished with a troop in each locality to sustain interest and it is hoped that a headquarters may be secured in Marmora through the kindness of some citizen or other, the headquarters problem being the only one deterring a number of Marmora boys linking together to form a troop.

ANNUAL MEETING WOMEN'S LEAGUE

Ennismore Branch of Catholic Church Society Elects Officers.

ENNISMORE, April 17.—The annual meeting of the Ennismore subdivision of the Catholic Women's League was held this week in the vestry of St. Martin's Church, Ennismore. With the minutes of the last meeting approved as read by the secretary, and with the treasurer's report a favorable one, adopted as read by Miss Margaret Holland, the president, Mrs. John J. Young, addressed the meeting. She gave a summary of the great work accomplished by this branch of the League. This organization during the year had received the active and practical support of the women of the parish and had done much in charity to the needy in encouraging education and in forwarding literature to those in remote parts of the West. To the members of the League, she expressed her appreciation of the courtesies and assistance which during the past year had been so readily granted, and to the executive, who by their co-operation and loyalty, made it possible to accomplish all that was done.

Mount Pleasant

MOUNT PLEASANT, April 16.—(Examiner Correspondence). —Mrs. Harry Sisson, Sr., Mount Pleasant's oldest resident, who celebrated her eighty-ninth birthday on April 11 at her home is wonderfully bright and active considering her advanced age.

Mrs. Sisson is enjoying good health with the exception of a cold which she recently developed but she says, "It's a lot better than it was."

She can see well, being still able to read The Examiner without the aid of her glasses when the bright rays of the sun shine on it. Her hearing is only slightly affected and she still claims a comparatively youthful appearance, her hair is not yet not entirely gray.

Her principal pastime is reading and sewing and has an extremely retentive memory of interesting incidents of pioneer days in this country.

More than eighty-five years ago Mrs. Sisson came to Canada with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Jackson, of Heave's Farm, Westmorland, England. The voyage was made by sailing vessel and lasted six weeks. On arriving in Canada, they came to Cavan Township where Mrs. Sisson has spent her entire life. Mrs. Sisson was one of a family of six children, she being the eldest and with her sister, Mrs. William Sisson who resides on Pear Avenue, Peterborough, and who is the youngest member of the family still survive the three brothers and a sister now deceased.

On the occasion of her birthday a number of friends called during the day to offer their congratulations and expressed the hope that she might enjoy many more birthdays.

SPEAKER OUTLINES LIFE IN BURMAH

Mrs. H. S. Philpott Addresses W.M.S. of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. H. S. Philpott of Norwood was the visiting speaker at the Easter Thankoffering meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, held on Friday afternoon.

Her address outlined in vivid, interesting fashion much of the life of Burmah, India, where she spent some years as a missionary. The terrible conditions under which many of the heathen people exist were brought to the attention of her hearers in dramatic style and her address proved very worth-while. Mrs. Philpott was introduced by Mrs. William Allan and a vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. D. Jordan and seconded by Mrs. R. R. Hall.

The meeting was opened with a few appropriate words on the meaning of the Easter season, given by the president of the society, Mrs. W. R. Turner, in the chair. Mrs. J. Garbutt took the scripture reading and Mrs. Robert Hall led in prayer.

The minutes of the March meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. J. McCaw, and the treasurer's report was presented by Miss Nina Davidson.

A pleasing duett was rendered by the Misses Marion Armstrong and Elva Jackson, and Mrs. A. B. Burrows of Lakefield sang in splendid voice the solo, "Alone He Suffered and Bled and Died."

"It Helped All My Troubles"

"I was all run-down and out of spirits before my third baby was born, so I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as I had heard so much about it. It helped me with all my troubles and gave me an appetite where before I didn't eat at all and had to stop work and rest every once in a while. I did all of my housework up to the day my baby came, as I am a farmer's wife and could not afford help before. I feel just dandy now and I will answer any letters and I will tell every one how good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is."—Mrs. Ira Arnold, Box 63, Rocklake, North Dakota.

How shall I enamel my furniture ?

Enamelling furniture is one of those delicate, artistic household tasks that can be easily done with FLO-GLAZE FOUR-HOUR ENAMEL. Thirty-four up-to-the-minute shades to select from.

Soiled, shabby or worn surfaces should be sanded lightly with No. 00 sandpaper. Then apply two coats of the selected FLO-GLAZE ENAMEL as it comes from the can.

On new work, or where a change of color is desired, first apply one or two coats of FLO-GLAZE FLAT WHITE ENAMEL. Sand each coat carefully. Apply two coats of the selected shade as it comes from the can. Allow enamel to dry hard, between coats.

Decorative Suggestions without obligation

Write and give us full particulars in regard to the condition of your furniture, woodwork or floors and we will send you suggestions for decorating and a complete set of FLO-GLAZE PAINT AND ENAMEL color cards. COUNTY COUNCIL 71 YEARS AGO FACED BIG ROAD EXPENDITURE INVOLVING SUM OF $250,000

Building of Roads Has Been Almost an Immemorial Problem.

ROADS ARE DESCRIBED

Project Had to be Approved by a Vote of Separate Municipalities.

The building of roads even in Peterborough County has been almost an immemorial problem, and when the present county council finds itself engaged with a question of what roads they shall build according to the modern fashion, and likewise modern needs, its members may be unaware of some of the local programs once debated in a forgotten day.

Back in 1858, for instance, it was proposed in the council of the united counties of Peterborough and Victoria to spend £50,000, more than $250,000 and perhaps neared $300,000, on the construction of 100 miles of roads in Peterborough county. That would have fixed the cost at approximately $2,500 a mile.

Obviously it was an ambitious project for those days, seventy-one years ago, and the provision for the collection of toll on these roads, all of them radiating from the old county town of Peterborough, was an unavailing lure and influence with the rural representatives.

Details of the System

The system of macadamized highways then designated was as follows:

(1) From the western boundary of Smith township easterly between the third and fourth concession to the Communication or Chemong Road, thence south of Peterborough and east to Norwood, and from Norwood in a northeasterly direction to the northeast corner of Asphodel and thence through Belmont township to the eastern boundary of the county, 44 miles.

(2) From Norwood to Hastings in Asphodel township, 6 miles.

(3) From the Fourth Line of Smith on the Chemong road to Bridgenorth, thence through Ennismore to a point opposite Pigeon Creek, 10 miles.

(4) From Peterborough to Warsaw or as near "the present travelled road as the engineer may deem advisable, 12 miles.

(5) From Peterborough to Keene, by way of the Locks bridge and Downer's corners, 13 miles.

(6) From Peterborough along the River road in Smith to a line between lots 24 and 25 in the sixth concession to the 13th concession (presumbaly the middle line to Buckhorn), 15 miles.

Defeated by the Townships

The debentures were to be issued for twenty years at six per cent, and the tax on Peterborough county ratepayers was to be at the rate of 1 13-64 pence in the pound sterling. The project had to be approved by the vote of the separate municipalities, and apparently was everywhere rejected, for there is not further trace of the pretentious by-law, which perhaps seemed as extravagant at that time as a present day network of paved highways.

But is was a splendid scheme, and in time was carried into effect, probably in convenient sections, and unrelated to the earlier unified plan. Among those who opposed it in that county council of 1858 was James Lang of Otonabee. It entailed a burdensome expense, he contended, would put the county heavily in debt at a time when money was scarce, and economy should be exercised. However, if such a comprehensive program should be adopted he held that the Keene road should be extended to Hastings; but in the event of the Council being willing to include this additional mileage, Mr. Lang was just as stoutly opposed to the whole scheme and declared that he would vote against it.

Some of the Opponents

Isaac Garbutt of Smith township and Thomas Eyres of North Monaghan also lined up against it, and the municipalities subsequently defeated it. Other reeves were T. Seawright of Belmont; Peter Pearce of Asphodel; Francis Crow of Dummer; George Clarke of Douro; P. Galvin of Ennismore; W. Cottingham of Emily (eight times warden); P. McHugh of Ops.

The town of Peterborough was represented by W. A. Scott and Daniel Hopkins.

The forgotten incident in the county's progress emphasizes the impression that road problems seem never to be solved, but recur in cycles of gradual improvement.

One of the objections to the sale of debentures for road building was the heavy discount rate then prevailing. It was said that Peterborough had to accept a discount of 23 per cent. on one of its debenture issues. Partly to offset that charge, Mr. Scott offered a bonus of 5 per cent. to be paid by the town if the debentures were marketed.

District Churches

MILLBROOK UNITED CHURCH

MILLBROOK, April 16.—(Examiner Correspondence).—A large congregation gathered in the United Church on Sunday morning for the special service in the interests of the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary, the Mission Circle and the Mission Band. These three organizations are well represented, meeting first in the basement and proceeding in a body to the church auditorium, where they occupied the centre front pews.

Associated with the pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, B.D., upon the pulpit platform were the speaker for the service, Mrs. (Rev.) C. H. Carscallen, wife of the Principal of the Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby, who with her husband has spent twenty years in West China in the Union University at Chentu, and Mrs. (Dr.) Rae, a past president of the W.M.S. of the London Conference, now a member of the local Auxiliary.

The choir, under the leadership of Mrs. H. W. Johnston, sang an appropriate anthem, "I Have Set Watchmen Upon Thy Walls," with obligato by M. McDowell, and the male quartette, Messrs. W. H. Coombe, H. W. Johnston, V. C. Lambert, and M. McDowell, chose as their selection, "May the Christ-like Life be Thine."

Mrs. Carscallen spoke from the text John 20:1: "While it was yet dark," stating that this is an illuminating phrase, for while Easter is the heart festival of Christian womanhood, she had seen a non-Christian woman sit by a grave in hopelessness and despair. "And it is still dark for million of our sisters in the Orient."

After referring to the great changes which have taken place in all lands in the past three decades the speaker mentioned especially the changing of the old order for women in heathen countries: "they have western habits on the one hand, and Chinese instincts on the other, hence the confusion and unrest."

"From the primitive stage, which was one of childlike, unreasoning docility, Chinese women have passed into the second period mentioned by Dr. Matheson, that of self-consciousness, and the awakening to a realization of their own powers, with personal ambition as the key-note. They are asking for education, amusement, power, and even for political rights, but they lack training, and the moral safeguards to character, and no one can fail to appreciate the danger of the situation for it has in it the elements of tragedy. The new spiritual walls to guard purity, and peace are rising very slowly, but unless Christian standards are given and accepted, the greatest danger exists for women and girls."

"It is the task of Christian missions to guide these restless souls into the larger liberty of Christ, and help them into the third stage, that of voluntary self-denial, merged in the struggle of life for others. It is hard for us to believe that this is the happiest period—that only the bond are free; that we save our lives by losing them, that it is more blessed to give than to receive."

"Some few have reached this third stage, the product of the mission schools, and though small in numbers they are great in significance, and the hope of the future in that great republic of China."

After paying a warm tribute to the home missionary organizations, the speaker urged the broadening influence of this great work, lamenting the uninterested women who lack imagination; "you who have prayed and worked, have been, and are being, blessed in the lives of women and girls whom you have never seen."

"And now what of the future of our work in China? Missionaries are going back; they find much to encourage them; never before have we realized the value of Chinese leadership as we do now, for they have carried on faithfully in a time of cruel testing. We will have need of great patience for we have a great unfinished task, but the dawn is sure."

The special thank offering for the Auxiliary, Circle, and Band was taken up on Sunday morning, and a generous response was made. The ushers for the service were Messrs. Clarence Ball, Dr. A. Jemison, J. McKnight, and W. G. Hetherington. There are still a number of envelopes to come in, and the trustees granted the loose collection on the plates to the thank offering funds.

Mrs. Carscallen spoke in the United Church at Cavanville on Sunday evening, the service being under the auspices of the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary of that circuit.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion,—I intended writing before this to thank you for the helps I received. They were excellent and the pattern just what I wanted. I enjoy reading your Whatnots so much and also the neighbors' letters and recipes. I am enjoying in anticipation the beauties of the lawns and gardens in Peterborough this summer. While feasting our eyes on the city beautiful we shall be conscious of the fact that much credit is due 'Marion of The Examiner' for these charming flowers and smooth lawns.

It will be so convenient during Old Home Week if the Rest Room in the Market Hall is ready. It will be a good place there, I think, convenient, I mean.

I am busy housecleaning just now. I have finished the pantry, and the first fine day that comes I shall begin at the kitchen with some help from my big son. Pantry walls and ceiling are painted light grey with white shelves and white curtain at the window. Spice and cake cans painted blue. As the kitchen is dark, being shaded by a long verandah, the walls are painted cream and ceiling white. Woodwork and furniture is stained dark oak and floor of hardwood is varnished. The table is covered with a blue and white oilcloth and blue cushions in the rocking chair. Do you think cream curtains more suitable than checked blue and cream? Please give me your opinion, Marion.

I enjoy your poems and songs so much that I am enclosing a small poem by Rev. Canon Scott which I think very nice. Wishing you continued success.

Yours sincerely,
Pollyanna."

Thank you for your most interesting letter, "Pollyanna," and for the poem, "In the Woods." Your kitchen must be very nice. Checked curtains are seen quite a lot on kitchen windows and might look well on yours, but I always leaned toward plain goods for curtains.

"Dear Marion: I wish to thank you indeed for your lovely whatnot on Friendship. It was exquisite.

There are quite a few letters on the raising of children. I am raising two—one twelve and one fourteen. My experience was, that you practically had to begin when they were born to train them. I found, also, that being truthful with them was a great factor in keeping their respect. When it was necessary to give them nasty tasting medicine, I explained why, and there never was any trouble. Then I often appealed to their sense of honor and it worked well, as children have a greater sense of honor than most adults credit them with. If I were busy with anything likely to injure them, I put them in a play box, and if there was not one available I tied them to something so they would only have a certain radius, and were out of danger. We used to make a game of it. He or she was a puppy, and had to be tied up, or perhaps a bear, and they would woof at me, so it kept them amused until the work was done. One time one of them was teething, and no toy would suit, so I put a little syrup on his fingers and stuck a feather on them and he amused himself for an hour and a half. When they were old enough to sit in the high chair and they were not allowed to smear the food all over. They had their napkin and were told to wipe their face or hands, like Daddy. It was surprising how quickly they learned.

Training children is not a part time job. You have to be on the alert all the time. Nagging is fatal, but kindness with firmness works wonders. Have a regular bedtime, and keep to it. Tell them of God as a loving Father. Some parents threaten their children with God as if He were a bogey man. Explain that it isn't a one-sided affair, but that if they want to ask God for things, they also must do their part. And, above all, neighbors, if you want your children trained right, show them the example.

I do hope, Marion, I am not coming too often. I could write lots more, but I want to be able to come again. Thanking you once more, Marion, sincerely

"Quo Vadis."

Thank you, for your splendid letter, "Quo Vadis," with its ideas on child training. I'm sure every neighbor will appreciate your writing, and I hope you will come again soon.

IN THE WOODS.

(By Rev. Canon Scott, contributed by "Pollyanna.")

This is God's house—the blue sky is the ceiling,
This wood the soft green carpet for His feet,
Those hills, His stairs down which the brooks come stealing
With baby laughter making earth more sweet!
And here His friends come, clouds and soft winds sighing,
And little birds whose throats pour forth their love,
And spring and summer, and the white snow lying
Pencilled with shadows of bare boughs above.

And here comes sunbeams through the green leaves straying,
And shadows from the storm clouds overdrawn,
And warm hushed nights when mother earth is praying
So late that her moon candle burns till dawn.
Sweet house of God, sweet earth so full of treasure,
I enter at the gates in storm or calm;
And every sunbeam is a joy or pleasure,
And every cloud a solace and a balm!

"Dear Marion: I noticed in the women's page about some persons being interested in old pictures and antiques. I have at present a motto, hand-worked, dated 1810, which came from Castle Bar, Ireland; also was said to have come from nobility. I think a great deal of it, but owing to sickness and financial difficulties, would like to sell. Do you know of anyone who would care to buy? It would be a great help.

"Mrs. Sth."

I am printing your request, "Mrs. Sth," and will forward any inquiries to you.

That Body of Yours

By Dr. J. Barton

WHEN THE BODY CONTROLS THE MIND

Although man is earth's supreme being, it is well for us to remember that he is of the earth and that he gets all that he needs to keep him alive from old mother Earth.

Although he has a mind that is above that of any animal, and a spirit that is divine, nevertheless his mind and spirit depend greatly upon his body.

And so one of the truths that our mind specialists have learned is that man's mental health depends upon the food he eats and what his body does with that food.

I heard a mission worker recently state that when a hungry man came into the mission, usually offering to work for the food he so badly needed, the first thing the mission did was to feed him, see that he got bathed, and got some rest.

Then, when they thought he was in his "right mind" they talked to him of spiritual things. They did not try to talk of the things of the spirit to a poor weak, hungry, discouraged soul.

Our mental specialists have earned this same truth and as Dr. Arch. McCausland states "a nervous patient's welfare may be compared to an equation. Only as a nervous woman or man eats will he improve."

It may be said that a patient eats with his eyes more than his mouth, consequently attractiveness of the table or tray service means so much in promoting sluggish or indifferent appetites

Further, these nervous or depressed patients need plenty of time in which to eat the food as the impulses that move stomach and intestinal contents are slower and sometimes cease for minutes at a time in these patients. However, there is a further step that should be taken to get complete results and that is that although an increase in weight is a favorable sign in these nervous cases, the working of the muscles of the body develops a strong heart to pump blood, strong lungs to purify this blood, and the wastes are removed quickly and completely from the body. In other words if the nervous case is treated like an animal and given good wholesome food, enough exercise or work so that this food is utilized to build up and strengthen the body, and sufficient rest or sleep, a cure can be affected in the majority of cases.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

Here are some rules and suggestions that it is well to bear in mind when buying furniture or decorations for the living rooms of your house or apartment.

Never use a cheap version and a fine version of the same type of furniture or hangings in the same room. That is, don' use fine old mahogany with cheap modern imitation mahogany furniture and don't use a figured machine-made rug in the same room with a figured Oriental rug.

Work from a definite color scheme and choose something really beautiful as your color pattern. This may be a piece of Chinese pottery, an Oriental rug, a piece of beautifully colored cretonne or chintz, a landscape. Use the light neutral tones for the walls, the darker tones for floors or furniture and the bright touches of color for an occasional cushion cover, a vase or other ornament.

Never have the floors lighter than the walls.

Never buy anything for your rooms hastily, and never buy anything, no matter how much others may praise it, that you do not in your own heart consider beautiful.

It is usually better not to buy upholstered furniture in "sets"—it is never a good plan to buy such a "set" upholstered in strikingly patterned material.

Don't make the mistake of thinking that a rug is always beautifully toned because it is Oriental or that even a beautifully colored Oriental rug will of necessity look well in any room.

It is almost always better not to use pure white for sash or window curtains.

The Mirror of the Mode

By Mary Marshall

This mauve crepe de chine frock is trimmed with small bows of the material.

Bows of various sorts have been used so extensively for trimming the new frocks and wraps that one must speak of them as one of the important trimming details of the season. And yet ornamental bows of this sort are not new. They have been used for several seasons in very much the same way that they are used today.

Much the same thing might be said of many of the season's most characteristic features. Very few of them are really new—only they are used in a new way. The flaring skirt, the uneven hemline, the longer skirt, the raised waistline, floating drapery, figured chiffons, the more molded bodice, the low-backed decolletage, sun-tanned skin, tuck-in blouses—none of these things were brought forth as novelties this season. They had all been offered within recent seasons. Even the colors that one hears of most often as "new colors" have a look of familiarity about them. Egg shell, apucine, chartreuse, have all been with us for several seasons, and yet we wear them this season with keen enjoyment as if they were entirely new.

A Paris correspondent writes saying that literally bales of tulle are now being used by the French dressmakers for summery evening gowns—and adds that enormous quantities of the tulle are needed because some of the flounced and draped skirts have eight layers of fine tulle at the back drapery of the skirt. But tulle—especially light tulle—is distressingly fragile. It is not a wise choice for the gown that must be worn often. And the new light tones of tulle have a veritable affinity for dust and soot. It is all one can do not to have them grow a little dingy about the edges of the drapery in the course of a few preliminary fittings. Even in light tones chiffon is much more serviceable.

Oh, without thee what am I
Sweet Belle Mahone.

Sweet Belle Mahone, Sweet Belle Mahone
Wait for me at Heaven's gate,
Sweet Belle Mahone.

Lonely, like a withered tree,
What is all the world to me,
Life and light were in all in thee,
Sweet Belle Mahone.
Daisies' pale are growing o'er,
All my heart e'er adore,
Shall I never meet thee more,
Sweet Belle Mahone.

Calmly sweetly slumber on,
Only one I call my own;
While in tears I wander lone,
Sweet Belle Mahone.
Faded now seems everything,
But when comes eternal spring
With thee I'll be wandering,
Sweet Belle Mahone.

THE OLD RED CRADLE

(Contributed by "Aurelie."

Take me back to the days when the old red cradle rocked
To the good old trusty days when the door was never locked
And we rated our neighbor's truth by what he said.
I remember the years. I had numbered almost seven.
And the old red cradle stood against the wall
I was the youngest of five and two were gone to Heaven,
But the old red cradle rocked us all.

Chorus:
Rocking, rocking, continually rocking,
Rocking in time with the clock on the wall,
Which by it the seconds time we were marking,
That old red cradle rocked us all.

By its side Father paused, with a little time to spare,
And the care lines would soften on his brow
Oh! 'twas but a little while that I knew a father's care,
But I fancy in my dreams I see him now.
And if e'er came a day when my cheeks were flushed and hot,
When I did not mind my porridge or my play,
I would clamber up its side, and the pain would be forgot.
When the little old red cradle rocked away.

Aye! it rocked one and all, brothers and sisters in it lay,
And it gave to me the sweetest rest I've known
But tonight the tears will flow and I let them have their way,
For the passing years are leaving me alone.
By my mother it was rocked when the evening meal was laid,
And again I seem to see her as she smiled
When the rest were all in bed, it was then she knelt and prayed
By the little old red cradle, for her child.

But the cradle long has gone, and the burdens that it bore,
One by one have been gathered to the fold
And the flock is incomplete, for it numbers only four.
With a dear one now left straying in the cold.
Heaven grant again we may in each other's arms be locked.
Where no bitter tears of parting ever fall
God forbid that one be lost that the old red cradle rocked,
For that old red cradle rocked us all.

THE BLACK SHEEP.

(Contributed by "Lonely Lady")

In a quiet country town not very far away
There dwelt a rich and aged man,
His hairs were few and grey,
He had three sons, his only ones.
Both Jack and Tom were sly,
But Fred was honest as the day,
And would not tell a lie.
They tried their best to ruin Fred
Within the old man's mind,
Their poison soon began its work,
And Fred was much maligned,
One night the old man said:
"Begone, you're heartless to the core,"
These were the words the black sheep said,
As he stood within the door:

"Don't be angry with me, dad;
"Don't drive me from your door;
I know that I've been wayward,
But I'll not be any more;
Just give to me another chance,
Just put me to the test,
And you'll find the black sheep loves, you, dad,
Far better than the rest."

Year by year sped quickly by,
The old man now grows old;
He called both Jack and Tom to him,
And gave them all his gold;
"I only need this little room,
A place by your fireside."
One night on Jack's returning home,
He brought with him a bride;
The wife began to hate the old man
More and more each day.
One night he heard the three declare,
"That old fool's in the way;"
They then agreed that he should go—
To the poor house that was near;
When like a flash the black sheep's words
Came ringing in his ear.

A wagon drives up to the door,
It is the poor house van;
The brothers point toward their dad,
And said, "There is your man."
Just then a manly form appeared,
And pushing through the crowd, said—
"Stop you brutes, this will not be allowed,
You took the old man's property
And all that he could save,
You even sold the little plot containing his wife's grave;
And I'm his son, but not your kin
From now until the judgment day."
The father grasped the black sheep's hand;
The crowd then heard him say:

Second Chorus:
"Don't be angry with me, lad;
Don't drive me from your door;
I know that I have wronged you,
But I've repented o'er and o'er;
I wish to you my gold I'd given,
For you have stood the test;
And I find the black sheep loves his dad
Far better than the rest."

TWO SWEET-HEARTS OF MINE

(Contributed by J. H. R.)

A bunch of young fellows one night at a club
Were telling of sweet-hearts they'd had,
All of them jolly excepting one youth,
And he seemed down-hearted and sad.
Ned, won't you join us his comrades then asked,
For surely some girl has loved you.
Then raising his head as proudly he said,
Why, boys, I'm in love with two.

Chorus.

One has hair of silver gray
The other's just like gold.
One is young and youthful,
While the other's bent and old.
But dearer then life are both to me,
And from neither would I part.
One is my mother, God bless her, I love her;
The other is my sweet-heart.

My sweet-heart you know is a poor working girl,
Yet I am determined to wed
My father say no, it can never be so.
Go, marry an heiress instead;
I have won mother over, she knows how it is.
When father met her she was poor,
She says, Ned don't fret, she'll be your wife yet,
Your father'll consent I am sure.

Cherry Blossom Place

By IRENE DAVIDSON

"Tschaikowwwskh!" — or however you spell a sneeze!

Lynn dug her hot little face into the damp and doubtful relief of a perfumed pillow. It was Apple Leaves perfume she had bought the bottle, "By Blasco, Perfumer," at the five-and-ten the day before. If one had to be miserable, one might as well do it to music—or perfume, as it was in this instance.

Besides—Lynn had just missed the apple blossoms when she left home. Abington, down in Arkansas, had about eighteen hundred inhabitants and about eighteen million apple trees, scattered over the hills. At least it looked that way, in apple blossom time.

"Tschaikowwwskh! Tscha-i-kowwwSKH!!"

If he sneezed one more time she'd throw shoes at the wall . . . she'd knock on it with that old andiron.

This was the second day he'd been sneezing. Didn't he TAKE anything for his sneezes? How could she have the flu—or whatever this was—in peace, with that racking explosion in the next room every ten minutes?

Tears of sheer nervousness got rubbed into the Apple Leaves pillow. A nice way to land in Washington, anyway! Homesick already, and physically sick too, on top of that. Just how sick she was afraid to speculate. But it was funny—feeling this way so sort of jazzed up and unsteady.

Let's see—she was supposed to start work the 15th this was the 9th. She had figured, back there in Abington, on giving herself a week to see Washington. She wanted to see the Cherry Blossom place—like the picture—Lynn jerked herself up on the pillow. Her mind was certainly wandering if the Cherry Blossom place was the first thing that came into her mind in the matter of seeing Washington!

She pulled the light string determinedly, stepped down into the blue slippers, and walked unsteadily to the rocking chair by the window.

Could it be possible she'd fought the flu all winter to fall a victim to it at this most inopportune moment? Surely, the gods who had sorted her own papers from among those certain thousands in the Department of the Interior and had directed the letter-of-adventure that notified Lynn Wheeling, Abington, Arkansas, that a job waited her in the Capital City, were't going to leave her flat, like this? What would they do (in that mysterious department) if she should fail to report for duty on the 15th?

"Tschaikkowwwskh!"

Mother of ! ! ! Serene little Lynn felt suddenly wild. Flu is one thing—but sneezing! Any kind of pills will stop sneezing—for awhile, anyway. Her eyes fell on the white box on her table and widened. She reached for it with one movement, and with a continuation of the same movement slipped to her door, then to the door next her own, and knocked.

It was a minute before the knock was answered, by a slightly disheveled figure in a brown dressing-gown. Lynn held out the white box.

"It will stop the sneezing," she said simply. And then the world went gently dark.

Ten minutes later when she opened her eyes they traveled up a length of brown dressing-gown to a pair of puzzled, but nice blue eyes. She remembered perfectly what had happened, and smiled reassuringly.

"I'm all right, now," she heard herself saying. And then her voice kept right on she couldn't seem to stop it. "I gave myself a week to see Washington, you see, and now I'm afraid I'm going to have the flu. I wanted to see the Cherry Blossom place. Over there—by the Potomac. We have apple blossoms at home, you know—

"I don't know what they'll do in the Department of the Interior if I don't show up the 15th . . . I'm all right now, but I have a feeling I'm going—to be—sick."

Another voice cut through, gentle, yet a commanding sort of voice. "In the name of the great god Pan—you must come from the apple country too! Don't worry—I'll get a doctor—and get in touch with your Department. Go to sleep, can't you—or something—while I get busy. You're a sick woman, child!"

Two weeks later John Winton maneuvered his car along a beautiful driveway so that the Cherry Blossom place fell like a drift of snow out of fairyland directly in front of them.

Lynn gasped, and there was a sudden film of homesick tears in her eyes as they met his. "Honestly, John, I don't know whether I can stand it or not!"

Then they looked in silence a minute. John laughed. "Two dubs from the apple country, kid!"

"And maybe you think I didn't know how you felt that day . . . Lord! It does seem like ages ago But you weren't as bad as I was, Lynn I was the greenest thing you ever saw. I'd never been out of Fayetteville in my life; got all my training in correspondence schools. Gosh, but I was homesick for apple trees—and lonesome

"Somehow—" the blue eyes looked straight into the hazel ones—"Somehow I don't seem to figure on being homesick or lonesome ever again, Lynn . . . Do—you——?"

The girl from the apple country laughed softly. "Don't you remember what I kept saying that afternoon, when I came to? 'I'm all right—now'."

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S EARLY CLOVER

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

"What is the matter with my wife this morning?" asked Uncle Wiggily of Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy as he hopped down to breakfast in his hollow stump bungalow. "Isn't she going to eat?"

"Not just now," replied the muskrat lady housekeeper in her funny, little squeaking voice. "Mrs. Longears has a headache. I'll get your breakfast and then I'll carry her up a cup of carrot coffee."

"Oh, that's too bad," said Uncle Wiggily, kindly. "Now, I'll tell you what to do, Janie, my dear." Uncle Wiggily could call his housekeeper "dear," on account of knowing her so many years. "You pour out a cup of carrot coffee and I'll take it up to Mrs. Longears," said the rabbit gentleman. "Then I'll eat my breakfast."

So it was done that way and when Uncle Wiggily hopped up to his wife's room with the coffee made from golden carrots, she said to him in a weak and headache sort of voice:

"Thank you, Wiggy, dear. And do you think, while you are out adventuring today, that you could find some early clover? I think if I had some early spring clove salad I would feel much better."

"What's this? Early clover!

"You shall have some fresh clover if I can find it!" promised Mr. Longears. "Of course, it is a bit early in spring for clover, but I shall hop here, there and everywhere to look for some."

"Thank you, Wiggy, dear," sighed his wife. Then, having taken the carrot coffee, she tried to go to sleep to forget her aching head while Uncle Wiggily said softly down the banister railing to get his own breakfast. Then he hopped away to look for an adventure and the early clover.

But, as the rabbit gentleman had thought, it was a bit too early to find clover growing in Woodland, near the Orange Ice Mountains, where he lived. Had Uncle Wiggily lived in the Southland of course he would have found plenty of green things growing, even in early April.

"But I shall hope for the best," he said as he hopped over the fields. "Perhaps in some sheltered corner where the sun has been shining warm and the south wind has been blowing I may find early clover for my wife."

After a while, as he was hopping across a wide field in which the soft green grass was just beginning to show, Uncle Wiggily saw, in a far corner, something moving. He put on his glasses in order to see better for he thought:

"Maybe that's one of the Bad Chaps—perhaps the Fuzzy Fox who was fooled yesterday by my alarm clock."

So Uncle Wiggily looked carefully through his glasses and he was glad to see it was Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow, the puppy dog boys, rolling around in the grass, that made the queer sight, and no Bad Chaps.

"I'll go over and see what Jackie and Peetie are doing," said Uncle Wiggily as he hopped across the meadow. But when he reached the place where he had seen Jackie and Peetie rolling around, the little puppies had run away. They hardly ever stayed in one place long.

"Hello! What's this? Early clover as sure as I have a pink, twinkling nose!" cried Uncle Wiggily in delight as he saw the green leaves. "If it hadn't been for Jackie and Peetie rolling around in it, I never would have looked this way and I never would have known that the clover was here. I'm lucky."

Then Uncle Wiggily bowed politely to the growing clover and asked:

"May I pick a little to take home to cure my wife's headache?"

"Surely, Uncle Wiggily, you may," spoke a tall stalk of clover. "And when you have picked what you need it would be a great favor if you would straighten up the stems of the clovers that have been bent down and crushed by Jackie and Peetie who rolled around in here."

"I'll do that," said the rabbit gentleman. So he picked enough clover to make a salad for his wife and then he straightened up the crushed and bent stems so that he soon stood in what was almost like a little woods of clover.

All of a sudden one clover leaf whispered:

"Quick, Uncle Wiggily! Crouch down low and hide beneath our leaves!"

"Why?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

"Because," whispered the clover, "the Fuzzy Fox is coming this way."

"I guess he is looking for me because I fooled him with the alarm clock," chuckled the rabbit. But he crouched down and hid in the clover which he could not have done if he had not straightened the stems so that they were tall enough to hide him. The Fox looked across the field.

"I thought I saw Uncle Wiggily," growled the Fox. "But now I only see a patch of green clover. Well, I'll get him some other time."

Then the Fox sneaked away, not knowing the bunny was hiding in the clover, and Uncle Wiggily hopped home and cured his wife's headache.

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

MANY NEIGHBORS will be thinking, now, of transplanting their plants to outdoors, after having started them in the house. There are two or three points to be born in mind if success is to be won.

* * * * * * *

Authorities tell us that to get stout, vigorous plants, one must move them around at least once, or better still, twice, before they are transferred to their permanent quarters outside.

* * * * * * *

This rule applies to most flowers and vegetables started indoors, such as Zinnias, marigolds, asters, petunias and cosmos, among the flowers, and tomatoes, cauliflower, cabbage, head lettuce, of the vegetables.

* * * * * * *

It does not apply to those things like corn, melons and sweet peas, plants which ordinarily are not grown inside, as these should be disturbed as little as possible.

* * * * * * *

With the others, however, transplanting develops a sturdy root-growth, prevents long spindly, weak stems, and gives the young plants a better chance to develop than if left crowded in the original box.

* * * * * * *

The transplanting should be done in a dull place, and the new beds well watered after moving is complete. Keep full sun away for a couple of days. Before moving outside gradually harden off by having sheltering window raised for some days before moving. A pinch of nitrate of soda at this time will help the plants get quickly established.

* * * * * * *

Many beautiful flowers are borne on very plain plants, and on this account should be produced in a cutting garden which may be located alongside of the vegetable patch.

* * * * * * *

In this place, too, should be grown those surplus flowers for filling the vases indoors. If grown in the regular flower garden the plants might have a ragged appearance if shorn daily of their bloom.

* * * * * * *

Bachelor Buttons, Mourning Bride or Scabiosa, Schizanthus or Butter-fly flower, Zinnias, Marigolds, Callopsis and Salpigossis should be included in the cutting garden. Here they can be arranged in rows like vegetables, if one desires, and if this is done they will usually produce better results in the way of more and larger flowers.

* * * * * * *

The early cabbages should go in just as soon as the danger from ordinary frost is removed. Usually the earliest of these vegetables and also the latest are the best, being very crisp which is a most desirable factor when the head is to be used in salads.

* * * * * * *

Cabbages demand rich soil with a good supply of moisture. They they must be grown quickly or they will not head satisfactorily. On this account a pinch of nitrate of soda, which is one of the most quickly available fertilizers that we have, is advisable at transplanting time, with a side-dressing or two at intervals of af fortnight during the first month of growth.

* * * * * * *

Early cabbage, plants, either home-grown from seed or bought as plants from the greenhouse man, are one of the earliest crops to be put in the open ground.

* * * * * * *

They should go into rows two and a half feet apart and about fifteen inches apart in the row for proper development. They must be cultivated frequently and if possible liberally watered during a dry spell. If bothered by slugs or other pests sprinkling with wood ashes or some of the patent preparations carried by every seed house will be found effective.

* * * * * * *

Too much emphasis cannot be laid on the source of the seed supply, either for the flower or vegetable garden, or for that matter for planting of any kind. While much of our vegetable and flower seed is not grown in this country, nevertheless there is a big difference in the kind sold by Canadian houses and that put up elsewhere.

* * * * * * *

Naturally with a reputation often based on half a century of continued business, Canadian houses take the greatest care to bring in only that seed which will do well under Canadian conditions.

* * * * * * *

Flowers and vegetables which may give wonderful results in the Southern States, or in the more temperate climate of Great Britain for instance, are very liable to prove disappointing here where the climate demands something that matures quickly.

* * * * * * *

After all, the cost of seed is a negligible factor in gardening and particularly in flower gardening where one can place no money value on results. The soil may be in perfect shape, cultivation, everything that can be desired, and there may be plenty of fertilizer and good weather, but if the seed is not right, which means, fresh and true variety, failure is bound to result.

* * * * * * *

Many amateurs make a practse of saving some of their own seed from year to year. If the garden is very large and one can well afford to experiment, this may prove an interesting hobby, but the fact that there is very little chance of getting something worth while makes it a most doubtful proposition in regard to the main supplyof vegetables and flowers.

* * * * * * *

One may have a remarkable sweet pea, for example, one that produces a desirable bloom, large and brilliantly colored, but there is no guarantee that the seed from this bloom will produce a flower of anything like the quality of the parent plant.

* * * * * * *

Bees and other insects mix the pollen of all flowers indiscriminately and, as a result, the seed produced in the ordinary way is usually a mixture of all blooms and therefore a flower of weak coloring and small size.

* * * * * * *

Flower seeds as handled by the big houses are grown by skilled men who have acres of ground at their disposal and who can screen each individual flower and and mix the pollen by hand. Moreover, no attempt is made to produce a profusion of blooms, seed alone being desired.

* * * * * * *

It's a long way from plants to tea, but one must think of the routine things of life, even with a hobby so entrancing as gardening to attract one . . . and so, if you desire the diagram-instructions for a useful and dainty apron, please send me the coupon this week.

Old Home Week June 29 to July 7

Old Home Week News

(By J. R. H.)

Contributions Welcome

No. 16 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO April 17, 1929

Here's The Answer To Knotty Question

People have been asking, for years, where he came from. This is the answer:

In a letter from Napanee, Charles Stevens accepts the invitation to Peterborough's Old Home Week, and tells some facts about his varied life which must prove interesting to citizens who knew him. It is interesting, too, to note that Mr. Stevens plans to make this a family reunion, as well as an old home coming, and sends the committee seven names to be circularized.

Mr. Stevens went to sea out of Liverpool in 1861, soon after the outbreak of the civil war in United States, in an American sailing ship, finally landing in Philadelphia. He desired to go to Key West, Florida, but instead was shanghaied to fight in the army of the north.

Moved to Ellis Island, and later to Buffalo, Mr. Stevens escaped in a punt by tearing out two of the seats and using them as oars, landing in Ontario and making his way to St. Catharines, finally arriving in Hamilton, in uniform, and suffering from fever contracted in Antwerp the summer before.

After what he characterizes as "some ups and downs," Mr. Stevens shipped on a Kingston lumber schooner, later helped to fit out the schooner 'America," married one of a pair of twin sisters . . .

And George Stevens of East City was the first boy born to the couple.

The other members of the family Mr. Stevens, Sr., hopes to bring together here during Old Home Week are his three sons and four daughters: Charles Stevens, Jr., 62 Mason street, Milwaukee, Wis.; William Orton Stevens, Box 62, Princeton, Ill.; Clayton U. Stevens, 73 Adelaide street west, Toronto; Miss Myrtle H. Stevens, B.A., 18 Dufferine avenue, Brantford; Miss Marion E. Stevens, Apt. 25, Park Apartments, Hubbard Blvd., Toronto; Miss Ada May Stevens, same address, and Mrs. Roy C. Root (Florence), 70 Southwick street, St. Thomas.

Maypole Suggested

A suggestion has been made by H. T. that a Maypole Dance should be a feature of Old Home Week, and Miss Caroline Littlefield, of the Y.W.C.A., is suggested as manager of this event. It is thought that the Maypole would add greatly to the picturesque setting of Old Home Week events, and might be the centre of a special program for children.

From North Monaghan

From a citizen who signs himself "Progress" comes the suggestion that lights be placed in the south end of the city, especially from Lansdowne street to the river on Lock street, for the convenience of Old Home Week visitors and the present residents in that section. "We would like all the visitors to Peterborough during the Old Home Week to see as much of Peterborough and the suburbs as possible, and you know you can't see anything after eight o'clock south of Lansdowne street," he says.

It's Time to Step on the Gas!

SEVERAL good suggestions have come to the editor of the News, for which thanks. It is only by receiving ideas that the Old Home Week Committee can hope to make the reunion successful, and these ideas are passed on for consideration of the committees concerned.

Other citizens must have other suggestions to offer for the comfort or entertainment of visitors. Send them in.

Every man and woman in Peterborough is committed to this Old Home Week, and as a matter of personal pride and gratification it MUST GO OVER BIG.

No one man, and no organization of a few men, can be expected to cover all the ground, or anticipate all the contingencies; but if every citizen will send in an idea, nothing can be missed.

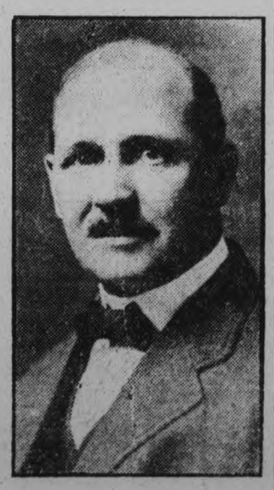
STEP ON IT! There are only a few weeks left to do it in!

Heads Entertainment Committee

John J. Turner, head of the entertainment committee for Old Home Week, has been associated with many successful affairs in Peterborough's history. He was Mayor for a double term, and served in many offices of civic importance. Old Home Week was broached during his term of office as Mayor, which coincided with the real celebration of Peterborough's hundredth birthday, but the time was not opportune then.

To-day, ex-Mayor Turner has one of the most important committees. To it is given the responsibility of co-ordinating the entertainment and bringing it to the best possible pitch of excellence. To it is delegated the duty of incorporating that OLD HOME entertainment that will recall other days to the visitors, a task that requires acumen and sympathy, but one that will pay largely in dividends when old-time residents who come here during Old Home Week leave satisfied with their visit.

The entertainment committee, with its big task, is in good hands.



J. J. TURNER

Letters of acceptance of the city's invitation continue to pour in, indicating that Peterborough's Old Home Week will be a REAL REUNION.

* * *

There is still time, Mr. Dobbin informs the editor, to send in names of old boys and girls. If you haven't a coupon, write the names on any piece of paper that come handy—BUT DON'T HAVE ANYONE MISSED!

* * *

Life will be more enjoyable if you help during Old Home Week and in the preparations. Let's all go together for a real time!

Meetings

Chairmen are invited to send in notices of meetings of their committees, for insertion in this column.

Dance Committee, Monday, City Hall, 7.30.

Publicity Committee, Tuesday, City Hall, 5 o'clock.

Water Sports Committee, Wednesday, City Hall, 8 o'clock.

Central Committee, Thursday, City Hall, 8 o'clock.

Send in your ideas for Old Home Week at once, so that the committees may work on them.

Yes, They're Coming From Afar To Reunion

'I will try my best to come down to visit with the boys during Old Home Week," says Armedos Gagnon, 2636 Niagara avenue, Niagara Falls, N.Y., who left his home at 49 Smith street in 1904. His sisters, Mrs. Thomas McGinty, Mrs. John Simmonds, and Mrs. John Murphy, still reside at 47, 49 and 57 Smith street.

Hopes to Come

"I hope that we will be able to go down for the celebration," says Frederick Deyell, Box 52, Frobisher, Sask., formerly of Fowler's Corners, who left here in 1900.

Booster for Peterborough

William Kelsey Hall, 528 14th avenue west, Calgary, Alberta, left his home on Charlotte street, twenty-three years ago, and is now manager for Alberta and eastern British Columbia for the Canadian Carbonate Limited. His sisters reside at 329 Reid street and 334 Charlotte street.

'I have always and consistently praised the old town as one of beauty, and have been, ever, a booster therefor. I have seen a goodly portion of this fair Canada of ours, and, apart from the grandeur of the Rockies, in a class by themselves of course, I have yet to see anything more entrancingly beautiful than our Kawartha Lakes district," says Mr. Hall.

Peterborough is Wonderful

"As for beauty, Peterborough is wonderful," declares George D. Hazlitt, 142 Ritson road, Oshawa, whose home was formerly in Otonabee, until 1913. His wife, Catherine Knox, was a Peterborough district girl.

From Toronto

James Arthur Kylie, 40 Burgess avenue, Toronto, left Peterborough, where he resided at 580 Downie street, in 1915. Relatives still living here are J. J. and F. R. Kylie.

From Brantford

Left Here in 1899

Walter J Squires, 152 Geoffrey street, Toronto, formerly resided at 79 Albert street. He left here in 1899.

"With Bells On."

"Intend being there with bells on," says William J. Bradfield, Woodrow, Sask., formerly of R.R 10, Peterborough, in behalf of himself and his wife, formerly Eva Lockington, of Nassau. Mr. Bradfield, who left here in 1907, remarks: "The old home town and childhood friends are still dear to the wife and me."

From Saskatchewan

Mr. and Mrs. Middleton, Merid, Saskatchewan, left here in 1916. Mrs. Middleton was formerly Sarah Rutherford, and they resided at Warsaw.

Burleigh Grimes Holds Cup Team Helpless Until Ninth Inning.

TAKE EARLY LEAD.

CHICAGO, Ills., April 17 (Canadian Press). — The Pirates withstood a Cub rally in the ninth here yesterday and defeated the home team by 4 to 3 before 50,000 fans, the greatest opening day crowd in the history of Chicago. Burleigh Grimes held the home team helpless until the ninth, when two runs were scored. Pittsburg got away to a start of three against Charlie Root in the first, and was never headed.

INDIANS WIN BY LONE RUN

Lind's Two-Bagger Gives Decision To Cleveland Over Detroit.

11 INNING STRUGGLE.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 17 (Canadian Press). — Cleveland and Detroit opened the season with an 11-inning struggle at the Ohio city yesterday, the Indians winning five to four on Carl Lind's two-bagger with two out and two on base.

The contest was played before only 15,000 fans, one of the smallest first day crowds here in years. Cold weather and a threat of rain held the attendance down.

Earl Whitehill went the route on the mound for the Tigers. Willis Hudlin relieved Joe Shaute in the eighth for the Tribe, and got credit for the victory.

Earl Avrill, the Indians' new centre-fielder, drove out a home run, as did Charley Gehringer of the Tigers

NATIONAL CHAMPS DEFEAT REDS 5-2

"Old Pete" Alexander Holds Cincinnati Reds To Five Hits.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 17 (Canadian Press). — The Cardinals, National League champions, successfully opened their 1929 campaign here yesterday, defeating the Reds 5 to 2 in a light hitting contest before 25,000 fans. "Old Pete" Alexander, who usually baffles the Reds, was effective and permitted only five safe blows. Lucas also was stingy with hits, giving up but five. Hafey was the batting star. He drove in four runs, two in the first inning on a single and two more in the sixth on a home run.

CHARLES KNAPP LEAGUE LEADER

Baltimore Mogul Named Chairman of Executive Committee By Owners.

SEASON OPENS TO-DAY.

(By Ted Vosburg, Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, NY., April 17.— As the International League begins its 43rd session of baseball to-day, a commanding figure who promises to hold an important place in the future affiars of this lusty Class AA circuit makes his official bow

Charles H Knapp, of Baltimore, who up to that time had taken no part in the political conversations that placed no less than eight candidates for the League presidency in the field, was named on the eve of the League opening to serve as president in everything but name

Given the title of chairman of the Executive committee by a group of club owners delighted at the discovery of a capable man acceptable to all, the new League leader promptly indicated that his would be a hands-off policy

CAMPBELLFORD SOFTBALL LEAGUE NOT ENTER ONTARIO ASSOCIATION

Officers Elected and General Business Discussed At Annual Meeting of League—New Trophy Offered For Competition.

ENTRY FEE WILL BE RUN ON NEW SCALE; INDIVIDUAL CARD COST TWENTY-FIVE CENTS

(Examiner Staff Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 17. — Last year softball was one of the most popular sports in town. There is every reason to suppose that it will enjoy the same situation during the coming season. Another trophy has been placed for competition and will be known as the Leonard cup, and will be presented to the runners up for league champions. This and other matters of softball interest were dealt with at the annual meeting of the local association held in the public library at eight o'clock last night. Five of the six teams in the league last season were represented, Clerks, Outlaws, Legionaires, St. Andrews, and the Mill.

When the minutes had been read, the auditors' report was given by B. H. Beatty, who, with George Bailey, audited the books and accounts of the association. The books were reported correct and the cash in the treasury in excess of $54. This was less than the amount at the end of the previous year. There were however, some debts due to the association which had not been paid. The Outlaw team and the Legionaires owed money to the association. The Legion debt was for $2. George Free claimed that there had been an ersomewhere, as he distinctly remembered the entry fee being ordered paid at a regular meeting of the Legion. J. S. Dickson corroborated Free's statement. The Outlaw debt, it is understood, will be written off the books.

Officers for 1929.

The officers for 1929 will be practically the same as those already in office, with the exception of the honorary president. This is the first year the league had elected anyone to the office and Mayor Davidson is the first to be placed in it. E. G. (Harry) Tinney will continue in the president's chair, with Hector McArthur as vice-president. Harold Dunk is secretary-treasurer for another term. Perry Saunders will be the chief umpire and be responsible for having an official on hand to take charge of all the games. The grounds committee elected for special duty consists of James Gay; Hector McArthur, Harold Dunk and Hilton Beatty.

General Business.

After some discussion as to how to use the trophy which Herb Leonard had offered to the league, it was decided that it would be accepted as a consolation cup for the team who lost out in the finals. The fees this year will also be run on a different scale. Each team will be required to pay an entry fee of one dollar and each player will be charged twenty five cents for his card. Entries are to close Tuesday, May 7, and there will be a meeting of the association that night to draw up the schedule and make arrangements for playing the games.

After some discussion it was decided not to enter the O.S.A. nor to attempt to form a Trent Valley League. This conclusion was arrived at after considering the fact that many of the players are working men and business men, and would have to lose too much time for out of town games. If the town entered a team in any other than the local league it would mean that some players would be required for a game almost every week-night. This would make it impossible.

ONE KNOCKOUT FEATURES CARD

Ontario Champions Declared From London, Sarnia, St. Catharines and Toronto.

SIX DIVISIONS.

ARENA GARDENS, Toronto, Ont., April 17 (Canadian Press).—Youngsters from London, St. Catharines, Sarnia and Toronto will journey to Port Arthur for the Dominion amateur boxing championships as a result of the Ontario finals held here last night. Winners were crowned in six divisions, following Monday night's opening card of semi-finals.

Alf Sproule, London Garrison, 135-pound class winner; Jim Taylor, St. Catharines, 147 pounds, and Bobby Crothers, Sarnia, are Ontario's representatives outside of Toronto. The local youngsters are Malcolm Mathieson, Classic A.C., 112 pounds; Tommy Bland, St. Agnes A.C., and Harry Sachs, St. Agnes A.C., 160 pounds.

One knockout featured the card, the final in the 147-pound division, when Jim Taylor, hard-hitting St. Catharines battler, floored Mickey Maguire, St. James' Club, Toronto, in the second round. A smashing two-fisted attack, sent the Toronto boy down for a nine count before the finishing blow, and Maguire was sprawled on the canvas, a towel came flying into the ring.

The flyweight match proved one of the features of the card, Malcolm Mathieson taking the decision over Johnny Palmer, Classic A.C., after an extra round of clever and fast fighting.

Bobby Crothers, last year's 118-pound champion, proved too good for Mat Gifford, St. Catharines, and the Sarnia boy again holds the title. He took last night's fight by a comfortable margin.

Alf Sproule, London, despite an injury in the second round, finished in front of Bert Ripley, Oshawa, to take the honor in the 135-pound division.

Fred Ash Chosen Chairman of Quaker Oats Tennis Club.

Officers of the Quaker Oats Tennis Club, elected at the annual meeting held at the Dowynflake, were as follows:

SIX ENTRIES FOR CITY LOOP

Officers Elected At Annual Organization Meeting of Softball League.

RULES DISCUSSED.

The organization meeting of the Peterborough Softball Association was held in the Belmont Club rooms yesterday afternoon. Although representation was small the boys immediately got down to business, drawing up a strong executive and definite plans for the season.

The following officers were elected: President, William Jackson; vice-president, Walter Fitzgerald; treasurer, Norman Lewis; secretary, Fred Scates. The following were appointed to act in the executive capacity: J. E. Sullivan, Bill Bennett, S. D. Haskill, and the president and vice-president.

It was decided that a complete code of rules would be drawn up and a playing field secured. It was stated that at least six entries were definitely assured.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 17 (Canadian Press). — Sam Gray, who won twenty victories last season, held the Chicago White Sox to five hits and the Browns won the opening game at St. Louis, 3 to 1.

Flukes helped the Browns to score each of their three runs. The first was brought in by Thomas balk and wild pitch, while the last two were scored on errors by Cissel and Metzler.

WATCH THE KIDNEYS.

The office worker, the farmer and the mechanic are all liable to suffer from derangements of the kidneys. Backaches and headaches are one of the many symptoms, others suffer from high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries sets in. In order to check these alarming and sometimes fatal diseases prompt action should be taken at the first sign of trouble.

BOTH OUTFITS FLAG CHOICES

Feeling Arose in 1928 When Hartnett's Tackle of Reese Knocked Giants Out.

BOAST STRONG ROSTERS.

In the days of old when Cubs were bold
And Giants as tough as leather,
A baseball game was hot as flame
When those boys got together—
Those ancient days of hectic strife
I fear are coming back to life!

In the offing looms a revival of the most famous feud in the history of baseball—the ancient struggle for supremacy between the Cubs and Giants.

Whenever these two tribes clashed in the old days their battles attracted as much public interest as a world's series. Men lingered far into the night their insteps parked in brazen rails, arguing the merits of Matty and Bresnahan, Brown and King, the Tinkers-to-Evers-to-Chance combination and what not. And it was a rare argument that did not end in an exchange of knuckles.

A Relentless Clash.

On the field it was one relentless battle after another. No courtesies no smile, no gestures of amity were ever exchanged between the warring tribes. Instead, there were scowls frowns, threats and harsh words, and the spikes rode high.

When the old order passed away and the worn out machines fell apart, there was general mourning in the baseball fraternity. It was the end they thought, of a picturesque feud, but now it looms again in a new generation.

There are two logical contenders (to use a pugilistic expression) in the National League this year, the same being the Gaints and the Cubs. There will be other strong teams in the race, but any student of baseball will tell you that Chief Struggle lies between the two ancient rivals.

The old feeling flared up last Fall when Gabby Hartnett perpetrated a flying tackle on the person of Andy Reese and knocked the Giants loose from their last chance to win the pennant. That animous still rankles in the bosom of every Giant and is bound to come to the surface when they clinch again.

Little Love Lost.

There was no love lost beeween the two clubs last year and there will be less in the impending campaign. One reason is that Rogers Hornsby is wearing a Cub unfform. The Rajah was shunted from the Polo Grounds to Boston without ceremony or apology, and he is not one to forget or forgive an insult.

Add to that the incentive of the world's series and a few other latent animosities, and you have the makings of a fine shindig. It will be a stormy day when the Cubs make their debut in the shadows of Coogan's Bluff.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the Capitol Will offer "THE LAST WARNING,' a Wonderful Mystery Play with Laura La Plante, and on the stage, "THE MASKED HERCULES," the 2th Century Super-Man.

Something different in stage entertainment will be offered at the Capitol the last three days of this week, when "the 20th Century Super-Man," the Masked Hercules, will give exhibitions of his wonderful strength. This man, or super-man as he is rightly called, is one of the strongest men living. He is a member of the Canadian Legion, and will be remembered by many overseas men for his wonderful feats of strength at the front, among which was that of lifting a gun, together with its carriage upon his shoulders, a total weight of two thousand pounds.

The lure of the mysterious—the fascination of the unknown—and the love of the world to solve crime problems —all of these partly explain the unprecedented popularity attending the viewing of Universal's mystery-picture, "The Last Warning," which opens at the Capitol to-morrow with Laura La Plante as the lead.

"The Last Warning" by Thomas F. Fallon was one of the most successful mystery plays ever to be seen on Broadway. It was staged from the book, "The House of Fear," by Wadsworth Camp. The motion picture was based on the play.

All the ingredients of mystery have been jammed into the photoplay. Mystery and terror which bring forth screams from the audience and laughter—not the laughter that a farce comedy produces—but the almost hysterical laughter of highly keyed nerves stimulated by relief from a fearful situation.

The story is set in a theatre — a show house which has been closed ever since the murder and disappearance of the body of the star in the midst of a performance. After five years the spooky old theatre is re-opened for rehearsals of the original fatal play, with the same cast which had formerly enacted it. Then strange things happen as the ghost of the dead star begins to walk and warns the players against re-enacting the play. The last warning, from which the picture gets its title, is given just before the big gala opening. The play goes on, but with startling results.

VIEWS ON SPORT

The summer sport season will get started this Saturday when two soccer teams meet in an exhibition tilt at King Edward Park.

FOUR TEAMS FOR EAST PETERBOROUGH.

The East Peterborough League will remain a four team league, was the definite decision of the executive at a pre-season meeting this week. This verdict was the only sensible one, since the league is strong and cosy with the old teams. Nothing could be gained by increasing the number, and every ball player in the city will get his opportunity to play ball under existing conditions. The fact that the league is planning to make improvements to the grounds in the way of a new score board, will be appreciated by the fans.

* * * * * *

PROBLEM OF GROUNDS FOR SOFTBALL.

The problem facing the softball leagues in the city is grounds on which to play their games. Central Park was handy to the teams and fans alike, but the improvements to the lawn on the park make it impossible as a softball diamond. Some other home will have to be found. Central School and the King Edward School grounds have been suggested. The former would be the better, if permission is granted, since it is closer to the former grounds and the fans in the district have not the other attractions of hardball and soccer to detract their interest from the game, as in the South end.

JOHNNY MILES IN BOSTON MARATHON.

Johnny Miles, the little Nova Scotian runner, who first won fame by beating the field home in the Boston Marathon in 1926, is entered in the classic again, running under the colors of the Hamilton Olympic Club. The Boston Marathon is scheduled for this Friday. Miles was a complete failure last year when he ran in the race, because of the extreme heat. He is in great condition now, and if the weather is cool he will be the man to beat. Running in the race also is Clarence DeMar, the greatest of them all, who has won the Boston on six different occasions, and been second and third twice. The entry now numbers 125 of the best long-distance men on the continent, including Bill Kennedy, of Port Chester, N.Y., and Carl Linder, also two former winners.

CLUB OWNERS COULD NOT AGREE

The club owners of the International league could not come to a decision in the matter of appointing a successor to the late Conway Toole, as president of the League. Nearly every owner had some favorite whom he brought forward for the important office. A compromise was reached by naming Charles H. Knapp, president of the Baltimore Club, chairman of the committee, with titular powers.

RAIN SPOILS OPENING DAY.

The long-expected event—the opening day of the major league baseball season—came around yesterday, but the great occasion was ruined, since with but few exceptions, rain soaked the diamonds. All customary predictions for a prosperous season and two close races, have been made, but most of the baseball warriors will have to rest on their arms for yet another day. Perhaps Babe Ruth seized the opportunity and got married.

Babe Ruth Marries New York Actress

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 17. — (Canadian Press).—Babe Ruth and Mrs. Claire Hodgson, former actress, were married this morning at St. Gregory's Roman Catholic church. The ceremony was at 5.55 a.m., 35 minutes ahead of the time as announced last night.

Ruth and Mrs. Hodgson obtained a marriage license Monday and announced the ceremony would be performed some day this week. Plans for a secret marriage were abandoned last night, however, when Christy Walsh, Ruth's personal manager, issued a statement in behalf of the ball player, saying the marriage would be at a low nuptial mass at St. Gregory's at 6:30 a.m., today.

PLAYERS MUST GUARD FACES

Helen Wills Exception To Stars Who Endure Game With Set Expression.

ACROSS TENNIS NETS.

LONDON, April 17.— Miss Helen Wills, America's foremost woman tennis star, is the greatest exception to what is fast becoming a rule for women court enthusiasts.

What is more, Helen just isn't by the rule. And that is why, perhaps, she has been dubbed "Little Miss Poker Face," which one English sports writer terms "ungallant."

"Tennis face" is becoming the fashoinable affliction among the women stars. According to H. S. Scriviner, the lawn tennis referee, women players have one danger to guard against—the tendency for good looks to be spoiled on the court.

He does not consider tennis more harmful than other sports, but he pointed out that Fraulein Cilly Aussem, the German tennis champion, has been forbidden to play any more tennis because of the terrific strain on her eyes, from which she has been suffering for some time. She has returned to Germany for a serious operation. And Fraulein Aussem is only twenty.

A Big Question.

Everyone is familiar with the set expression of determination on the features of even the prettiest of the women tennis champions. The question is: Does this do-or-die look tend to harden the contours of the tennis girl's features?

Mr. Scriviner says: "There are cases of first-class players, who, starting as really pretty girls, have become so strained in their expressions that they are now positively plain."

The antidote to strain, he pointed out, is relaxation, instancing Miss Betty Nuthall. Miss Nuthall on the courts can look as determined as any Amazon. Betty off the courts is a picture of soft-featured, smiling English girlhood. The same thing applies to Senorita De Alvarez, to mention another of the women stars.

Helen Is Exception.

But Helen Wills is the great exception. Not only does the American star stand out as one who has discarded tense facial expressions during a hard contest, but also one who has no need of curing strained features by resorting to relaxation.

Helen will engage in the fastest volleying without tightening or relaxing a muscle of her classic Greek features. At the end of her game, she will be coldly calm. She, above all, has no reason to fear the loss of her finely-chiseled features through the sport that gives her most pleasure.

BELANGER DEFENDS HIS TITLE TO-NIGHT

Two Championship Bouts At Montreal Boxing Show.

MONTREAL, April 17.—Three Canadian titleholders will go into action in to-night's boxing show at the Forum, and of the trio two will be defending their titles. "Frenchy" Belanger of Toronto, rugged little holder of the Dominion flyweight championship, will defend his crown against Harry Hill, the fast and clever British boxer, while Joe Villeneuve of Quebec, the Canadian bantamweight titleholder, clashes with Arthur Roger of Montreal in another titular bout.

The third Canadian champion who will appear on to-night's program is Leo ("Kid") Roy of this city, the Canadian featherweight champion. Roy meets the aggressive Jackie Cohen of New York in a non-titular set-to.

Rumor Denied Dissension Brewing Among Members Of Olympic Ladies Relay Team

Ottawa, Ont., April 17. — (C.P.)—Denial that the resignation of Miss Myrtle Cook and Miss May Griffiths from the Toronto Branch of the Canadian Ladies' Athletic Association, was caused by dissension among the members of the Olympic Ladies' Relay Team, was expressed here last night by team members.

Miss Cook and Miss Griffiths are moving to Montreal, and this was the reason given for their intention to sever relations with the Toronto body.

Miss Alexandrine Gibbs, manager of the relay team, and president of the Toronto branch of the Association, waived aside the suggestion that ill-feeling was responsible for the resignations. Reports that dissension in the team ranks had been brewing for some time, and reached a climax at the track meet in Montreal on Monday night, because Miss Griffiths was informed that Miss Gwen Nye of Hamilton, would run in her place,were groundless, said Miss Gibbs.

Bowling Alley Gossip

By Pin Boy

The annual bowling tournament between the Peterborough C.G.E. and the Toronto Davenport Works was held in Toronto recently and the local teams went down to defeat. Total pinnage was the deciding factor and the final summing up gave the Torontonians a majority of 309 pins.

This tournament is becoming more popular as time goes on and usually is held at the close of the bowling season. The teams stage home and home games and last Saturday, six men's teams and one ladies' team motored to Toronto.

A team consisting of Bud Weese, Dave Grant, Jack Lesurf, W. McGrath and Tommy Ryan carried off the high pinnage for three games in the tourney with a total of 3,058 pins. A Toronto team consisting of B. Thompson, F. Martin, S. Mackie, R. Foster, and J. Robertson were next in line with 2960.

Bud Weese unlimbered his smoke ball in A1 style and crashed the pins for a total of 800 pins in three games. This score took high three honors among the Peterborough bowlers, while his single score of 296 was not equalled by any of his teammates. The following are his scores: 263, 241, 296—800.

J. Robertson of the Davenport crowd was the heaviest hitter in the tournament, and his consistent pin spilling carried off both high single and high three. Scores, 354, 266, 217 —837.

The following are the high scorers among the local men: Jim Fay, 625; Dave Grant, 628; McLeod, 613; Ridley, 618, and Bud Weese, 800. N. Hardie had both high single and high three on the local girls' team, collecting 206 and 515.

The Toronto bowlers make the trip to Peterborough next Saturday, and a battle royal is promised when the two groups clash at the Duffus Recreation Academy on Saturday night. Most of the local bowlers performed away below their usual style in Toronto, but feel that the new alleys were responsible for the low score.

After the tournament the bowlers will attend a dance, arranged by the C.G.E. Social and Athletic Club in the Legion Hall on Murray street, and any member of this club will be welcome.

The ten pin league which was made up of C.G.E. Engineers and Draftsmen played the final games last week and as was expected the Mefojas won easily. The team name is made up of the first two letters in each players name, the persons on this team being Metherel, Foster and Jackson.

EXECUTIVE MEETING.

Applications For Change of Residence Will Be Dealt With By O.B.A.A.

The executive of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association will meet at the Carls-Rite Hotel, Toronto, on Friday evening, April 19, at 7.30 p.m.

Applications of players for change of residence and the request of the T.A.B.A. for an extension of time to declare a senior winner in Toronto will be dealt with.

From 100 to 200 earthquakes perceptible to the human senses occur in the United States every year. The number observed by instruments is far greater.

PROMISING ROOKIES RETAINED BY TORONTO CLUB

A. T. SMITH VISITS CITY

37 TELEPHONES IN 1882

Every so often, though his calls are not regulated by any set schedule, A. T. Smith pays a visit to Peterborough, for he is manager of the entire Central Division of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, supervising that territory which extends from Brighton on the East to Sault Ste. Marie and Niagara Peninsula. That includes Peterborough.

But perhaps at no point in all of his official visits does he encounter scenes reminiscent of earlier days with the Bell Company, as he does in this city for away back in 1882, four years after he became an employee, Mr. Smith came here as manager of the local branch. A vast network of some thirty-seven telephones, including a few in private residences were at that time his chief charge, all going out from the old magneto system located in office over the market square. He it was who supervised the erection of Peterborough's first electric lighting system, which had been manufactured by the Royal Electric company of Montreal. Power for the system was obtained from Hazlett's mills, and it was a red-letter day in the town's history when Peterborough first saw in operation the reason for her later becoming known as the "electric city."

The local telephone branch was considerably modernized by the installation of a central battery system and with removal later to the present site, the Central office was changed so that it was equipped with a later-type Central system.

Left Peterborough In 1884.

Leaving Peterborough in 1884, Mr. Smith was transferred to Halifax and from there, in 1886 he was moved to the Kingston district. Since 1900 he has made Toronto his headquarters, and in his present capacity as Divisional Manager has appointed many men to their first positions and more advanced stations in the company. At the time when he began working with the telephone company there were but ten active employees in all of Canada, yet to-day 16,000 persons or more are required to handle the truly vast network that is the Bell system. Mr. Smith recalls among his most pleasant memories, the "doings" of the old Peterborough volunteer fire fighting force with which he was closely identified, as well as many other community organizations. In other words, his two years in Peterborough were among the most pleasant of his life.

CHARLES MONK IS DEAD

MONTREAL, Que., April 16. — (Canadian Press).—Charles Dering Monk, son of the late Mr. Justice Cornwallis Monk and brother of F. D. Monk, Minister of Public Works in the Cabinet which Sir Robert Borden formed in 1911, is dead here.

Rheumatism Crippled English Girl

But Gin Pills soon brought relief

A stranger in a strange land, only nine months out from England and six of these a cripple with Rheumatism. No wonder Miss Florence Hallett was despondent. Writing from Ottawa she sums up in a few sentences those dreary, painful months—three doctors, a foot specialist, a month in hospital, then work again when she "should have been in bed."

Gin Pills earn Miss Hallett's warmest praise. "I found an improvement after the first box," she declares gratefully. "I shall always keep your pills by me. I think they are wonderful."

The great value of Gin Pills lies in their soothing and tonic effect upon the kidneys. The relief they give sufferers from Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, etc., is wonderful. But these acute conditions should never be allowed to develop. Take Gin Pills the first time symptoms of trouble show themselves—backache, dizziness, spots before the eyes, swollen joints, headaches, brick dust in urine, a burning sensation attendant on scanty or too frequent urination. 50c. a box at all druggists. OTONABEE RIVER IS RUNNING HIGH Usual Flood of Water From Melting Ice and Snow Fills River.

The Otonabee River this spring is flowing with greater volume than for many years past according to workmen employed at the waterworks plant. The usual flood of water from the melting of the ice and snow in the upper lakes has poured into the river and has been further increased by the torrential rains of the past week.

One of the pranks of the high waters was to tear away the sturdy boom log from the shore of the river above the dam and carry it down. This boom landed broadside on the piers of the dam as though placed in the position by engineers. It acted as a slight dam on the waters increasing the depth behind by nearly two feet.

The solar energy received by an area of 250 acres of tropical desert in the middle of a summer day amounts to about a million horsepower; more than enough to supply all the heat and power used by a big city.

R. HARSTONE TELLS OF TRIP INTO MEXICO

Mexican Federal Soldiers Were Found Parading Streets of Nogales.

MERCHANTS FEAR LOOTING

Local Citizen Has Returned After Trip Through South-Western States.

Robert Hartstone returned Monday night after six weeks of delightful travel through south western United States which took him across the Mexican border in two of the active sectors of the revolution, which was then in its most threatening stage. He was accompanied by his daughter Marian.

"We first touched the Mexican line at El Paso on the extreme western boundary of Texas", Mr. Hartstone told The Examiner. "The newspaper bulletins reported that the rebels had fired into the city that same day and several persons were hit, but the people there seemed to take the neighboring revolt as a joke. We went on to Tuscon (pronounced Too-son), Arizona, which was our destination, and then motored south some forty miles across the Mexican boundary to Nogales.

Merchants Feared Looting

Mexican federal soldiers were parading the streets and on guard everywhere. They were also patrolling the border. We found the storekeepers in Nogales busy hiding most of their goods against a rebel attack expected that day. In the last revolution their stores had been pillaged and cleaned out. We visited the central market, quite an interesting sight, the peons wearing big sombreros and sitting on high seats, offering lavish supplies of early fruits and vegetables. Their meat was exposed and was certainly not inviting. The Mexican peon is noted as being lazy and dirty. Nogales is a rather beautiful city with many fine houses. Its wealth came chiefly from nearby copper mines.

We spent two weeks at Tuscon. It has a wonderful climate, dry and warm and invigorating. Half its population of 35,000 are Mexicans and Indians living for the most part in their own quarter of the city. In their homes they speak Spanish, but English is the language of the schools.

Built By Health Seekers

Tuscon was built up largely by men who went there for health. All around it is a sandy desert. There is no water except the city's reservoir obtained from deep wells, but none for irrigation purposes. Two miles out is the splendid El Conquistador hotel, a health resort. The town's main asset is its climate. The chairman of the Board of Trade said to me "that is practically all we have." And it really is wonderful how they have exploited it."

Mr. Hartstone had left Chicago on March 6th on the luxurious Apache train of the Southern Pacific Railway. Crossing the great grain and cattle state of Kansas the route traversing the tip of Texas, New Mexico and Arizona lay through a great expanse of sandy desert.

Paved Roads Everywhere.

"Everywhere on our trip we saw paved roads", Mr. Hartstone said. "One day we motored from Tuscon to Phoenix, the capital of Arizona, and back, a distance of 270 miles, and while there visited the state buildings and other places of interest.

From Tuscon we went on to Los Angeles down the coast to San Diego and again crossed the Mexican border to see Aqual Calienta and Tijuana.

Mexico's Monte Carlo.

The show place of Aqua Calienta is the casino, the Monte Carlo of Mexico. It cost millions and is really a beautiful place, owned largely by the proprietary interests behind the U.S. Grant Hotel in San Diego with the addition of a Mexican to comply with the law that demands at least one Mexican citizen in every business introduced by foreigners.

Crowded With Tourists.

Tourists throng the place as it is only a short distance south of the border. The great gambling hall of the Casino seems to glitter with gold, a pretentious chamber, richly appointed and equipped with all kinds of gambling devices. It was crowded with men and women putting their money here and there on the tables. There were refreshment parlors where men and women were resting, smoking and drinking.

A Colorful Scene.

The patio of the hotel is a beautiful central court. It is open to the sky; a fountain splashing, visitors dining under gay, colored umbrellas, spread over their tables; palms and flowers and sunlight and a Mexican orchestra. Obviously a popular resort and known all over the United States for its one dollar dinners.

Bull Fights at Tijuana

Tijuana is generally known by its great race track. They also have Sunday bull fights, all kinds of gambling but apparently for smaller stakes than at Aqua Calienta, and plenty of facilities for drinking. There is no business at Tijuana except race track and all other gambling, selling whiskey, pleasures for tourists and the usual curio stores.

Those who have visited southern California know of the scenic beauty along the railway and highway which fringe the coast for 120 miles from Los Angeles to San Diego. We retraced that route and finally turned east from Los Angeles through California and the mountains, the Arizona desert and the Grand Canyoc district at Williams, on to Santa Fe, the oldest city in the United States. Its altitude is 7,000 feet.

Oasis in the Desert.

The Santa Fe railway has no diners on its trains, but instead has a system of hotels which are veritable oases in the desert. They are the only signs of habitation in the great expanse of desert country.

Iowa is the great corn state, with towns and small cities every six or eight miles along the Chicago and North Western Railway. These were striking evidences of the fertility and wealth of that State."

A Wonderful Nation.

Asked for his deepest impressions from his trip Mr. Hartstone, who is no stranger to practically all parts of the United States, concluded: "Of course the United States is a very great and wealthy nation. I was again impressed with its magnitude, its numerous large cities, the endless succession of small cities and towns; also by the evidences of its concentrated trade within itself, I mean interstate trade. It is an education just to see the oil field at Santa Fe Springs near Los Angeles, a great assembly of derricks and oil ponds or reservoirs. The people are energetic and enterprising. They are self-centred, self-sufficient, engrossed in themselves, in their state affairs and business, in their politics. Of course everywhere you go you meet intelligent, travelled Americans who have broader outlooks, but after you leave Chicago going southwest the most of the people know nothing about Canada and they care less.

Large Desert Areas.

I was struck, too, by that large, arid territory embracing Arizona and New Mexico, miles upon miles of sand and cactus. It is useless without water, but in Southern California by means of extensive irrigation systems they have made the desert bloom with gardens and orchards, orange groves and vineyards, and have thickly populated the country.

Then there are the rich farms of Iowa, but on the whole Canada offers the greater opportunities. Our need is capital. If we can get more money, labor will follow. We have the last great country to be colonized or settled. Therefore the future is with Canada for progress, for prosperity and for opportunity not only for the man of small means but also men of wealth.

Opportunities In Canada.

Our western cultivated land will average $25 an acre; theirs averages $200 and $350 an acre in some states, and they are not making good returns on their money. In fact I doubt whether they can make money at over $200 an acre growing corn and feeding hogs. Owing to the smaller initial cost our lands will show better returns on the money invested than theirs.

But there's one thing they certainly have and that's climate."

Mr. Hartstone's conclusions are based on his long experience and extensive interests in the Canadian west. It is personal not hearsay knowledge of the productiveness and the opportunities of our western provinces.

AIR SCHOOL IS ORGANIZED

W. N. Millar To Conduct School of Instruction For Student Flyers.

WIDE EXPERIENCE.

After a lapse of two years, since the passing of the Canadian Air Services, Peterborough will again boast possession of a flying school where Peterborough youth may obtain first class instruction in aviation without travelling to distant cities to get it.

Returning from a winter's course for instructors at Camp Borden, and with last year's flying experience as pilot for Lieut.-Colonel C. H. Ackerman, W. N. Millar has enjoyed in this district more than a month of profitable "gypsy" flying, and almost invariably his passengers have expressed themselves as highly delighted with the experience. At present Mr. Millar has his plane located on a farm about two miles out the Chemong Road where he intends conducting a school of instruction for student flyers, for whom he has already advertised. His company will be known as the Northern Airways.

Discussing the capacity of his school, the pilot instructor stated he would be able to give instruction in the mechanical as well as technical aspects of flying, and that he proposed beginning the classes immediately if a sufficient number of young fellows show an inclination to take up aviation.

John Edgar Honored By Fellow Workers of Teco Stores.

Prominent as an active worker in the Peterborough Teco Social Club, John Edgar, of the Teco Stores men's shoe department left over the week-end for Hamilton where he has accepted a similar position with a firm in that city.

Mr. Edgar has been on the staff of the local Teco Stores for more than a year, having had charge of the men's shoe department. On Saturday evening last, immediately following closing bell, the Teco staff gathered, and through their assistant manager, C. Benson, presented to the departing employee a handsome club bag, which he fittingly acknowledged.

Another local young man who recently left this city was C. W. Jackson, teller in the Peterborough branch of the Royal Bank. Mr. Jackson has been transferred to the Chestnut-Dundas branch of the Royal Bank in Toronto, and his place has been taken by Alexander P. Baird of the local bank staff.

BIBLE CLASSES ATTEND REVIVAL

Mrs. Dibble Gives An Address On "Sure Things" in St. James Church.

REQUESTS ARE SUNG.

Adult Bible Class night was one of the best services held during the singing revival at St. James United Church.

Rev. William Allan of St. Paul's, Rev. David Wren, Trinity United and Rev. Mr. Seymour of Albert College, Belleville, were on the platform with the pastor, Rev. Mr. Dudgeon, and the evangelists, Mr. and Mrs. Dibble. Rev. Mr. Todd of George street United church, was seen in the audience.

The centre pew was reserved for the organization, but would not accommodate the large number who attended in groups. There were 12 separate units, each being well represented.

The two full choirs, under the direction of Frank Stevens, have faithfully attended every meeting, giving added inspiration.

The service of song, led by Mr. Dibble and Mr. Mustaine, was a benediction to every one who took part—and everyone did, in the rousing opening hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers."

Of special interest was the singing of the Glory Song by Mrs. William McLaren and Mr. Dibble. This was sung by request; other request numbers being "Face to Face," "I will Make You Fishers of Men," and "Sweetest Name I Know."

After the announcements Harold Mustaine played with beautiful touch an intricate combination of the two hymns, "Lead Kindly Light," and "Joy to the World"—one of the sweetest bits of music heard in these meetings.

Rev. Mr. Seymour led in an earnest prayer for blessing on this service.

Mrs. Dibble's wonderful address entitled "Sure Things," was introduced by a message in song by her husband, in a sympathetic rendering of "The Stranger of Galilee."

Mrs. Dibble read as her Scripture lesson, the first chapter of I. Peter, stressing the last verse: "But the word of the Lord endureth forever, and this is the word which by the Gospel is preached unto you."

In this day of changing, shifting, reckless things all about us, we wonder, "Is anything sure?" Peace is not sure, nor love, nor friendship. Seemingly the most precious things and relationships in life, are the most insecure. Money, popularity and pleasures are not lasting. Love of money does more to damn the soul than any other thing. Ever since Judas sold his Master for 30 pieces of silver men have been selling their souls for money. The only riches that are absolutely sure are the treasures we store up in heaven. Some say they can't afford to live a Christian life. They have children to support and educate. But, she said, no man ever went to the poor house by giving to God."

This is a materialistic, pleasure-mad life. Man plans and schemes to make money—and more money; and speed, speed, speed in its spending on every worldly thing. God gets the tag ends of our lives, our money, our love, and yet there's only one place where money is sure—in God's storehouse. Men sell integrity and honor to win popularity, in business, in social life, and in the home. What a price we pay. Popularity is not sure.

Life is not Sure.

Life itself is not sure. We have evidence of this all about us every day. Our friends are here with us one day, well, happy and careless. The next they have gone.

But thank God. Something is sure. The word of God. It is more sure than the visible things of life. The fickle, changing minds of man cannot change the word of God. It is the torch that lights the world, and that lights the way to Jesus. All powers of oratory that have been used to destroy it have failed. Satan laughs at a Bible-less home. People go about no other task in the world as carelessly as they go about preparing for eternity. We delve and study for business or professional life, but we think we can live and know the Christian life without the Bible. Those who reject this book are lost eternally. Every sin will find you out and make you pay.

There is no slave driver in the world like sin, and, said Mrs. Dibble, "Sin is the only thing on earth I'm afraid of." It is the old, old law of sowing and reaping. If you have prayerless and Bibleless homes you will have prayerless and Bibleless children. You can't play with sin without sin leaving its mark upon your life. And the Word of God—our Bible—is the only sure salvation for a sin-sick world.

To-night's meeting will be "Every member present" night.

state were down and the rainfall threatened floods in the Androscoggin Valley.

Sailings Are Cancelled

Several ships were hove to outside Boston Harbor to ride out the storm. Cancellation of sailings of many outward bound steamers was ordered. In Boston and environs traffic and communication was interrupted.

The storm caused one death in Connecticut when Frank Marcay, a factory worker at Stamford, was struck on the head by a section of fence blown down by the wind.

In western New York and Pennsylvania, the storm assumed the aspects of a blizzard. At Oneonta, N. Y., ten inches of snow fell and roads were blocked in the vicinity when the wind piled up six-foot drifts.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

PIANO PUPILS GIVE RECITAL

Small Boys and Girls of Miss Harstone's Class Acquit Themselves Creditably.

WELL ATTENDED.

A very well-attended and pleasing recital by piano pupils of junior age of Miss Mary Hartstone was given in St. Andrew's Sunday School hall last evening. The small boys and girls acquitted themselves very creditably, showing careful attention to expert tuition and playing their 'pieces' in very pleasing style, the majority being memorized carefully. Bill McPherson occupied the chair and made the announcements and Billy Petrie officiated at the door. At the conclusion of the recital, Esther Rogow presented Miss Hartstone with a pretty bouquet of flowers.

The program was as follows: "Daisy" by Dorothy Pringle; "Queen of the Meadow" by Bobby Carr; "Snowdrop" by Ruth Kingan; "Crocus" and "Narcissus" by Gladys Watson; duett, "Little Jack Horner" by Mary and Douglas McPherson; "Tulip" by Bessie Atkin; "Red Rose" and "Chrysanthemum" by Fred Hooper; "Bluette" by Esther Rogow; "Wallflower" by Douglas McPherson; recitation by Joy Walker; "Andante" by Sherry Bond; "Narcissus" by Alicia Langley; "Mazurka" by Tom Hooper; "The Little Waltz" by Joy Walker; "Intermezzo Caprice" by Norman Green; duett, "The Pixies in the Giant Swing" by Florence Trebilcock and Mary McPherson; "Sans Scuci" and "King of the Village" by Olga Westbye; "Skating" by Florence Trebilcock and "Country Dance" by Mary McPherson.

WEDDING BELLS

MANNEKINS—WHITE.

The marriage was solemnized at ten o'clock on the morning of April 3rd, in the Presbyterian Manse at Philadelphia, Pa., of Eva P. White, second eldest daughter of Mrs. Peter Ayotte and the late William White of 535 Bethune street, to Julius G. Mannekins, of Philadelpia. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William L. McCormick.

The bride was prettily attired in royal blue georgette with hat and shoes to match and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses.

Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. J. W. White, brother and sister-in-law of the bride. Mrs. White wore a handsome gown of cocoa brown Canton crepe with hat and shoes to match and bouquet of Columbia roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Mannekins spent a short time in Atlantitc City on their honeymoon trip and on their return they were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. J. W. White at a theatre party held in the Mastbaum Theatre, one of the largest places of its kind in the world. They are residing at 1903 North 13th street Philadelphia.

AGNEW—DELONG.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday in the Mark Street United Church, when Irene, daughter of Mrs. E. Delong and the late A. Delong, became the bride of Cyril John Agnew, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Agnew, both of this city. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, the Rev. A. E. Thornley. The wedding music was played by Victor Boorman. The church was appropriately decorated for the occasion.

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her cousin, Harold McMahon, wore a lovely gown of white satin and lace with long veil. She wore white satin slippers and white silk hose and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Greta Delong, sister of the bride, was dressed in maize silk georgette and carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Little Miss Fern Agnew, the flower girl, wore a dainty frock of pink and carried a bouquet of sweet peas.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Harold Agnew, and ushers were Max and Lionel Pomeroy.

During the signing of the register, Miss Berenice Cain sang very sweetly, "O Promise Me."

After the ceremony, a dainty repast was served at the home of the bride's mother at 51 River Road. Fifty guests were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Agnew left on the 5:15 train for Toronto, for a short honeymoon trip. On their return they will live on Euclid avenue, Ashburnham.

Among the many beautiful gifts received by the young people was a cabinet of silver from the firm of C. H. Huffman and Sons, with whom the bridegroom is employed, and a casserole from the Power Press Department of the Westclox Company, where the bride was formerly employed.

Besides her sorrowing husband, she is survived by five sons: William Charles of Peterborough, George of Toronto, Albert of Seattle, Ralph of California, and Elmer at home, and three daughters: Mrs. E. McGregor and Mrs. John Dixon of Saskatchewan and Mrs. Arthur Holden of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held Friday, April 19, at 2 p.m., from her late residence to the Little Lake Cemetery, with the Rev. J. H. Dudgeon of St. James' Church officiating.

JOINED CABINET IN YEAR 1896

tinued to be a member of the House of Commons until the general election of 1911, when he withdrew and did not present himself for re-election. He represented Brandon, Manitoba, in the Dominion Parliament from 1896 until 1911, his first election to the House of Commons being by acclamation, following upon his call to the Ministry at Ottawa.

Sir Clifford withdrew his support from the Laurier Government in 1911, when the Taft-Fielding reciprocity agreement was the paramount question in Dominion politics, he not being in accord on the matter with his leader, Sir Wilfrid Laurier. He took an active part in the campaign in the general election of that year against the proposed reciprocity agreement with the United States.

Sir Clifford Sifton was an outstanding political figure in Manitoba for a number of years before he joined the Laurier government. His political career in Manitoba began in 1888. In that year he was elected to the Manitoba legislature as Liberal member for North Brandon. He continued to represent Brandon in the local legislature, until he accepted the invitation to the larger sphere of usefulness at Ottawa.

Attorney-General of Manitoba

Succeeding Hon. Joseph Martin as Attorney-General of Manitoba in 1891, Sir Clifford was Attorney-General and Minister of Education in the Greenway government until 1896, when he resigned to become Minister of the Interior and Superintendent-General of Indian Affairs for Canada. While a member of the Manitoba government he introduced the act abolishing divisions between law and equity procedure in the Court of King's Bench and codifying and simplifying civil procedure in the courts.

Sir Clifford had charge, on behalf of the Province of Manitoba, of the constitutional litigation relating to the Manitoba School Law and negotiations with the Tupper government at Ottawa arising out of the same. With Hon. J. D. Cameron, Provincial Secretary of Manitoba at the time, he met commissioners of the Dominion government in March, 1896, to debate the settlement of this question. A few months later there was a change of Government at Ottawa and Sir Clifford joined the new administration, that of Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

On the recommendation of the Canadian Government, Sir Clifford was appointed by the British government to act as British Agent before the Alaska Boundary Tribunal under the treaty of January, 1903. He spent several months in London in 1903 superintending the preparation and presentation of the British case. He was one of the Dominion's representative commissioners at the International Conference on the Preservation of Natural Resources, held at Washington, D.C., in 1908.

For some time Sir Clifford was chairman of the Canadian Conservation Commission, he having been appointed to this position in 1909. He lectured in many places throughout the country on "The Conservation of Our Natural Resources." In 1909 he was elected chairman of the Committee on Forests and Waterways in the House of Commons.

Attended Coronation.

He attended the Imperial Conference in London in 1907. He and Lady Sifton were present at the Coronation of King George and Queen Mary, 1911, by invitation, and they were presented to the King and Queen in St. James' Palace the same year.

Apart from his political career, Sir Clifford Sifton was widely known in Canada and the United States, he being for many years one of the leading horsemen at the principal races and horse shows in the big Canadian and American cities. He was an importer of English hunters. He was a great lover of high-bred, high-spirited horses, and probably the numerous trophies which he won in horse competitions gave him more genuine pleasure than the honors that came his way in the political arena. He was elected president of the Ottawa Racing Association in 1903, and in 1909 was head of the National Bureau of Breeding.

He was created Knight Commander of St. Michael and St. George on January 1, 1915.

Of Irish descent, Sir Clifford Sifton, son of John W. Sifton, at one time Speaker of the Legislative Assembly of Manitoba, was born in the County of Middlesex, Ontario, on March 10, 1861. He was educated in the London High School and Victoria University, Toronto. He married Elizabeth Arma Burrows, daughter of H. T. Burrows, formerly of Ottawa, on August 14, 1884.

Sir Clifford resided in Ottawa for some years after becoming a Minister of the Government there, but subsequently became a resident of Toronto. He was a member of the United Church, and was a member of the following clubs: Manitoba, Winnipeg; Rideau, Ottawa; Hunt, Toronto, and York, Toronto.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 17 (C.P.).—"Sir Clifford Sifton was one of the greatest men that Canada ever produced," said Right Hon. George P. Graham, when informed of the death of Sir Clifford to-day. Senator Graham was associated with Sir Clifford in the Cabinet of Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

"He was strong in his convictions and he had convictions on every question in the public mind," continued Senator Graham. "He was as determined as he was practical. Once he believed in any project or undertaking, he pursued it with all his might. As a business man he was the personification of shrewdness, and while he dealt in large figures, he was never what one would term a plunger. There never was a more devoted husband and father, and never was husband or father more idolized by wife and family.

"He made his mark in public life, and Canada received wonderfu imand Canada received wonderful imgration policies which he initiated. His passing will be a shock to his friends and will leave a place in the business life and public thought of Canada which it will be hard to fill."

WINNIPEG, Man., April 17 (C.P.).—From scores of Manitobans whose memory extended back to the newspaper days of Sir Clifford Sifton in Manitoba, came glowing tributes today to the memory of the Ontarioan who came to be a power on the Prairies. Though the late Mr. Sifton was known to have been markedly ill during the past few month, few of his friends here realized the gravity of his malady.

The last occasion when Sir Clifford visited Winnipeg was during last August when he remained here for some ten days, renewing acquaintances with his friends of Manitoba's formative days.

MISSION CIRCLE ELECTS OFFICERS

Miss Elizabeth Webber New President of Murray Street Church Society.

Miss Elizabeth Webber was elected president of the Young Women's Mission Circle of Murray Street Church at the annual meeting held last evening. Much regret was felt at the retirement of Miss Ethel Garbutt, who held the office of president for the past two years.

Very encouraging reports were heard throughout the meeting, which testified to the great amount of work which had been done by the members during the previous year. The treasurer reported a total of $232.14 raised during 1928 and a number of special contributions were raised, which were not counted in this report.

Preceding the report of the nominating committee, Miss Garbutt expressed her appreciation of the cooperation of the members during her tenure of office.

RETURNS HOME.

Simon R. Armstrong Progressing Favorably After His Recent Operation.

Convalescing after a serious operation, skilfully performed, City Clerk S. R. Armstrong returned to his home 571 Water street, to-day, after more than three weeks in Nicholls hospital. His condition is reported as showing quite satisfactory improvement and he already looks forward to a return to his office at the city hall, where his assistant, Charles Curtis, is at present carrying on the city's business.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of my dear sister, Mrs. H. Dewdney (nee Maud Rendle) who passed away April 17th, 1923.

Six years have passed since that sad day,
The one we loved was called away;
God took her home, it was his will,
But in our hearts she liveth still.

Scotch Generosity.

Andy, the Scotchman, was to have delivered 20 hens to H. F. Doig one morning, but when they arrived, there was found to be only 19. Finally, late in the afternoon, the last hen was delivered. When asked about the matter Andy replied: "The dum hen dinna lay its egg 'till just nu'."

You really ought to choose a McCormick-Deering Manure Spreader. The box is easy to load; it is low down. The two beaters and widespread spiral shred and spread the manure as it should be done.

Good seed planted in a well worked seed bed is pretty sure to result in a good crop. We cannot guarantee the weather, but we can provide you with the McCormick-Deering line of grain drills and tillage tools.

POWER FARMING IS PROFIT FARMING.

Your boy will get a big kick out of doing two men's work with a Farmall. And he can do it easily. It's a lot easier to keep him on the farm with you when you don't ask him to dodge swishing tails all day.

Little Johnnie to teacher: "Can anybody be punished for something he didn't do?"

Teacher: "Why, certainly not, Johnnie."

Johnnie: "That's fine. I haven't done my 'rithmetic."

Big farms, little farms, and all soil conditions can be fitted out with some kind of a McCormick-Deering Tractor Plow.

So Long, See You Next Week.

EVERY ORGAN

of the human body is dependent upon the nervous system for its activity. The nerves that supply the stomach carry the "Spark of Life" which enables the stomach to digest food. If it were not for the nerves supplying the heart, that important organ would cease to do its work. If it is true that a complete severing of the nerves leading to these organs will cause them to cease functioning, is it not reasonable that pressure upon these same nerves will limit the activity of the heart and stomach and cause them to function imperfectly.

THE ONLY WAY

to relieve this abnormal condition is to relieve the pressure from nerve fibres that supply these organs. This is accomplished by scientific manipulation of displaced spinal segments which are constricting spinal nerves. When the nerves are freed of pressure they are capable of carrying 100 per cent. of mental impulses to the abnormal tissues. THE RESULT IS HEALTH.

BALDWIN ANNOUNCES PARTY'S PROGRAM

HON. DR. J. W. EDWARDS IS DEAD

BROADCASTING EQUIPMENT TO BE PURCHASED

Peterborough Exhibition Board Will Have Flat in Big Parade.

TICKET RATE CHANGED.

Board Will Have Its Own Apparatus To Broadcast Addresses.

Practically one hundred per cent. of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition board's total membership wielded the stamp of approval with good grace last night when, at a meeting held in the Chamber of Commerce council room, it approved the purchase for the sum of $1,650 of an electrical broadcasting equipment, to be used at the exhibition and to be rented when occasion offered to such events as the Peterborough Old Home week—and also, after careful consideration, agreed with the proposal of several of its number to moderate the admission rates of the exhibition.

The meeting last night was one of those occasions when, with all working in harmony, much routine as well as new business incidental to preparations for the 1929 exhibition, was disposed of. Vice-President Thomas McIndoo opened the meeting in the absence of President Roland Denne, and his first act was to call upon William Knox, director of the live-stock department, to report on the workings of the livestock committees. His report was one of considerable length, dealing as it did with numerous minor changes in the various classes of livestock judging, and amendments to disposal of prizes in occasional events. It also suggested a new section to deal with four-year-old cattle, as well as places where newly-acquired prizes might best be placed for competition. Regarding one phase of the report, that dealing with the bacon hog competition, household science and livestock judging for boys and girls, J. B. Nelson, local representative for the Department of Agriculture spoke briefly, stating that the exhibition here had been designated by his department as a district exhibition, taking in some seven or eight of the surrounding counties, which would result in keener competition of a higher grade of exhibits. Details of the enlarged competitions,—for they will be enlarged this year—were left in the hands of William Knox and Mr. Nelson. The former's report was duly approved by vote of the meeting.

Department Heads Report

The director of the livestock department then proceeded with the introduction of numerous communications regarding prizes for special events; while the next report received, that of George Pakman, on behalf of the poultry committee, was devoid of any radical changes. E. F. Mason reported for that department which has charge of the ladies' work and fine arts, mentioning several minor changes, as did W. H. Young for the horticultural committee. Mr. Young, in the course of his report, brought up the matter of an extended time limit for exhibitors of flowers, particularly of the more perishable varieties, but it was decided that the present arrangements should stand until next year, when Mr. Young will have had time to investigate more fully the best changes to make. An encouraging note was heard from Mr. Knox regarding the advertising in the prize list. He stated that sixty new advertisers had been secured this year, bringing the total revenue from advertising up to approximately $900 00.

Mayor Roland Denne having arrived, Vice-President McIndoo vacated the chair in his favor. Discussion centered for a time around the suggestion of R. H. Turner, that the Exhibition Board prepare a float to be placed in the parade during Old Home Week. He also paid tribute to Mr. Knox for the efficient manner in which the latter had discharged his duties as chairman of the advertising committee and as director of the livestock department. E. F. Mason and President Denne concurred in

Recurrence of Heart Attack

Conservative Member For Frontenac-Addington Dies in Ottawa.

HAD RETURNED TO HOUSE

Trouble Became More Acute Last Night and Member Again Went to Hospital.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 18 (C.P.).—Hon. Dr. J. W Edwards, Conservative member of Parliament for Frontenac-Addington, died suddenly early this morning as he was being removed to the Ottawa civic hospital following a recurrence of a heart attack which had afflicted him earlier in the week.

On Monday night Dr. Edwards was first seized with an attack. He had participated in the Commons debate on the divorce issue and was leaving the chamber when he suddenly collapsed and had to be assisted to a member's room.

He was under treatment in hospital until yesterday afternoon when he returned to his seat in Parliament. Dr. Edwards had apparently fully recovered and was accorded an ovation from all sides of the house. He did not take any active part in yesterday's debates.

During the night he complained of a recurrence of the cardiac trouble, and as his condition became more acute was ordered to be taken to hospital, where he died at 3.20 this morning, a few minutes after he had been admitted.

Came of U.E.L. Stock.

Hon. Dr. John Wesley Edwards upheld the traditions of the United Empire Loyalists stock, from which he came, and he never lost the opportunity to further the interest of the British Empire. Perhaps this trait of Dr. Edwards was never more clearly borne out than in his immigration policy, for the Frontenac-Addington member for years took the keenest of interest in immigration, especially those of British birth.

Born May 25, 1865, in Storrington Township, in the County of Frontenac, Dr. Edwards was the son of George Edwards of Norfolk, England, and Elizabeth Jane Lyon of Frontenac, the latter being of U.E.L. stock, and one of the first settlers in the county. He attended Sydenham high school, later going to Ottawa Normal School, and then to Queen's University, whence he graduated in 1900 as a medical doctor, having first secured his degree of Bachelor of Arts. For ten years he had been a school teacher in Ontario and Manitoba, and shortly after graduating from Queen's was appointed County Clerk of Frontenac, which position he held until 1909. In the meantime, in 1907, he was appointed physician at the county jail, and also retained this position until 1909.

Elected in 1909.

In the general election of 1908 he was first elected to the House of Commons as a Conservative member for Frontenac-Addington, and was re-elected in 1911 and 1917. A staunch Conservative, Dr. Edwards upheld the policies of his government through thick and thin. In September, 1921, he was sworn in as Privy Councillor and chosen as Minister of Immigration and Colonization in the government of Right. Hon. Arthur Meighen, only to be defeated in the general election in December of that year, when William Reed, a United Farmer candidate, was the successful candidate. Shortly after this his health broke down, and for a time his life was despaired of. He recovered, however, and entered the Dominion political arena again, being re-elected in his old constituency in 1925 and 1926.

Apart from the political field, Dr. Edwards was perhaps better known for his work in the Orange Order, where he was Grand Master of the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario East from 1921 to 1923, and was Grand

MOTION OF CENSURE PLACES HON. PETER VENIOT ON TRIAL; SIMCOE CASE AIRED IN HOUSE

Dangers Of City Traffic No Worry To Bike Rider

The belief that the streets of this city are often dangerous because of busy traffic and that one must watch his step at all times is certainly not held by one citizen—at least his actions did not indicate so. He was seen eagerly reading his newspaper while calmly riding his wheel up George street near Confederation Square this morning. The approach of several motor cars seemed to cause him no concern and without apparently missing a line he threaded the traffic.

Amendment Names Postmaster-General As Having Utter Disregard of Civil Service.

WHITTAKER INCIDENT.

Motion Was Still Under Discussion When House Adjourned At Six O'clock.

OTTAWA, April 18. (C.P.) — Again yesterday, a government motion to go into supply was met with a Conservative amendment. The proceedings were almost a repetition of what took place yesterday. The Conservative amendment of Tuesday demanded increased remuneration for rural mail carriers. Yesterday, it brought up the well known case of George E. Whittaker, disabled returned soldier, and the appointment to the postmastership of Simcoe, Ontario. The case has already been the subject of debate in Parliament, and extensive newspaper comment.

The amendment was still under discussion when the House adjourned at 6 o'clock. On Thursday and Friday the House goes into supply without the question being put, so there can be no further discussion of the amendment on either of those days. The debate may however be revived on Monday under the rules.

Disregard of Act.

The Conservative amendment asked the House to declare that Hon. P. J. Veniot, the Postmaster-General, had disregarded the letter and spirit of the civil service act in connection with the appointment of C. R. Bowyer, the man who finally obtained the Simcoe appointment. Mr. Bowyer was also a returned soldier, but without disability, while Mr. Whittaker has lost both legs on active service.

The defense of Mr. Veniot was a lengthy one. The Postmaster-General agreed that both Mr. Whittaker and Mr. Bowyer deserved equal consideration on the grounds of overseas service. Mr. Whittaker, however, said the Minister, had suffered a disability which unfitted him to discharge the duties of a post office such as Simcoe.

Mr. Veniot declared that he gave place to no one in his regard for the returned soldier.

It was understood the action was due to information obtained by the examination of those arrested in the round up last May and was not due to a new intrigue.

EXECUTIVE MEETING.

Many Matters Regarding Old Home Week Program Will Be Discussed To-night.

The members of Old Home Week Committees are reminded of the regular weekly executive meeting, in the Council Chamber to-night, to which every one interested in the success of Old Home Week is invited. The organization is rapidly getting the different programs under way, and is anxious to have the ideas that any one might give, and desire the active help of everyone who will take a practical interest in the affair.

The Weather

This morning found the ground covered with a light coating of snow, and a miniature blizzard blowing, with the temperature three degrees below the freezing point. Whether it is the "last kick" of a dying winter is not known, but it is to be hoped that it is. The last snow storm in the spring of 1928 was on April 21, but snowstorms (and occasionally quite heavy ones) at times occur in May. The last occasion below the freezing point last year was on May 14th. Bright, warm, sunshiny days are now needed. Speaking of sunshine brings to me a little item that may interest the reader. A certain Florida newspaper has had for eighteen years a standing offer to supply its daily edition free of all costs on any day that the sun did not shine on that city. A few days ago it lost out for the first time, but kept to its bargain.—W. B.

APPROVE OF BEACH BY-LAW

ENDORSE LAWN CAMPAIGN.

Unanimous endorsation of the City Council's action in submitting to the people's approval the by-law for improving the swimming beach at Inverlea Park at an estimated cost of $10,000, was given by the executive of the Chamber of Commerce, when they met at luncheon in the Empress Hotel at noon to-day.

The Chamber also endorsed The Examiner's campaign against corner lot cutting, and the attention of the Horticulturist Society and the Old Home Week Committee will be drawn to the importance of beautifying the city during the week in as many ways as may be found practicable.

A letter having been received from the Publicity Committee of Old Home Week the executive decided to draw the attention of all members of the Chamber to the public meeting to be held on Thursday, May 2, when J. C. Miller of Orillia, will speak.

Seven new applicants were reported by Charles Lacheur, chairman of the membership Committee, and these were duly elected into membership for the year.

Empire Shopping Week, which will be held in Canada during the week of May 25 to June 1, was again endorsed by the Chamber.

J. A. McKone, chairman of the Advertising Committee, introduced a resolution which was adopted. It provides that the pupils of the Collegiate and St. Peter's High School be given the opportunity to compete in making a design for the 60 foot by 9 foot sign to be placed on the Provincial Highway by the Chamber. Three prizes will be given for these designs: first, $5; second, $3, and third, $2. All designs must be submitted to the Chamber, and will remain the property of the Chamber.

HON. DR. J. W. EDWARDS, M.P.

for Frontenac-Addington, who died in Ottawa hospital this morning.

EXPERTS FEAR REPARATION BREAK DOWN

Lord Revelstoke is Attempting To Reconcile Vastly Divergent Opinions.

COMPROMISE SOUGHT.

Failure Will Make a Reversion to the Dawes Plan Necessary.

PARIS, April 18 (Canadian Press). —The committee of eight, headed by Lord Revelstoke, charged with reconciling the vastly divergent German and Allied views as to reparations claims totals, convened this morning in an unquestioned atmosphere of pessimism. Failure in its labors, it seemed, would mean reversion to the Dawes plan as a basis for Europe's war debt settlements.

Sir Parker Gilbert, agent-general for reparations under the Dawes plan, arrived at the Hotel George V. at about the same time as the members of the Revelstoke Committee, and was understood to have conferred with them. The significance of his visit was not known.

The conference to-day reached a stage where it was necessary to consider the probable effect of a breakdown in negotiations.

Compromise Sought.

Negotiations and attempts to reconcile the vastly divergent viewpoints of the Germans and the Allied nations were continuing, by the committee seeking a compromise between the offer of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, German spokesman, and the total Allies' claims.

But so great was the difference between the two figures—a difference estimated by some to exceed a present value of $3,000,000,000 — that there was a tendency in many quarters to envisage failure, and consider what was next.

Reversion to the Dawes plan would involve continuation of basic annuities of 2,500,000,000 gold marks (about $600,000,000), with prospective increases dating from the beginning of the next fiscal year, and continuing to an uncertain total. Germany has repeatedly insisted the Dawes plan annuities are far beyond her capacity to pay.

Procedure Uncertain.

The procedure of the Revelstoke Committee was uncertain, but it was believed to be principally round table discussion.

It was expected that such negotiations as started to-day would continue for several days, and that there would be no further plenary session of the Experts Committee for some time.

An almost immediate effect of a breakdown, it was believed, would be a request by the French Government for setting up of an index committee to arrange for progressive increase in the annuities from the end of the fifth year of the payments, September 1, 1929.

UNION HEADQUARTERS DESTROYED

GASTONIA, N.C., April 18. — (Canadian Press). — A band of masked men at 2:30 this morning demolished headquarters of the local union of the National Textile Workers and the relief headquarters of the union. All national guardsmen who have been doing patrol duty in connection with the strike at the Loray Mill, as well as the special force of deputy sheriffs, were immediately placed on guard. Unconfirmed reports were that several persons were hurt in the disorder attending the destruction of the union headquarters.

Prime Minister Answers Critics Of Other Parties

Britains Great Contribution Towards Development of Self-Governing Dominions Should Be By Giving Them the Best of Her People, Declares Baldwin.

INTENDS TO NURSE TRADE INTO BETTER CONDITIONS AND TO GIVE THE DOMINIONS TRADE PREFERENCE

For the Colonies Premier Proposes To Establish Independent Commission, To Administer Loans, To Carry Interest Charges On Public Works and Watch Over Resources.

LONDON, April 18.—(By Thomas J. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.)—The challenges of political opponents in the general election campaign, were met by Premier Stanley Baldwin, in announcing the Conservative election program today at Drury Lane Theatre. He pointed to the Conservatives' sober policy of nursing trade into better conditions, Empire development, and particular encouragement of the colonies, and assistance to agriculture as objects that were being accomplished. "We do not promise more than we can perform," he emphasized.

Britain's great contribution to development of the self-governing colonies should be by giving them the best of her people, the Prime Minister declared, and by arranging with them such terms of trade preference as could be reached.

For the colonies he proposed to establish an independent commission to administer loans to carry interest charges on public works and to watch over profitable new resources.

Lauds De-Rating Scheme.

The Government's de-rating scheme which would remove from industry overhead charges of between $100,000 and $150,000 yearly, had captured the imagination of the country, the Prime Minister said. The party was also well satisfied with the safeguarding policy, but he declared the party was pledged, and would continue to be pledged, not to introduce protection nor to increase the cost of food.

If the 2,000 Conservative delegates from all parts of the country who assembled to-day to hear Premier Stanley Baldwin make his announcement on the Conservative program in the general elections expected the Prime Minister to reply in any direct and unmistakable form to Philip Snowden's speech in the House of Commons on Tuesday, and to comment on the debate in the House last night, they were profoundly disappointed. They might have been expecting something after the gossip of the possibility of the Allies war debts to Britain being made an election issue.

The Prime Minister was surrounded on the stage by practically the whole of his Cabinet, who no doubt knew very well beforehand that he proposed to utter no rousing sentiments on Allied war indebtedness. Like Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill in the budget speech, Premier Baldwin at the very opening directed his remarks to the Liberal rather than the Labor opposition.

Party of Performers

"Lloyd George has stated the Liberal party is a party of promise," Premier Baldwin said. "I accept that and I am no competitor. That has for years been the dividing line between the parties. We are a party of performers." It was no new thing for a party of performers to be charged with an inadequate program," he added.

Premier Baldwin proceeded to discuss the unemployment problem, but he declared he intended to say nothing about the general strike of 1926, to which Mr. Churchill alluded so frequently in the budget speech. The Prime Minister spoke of the new atmosphere in industry, which had put fresh life into British industrialists "in tackling reorganization, enabling us to recover our competitive power," he declared: "You will find a great excess of unemployment existing now over the pre-war period is due to the loss of foreign markets, and what I hope is only a temporary cessation of emigration. We are trying to make arrangements with the Dominion governments to make it easier for men and women to go to the Dominions overseas. We are trying by transference to get men from the black spots into districts where they can get work. Industry, if it is to survive, has to go far yet in the way of being humanized.

Research Legislation

The prime minister proceeded to indicate how the ministry intended to assist agriculture, on the lines already foreshadowed in the Chancellor's budget speech—immediate application of the de-rating scheme to agricultural land and buildings by removal of local taxes. The Ministry of Agriculture proposed to introduce new legislation regarding research and eductation, and also methods of marketing standardization.

"No work would stand scrutiny better than that accomplished by the Ministry of Health, both in housing and in education" Premier Baldwin stated. "The government is only halfway through, although its

DR. CREELMAN PASSES AWAY

BORN IN COLLINGWOOD.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., April 18.—(Canadian Press)—Dr. George Christie Creelman, M.S., B.S.A., LL.D., former president of the Ontario Agricultural College, died at his home in Beamsville shortly after four o'clock this morning. Dr. Creelman had been in only fair health of late but his condition was at no time thought to be serious. About four o'clock this morning he arose from his bed saying that he needed some air. He got up by the open window and in a few minutes declared he felt better. He then retired to his bed where he died shortly after.

He resided in Beamsville for the past six years and had made a very wide circle of friends who will sincerely mourn his sudden death.

Dr. Creelman is survived by his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Nicholas Curtis of Edmonton, Mrs. Margaret James of Toronto and three sons, James Mills Creelman of Beamsville, Ralph of Toronto and Donald at home. Interment will take place at Guelph following a service at Beamsville. The date of the funeral has not yet been set.

Born in Collingwood

George Christie Creelman, Educationalist, was born at Collingwood, Ont., May 9, 1869, and was nearly 60 years old when he died. Educated at the Collingwood Collegiate Institute, and the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, Creelman continued his studies at the University of Toronto, where he graduated in 1888 with a B.S.A. degree. Afterwards he attended Cornell University, Wisconsin University and Michigan Agricultural College.

Three years before his marriage in 1892 to Ada Mills, daughter of Dr. James Mills, Creelman began his academic career as assistant professor of Biology at Mississippi Agricultural College, becoming Professor of Biology the year of his marriage4 He resigned this apointment in 1897 to become Superintendent of Farmers' Institutes in Ontario, holding this position until 1904, when he became president of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph.

Retired Six Years Ago

Dr. Creelman retired from the Presidency of the Ontario Agricultural College six years ago, when he was succeded by Dr. J. B. Reynolds.

Honored by McMaster University, where he received the honorary degree of Doctors of Laws in 1910, Dr. Creelman was also elected a Senator of the University of Toronto. He was also a director of the

EKFRID SCOURGE IDENTIFIED AS STREPTOCOCCUS

Disease Is Claimed By Doctors To Be More Deadly Than Black Diphtheria.

CULTURES EXAMINED.

Six Others Are Said To Be Suffering From the Same Malady.

LONDON, Ont., April 18 (C.P.).—Streptococcus infection of a malignant type was responsible for the death of four residents of Ekfrid township during the past week, and the serious illness of two others. An analysis of cultures of blood samples made at the Institute of Public Health by Dr. A. J. Slack, acting head, leaves little doubt that the virulent germ caused the illness which attacked the families of Douglas Sinclair and Thomas Brown in different ways. The exact nature of the germ has not been definitely determined from the cultures.

Condition Serious

The condition of Edward Sinclair, twenty years of age, Ekfrid township farmer, whose mother and sister have succumbed to the strange malady which holds the township in its grasp, was announced as serious at Victoria Hospital here this morning. Slight hopes are held for his recovery. The youth was rushed to the hospital yesterday a few hours before his mother died while being brought to the hospital.

The condition of Mrs. William Gates Mrs. George Gates, Margaret Gates and C. M. West is slightly improved.

A Miss Sinclair, daughter of Mrs. Dougald Sinclair who died yesterday and sister of Barbara Sinclair, who succumbed Friday, was brought to the city hospital this morning suffering with apparently the same symtoms of the mother and sister.

100 Persons Innoculated.

Development overnight in the Ekfrid situation, which yesterday engulfed the entire populace in a wave of panic and fear, includes the admission of one more person. Miss Cissie Sinclair, aunt of one of the victims, to hospital, who is believed to be suffering from this disease, and the mild illness of more than 100 persons, produced by being innoculated.

Following receipt of the report ascribing the illness as streptococci infection Doctors Dewar and McNally started out to visit all persons sick in the township. It will take them a full day to complete the task.

With emergency restrictions applying to the whole of the township, the widespread fear and anxiety of the populace has quieted down a bit, although the authorities are remaining ever alert for the outbreak of new cases. The general opinion prevailing now is that nearly the entire population will have submitted to innoculation before the end of the week. Medical men are strongly advising that this step be taken.

Streptococci is a contagious disease, medical men admitted. Dr. Slack stated that a good many of the infectious germs are in the nose and throat and can easily be contracted talking in the presence of others. It is also contracted by mouth spray.

TORONTO, Ont., April 18 (C.P.).—Until he receives the official report of the examination of the blood and throat conditions of the victims now being made at the London Institute of Public Health, Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, Minister of Health, is unable to name the mysterious epidemic that has claimed four lives in Ekfrid township, Middlesex county, and with which a fifth victim is seriously ill. Dr. Godfrey expects the report some time to-day.

If, when the report arrives, further measures than those which have been taken appear necessary, officials of the department of health may be sent to Ekfrid township to take charge of the situation, Dr. Godfrey intimated.

Thinks It Diphtheria

"My guess, based on newspaper reports, which are not always accurate, is that it is diphtheria," said Dr. Godfrey, "but of course, I cannot say until I receive the report. I was in touch with London by long distance telephone until one o'clock last night. Dr. T. J. McNally, the district officer of health, has been in charge since yesterday morning at seven o'clock.

Two Former Ministers Of Immigration Pass Away Within Twenty-Four Hours

TORONTO, April 18.—(C.P.)—Heart disease has claimed two of Canada's former Ministers of Immigration within twenty-four hours.

Sir Clifford Sifton, in charge of immigration while a member of the Laurier Government, dropped dead in New York on Wednesday. His vigorous immigration policy resulted in a heavy influx of settlers, and the Prairie Provinces' development was largely due to his breadth of vision.

Hon. Dr. J. W. Edwards, who died suddenly in Ottawa to-day, was Minister of Immigration in the Meighen Administration. Although he held the portfolio for only a few months, throughout his political life he never ceased working in the interests of immigration, particularly persons of British birth.

Both were intense Imperialists.

King Amanullah Is Making An Attempt To Regain Throne Of Afghanistan

CALCUTTA, India, April 18 (Canadian Press). — Result of the fighting between former King Amanullah and Bacho Sakao at Shaikabad, forty miles from Kabul, the capital of Afghanistan, was in doubt to-day. Reports said severe clashes were under way there between forces of the former king, who hopes to regain his throne, and of Sakao, "Waterboy of the North," who took the throne from Amanullah's brother.

There were many killed and wounded, and the hospitals at Kabul were said to be crowded.

Reports from Afghanistan by way of Moscow said Amanullah had advanced his troops about 650 miles from Kandahar on the road to Kabul, capturing Halati Gilza, which was to become his headquarters. The place is about 200 miles from Kabul.
